FLORENCE HOMEMAKERS TO MEET THURSDAY, APRIL 24

The Florence Homemakers will meet at the Town Hall on April 24, at 10:00 o'clock, for an all-day meeting. Final plans will be made for the trip to Maysville, Ky., to the District meeting.

Mrs. Gladys Fullerton will give a talk on, "Nutrition." Every homemaker will enjoy her talk and the things that she will tell us about nutrition. This will be in connection with the defense program.

The major project leaders will give the lesson on chrocheted rugs. By way of the "grapevine," I heard that crocheted rugs are beautiful and easy to make, so I know that everyone will want to attend this meeting and learn how to make these interesting rugs.

At the March meeting we learned how to make braided rugs and the leaders displayed several beautiful rugs which were made by one of our own club members. Several members have made or started hooked mats and hooked rugs.

SIMON KENTON HOME EC GIRLS ENJOY FIELD TRIP

On March 28 a group of home economics girls from Simon Kenton High school, visited several interesting places in Cincinnati. After meeting at the school, they went on a school bus, driven by Taylor Rapp, to the Kroger Food Foundation. There Mr. Alexander, the guide for the group, explained how Kroger tests their products, both in the laboratories there at the Foundation, and in nthe homes of 750 homemakers i n19 different states. After this explanation, Mr. Alexander took the girls on a tour of the laboratorles. Jean Allen, who broadcasts for Kroger, served the girls with refreshments before they left.

On leaving the Kroger Food Foundation, the girls stopped at the Union Terminal to observe the architecture and the interior of the building.

From the Union Terminal building the girls enjoyed a short trip through the Netherland Plaza. They visited the Hall of Mirrors, the Pavillion Caprice, and they were able to listen for a little while to the orchestra in the Restaurant Continental. Since it was nearing time to visit the Fashion Frock factory ,the girls hesitatingly left the Netherland for the factory.

At Fashion Frocks factory, the girls were guided through the factory by Mr. Fromeyer and Mr. Cabot. At this factory the girls saw all the interesting processes involved in producing a ready to wear dress. They saw cutting machines, which can cut as many as 500 pieces of a dress at one time. One of the most interesting machines is the one which sews on buttons and snaps. As time was passing quickly ,the girls reluctantly left the factory for home. All seemed to have enjoyed the trip and to have profited much from it. Miss Helen Gardiner, the home economics teacher, sponsored the trip.

K. E. A. MEETS THIS WEEK

Kentucky teachers should find the K. E. A. meetings, which started in Louisville yesterday and are to continue through Saturday, very interesting, this year, for judging by the personages who are to appear at the various sessions, such varied programs have been planned that there are topics which should appeal to each individual instructor.

Among the nationally known figures, who will lecture or entertain, are: Clarence A. Dykstra, recently appointed by President Roosevelt as chairman of the Mediation Board; John W. Studebaker, U. S. Commissioner of Education; Judge Florence Allen of Cleveland; John L. Davis, celebrated lecturer, philosopher and humorist; John Temple Graves, "a statesman, a philosopher, and a gentleman of the Old South"; John Erskine, author; Dr. George D. Strayer, educator; Dr. Ramsey head of Georgia Education Association; Henry Grattan Doyle, authority on international affairs; John O. Gross, president of Simpson College; Lloyd Allen Cook, O. S. U., authority on public education; Joan Allen, interpreter of Negro dialect; and Dr. James H. Richmond, Harper Gatton, William O. Gilreath, Miss Sara Rogers, James T. Norris ,the Hon. John W. Brooker and the Hon. Keen Johnson.

Those from here, who are attending, are: W. F. Coop, principal of the Walton-Verona school, Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Baker, Louis Shields, Miss Katherine Scott, Mrs. Katherine Rose, Mrs. Nannie Seickman, Mrs. Lucy Alphin, E. Shipman, Mrs. Hudson, Mrs. Alfred Kemper, Miss Louise Conrad, E. P. Hutchinson, William Brown, principal of Piner school, and Mrs. Brown, Miss Susan Pursley, Miss Grace Weller and Miss Ranklin. There are undoubtedly other teachers who plan to attend part or all of the meetings, but it was impossible for us to get them.

BAPTIST MISSIONARY UNION TO MEET THURSDAY

The Missionary Society of the Baptist church will have an all-day meeting Thursday, at the church.

Mrs. F. E. Fisher will preside over the business meeting, which will be held at 11:00 o'clock.

At 1:30, a very interesting program the topic of which is, "The Challenge to True Discipleship," will be given. Mrs. T. W. Jones will have charge of the program. Mrs. Susie Norman and Mrs. Clifford Powers will give a report of the annual convention, which they attended at Ashland.

FIDELIS CLASS MEETS

The Fidelis class of the Baptist church, held their regular monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Helen Graff, Thursday. Miss Grace Weller acted as co-hostess.

Members, who enjoyed the time together, were: Mrs. Jane Johnson, Mrs. Mary Rector, Mrs. Mabel Webster, Mrs. Luciella Neumeister, Mrs. June Neumeister, Mrs. Mary Goodpaster, Mrs. Lucy Breeden, Mrs. Ethel Breeden, Mrs. Louise Stephenson, Mrs. Francis Code, Mrs. Lola Mae Bolington; and Alva Marie Flynn, Sharon Graf and Mrs. Cecil Gaines.

UNION NEWS

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Davis of Madison, Indiana, spent the week end at their home here.

Mr. and Mrs. Randall Lucas of Covington, were recent guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Rea.

We are glad to learn that Harry Lee Rea is able to be out, following a recent operation for appendicitis.

Mr. Jesse Wheeler was seriously injured, Monday, when he staggered and fell from his wagon, frightening his team, which ran away, dragging him some distance. He was rushed to St. Elizabeth hospital, Covington, where he was found to have a crushed arm, closed lung and other injuries. Mr. Tom Devore, who was with Mr. Wheeler, was badly bruised ,but not seriously hurt.

CARD OF THANKS

With deepest gratitude we wish to extend our appreciation to our relatives, friends and neighbors, for the kindness and sympathy shown us in the great loss of our dearly beloved husband and father, Harley C. Stephenson.

Especially do we wish to thank Rev. Alderson for his words of consolation, the ladies who sang; also Chambers & Grubbs for their kindness.

THE BEREAVED WIFE, AND CHILDREN.

The High Cost of Getting Well

Within recent years much has been said about the high cost of getting well. After giving this problem a great deal of study, we have devised a simple plan whereby the patient may get the best health service at a very nominal cost, without sacrificing any laboratory tests or x-rays which may be necessary in his particular case.

We shall be glad to explain this plan in detail if you will call at this office.

THE TRUTH SIMPLY TOLD

Today's popularity of Doan's Pills, after many years of world-wide use, surely must be accepted as evidence of satisfactory use. And favorable public opinion supports that of the able physicians who test the value of Doan's under exacting laboratory conditions.

These physicians, too, approve every word of advertising you read, the objective of which is only to recommend Doan's Pills as a good diuretic treatment for disorder of the kidney function and for relief of the pain and worry it causes.

If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove waste that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole body suffers when kidneys lag, and diuretic medication would be more often employed.

Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warn of disturbed kidney function. You may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel weak, nervous, all played out.

Use Doan's Pills. It is better to rely on a medicine that has won world-wide acclaim than something less favorably known. Ask your neighbor!

Mr. and Mrs. James Beach and daughters entertained for dinner, Sunday, Miss Mabei Boots and Miss Blanche Webster, and Hobart and Robert Speagle.

Sorry to hear of the death of Uncle Jack Rex, who passed away Friday morning. He was passed 82 years of age, and had lived in this community for quite a few years. He leaves to mourn his departure, one daughter, a son-in-law, 3 granddaughters, 1 grandson, and 6 great grandchildren. We extend sympathy to the entire family.

Miss Eulalie Wilhoit was calling on Mrs. Bertha Chapman Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Sallie Whitson is leaving today to stay with Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Hamilton of Verona.

Rev. G. N. Smith filled his regular appointment Sunday, but asked to be dismissed after church Sunday, as his son, who is with the Navy, was home for a visit. It had been two years and seven months since the family had seen him.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Hughes and Mrs. Sallie Whitson spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Edrington.

Mr. and Mrs. Hobart Greenwell and father had as their Sunday dinner guests, Mr. and Mrs. Atwood Greenwell, Miss Ellena Greenwell and James Whitson.

Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Gullion had an auto wreck Saturday evening, about six o'clock. They had started to the home of the former's sister, Mrs. Alma Neuland, when one wheel locked, as they were driving down the Whitson hill to the James Whitson gate. The car, which was piloted by Mrs. Gullion, turned over twice, shaking and bruising the occupants. It is fortunate, indeed, that no one was hurt more seriously.

-that man IN OUR NEIGHBORHOOD!

I DARED NOT LEAVE THE HOUSE

I had just put the children to bed and turned out the lights, when the youngest started to cough. With confidence, I went to the medicine cabinet — the bottle was empty!

I knew from experience the child would grow worse through the night unless relieved, but my husband was away — I could not leave the house.

In this predicament, I thought of "that man", (our neighborhood druggist) and phoned immediately — then in what seemed but a few moments, I heard welcome footsteps — the filled prescription had arrived.

Yes, our neighborhood druggist fills prescriptions with infinite care and also carries a fine line of cosmetics and proprietary products. For women, he usually recommends Vatona Tablets to aid in the relief of those trying discomforts of the menstrual period — this may be just what you need — at least get in touch with your druggist. Improved Uniform International SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

S. S. Lesson for April 20

USING WITNESSING POWER

LESSON TEXT—Acts 2:1-4; 4:8-20.
GOLDEN TEXT—They were all filled with the Holy Ghost, and they spake the word of God with boldness.—Acts 4:31

In the right place at the right time and in the right attitude—these are unfailing conditions of divine blessing.

Note also how fitting it was that on that Sunday morning—evidently in the upper room—the disciples were "with one accord in one place," ready for the great gift of power and grace for life and ministry which God had for them, and through them for the world. One wonders what might happen today if Christian people would be in God's house on the Lord's day, in complete accord and unity, expectant, looking for His blessing.

I. The Holy Spirit Poured Out (2:1-4).

"We are not to imagine that at this Pentecost He first came into the world. In all ages He had been imparting life and guidance and strength and holiness to the people of God; but He was now to work with a new instrument, namely, the truth concerning a crucified, risen, ascended, divine Saviour. For the proclamation of this truth the Church was the appointed agent. The story of Pentecost, therefore, is the first chapter in the history of the Church as it witnesses for Christ, and it embodies the impressive lesson that in all successful witnessing the power is that of the Spirit and the instrument is the message of the gospel."

The outpouring of the Spirit on the day of Pentecost was accompanied by signs of great power, and a special endowment which enabled all the strangers in Jerusalem to hear the gospel in their own tongue. This ability to speak in foreign languages not previously learned was merely a temporary endowment granted for a special purpose. It was one of those miraculous spiritual gifts which marked the age of the apostles. In modern times the claim to possess this power has never been established on credible evidence, nor is the dominance of the Spirit in the life of a believer to be tested by the presence of any special gift" (Charles R. Erdman).

II. Mighty Works Performed (4:9).

Reference is made here to the healing of the lame man—a miracle which resulted in the imprisonment of Peter and John. It was a work of power, but only the first of many which the disciples were to perform.

An even greater work was that of the Spirit-filled preaching of the gospel which brought 3,000 souls into the church (2:41). As we marvel at that event, we need also to keep before us the recurring day-by-day miracle of the regeneration of individuals (2:47). This was, and is, accomplished through the teaching of the Word (2:42).

III. True Witness Presented (4:8-12).

The rulers and leaders (especially the skeptical aristocrats of that day—the Sadducees) were angered by the proclamation of the resurrection of the One they had crucified. They also feared that their rich revenues from the temple might be cut off if the people were to follow Christ (4:4), so they took the disciples into custody and brought them before the Sanhedrin.

Humanly speaking, one might have expected these men to stand in fear and awe before that august body, and either become dumb with terror or brazenly defiant. But such is not the operation of the Holy Spirit in a man. They spoke tactfully, but boldly, of the death and resurrection of the only One in whom there is any salvation.

IV. Faithful Though Persecuted (4:13-20).

Not being able to make any real charge against the disciples, the rulers let them go, but only after threatening them and forbidding them to speak any more of Christ. They, like so many religious leaders of today, were quite willing that the disciples should preach, if they would only leave out the name of Christ.

Note the answer in verse 19. There is only one message (v. 12). " 'Neither is there any other name under heaven, that is given among men; wherein we must be saved'; thus Peter asserts not only that the miracle has been wrought in the name of Jesus Christ, but that he and his judges can have eternal salvation in no other name. His words are at once a rebuke, a challenge, and an invitation. They need to be reviewed and weighed today by certain benevolent but superficial talkers who are asserting that Christianity is only one among many religions, and that it is only necessary for one to be sincere in his own belief. Such teachers must reconcile their statements with those of Peter and John, who were 'filled with the Holy Spirit' when they declared that there is but one name wherein we must be saved."

MORGANSVILLE

"I am the Resurrection and the life." The countryside is gay with the beauty of the golden jonquils and other early flowers which the genial spring sunshine has caused to burst into bloom.

God's yearly miracle in proof of "life after death," is being performed before our eyes. The bare trees are pulsing with new life and every little twig is pushing forth tiny shoots. From the brown grass comes countless emerald spears under whose shadows violets lift happy little faces. Plows open long, dark furrows where buried seeds will yield a harvest All the beauty and the promise of the budding trees, the blooming flowers, the springing grain, join in an anthem of hope and faith of the coming resurrection of the dead, which dispels the gloom shrouding the portals of death.

The word of God is a bridge spanning the deep river of life. The foaming waters have never shaken its strong foundation. It has never needed repair and its security is not doubted by devout pilgrims, many of whom have crossed over to the other side, and by it we must cross over if we would go with safety.

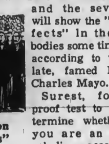
Lovely gifts from Miss Marjorie Pickett of Florence, were duly appreciated



An all-day session of the Homemakers' club was enjoyed, Monday, at the community house.

A Million Drunks!

Americans like facts and here are two which should be of importance to every one who ever took a drink.

There are at least 200,000 chronic alcoholics in the United States today, plus one million or more persons who . . . are in danger of becoming chronic alcoholics, according to Dr. Lawrence Kolb, assistant surgeon general of the United States Public Health Service.

Of 10 persons who drink, even "socially", three will become drunkards and the seven will show the "effects" in their bodies some time, according to the late, famed Dr. Charles Mayo.

"A Million Alcoholics"

Surest, foolproof test to determine whether you are an alcoholic, according to the Keeley Institute, is to ask yourself: "Can I take it or leave it alone?" The catch is that you not only have to be honest in your answer but then you have to prove it by "leaving it alone." The drinker who says he never gets drunk, who says "I could quit tomorrow if I wanted to" but whose nerves go to pieces when not anesthetized by alcohol, is an alcoholic and a medical case.

Alcoholism, growing by leaps and bounds since repeal according to the nation's mental hospitals, is just one of the effects of beer, wine and spirits which causes the W.C.T.U. and other religious and temperance groups to say: "Stop these effects by turning off the faucet of the liquor supply."

"Correct Labeling"

Relegalization has made liquor easily accessible to all Americans with every form of high-pressure merchandising being used to increase consumption—in other words to make more non-drinkers into drinkers.

The reverse could also be true, social workers say, and all the human and economic costs of liquor be reduced by making it more difficult to secure.

YOUTH'S OPINION

Drinking doesn't help your personality, that's what students of a Tulsa, Okla., high school discovered in a recent survey, according to the Tulsa World.

WITH THE REDS

HURLED OPENING GAME

PAUL DERRINGER

Now that the 1941 baseball season is here, the Reds can settle down to their most serious business, which is the defense of their world's championship. Their schedule was due to open at Crosley Field Tuesday, and they were scheduled to meet their opening day opponents, the St. Louis Cardinals, in two other games on Wednesday and Thursday.

The Thursday game was listed as a ladies' day contest. The procedure for the handling of ladies' day admissions will be the same this year as last. Ladies' admissions will be limited to 10,000 for any one game. Tickets will be placed on sale following one ladies' day game, for the one to come. For example, immediately following the Thursday game against the Cardinals, tickets for the second ladies' day, Saturday, April 26, against Pittsburgh, were to have gone on sale at both Crosley Field and the downtown ticket office at 307 Vine Street. Sale of these tickets will continue until the supply of 10,000 is exhausted.

If, on the day of the game, ladies' tickets are still available, they will be placed on sale at the ball park. If the supply of 10,000 has been distributed, then ladies who do not have their tickets will find it necessary to pay the full admission price. No mail orders for ladies' days will be accepted at any time.

The opening series against the Cardinals, who are rated as one of the Reds' toughest contenders, is being followed by the Reds' first road trip of the season. This trip will take the club first to Pittsburgh for three games Friday, Saturday, and Sunday, then to Chicago for three more days of action, and then to St. Louis for a two-day stay on Thursday and Friday, April 24 and 25.

Saturday, April 26, the Reds return to their home base for the above mentioned ladies' day game against Pittsburgh. They'll also play the Pirates here on the following day, Sunday, April 27, after which they'll take to the road again for a tour through the East. Their return from this trip is scheduled for Saturday, May 10, when they encounter the Chicago Cubs in the opener of a three-game series. The Cubs are led by Jimmy Wilson, one of the Cincinnati heroes of the 1940 world series, and a Redleg coach in 1939 and 1940.

Money Talks

By
Frederick Stamm, Economist Director of Adult Education
UNIVERSITY OF LOUISVILLE

It may not be amiss to write about prices for another week. And especially if by reading about prices, you may be able to save some money.

It was reported several days ago that manufacturers have increased the price of men's and boys' suits from $1.50 to $2.50 and that prospects are bright for another increase of from $2.50 to $5.00 a suit before fall. Producers point out that the cost of raw materials and labor has gone up considerably and that taxes are also adding to their costs. Rising raw material prices are due in part to the increased demand of the Army and Navy for uniforms, tents, blankets, etc.

When we realize that wholesalers' and retailers' costs have also gone up, it is fair to assume that the price of suits consumers may rise appreciably over what it was a year ago. I would not be surprised to see retail prices of men's suits go up from $5.00 to $10.00 this fall.

The hardware trade reports advances in prices of from 5% to 10% on many items. Some of these increases will affect the average householder as they are in tinware, scissors, screen door sets, fuses, rubber-covered electrical wire, and galvanized roofing products.

These advances are, in part, due to the diversion of a large section of peacetime manufacturing capacity to manufacture of accessories and parts used in connection with armament .

Cash wholesale food markets, in large cities, report that prices, as a whole, have advanced to the highest levels since 1937 and now stand around 20% higher than a year ago. Food supplies in the U. S. are still plentiful, but with the defense program in full swing demand for food has increased sharply.

All living costs are pointing upward ,and all indications are that prices will be much higher this fall. May I again remind you that commodities on the shelf and in the closet are now worth more than dollars in the bank. This is always true in periods of rising prices.

W. C. Lassetter, editor of The Progressive Farmer, was the speaker at the annual meeting of the Marion County Farm Bureau.

Table No. 2, Kentucky Extension Circular, "Make the Farm Feed The Family."

This table recommends the planting of the following vegetables:

March and April: Potatoes, onions, early cabbage, spinach, mustard, early turnips, kale, lettuce, peas, radishes, early beets, carrots, beans, sweet corn.

May: Sweet potatoes, (Nancy Hall, Southern Queen), early tomatoes (Prichard, Break O'Day), peppers, early squash, late squash, pumpkin.

July: Late beans.

August and September: Late turnips, (Purple Top), turnip greens, Kale (Seven Tops or Siberian).

Many other vegetables can be added to this list. A well planned and balanced Home Garden can add much to your farm income. (a), Early garden vegetables; (b), mid-season and later garden to supply plenty of vegetables for the family table, to can, and store for the winter; (c), every home garden should have a variety of perennial plants such as rhubarb, asparagus, winter onions. (d), Get a copy of the Kentucky Experiment Station Circular 343, "The Garden, Month by Month," and Kentucky Extension Circular 309, "Home Vegetable Garden."

A supply of fruits and berry crops are also important.

Home Grown Feed For Your Livestock This Winter

The farmer who is looking ahead in making plans for the feed requirements of his livestock this fall and winter. On most farms this will involve one or more kinds of livestock ,such as: Dairy cattle, beef cattle, sheep, swine, farm work sock, and poultry.

1. One of the most important crops on the livestock farm is an abundant supply of good pasture. Good pasture helps to save your feed expense.

(a) The good pasture has a mixture of grasses and legumes. (b) More grass is produced if you allow the grass to get a good growth in the spring before you turn the cattle on to graze. Much pasture is damaged by too early grazing in the spring. By having a good supply of winter cover crops you can let the grass have time to grow.

We visited a farm in the Bracht section during the past week which had an outstanding winter cover crop. This small grain cover crop was pasturing the sheep while the grass was allowed time to grow before turning and the pasture. Limestone and phosphate are needed to provide good cover crops and good pasture grass.

(c) If the pasture fields are rotated by moving the livestock from field to field more grazing is provided.

Hay Crops

Plans should be made early for the hay you will need for your livestock and work stock. The quality of the hay can be improved if properly saved and stored. Home grown roughage is an important part of your livestock program.

(a) Legume hay: Alfalfa, clovers, soy beans, lespedeza, etc.

(b) Grass hay: Orchard grass, timothy, and mixtures of grass and legumes, etc.

(c) Small grain hay: Such as oats.

(d) Other roughages should be saved for hay.

Grain Feeds

Your home grown feed plan should include grain feed where they can be grown in your rotation program.

(a) Wheat, corn, barley, soy beans and the like.

The farm grown feeds should be made to include feed for home grown meats and poultry products to supply the family. Detailed information about Making the Farm Feed the Family, can be obtained from the Kentucky Experiment Station circular No. 354.

HOW SPINAL DISPLACEMENTS AFFECT HEALTH

By Dr. Thomas Sullivan

All vital organs, glands, muscles and tissues of the body are able to function normally and remain healthy only as long as they receive normal nerve stimulus. Organs and glands suffer disturbed function, muscles and tissues are healthy or diseased according to their nerve supply.

Nerve stimulus is supplied to all parts of the body by the brain and spinal cord. The spinal cord, housed within the spine, is a continuation of the brain. It is composed of 31 nerve branches, each of which controls the function of a definite part of the body. The heart is controlled by these nerve trunks in the spine, as are also the lungs, stomach, liver, kidneys and all other organs. Each organ, gland, muscle, and tissue of the body receives its power to function from these nerve trunks which branch off from the spinal cord.

Since the nerves branching from the spinal cord to all parts of the body, must pass out between the bones of the spine, a displacement of any bone will subject nerves to pressure and irritation, caused by a partial closing of the opening between the bones, through which the nerve must pass out from the spine. It is a fact, recognized by all healing sciences, that nerve irritation, caused by a spinal displacement, impairs the function and health of the body organs or parts controlled by the irritate nerves.

Thus vital organs and glands, circulation of blood, all muscles and tissues are subject to disordered function and ill health when their nerve connections at the spine are irritated. Fortunately, there is a way to correct and help prevent these spinal displacements.

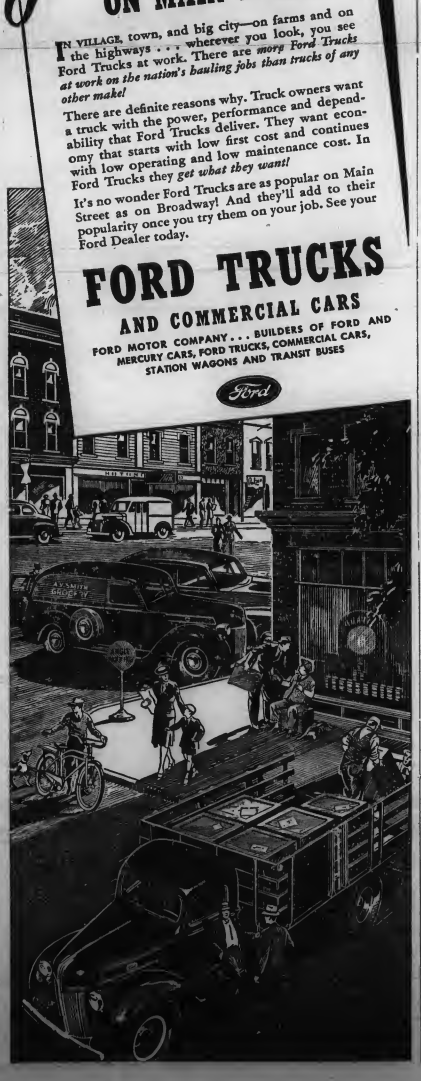
NEWS and FACTS . . . of Statewide Interest

DO YOU KNOW

. . . that Kentucky's $20,000,000 legal beer industry employs 15,000 people, pays salaries and wages totaling $10,000,000 annually and pays State taxes in excess of $1,000,000 a year?



To preserve these benefits, which are so important to Kentucky's social and economic welfare, our Committee has cooperated with law-enforcement authorities in the revocation of 10 retail beer licenses, suspension of six, cancellation of two, refusal of one license application and the padlocking of two retail beer outlets.

Thus, legal beer is sold under the strict control of state and local authorities, and under the watchful eye of our Committee. YOU can help by patronizing only reputable, law-abiding beer retailers.

Edgar Goodridge Announces For Sheriff

Edgar M. (Cuddy) Goodridge, of Hebron, formally announces his candidacy for Sheriff of Boone County, subject to the action of the Democratic primary, Saturday, August 2nd, 1941.

In making his official announcement, Mr. Goodridge makes the following statement:

"I was born and reared in the Hebron precinct and received my education in the Boone County public schools. I am a member of the Bullittsville Christian Church, and also a member of Hebron Masonic Lodge No. 757.

"I have always been a loyal Democrat and at present I am a member of the Boone County Young Men's Democratic Club.

"I am making this race because several of the most prominent and successful business men of Boone County have urged me to do so during the past year, and I certainly have faith in them and the voters of Boone County.

"I solicit the support of the Democratic voters in the coming primary and swear, if elected Sheriff to serve the people to the best of my ability."

DEARBORN COUNTY FAIR DATES ANNOUNCED

The David McAllister Post American Legion of Lawrenceburg, Indiana, announced the dates of their 19th Annual Fair, to be the week of August 18th to the 23rd inclusive. These dates, which are just one month later than their usual dates, were selected in order to allow more time for the construction of their new Fair-Grounds. Located on an 80-acre tract adjacent to the new U. S. 50 through Lawrenceburg, there will be ample room for parking and all other building, including a half mile track.

BURLINGTON HOMEMAKERS

The Burlington Homemakers will meet at the Court House in Burlington, on May 1st, at 10:30 a. m. A covered dish luncheon will be served at noon.

This meeting will be an interesting one. News of what has been done and is being done by other clubs in the district will be brought to the meeting by delegates who attended the Annual District meeting.

More about the making of rugs will be taught at this meeting. More good pointers will be presented such as: Wool is not very desirable for crochet rugs and whether or not it is better to tear or cut materials and always use lengthwise. The size of the needle used should be G, H or I.

Members and friends who are interested in making rugs, come out and see the pretty rugs and new patterns which the ladies have made and used.

Those who are planning to attend the Annual meeting on April 29th at Maysville, Ky., remember, today is the last in which to make reservations for lunch and transportation.

RUBBISH TO BE COLLECTED FRIDAY

The Trustees of the town of Walton have secured a truck to remove all junk, rubbish and trash from the town. This truck began its rounds last Friday, and will make the same next Friday, April 25th, and every two weeks thereafter, until further notice.

The residents are asked to place their trash at the street curb. The truck will begin its work about 8:30.

This is a splendid opportunity for the citizens of Walton to improve the appearance of their home surroundings, one we are thankful can be afforded by our worthy Trustees.

LOCAL BOARD SENDS ANOTHER TO ARMY

Ernest Wilson Rosenstiel is the latest Boone countian to be inducted into the U. S. Army. He reported to the Local Draft Board yesterday (April 23) and was taken to the induction station at Ft. Thomas.

Elmer Kirkpatrick Candidate For Jailer

Elmer Kirkpatrick, Jailer of Boone County announces in this issue as a candidate for re-election.

Mr. Kirkpatrick needs no introduction to the voters of Boone County, whom he asks to indorse the administration of the office he now holds.

He is a Democrat of the old school and at all regular elections, County, State and National, you will find him working for the nominees of Democratic Party.

The people from the various parts of the County who have visited the County seat have always found him courteous and accommodating at all times.

To the unfortunates who have been placed in his custody he has extended the kind of treatment one would expect from his fellowman.

Mr. Kirkpatrick wishes to extend to the voters of Boone County his thanks and appreciation for the consideration they have shown him in the past, and hopes to see them all in person before the August election.

He will appreciate your support and promises if re-elected, to perform his duties in a manner that will reflect credit upon himself and constituents.

"Jake" Cleek For Magistrate

J. F. "Jake" Cleek of Richwood road, near Beaver Lick, in this issue of the Advertiser, announces his candidacy for Magistrate from the 3rd Magisterial district of Boone county, subject to the action of the Democratic primary election on Saturday, August 2, 1941. This district is comprised of the following precincts: Carlton, Beave Lrick, Big Bone, Walton and Verona.

Mr. Cleek is well and favorably known in Boone county, and needs no introduction to the voters. This capable man solicits the support of the voters in the coming primary election.

BAKERY SALE SATURDAY, APRIL 26

The Willing Workers class will sponsor a Bakery Sale, Saturday, April 26, at Community Public Service office. For special orders for cakes, pies, chicken, etc., call Helen Jones, phone Walton 165 not later than Friday morning.

RECRUIT'S BIG FEET A RED CROSS PROBLEM

Private Herbert Tigar of Lowry Field, Denver, Colo., is wearing holeless socks again.

Tigar had worn out his supply he brought when entering the Army as the Army was unable to find any big enough. The quartermaster was even hard pressed to find shoes size 15AAA.

But the Red Cross heard of his plight, bought plenty of yarn, and members sat down and knitted Tigar two pairs.

Knitters for the War Production quota of the local Boone County Chapter are needed badly, Mrs. Martha L. Huey, Chairman, says. If you can knit please call her at Florence 623, and she will get some yarn to you.

HOMEMAKERS TO HOLD TULIP SHOW MAY 1ST

The Boone County Homemakers will sponsor a tulip show on May 1st, at 2:30 p. m., C. S. T., at the Burlington school.

Anyone wishing to compete is asked to have specimen at the school at 1:30 p. m. Prizes will be given for the different exhibits. For further details call Mrs. Garnett Tolin, Burlington; Mrs. Engie, Hebron, or Mrs. John L. Vest, Walton.

Mrs. Chas. Hopperton Passes Suddenly

Maggie Hopperton, 78, passed away in St. Elizabeth hospital, Thursday, April 17, of chronic nephritis.

The body was brought to the Chambers & Grubbs funeral home for preparation, and laid in state until Saturday. Funeral services were conducted at the funeral home Saturday afternoon at 2:00 p. m., Rev. Alford officiating. Burial was in the Walton cemetery.

The numerous and beautiful floral offerings showed the esteem in which Mrs. Hopperton was was held, for by her cheery personality and friendliness, she had won for herself a host of staunch friends.

Mrs. Hopperton was born and reared in Grant county, and was a member of the Presbyterian church.

She is survived by her husband; one daughter, Callie; eight sons, Ed, Lou, Andrew, Joe, Harvey, Fred, Hines, Jesse; 27 grandchildren, 12 great grandchildren.

SERVICES AT BEAVER LICK CHRISTIAN CHURCH

Services will be held at the Beaver Lick Christian church next Sunday afternoon at 2:15. Rev. T. H. Alderson will preach. The public is invited to attend.

Juett Announces For Representative

In this issue of the Advertiser will be found the formal announcement of John Juett of Williamstown, as a candidate for re-election as State Representative from Boone and Grant counties, subject to the action of the Democratic primary election on Saturday, August 2, 1941.

Mr. Juett is well known to the voters in these counties, he being the present Representative. He has been quite active in the performance of his duties at Frankfort, and solicits the support of the voters in the coming primary.

REV. J. RUSSELL CROSS RECEIVES CALL

A call to the pastorate of the First Presbyterian church, Memphis, Mo., has been received by the Rev. J. Russell Cross, present pastor of the Richwood and Union Presbyterian churches. Mr. Cross preached there on March 30th. He has notified the Pulpit Supply Committee of the Missouri church that he will give them his answer by May 18th.

ENTERTAIN WILLING WORKERS TUESDAY EVE

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Bush and daughter Violette opened their home to the Willing Workers class of the Christian church, when they acted as hosts to the group Tuesday evening, for their regular meeting.

The affair was of two-fold importance, for it not only observed the regular monthly gathering, but also celebrated the birthdate of its faithful teacher, Mr. Charles Ransler, who has served as its leader for many years.

A covered dish dinner was the main feature of the evening. The table was heavily laden with good things to eat, chief among which was a beautifully decorated birthday cake, which bore the traditional candles.

Those who enjoyed this lovely occasion, were: Rev. and Mrs. T. H. Alderson, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Doan, Mr. and Mrs. Burgess Hadley, Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Miller, Mr. Charles Ransler, Mr. W. B. Johnson, Mrs. Louise Rouse, Mrs. Mary Alice Conrad, Mrs. Olivia Wills, Mrs. Aleen Connor, Mrs. Lula Huey, Mrs. Ruth Hall, Mrs. Mary Lee Hance, Mrs. Elizabeth Gross, Mrs. Mandalee Gault, the Misses Mary Ransler, Helen Ruth Gardner, and Thelma Hizer, little June Doan and the hosts.

SCHOOL BOARD NAMES FACULTY

The teachers selected for the Walton-Verona school for next year, are: Prof. H. P. Baker, principal; W. F. Coop, superintendent; Lewis Shields, Mrs. Robert Brugh, and Mrs. Kathryn Scott, who are continuing their same places in the High school. Jean Robert Shetl ler of Verona, is the new teacher elected for the sixth grade, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Mrs. Robert Rose; Mrs. H. P. Baker, fifth grade; Miss Jean Chambers, fourth grade; and Mrs. Nannie Siekman, second and third grades.

Another teacher is to be elected next month.

Ed Chipman has been re-hired as principal of the Verona school. Other teachers there will be, Mrs. Sam Hudson, fifth and sixth; Miss Hazel Waller of Crittenden for the third and fourth; and Mrs. Elizabeth Kemper, first and second.

NOTICE

All back yards must be cleaned of all tin cans and rubbish by April 30th. If this is not done, the State board of health will be notified.

TOWN BOARD AND HEALTH OFFICER.

G. W. Cheesman Dies Saturday

Funeral services were conducted Tuesday afternoon at 2:00 p. m. at the Hickory Grove church, for George W. Cheesman, who passed away at the residence in Walton, Saturday, April 19. Rev. Mango, pastor of the church, assisted by Rev. C. J. Alford, officiating. Interment took place in the Independence cemetery.

The body was prepared for burial at the Chambers & Grubbs funeral home, and was later returned to the residence, where it lay in state until the funeral Tuesday.

The deceased was born in Kenton county, and was a well known farmer. He had been in poor health for some time.

Surviving are the wife, Mrs. Matilda Cheesman, three sons, five daughters, 33 grandchildren, three great grandchildren, five sisters and a number of other relatives.

Chambers & Grubbs had charge of funeral arrangements.

JUDGE GOODENOUGH AT NEW HAVEN

Joseph P. Goodenough, Judge of the Kenton County Circuit Court, has agreed to assist the Boy Scouts of Union, Troop 128, at their entertainment to be given the night of Friday, May 2nd by bringing his famous mock court to New Haven High school. This is the first opportunity that the people of Boone county have had to witness this humorous mock trial.

In addition to Judge Goodenough, Mr. Willard A. Friend, Boy Scout Executive, will show and explain a motion picture on Canada. The boys of the troop also have a sketch or two to present.

This troop is sponsored by the Union and Richwood Presbyterian churches for the boys of their neighborhood. Reverend Russell Crsss is the Scout Master.

Rural Mail Box Improvement Week

The Post Office Department has designated the week of May 5 to 10, inclusive, as "Rural Mail Box Improvement Week."

Unsightly rural mail boxes detract from the natural scenic beauty along highways and are not a credit to the owners of attractive homes served through the boxes. Rural mail boxes which are not properly erected or which are not in good, serviceable condition retard the delivery of mail and expose it to damage from the elements.

It is the desire of the Department to encourage patrons of the rural delivery service to provide entirely suitable mail receptacles and to erect them in such manner that they will be accessible to carrier and present a neat appearance. It is especially desirable that the boxes be maintained in such condition that they will properly protect mail placed therein, that the names of box owners be inscribed on the side of the boxes visible to the carrier as he approaches them, and that the boxes and their supports be kept painted. Boxes not of the present standard type which are of such design that they cannot be properly served by the carrier from his vehicle or which are not in such condition that they will protect

This Week In Defense

President Roosevelt, answering a press conference question, said the American public does not appreciate the extreme seriousness of the European war and its implications regarding the United States. Public understanding of the significance of the struggle is gradually increasing, the President said, thus far has been inadequate.

Defense Production

OPM Director General Knudsen said the nation is now about 70 percent retooled for defense and there should be "clear sailing" ahead. OPM Production Director Biggers said mass production will begin within 100 days.

Labor Wages

Labor Department announced average earnings in manufacturing industries have risen to new levels—69.2 cents per hour or $28.56 a week—because of increased overtime payments, increased employment in defense industries, and wage increases. Average hours for each worker per week have advanced to forty, with many defense employees working 50 hours per week, the Department said.

Department of Agriculture reported expansion in industrial employment, to gether with military conscription, had raised average farm wages to $1.70 per day, without board,—highest level since 1931. Lowest wage was reported in Georgia and South Carolina—less than $1.00 a day. The highest—$3.13—was reported in Rhode Island and Connecticut.

Price Stabilization

Administrator Henderson of the new Office of Price Administration froze steel prices to prevent price rises. Mr. Henderson said steel price rises would inevitably be followed by other price increases.

OPM Director of Purchases Nelson said, in a radio speech, that with much of the nation's production diverted into defense channels, civilian buying would soon surpass the output of civilian goods and a "runaway rise in living costs" will result unless taxes are increased and the Government borrows from savings to cut down the volume of civilian spending.

New Taxes

Treasury Secretary Morgenthau estimated Federal exenditures for the next fiscal year to be $19,000,000,000, and proposed that two-thirds be raised by taxation and one-third by borrowing. Expecting revenue from present taxes to be $9,223,000,000, Mr. Morgenthau submitted to Congressional leaders a program for $3,444,000,000 in new taxes. Individual and business taxes would be increased one-third and taxes would be levied on many persons previously exempt, Mr. Morgenthau said.

Army and Navy

War and Navy Departments announced a total of 1,504,759 men in active service: Navy, 242,654; Marines, 51,505; Army, 1,210,600.

The War Department announced seniors in accredited medical schools would be given an opportunity to obtain commissions as first lieutenants in the Medical Corps Reserve. The Department also announced that 2,300 enlisted men would be trained each month for Reserve Officers' commissions.

The Navy, expecting to bring its strength to 532,000 men by 1947, announced recruiting in special ratings by the Naval Reserve of qualified cable employees, seamen, firemen, signalmen, radiomen, machinist mates; aviation mechanics and electricians.

Air Raid Spotters

War Department announced plans to enroll between 500,000 and 800,000 civilian volunteers to cooperate with the Army in a nation-wide network to warn against air attack. Groups such as the American Legion, its women's auxiliaries, the Coast Guard, forest fire wardens, weather observers, and the CCC, will be included in the network, the Department said.

Selective Service

Selective Service Headquarters announced a program calling for education of registrants regarding the physical standards of the Army and the correction of defects by local dentists and physicians before the registrants are called to service. The program will be guided by the SS Medical Advisory Council and an appropriate committee in each State.

Headquarters also announced that all information concerning registrants, except that which the regulations specifically define as confidential, is a matter of public record open to anyone making a legitimate inquiry.

Welfare

Federal Security Administrator McNutt, coordinator of health and welfare activities, announced the United Service Organizations are planning to set up 339 service club facilities in crowded defense areas. Quarters for the clubs will be provided by the Federal Government. Operation will be financed through voluntary contributions, with $10,765,000 to be sought for the first year, Mr. Nutt said.

The USO, representing national religious and welfare organizations, will attempt to tie together the services of existing organizations. Mr. McNutt said: "Its purpose is to meet leisure-time needs —of men in our armed forces and in defense industries." President Roosevelt said: ". . . I cannot emphasize too strongly my conviction that this work . . . is of utmost importance."

Lease-Lend Activities

The President named Harry Hopkins to supervise all purchases under the Lease-Lend program. The President announced that machinery for aiding China is in existence and a list of China's needs are being studied.

Navy Secretary Knox told his press conference the Navy is giving Great Britain war materials "almost daily" from U. S. supplies on hand. He also said British warships in need of repair would be arriving in American shipyards in increasing number. U. S. Maritime Commission announced transfer to the British of four American cargo ships, first to be loaned under the Lease-Lend Act.

Agriculture

The Department of Agriculture urged farmers to increase egg production during the next 15 months by about six percent and announced a program for increasing tomato production for canning by 50 percent. Both moves, the Department said, are to assure ample food supplies for the U. S. and Great Britain, to meet probable demands under the Lease-Lend Act, and for distribution by the Red Cross, for school lunches, and relief.

Free Speech

President Roosevelt told the American Society of Newspaper Editors, in a letter read at their annual meeting in Washington, that there would be no Government control of news, except that involving vital military information.

The President said that so far as he was concerned free speech will remain in the undisputed possession of publishers and editors, of reporters and Washington correspondents, magazines, motion pictures, and of the radio, "for that is where it belongs."

OUR DEMOCRACY — by Mat

Washington Snapshots

by JAMES PRESTON

On the basis of information from around the globe, Washington officials are firmly convinced that what happens in the United States in the next 100 days will go far toward shaping the history of the world for generations.

Much depends, of course, upon the outcome of the Balkan and African battles. Most Washington officials think that an important factor there will be whether enough American war material can reach the Mediterrarean area in time.

These officials almost unanimously agree with William S. Knudsen that industry has done the "impossible" in speeding defense production. They realize too that the American production speed-up has been much faster than that in either Germany or Great Britain.

They expect that upward trend to continue as fast as humanly possible. But they are continuing to ask that more than the "impossible" be done.

New authoritative figures indicate that the "impossible" is "possible." For example, in the last six months of 1940 actual money paid out by the government for defense goods totalled $1,400,000,000. But in the first three months of 1941, the total was $1,800,000,000.

Thus goods delivered to the government and paid for more than doubled in the first three months of this year. Very soon, many new plants will go into production, so officials are confident deliveries will continue their upward trend.

They consider this delivery rate remarkable in view of the fact that most of the defense material is products which were not even made a year ago, and in some cases as recently as six months ago.

In other words, buying machine guns and tanks and armored cars was not just a question of getting industries to speed up production of things they are making, but it involved developing entirely new products—and the machines to make them. Many people probably can remember a few years back when a big automobile manufacturer spent a whole year re-tooling in order to make some basis changes in his car. Today's defense industries didn't even have a "last year's model" to re-design.

How much Washington expects the defense program to speed up is indicated by the fact that there is some $34,000,000,000 of money available to spend, in the next two years .That means an annual expenditure rate of $21,500,000,000. And even the expenditure for the first three months of 1941 was only at a rate of $7,200,000,000 a year.

Congress was up with its work, or that members were worn out. There are many important things yet to be done, and the legislators in any number of years have worked far beyond Easter without a vacation.

The truth is that it was feared Congress was about to boil over the defense strike situation and demand anti-strike, anti-labor legislation.

So things moved fast. The Defense Labor Mediation Board was set up in the hope that it would ease strikes. Then, to give the Board a chance to produce, Congress was sent home for a "cooling off" period.

The Board did get work resumed in a number of important factories, and settle some strikes. So up to that point the above strategy worked.

But there was one bad fly in the ointment. Many legislators went home during the recess. And they found that their constituents were really insistent that nothing, not even strikes, should be allowed to interfere with production.

The result is that the "cooling off" period got many solons heated up. The first big strike will find Congressional sentiment just about as near the boiling point as before.

Speaking of strikes, the real strategy behind the recent Congressional recess has finally leaked out. The reason was not that

Thomas Knight of McCreary county has set 1,000 locusts he obtained from the State forestry department.

LITTLE SHAVERS

Murder as a fine art has never developed as much in America as one would have thought, especially among small boys who have been twitted for being little shavers. Probably the greatest disgrace imaginable among 'teen-age boys is that of being small. Just as soon as a fellow gets through the gosling age, he becomes the arch enemy of all the boys who have not yet started on this very trying and interesting period. It may be that adolescent boys are thus cruel because of very painful memories of how they were twitted only a few months or years before. The cruelty is there, anyhow, and the little boys must grin and bear it until they can get up enough courage to lick a boy or two of a larger size. Sentimentalists, though, have a hard time with reconciling the inconsistencies of boyhood: no sooner do boys grow up than they pass along the same cruelty that they had suffered; the human race does not seem to improve very rapidly in altruism.

Honestly I do not believe that being a little shaver is so disgraceful in the crowd of boys I know now as it was when I was younger. There were dozens of things then that the older boys used as means of tormenting little shavers. Size was one of these, as if a boy can do much about this except by eating all the time and wishing fervently to grow up. Weakness or softness is another fault that big bad boys accuse small boys of having. If a little fellow falls and hurts himself and cries quite naturally, somebody hurts him worse than the fall did by calling him a baby or mammy's darling. Clothes used to be the most sensitive subject. Short trousers, that badge of a small boy, were never allowed to be forgotten if big boys were around. Worst of all were the clothes that we had inherited from older brothers. These boys and their playmates never let us feel comfortable, for they always reminded us of our disgrace and twitted us for being born away down the line.

We may have had our share and more than our share of cake and teacakes and floating island, just because we were little shavers, but we were left out when social functions came along. Big Brother, a bare two years ahead of you, went into the parlor like an old hand, but you, cursed with being in short pants and having a childish voice, had to stay out. If a party occurred in the neighborhood, you were too little to go except to some child's party, where you innocently played "Drop the Handkerchief" or "Snap" but were not allowed to play "Social" or "Postoffice." Big Brother got out his new saddle and rode away on his mule, while you, almost tearfully, stayed at home with Mammy and had to go to bed early. All this and many more disasters came about through your being, through no fault of your own, just a "little shaver."

GIRL CORN "CHAMP" SAYS FERTILIZER IS NEEDED FOR QUALITY

WALDRON, IND.—Beverly Meal can bake the best angel food cake in Indiana, serve a love score tennis game or sing solos in the church choir.

But this 17-year old farm lass is proudest of her feat of winning the crown of "Corn Princess" of North America at the recent International Livestock Exposition in Chicago, in competition with hundreds of farm boys and girls. It was the second time in history the title has gone to a girl. Beverly averaged a yield of 83.4 bushels an acre of Reid's yellow dent corn on a 10-acre plot on her father's farm.

Corn Growing Family.

"Raising good corn is a Meal family tradition," she said. "Dad has been noted for quality corn for years. My two brothers both have been corn princes. So I decided to try, even though it is a boy's work."

Last spring Beverly selected her seed with care, gave special attention to preparing the seed bed, to fertilizing, tilling and cultivating. Hard work and perseverance were rewarded when the judges at the International show pronounced her 10-ear sample of corn one of the finest ever exhibited.

Beverly's father believes that good corn and good hogs go together. He follows a regular rotation of corn, wheat and clover on his 180 acre farm. He avoids hauling off vital plant foods by feeding his crops to the livestock. He realizes that soil fertility is his greatest asset. Year in and year out he applies 100 pounds of 2-12-12 fertilizer to his fields. The 10-acre plot on which Beverly's prize corn was grown received such an application last spring.

Beverly has been a 4-H member for eight years, but this was the first time she ever grew corn. She has been a leader in numerous other activities.

HEBRON

Miss Imogene Stephens moved Saturday, to the house she recently purchased from Mrs. Bessie Ernst.

Mrs. Jess England and children of Independence were the guests, a few days last week, of her sister, Mrs. James Tanner and Mr. Tanner.

Mrs. Mary Bradford and daughter Helen suffered injuries the past week from an auto accident.

Harry Willoughby united with the Lutheran church at the Sunday morning service.

Rev. and Mrs. H. M. Hauter, pastor of the Lutheran church here, is spending this week at Canton, Ohio, with relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Baker and Mrs. Frank Aylor spent Sunday afternoon with Mrs. Nan Baker and Mrs. Harve Baker of Florence. Other guests were Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Baker, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Dickey and son of Ludlow, Mr. and Mrs. John Baker and son of Bromley.

A grader for hybrid corn only has been bought by Ronald Bushong, Tompkinsville, and Holder Bros., Akersville, in Monroe county.

UNION

Mrs. Emerson Smith, our very popular Sunday school teacher of the primary class, entertained her class with an ice cream party at the Baptist church on Saturday afternoon. Each little fellow reported having a grand time and thanked "Miss Anna" for her many kindnesses.

Miss Elizabeth Lowry, our efficient county health nurse, and Mrs. Raymond Newman called on Mrs. W. S. Friend last Monday afternoon, to discuss plans and date for our Free Clinic to be held at New Haven on Thursday, May 8th. Each mother, who has a child to enter school for the first time in September, is urged to bring that child and take advantage of this free service offered each year through our P.-T. A. Dr. G. R. Coe will be in charge at this clinic.

Mr. and Mrs. Winston Mason and son Jimmie Ned called on Mr. and Mrs. Shermon Friend and son last Saturday evening.

Sunday seemed to be "opening day" for the fishing season here, as all our local anglers were "headed that way." But as usual, the big ones all got away.

We are very happy to welcome Mrs. Tom Robert Huey and new daughter, Sally Blair, home from St. Elizabeth hospital, since Saturday noon. Due to a major operation, Mrs. Huey will be confined to her home for several days, but we are hoping she will soon be back in her work as postmistress again.

In a tour of the Belleview, Petersburg and Hebron neighborhoods Sunday, we saw acres of corn and melons planted. Surely these farmers will "get the worm" this year, as they are plenty early with their crops.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Doane are entertaining their two grandchildren, Thelma and Billy Fisk of Morning View, this week end.

Master Norman (Buddy) Weaver spent Friday with his little cousin, Jimmie Noe.

The W. M. S. of the Baptist church met on Wednesday and enjoyed the talks given on the State meeting at Ashland by Mrs. E. Smith, Mrs. W. Mason, Mrs. W. Greenup, Mrs. K. McWethy and Mrs. I. Rouse.

Mrs. J. W. Doane and Mrs. John Points spent Saturday in Covington.

Our graduation class of the New Haven school, is to be congratulated upon the splendid performances in the class play, "The Scarlet Ghost." Miss Rebecca Sleet is to be commended upon her selection and splendid direction of this play, for who of us is there who doesn't thrill to a "mystery thriller?"

Miss Dorothy McCormack was visiting old friends in the village Saturday and took dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Cris Kearns.

INDEPENDENCE R-1

This community was shocked and much grieved to learn of the serious accident, Sunday morning in which Vincent Donahue, the youngest son of Frank Donahue, was killed. The accident occurred, it is said, when Vincent, riding a bicycle, collided with an automobile. The driver of the car did all he could to avoid the accident. Vincent passed away a couple of hours after his admittance to St. Elizabeth hospital. Funeral services were held Wednesday morning at St. Cecelia church at Independence. The family has the deepest sympathy of the entire community.

Mrs. George Binder, jr., returned home Sunday afternoon from Bethesda hospital, where she had a very painful operation for sinus trouble. She is somewhat improved and we hope will soon be able to be about again.

We were glad to welcome Mrs. Attwood Hoffman out to church services Sunday, after several months' illness.

The Misses Hope and Ruth Keeney returned to Lexington, Sunday afternoon, after spending a few days with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Keeney and family.

Miss Helen Richardson attended the K. E. A. and also visited her nephew, Clyde Richardson and wife of Owensburg, the past week.

The Staffordsburg Homemakers will meet with Mrs. J. A. Keeney, May 1st, at 10:30 a. m.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Riley and family spent Sunday with his father, Charles Riley, at Richardson Pike.

Rev. Kidwell fulfilled his regular appointment at Staffordsburg Sunday. We think a great many slept too late to get to services. Try to be out to Sunday school and church services. We will welcome all who will come and it will be a help to you, I am sure.

BEECH GROVE

The many friends and neighbors are glad to know Mrs. John Rivard of this place, is doing nicely, at this writing, after undergoing an operation at Booth hospital this week. All hope for her a speedy recovery.

Jack Lusher of Columbus, Ohio, spent several days last week with his sister, Mrs. Bill Cook and family of this place.

After spending the week end with her parents, Mr and Mrs. Hiram Rivard and their son E. K., Margaret Rivard has returned to college.

Miss Bessie West of this place has returned home after spending the winter months with relatives in the South.

"LIVE AT HOME" PROGRAM STRESSED

Boone county farmers, Homemakers' clubs and 4-H club members are placing special emphasis this year on the Live at Home Program as an important part in National Defense, according to H. R. Forkner, county agent.

The "Live at Home" program means a better living for the farm family from products and opportunities made available on the farm. It is estimated that a large percentage of our people do not receive an adequate diet in proper amounts and kind. Well fed people produce a stronger Nation. More attention than ever before is given by the Government to see that our military forces have the best possible balanced diet.

The 1941 county "Live at Home Program" calls for the following points:

1. Every farm grow a good garden with kind and variety for year round use. Extension Circulars No. 343, on the Garden, Month by Month, and No. 354, on Make the Farm Feed the Family, are available at the county office on request.

2. Sufficient poultry and eggs for year round use by the family. Five early hatched spring pullets per member of the family are planned for early fall and winter egg supply.

3. Sufficient dairy products are planned through use of one to two good cows per family, and more use of a greater variety of milk products are planned.

4. Greater use of the farm produced meat supply, including pork, beef, and lambs. The curing, canning and preserving of these meats for year round supply.

5. Fruit supply through plantings of (a) 250 strawberry plants; (b) 50 raspberry plants; (c) 6 grape vines; (d) 6 to 12 bunches of rhubarb.

The Homemakers' clubs and Home Economics 4-H club members are stressing the importance of variety and uses in the family diet as a means of better feeding the family from the products produced. More complete details of the "Live at Home" program are available at the county office on request.

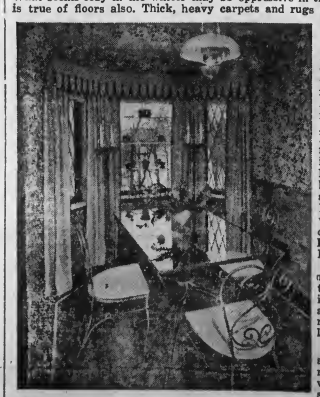
HOW TO BE YOUR OWN DECORATOR

By

Helen Koues

Director, Good Housekeeping Studio

What About Your Floors



No matter how modern you have become, how efficient the daily rounds of the vacuum cleaner, there is still something about April that impells spring cleaning. Personally, I think it's the spring itself and the bright sunshine which penetrates even dark spots and shows them up as needing cleaning. All the world is fresh and you want to get outdoors, but as its still too cold in many parts of the country, we turn indoors and want to renovate and renew our interiors.

HELEN KOUES
Director of Good Housekeeping Studio

And why not a Spring Cleaning, mentally as well as physically? Look at your house or your apartment with a keen eye, Realize that for five months or more you'll have warm weather and sun and air sweeping through your house and that it should be made as comfortable for hot weather as you made it for cold weather.

Two things especially are affected by the weather: the draperies and the floors. Lots of us like summer draperies, I do for one, but they ought to be suitable for the summer, not heavy and stuffy. What seems cozy in the winter may be oppressive in the summer. This is true of floors also. Thick, heavy carpets and rugs are a delight in the winter but when spring comes, lighter rugs and fewer of them are easier to care for and cooler. And this brings me to the subject in hand, linoleum as flooring — flooring for your hall, living room and bedroom as well as those established spots where it has become standard. LINOLEUM FLOORING.

Marbleized Linoleum with Plain Border is Smart

One of the nice things about today's decorating is color. We are using it so much more boldly and freely.

Try it yourself and you'll find a new point of view. There is no special reason why floors should be brown or tan. They are the colors of woods, but in summer the brown earth turns green, and I see many a now drab hall which could well have a deep green linoleum floor, with a border of black with, perhaps, a decorative motif in lighter green in the center. In a hall, a floor attractive enough to be without rugs for the summer is a blessing.

While the hall need not match the living room or dining room, it should harmonize, and in small houses it is often wiser to have the floor match as this gives spaciousness. For this reason solid colors are excellent: brown, green, blue, terra cotta, in light as well as dark shades. Choose the colors to suit your particular decorative scheme.

In a small country house I know, where the floors were in poor condition, a soft plain light gray-green was put over the entire second floor, in bedrooms where the walls or wallpapers varied from pale blue, to cream with pink roses in the paper. It went well with everything. You might consider it.

FISHING SEASON WELL UNDER WAY

The fishing season is now well under way in the waters of Kentucky with both men, women and children participating and in so doing they are contributing to the more than $1,000,000,000 (billion) dollars the 13,000,000 (million) sports fishermen and fisherwomen of the United States spend annually in pursuit of their favorite recreation, according to figures received from the U. S. Department of the Interior by S. A. Wakefield, Director of the Kentucky Division of Game and Fish.

While Kentucky anglers spend only about $92,000 annually for the fishing licenses, sportsmen throughout the nation contribute more than $10,000,000. Tackle equipment costs them $35,000,000; transportation, hotel quarters, food, gasoline for automobiles, and boats ,hats, coats, shirts, jackets, trousers, overcoats, boots, tents, blankets and miscellaneous equipment total more than $955,-000,000.

Sports fishermen sell no fish, so they derive no monetary profit from thir efforts and they outnumber the men engaged in commercial fishing, 80 to 1.

Recreational fishing as a sports industry tops all sports including baseball, football, basketball, golf, tennis, polo, hockey, skiing, and swimming.

RED CROSS CONDUCTS CLINICS

April 15, the Burlington Clinic was conducted at the school house. Dr. M. A. Yelton was the medical examiner. He was assisted by the Red Cross nurse.

Mrs. Kirtley Cropper, Mrs. W. L. McBee and Mrs. Walter Brown, a committee from the P.-T. A. did a good job of reaching all parents of children to enter school next year. The attendance was good, considering the amount of measles, mumps and whooping cough, so prevalent now.

Besides talking over physical defects, diphtheria and smallpox immunization was stressed. Every baby should be immunized against diphtheria as soon after he is six months old, as possible. If he is breast fed he is supposed to get some protection from his mother up to that time. The younger the child the more apt he is to take diphtheria.

Smallpox vaccination should also be given in infancy. The fact that the law requires this before entering school, (teachers will be authorized to diligently enforce this another year) does not mean the child should not be vaccinated long before he is six.

Why not take your boy or girl to your family doctor and have this protection against these dread diseases, before it is too late? Trouble and expense is often saved by doing this.

Through the Red Cross and from the Children's Bureau, Washington, books entitled, "Are You Training Your Child to be Happy?" have been secured. These books are expensive to print and hard to get; therefore, only parents who come to the clinic with their children, can receive one of these new and up-to-date books on child training.

Following is the Clinic schedule for the entire county:

Constance and Taylorsport—May 9. Plans not yet completed.

Florence—April 30. Plans not yet completed.

Verona—May 2. Plans not yet completed.

Walton—May 5 and 6 at 1:00 p. m. Dr. R. E. Ryle medical examiner, assisted by Red Cross nurse.

Petersburg—May 7, 1:00 p. m. Dr. E. J. Love, assisted by Red Cross nurse.

Bellevue—May 9, 1:00 p. m. Dr. E. J. Love, assisted by Red Cross nurse.

New Haven—May 8, 12:30 p. m. Dr. G. R. Coe, assisted by Red Cross nurse.

Hebron—April 28, 1:00 p. m. Local physician assisted by Red Cross nurse.

Hamilton—May 7, 9:00 a. m. Local physician, assisted by Red Cross nurse.

Parent-Teacher associations are sponsoring and assisting with all clinics. This is invaluable for many reasons.

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Connelly spent Sunday with Mrs. Connelly's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Giles.

LET IT BE SAID OF ME

—Kate Brownlee Sherwood

Let it be said of me—
Not that I strove and ran and won the prize,
And blocked the way when others sought to rise;
Not that my voice was heard in wild hurrah
When ancient license posed, as higher law;
Not that my eyes were blind when sham was set;
To dazzle folly into mild regret;
Not that my ears were deaf to sob and cry
Beneath the wheels when splendor hurried by.

Let it be said of me—
Wherever there was holy cause to serve.
Or hearts that ache, or perils that unnerve:
Wherever there was ardious task to do,
A path to light, a duty to pursue;
Wherever there was ardious task to do, wrong,
Or weary soul athirst for love and song,
Wherever slaves of time cried to be free,
My hand was reached—let it be said of me.

The girls in the first and second units of sewing have held three project meetings. The meetings were held at the home of the leader, Mrs. Hugh McArthur. The girls are getting along very nicely.

At the first meeting they planned what they were to make and do during the year. The girls in the second unit are going to make a 4-H uniform.

The girls in the first unit of foods have held two meetings at the home of their leader, Mrs. Helen Rogers.

The first meeting was held April 10, 1941. They talked about menues. Mrs. Rogers told them to try to get measuring cups and spoons.

The second meeting was held Monday, April 14, 1941. They talked about menues and learned how to cook a few things .Mrs. Rogers told the girls to get breakfast recipes. She also told them to perpare breakfast three times before the next meeting. The next meeting will be on Monday, April 21, 1941.

The Grant True Blue 4-H Club held its third meeting April 15, 1941. The meeting was held at the school house. Twenty members answered "present" to the roll call.

There were two leaders present. They were Mrs. McArthur and Mrs. Moore. The project leaders gave very nice reports.

We had a program. It was conducted by the vice-president, Charles Newman. We all liked the program very much.

We were very sorry Miss Gillaspie could not be with us. We all hope she can be with us at the next meeting. We are very glad we won the 4-H club trophy. We hope to win it again next year.

TOBACCO GROWERS TREATING PLANT BEDS

Numerous Boone county tobacco growers are treating their plant beds with Bordeaux mixture this week, according to H. B. Drake, assistant county agent. This treatment is to control wildfire, angular leafspot and rust.

Demonstrations in the county over the past two years, have proven these treatments effective in controlling the above diseases and in keeping the lower leaves on the plants longer, thus enabling the grower to delay tobacco harvest until the entire plant is more mature. The extra leaves harvested yield large returns for the very small amount of money spent for the treatment.

A 3-4-50 Bordeaux mixture is applied to the plant beds twice by local growers. Once when the plants are forming the third and fourth leaves and again ten days or two weeks later. The mixture is applied with a sprinkler without removing the canvas. Additional information concerning these treatments may be obtained by contacting the county agent's office.

COMMITTEE STUDY LOCKER FOOD STORAGE

Plans for locating a frozen food locker storage plant in Covington were made by representatives from Boone, Kenton and Campbell counties, in a meeting at Covington on Monday of this week, according to H. R. Forkner, county agent. Locker storage plants have proven highly successful in various parts of the country .Those attending the meeting expressed opinions that such an attemp in Northern Kentucky would be successful.

Freezer locker storage plants would enable a farmer to keep fresh frozen vegetables and meats from his own farm in storage the year round. The farmer would take his fresh fruits, vegetables or meats to the storage plant where they would be frozen until the time they are needed for home consumption. The service varies from ten to fourteen dollars per year per locker unit.

The service is of special importance to those who have R. E. A. or other electric refrigeration service. It would offer a wide variety of possibilities where a farmer would want to kill a beef, hog, lamb or poultry during the summer months and to maintain a fresh meat or vegetable supply throughout the year.

Approximately 300 lockers are necessary for an efficient frozen food locker plant. Boone, Kenton and Campbell, counties should easily supply this number for a start in this new type of service. A rapid expansion in demand of this service will likely follow. Those, who are interested in learning more about frozen food storage lockers, are urged to contact the county agent's office.

FARM LEADERS STUDY COUNTY

Boone county leaders are studying our farm problems from a new angle, according to County Agent H. R. Forkner. This angle is called Land Use Planning.

Community committeemen in preliminary stages are holding meetings to study neighborhood and community centers, the types of soils and types of farming in the community, average land values and the size of farms, and capital investments required to purchase a farm and pay for it in a reasonable time. This work will be followed by studies on organization of farms in the communities and with an attemt to identify the social and economic problems of the community with the idea of finding a more satisfactory solution.

The Land Use Planning Program will cover a period of many months. The results will be coordinated through community and county meetings. The county program will be coordinated with the State and National Land Use Planning Programs in the attempt to find a more sound solution to our agricultural problems.

The committees serve without pay in their interest for a better agriculture. Meetings recently been held in Petersburg ,Grant, Burlington, Constance, Walton, New Haven, and Hamilton communities. A meeting in the near future has been planned for Hebron community. The committees attending the first meetings report the work most interesting and expressed their desire to have the study continued.

POULTRY EXHIBIT PLANNED AT STATE FAIR THIS FALL

Poultry Project members of the Boone County 4-H Clubs are planning a poultry exhibit at the Kentucky State Fair this fall, according to H. B. Drake, assistant county agent. There are approximately 60 members enrolled in the poultry project in the county.

Many 4-H members have purchased baby chicks of the highest quality in order to be eligible to enter an exhibit at the State Fair. Prizes are awarded there for the best trios composed of two females and one male of the same breed and the best county 4-H Poultry Exhibit consisting of three trios. Each county is entitled to show two entries of three trios. Entries at the 4-H Free Fair in August will serve as an elimination of entries to be entered in State competition.

A large group of newspaper people were guests of the New York Central System on Friday, April 18, on the new streamlined train, the James Whitcomb Riley.

This beautiful flyer will go into service on a five and one-half hour schedule between Cincinnati and Chicago on April 28th. This special run was made between Chicago and Cincinnati to give the news folks a preview.

About 200 were on board, representing papers from 50 different towns. It was a happy affair, all seeming to enjoy the party.

The train consists of stainless steel coaches, with reclining, rotating chairs, extra large washrooms and special lighting system. Along the exterior runs a maroon stripe the height of the windows. This is superimposed on a gray background with silver stripes.

The dining car, whose interior was designed by Henry Dreyfuss, in cooperation with the Equipment Engineering Department of the New York Central, is in three sections, with banquette seats in the center, upholstered in blue leather. At either end is a section seating eight persons, with seats in rust upholstery. Floor coverings and drapes are in varied tones of tan and rust.

The observation lounge car is decorated in tan and walnut with upholstery of rust and blue. Plastic windows divide the car into three sections. It has a semi-circular bar in the center.

In spite of all this luxury the train is a coach train and requires only the lowest fares. All seats will be assigned as tickets are sold. The public cars are available to all on board.

The train will be on public exhibit at the Cincinnati Union Terminal on Thursday, April 24th, from 9:00 a. m. to 10:00 p. m.

In regular service the leaving time from Cincinnati is 8:00 a. m., Eastern time, arriving Chicago at 12:30 p. m., Central time. Returning, it leaves Chicago at 4:30 p. m. Central time, and arrives Cincinnati at 11:00 p. m., Eastern time.

I AM AN AMERICAN DAY TO BE OBSERVED MAY 18

For the third successive year, the people of the United States will celebrate I Am An American Day, on May 18. The President, at the request of the Congress, has just issued a proclamation to that effect.

As you can realize, I Am An American Day has special significance this year. Probably never in the history of the United States has American citizenship and its implications meant more than it does today. In times like these, when our Democracy stands out in strong contrast to governments that have subjugated their people, it is important to observe and commemorate the privileges of American citizenship as widely as possible.

HOW SPINAL DISPLACEMENTS AFFECT LENGTH OF LIFE

By Dr. Thomas Sullivan

When a spinal displacement occurs, causing nerve irritation, which is always followed by poor functioning of vital body organs and glands, and loss of health to body tissues, length of life itself may be affected in proportion to the damage done. Further, the spine affects length of life in still another way. The force of gravity, as one becomes older, and his body tissues less elastic, tends to compress and shorten the spine. This shortening not only causes pressure on nerves branching from the spine, but also on blood vessels which carry nutriment by way of fresh blood to the spinal cord. Undernourished from reduced blood supply, the spinal cord does not function normally, and responds less vigorously with nerve stimulus needed for bodily functioning. Then all body processes begin gradually to decline. Helping to minimize the effects of gravity on the spine, retain normal stature and attain a healthier, longer life is the great service which chiropractic has rendered.

Dr. Frank McCoy, health columnist wrote recently: "The extreme importance of the spine lies in the fact that inside the bones of the spinal column lies the spinal cord, which connects the brain with other parts of the body. Between adjacent vertebrae, there emerges a pair of nerves arising from the spinal cord and carrying nerve impulses to and from the various organs, muscles and tissues. When a part of the spine is affected by weakness, there may be a slipping of one or more of these vertebrae. The slipping induces pressure on the nerves and the pressure in turn interferes with the normal healthy functioning of whatever organs those particular nerves serve.

"Sometimes these abnormalities of position are so slight that they are not found unless the patient is examined by a doctor especially trained to discover them, and yet adjustive treatment which restores the parts to their normal relationship will be followed by almost immediate improvement."

-that man IN OUR NEIGHBORHOOD!

A CALL IN THE NIGHT

We heard the children romping in their playroom upstairs—then suddenly, a scream!

We both rushed up and found our young son had fallen and apparently broken his arm. We immediately phoned our family physician, who verified our worst fears.

In time, the arm was carefully set, but other difficulties arose that called for an unusual prescription.

I looked at the clock—where could we get it filled at this late hour?

We spoke to the doctor, who then picked up the phone and called "that man" out of bed—again "that man" (our neighborhood druggist) did not fail us.

Our neighborhood druggist never fails us! Should you, like most women, suffer discomforts during the menstrual period, just phone your druggist—he usually advises women to try Vatona Tablets—this may be just what you need!

Improved Uniform International SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D. Dean of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

S. S. Lesson for April 27

Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education; used by permission.

THE EARLY CHURCH MEETING HUMAN NEEDS

LESSON TEXT—Acts 4:32-35; 6:1-7.
GOLDEN TEXT—And the multitude of them that believed were of one heart and of one soul.—Acts 4:32.

Machinery without power is useless—that is why in the lesson of last Sunday the power of the Holy Spirit was recognized as being indispensable in the church. One sometimes wonders whether we do not now have more machinery than power, and thus fail in our high calling.

Power, on the other hand, reaches its greatest usefulness through the organization of well-planned machinery. The church soon found that its activities, simple at the beginning, had become more complex, calling for suitable organization, if it was to best serve the needs of its own people and of those round about it. In so organizing they did not forget this fundamental purpose of the church, nor did they forsake the true source of power.

I. Sharing With the Brethren (4: 32-35).

Love for one another prompted the Christian brethren to meet each other's need by sharing, by holding all they owned for the common good. This was not (as some would have us believe) a type of communism. It was purely voluntary (see Acts 5:4), temporary, and local. It was practiced only in Jerusalem and only for a short time. It was an expression of Christian brotherhood and liberality which is worthy of our consideration.

The duty and privilege of sharing material as well as spiritual blessings is a part of Christian fellowship. Those in the church who have should willingly share with those who have not. Some churches have so effectively carried out this plan today that none of their members is on relief. Not every church can do that, but much more could be done if we had the considerate spirit of the early Christian church, which was indeed the spirit of Christ.

II. Caring for the Unfortunate (6:1, 3, 5, 6).

The church had come through its first real persecution (Acts 5:12-42) with real victory and assurance (5: 42), only to face an internal difficulty. Wherever the Lord blesses, the enemy comes to destroy. Whenever a door of service opens, there are many adversaries (I Cor. 16:9).

There were two groups in the church—the Hebrew Christians, and those with a Greek background. Among the poor to whom daily distribution of help must be made were many widows. Suddenly the Grecian group began to note (or think they noted, which was just as disturbing) that their widows were being neglected.

Notice that men of good character and spirituality were chosen to serve, and that all of them bore Greek names. The Greeks, who were doubtless in the minority in the Jerusalem church, had a complaint, so those who were appointed to serve were their own people. We might have been tempted to appoint a committee made up of half from each side (and thus to continue the dissension), but not so here where grace and wisdom from above controlled.

Do not fail to observe that there was here a well-ordered plan to care for the weak and unfortunate. No Christian church should fail in that important ministry.

III. Preaching the Word (vv. 2, 4, 7).

Social service is necessary—the church should make intelligent provision for its poor and its widows—but it makes a fatal mistake when such service becomes more important than the preaching and teaching of God's Word. Let those appointed to that blessed ministry find joy in sanctified social service, but never let it pre-empt the place of evangelism.

Certainly such service must not become the all-absorbing task of the one who has been set by God as the messenger to the church—the spiritual shepherd of the flock. Many a preacher has lost himself in such work, and failed to study and pray so that he might be prepared to preach the Word in power and with conviction. Too many preachers are attempting to shake a sermon out of their coat sleeves on Saturday night (as Joseph Parker put it) only to find that their ministry grows leaner and leaner until, reaching the years when there should be a matured richness and sweetness in their ministry of the Word, they find their message dead, dull and dry.

Such folly ill befits the Christian church of its ministers. Perhaps some minister who reads these lines should change his ways, and perchance many a church officer who reads them should realize that he has been driving his preacher into work which, while important, should be (for him, at least) secondary. First things first, in God's own order—that is the road of power and blessing.

"A Re-Study of Our Faith," is the subject of a series of messages which the pastor of the First Christian church is delivering on the next few Sundays. In these days of world crisis we need a faith which will stand the severest storms. It is highly important that we re-study our faith that we may lay hold on the things which no disaster can destroy.

Next Sunday morning the subject will be, "We Must Have Faith in God." The subject for the evening message will be, "Behold Your God." The services begin at 10:50 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. The public is cordially invited to all the services.

Safe at Home?

Drinking beer, wine or whisky at home is rated as a hazardous occupation in the coldly impersonal columns of accident statistics.

Home-drinking, viewed only from the human life and property hazard aspects bulks as a heavy cost to the nation of the liquor traffic, according to a recent survey by the Keeley Institute of Dwight, Ill.

This survey showed $5,000,000 in property damage during 1939 from alcoholism in the home with an aggregate loss of $35,000,000 during the year for lost wages, medical expenses, insurance and property damage.

A total of 235,000 tipplers were reported as suffering broken bones, and 1600 were listed as dying because of falls down the cellar steps and similar violent accidents. More than 42 per cent of the total home accidents attributed to alcoholism were among persons under 45 years of age with only 10 per cent over 65 years of age.

A further cost of home-drinking was given as an estimated $4,039,200 in funeral expenses.

Quoting the liquor traffic's merchandising efforts to put alcoholic beverages on the pantry shelves of all homes, temperance and religious groups stress the costs of broken homes, youthful addicts, and impoverishment which result.

Terming the liquor traffic a "wasteful and unsocial industry," the W.C.T.U. recently said that there is no time better than the present emergency for eliminating alcoholic beverages' direct cost of nearly four billion dollars a year taken from the pockets of America's wage-earners.

"The costs of our defense effort will prove a heavy financial burden for us now and for future generations," the White Ribboners said. "Can the nation also stand the financial, the mental and spiritual costs of the reilegalized liquor traffic?"

MT. ZION

Mrs. W. E. Roberts, who has been ill for some time, passed away Monday afternoon. She was 69 years of age, and was a faithful member of the Mt. Zion church. The funeral was conducted at the Mt. Zion church with interment in the church cemetery. She leaves her husband, four daughters, two sons and a host of other relatives and friends. She will be sadly missed by all.

Mrs. R. G. Bennett underwent a very serious operation at Christ hospital last Tuesday. Last reports, she was doing nicely.

Mr. and Mrs. James McGuire of Covington spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Beach.

Miss Nannie Mae Gibson of Sherman and Mary E. Blackburn of Walton spent Wednesday with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Blackburn.

Mr. and Mrs. Otis Alexander and two daughters, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Wiley and family visited Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Jump and daughter, Eunice, Sunday.

Misses Emogene and Joyce Beach spent from Wednesday until Sunday in Covington, with relatives.

Miss Kathleen Lawrence spent Saturday night with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Luthur Lawrence and daughter, Peggy.

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Collier entertained a number of friends, Sunday, in honor of their son, Paul, and Harry Massie's birthdays. Everyone enjoyed the day very much and left wishing them many more happy birthdays.

Miss Ella Jo Ferrell entertained at dinner Sunday, Marcella Lawrence, Bill Lillard, Bonnie Jump, Jim Woods and Hobart Franks.

Miss Elsie Gordon, Faye York, Eugene Lawrence and Hobart Franks spent the week end with home folks.

We are sorry to lose from our community, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Lambert and family, who are moving to Ohio.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Ferrell and son of Covington spent Saturday and Sunday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harve Ferrell and family.

Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Bingham and family spent Sunday with Mr. Albert Stone of Verona.

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Anderson and family attended the wedding dinner given by Mr. an Mrs. Bernard Wilson of Covington, in honor of their son, Charles and wife.

Mrs. Arthur Gross received a letter from her son, John B. Franks, who has been stationed at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, on U. S. S. Yorktown. The letter stated that he left April 17 for China.

Billy Bingham of Georgetown College spent the week end at home.

Salad Subtlety

Only a generation ago the first balmy, springlike days tantalizing the children with their promise of singing birds and budding trees, meant it was time for mothers to get out the sulphur and molasses. Lucky for modern children that they now get this "medicine" in the form of green vegetables and plenty of them served the year 'round as crisp, colorful salads.

This is the time, then, to check up on your salad recipes. Make it a point to search out brand new ideas for making your salads more attractive and flavorful. Add to your salad green possibilities the tender, spicy dandelion leaves that will soon be shooting up out of the ground. Use lettuce, of course—both the garden variety and head lettuce—but do change frequently to tangy curly endive and nippy watercress.

Give a thought to your salad dressings. Determine by actual use which brand of mayonnaise your family seems to prefer and then make it a point to have it for them. French type dressings can be made with all the four different kinds of vinegars and thus you have a choice of flavors and can pick the right one for each salad.

Pure cider vinegar is good with both fruit and vegetable combinations, enhancing their delicate flavors and imparting its own distinctive aroma. The delightful blend of pure malt and distilled white vinegars infused with tarragon leaves which is known as tarragon vinegar adds a special pertness to green salads which people recognize as the touch of the salad expert.

Malt vinegar with its rich deep amber color and its full-bodied flavor is perfect with heartier salads such as potato salad and adds character to meats that are marinated in it. Though pickling is the long suit of distilled white vinegar, it is also excellent for making cooked salad dressings and for baking. The pure cider vinegar also makes good cooked salad dressings.

Though vinegars make up only a tiny part of the cost of a salad dressing, the right one used for the right salad may play a big part in your salads' popularity. Here are some recipes which will help you start the new season with extra salad appeal:

French Club Dressing

Combine and beat thoroughly—
3 tablespoons finely chopped onion
1 tablespoon sugar
3 tablespoons tomato ketchup
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
½ teaspoon salt
4 tablespoons pure cider vinegar
½ cup pure olive oil.

Serve over salads of lettuce or endive. Serves 8.

Tarragon French Dressing

Combine—
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon sugar
¼ teaspoon paprika.
Add—
¼ cup tarragon vinegar
½ cup pure olive oil.
Beat thoroughly, then add—
1 hard cooked egg, chopped very fine.

Mix well and serve with tossed vegetable salads.

Honey Fruit Mayonnaise

Whip until stiff—
1 cup whipping cream.
Fold in—
½ cup mayonnaise
2 tablespoons strained honey.

Delicious with a mixture of fruits to make a dessert salad.

Sour Cream Dressing

Combine—
2 tablespoons sugar
½ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon prepared yellow mustard.
Mix well, then add—
3 tablespoons malt vinegar
½ cup thick sour cream.

Mix thoroughly and serve with cabbage, cucumbers or salad greens.

WITH THE REDS

LEADING REDLEG SLUGGER

HARRY CRAFT

This being one of the odd year,s the National League schedule calls for the Cincinnati Reds to be on the road the greater part of the first two months of the season. Saturday and Sunday of this week will be the only two days on which the Reds will play on their own ball yard until May 10. These two coming Saturday and Sunday contests will be played against the Pittsburgh Pirates, who led the league in batting last year.

The Saturday contest will be a ladies' day, and tickets may be obtained in advance at the downtown office at 307 Vine street. Tickets are also available for the Sunday game, and for every other home game the Reds will play this season, at the downtown office.

Although the Reds have had a hard time getting started, there is reason for optimism because of the sensational showing of Harry Craft. Harry, one of the greatest defensive outfielders of all time, has displayed the same batting form that made him one of the outstanding rookies of 1938. The last two years his health hasn't been of the best, but this spring he reported hale and hearty, and with all of his former weight back on his shoulders. Bill McKechnie knew when he looked at him for the first time that his team had a new man, and his name was Craft.

The weaknesses that caused the Reds' early season slump are bound to be overcome, and when they are, the club will be ready to resume its 1940 pace. They will be particularly ready with Craft hitting the ball. They won the world's championship without a .300 hitting outfielder last year, so you can see of what tremendous value a fellow like Craft could be to the team by continuing at the gait at which he started.

Ernie Lombardi's finger injury is very mild and nothing about which to become worried. Ival Goodman is rapidly recovering from his shoulder ailment. He'll be 100 per cent again in a few days. It won't be long before the Reds are at their peak strength again, then watch out!

—o—

The University of Indiana band, one of the finest marching units in the country, will participate in th Reds' first night game on Wednesday, May 15. The band will give a full 15-minute program before the game. In addition, a monstrous fireworks display has been scheduled.

—o—

Jimmy Wilson, one of the heroes of the 1940 world series, who became the manager of the Chicago Cubs during the winter, will make his first Cincinnati appearance since the series on Saturday, May 10, when his Cubs open a three-game series against the Reds. Wilson's team is regarded as the dark horse of the 1941 pennant race. They have plenty of batting power.

Money Talks

By
Frederick Stamm, Economist Director of Adult Education
UNIVERSITY OF LOUISVILLE

Oftentimes the glamour of foreign trade and the publicity given it over-shadow the importance of some of our great industries as "buyers" of American goods.

Take the American railroads, for example. Their "shopping list" contains over 70,000 different items. Last year they spent over 200 million dollars for coal, 56 million for fuel oil, and 4 million for gasoline. Purchases of forest products (ties, telephone poles, etc.) amounted to nearly 70 million in 1940. They bought iron and steel products amounting to 400 millions. Purchase of miscellaneous products, such as glass, drugs, chemicals, paint, stationery, food products, etc., amounted to 183 million. These figures do not include the millions spent on new equipment.

For the direct purchase of material and supplies used in everyday operation, the railways have spent, during the last ten years, an average of nearly one billion dollars a year. Filling the railways' enormous market basket gives employment to hundred of thousands of people in American industries all over this country.

This is but one of many illustrations which could be used to show the importance of one industry to American life. As important as our foreign customers are, we must not overlook our great domestic industries which furnish the basis for our American economic prosperity.

HAMILTON

Douglas Moore and boy friend of Covington, Ky., are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Ryle this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Slaughter and son of Covington spent the week end at their camp, formerly owned by Harold Pitcher.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Hamilton and daughter called on Mr. and Mrs. Tom Huff, Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. John Jones entertained Sunday, in honor of Rev. Cook, wife and two children.

Wilma Ruth Huff was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Black and daughter several days the past week.

Prof. Asbury, Prof. Gabbard, Mrs. Robbins, Miss Powers and Prof. Huff attended the K. E. A. at Louisville, the past week.

Correction: Mrs. Mary Edward entertained the G. A.'s and their leader Saturday, a week ago, instead of Miss Clara Mae Hamilton, as it was stated.

Miss Ella Ruth Black entertained the Big Bone Y. W. A. last Thursday evening at her home.

Rev. Cook of Lexington brought two goods sermons at Big Bone, Sunday.

Jack Eviston and two friends of Newport spent Sunday at their camp at Hamilton.

Mrs. May Pitcher and son Henry spent Wednesday afternoon at her home.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Huff spent Sunday with their son and family. Mr. and Mrs. Steve Gabbard and son called in the afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Claude Black called on Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Huff Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Garland Huff spent a couple of days with Mrs. Clarence Wallick of Sugar Creek.

The Senior class of Hamilton High school, will present a three-act comedy, "Slightly Delirious," Thursday evening, May 1st, at 8:00 o'clock. Don't forget the date.

FRUITS AND SMALL FRUIT GROWING IN A NATIONAL DEFENSE PROGRAM

W. W. Magill,
Field Agent in Horticulture

Trend an Sdituation

In consideration of our National Defense Progarm for 1941-42, not only must we produce staple foods, but equally important in the diet are that foods that are essential in maintaining health and vigor. Therefore, it is obvious that we give additional attention to the production of fruits and small fruits for home use, with a local surplus to give to our neighbor and his family who may not be so favorably situated to produce these health restoring vitamins.

Objective and Goals

Desirable health producing foods during a reconstruction period are equally as necessary as during a national crisis of war. This fact must be considered in making our farm and home planting program for 1941. Our tree fruits and berries will not produce fruit the first years after planting. A few dollars spent for plants in 1941 may return you 200% on your investment in 1942 and later years.

Suggestions to Follow

1. Plant 250 Blakemore strawberry plants on every farm not already producing strawberries. Set the berries in early April on any land that would grow a fair crop of corn. 250 such plants can be obtained and delivered to any farm home, postpaid for $1.00. See Extension Circular 295, "Commercial Strawberry Growing in Kentucky," for detailed cultural facts.

2. Plant 8 Concord grape vines during April, in a row ,10 feet apart, such that cultivation can be given each year on each side of the row with a horse-drawn disc or harrow. Drive a tobacco stick at each vine during the first growing season. In the fall construct a 2-wire trellis for the vine. An intercrop can be grown in the grape row the first two years. Any nursery can furnish the vines at about 10 cents each. See Circular No. 209, "Grapes for the Home."

3. Plant 5 peach trees (Carman, Belle of Georgie, Hale Haven, and South Haven varieties) 2-3 feet size. Plant around the chicken yard or garden fence. Cultivate as you would a hill of corn. Apply a shovelful of chicken manure per tree in May. Get the trees from any nursery for approximately 25 cents each.

4. Plant 5 apple trees (Transparent, Wealthy, Yellow Delicious, Grimes Golden and Rome Beauty varieties.) Same care as peach trees. Same price.

IMPORTANT TO FRUIT GROWERS

The present indications are favorable for a good fruit crop in apples, peaches, plums, cherries, grapes, and small fruits.

Excerpts From Spray Letter No. 2: According to W. D. Armstrong, Extension Horticulturist, Kentucky Experiment Station, the following spray suggestions are given:

"Every apple grower should rush to complete his pink spray. In the northern half of the state there is time now for both the pre-pink and the pink spray to be applied, (lime sulfhur 2 gallons to 100) for varieties that suffer from blight, do not forget the full bloom spray of 2-6-100 Bordeaux. If the bloom period should turn out to be long, cool and wet, this spray will give some scab protection. Wettable sulphur, 6 pounds to 100 gallons, will also give some scab protection during the bloom period, if needed on non-blighting varieties."

Do not overlook the Caly Spray when three-quarters of the petals have fallen. Use materials indicated in your Apple Spray Schedule Circular 357, Extension Division, College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky. This Calyx Cup Spray is the first move against codling moth. This pest has come through the winter in good condition and pupation has started in Western Kentucky.

The next spray for peach and plum growers will be when or after the shucks fall, depending upon when the curculio appears. Growers should make plans for jarring to locate this pest when it appears.

The first spray on grapes and raspberries should be made when the bud growth is out about one inch (use 8-8-100 Bordeaux spray). Tune in on WCKY, 6:15 a.m. E. S. T., each Monday morning for Fruit Spray Broadcast. WHAS, Louisville, each Friday 12:50 p. m. C. S. T.

MORGANSVILLE

"Fear God and keep His commandments."

"The blood of Christ cleanseth from all sin."

We rejoice in the glorious success of the recent fruitful evangelistic campaign at Columbus, Ohio, ably conducted by the internationally famed Rev. and Mrs. E. Howard Cadle, the associate pastor, Dr. Laiken, members of the great choir, an the staff of co-workers of the Cadle Tabernacle, Indianapolis, Ind., resulting in 2,000 lives surrendered to Christ. They are intensely spiritual and their labors of eight days was blessed with the largest ingathering ever experienced in that section. Truly, it was one of the greatest spiritual awakenings and may it serve as a step toward bringing America back to God. Mrs. Cadle is in possession of one of the sweetest voices heard over the air, and through the sweet ministry of song she has won countless souls for the Master, and under the guiding hand of Rev. Cadle, who is an outstanding man of God, many noteworthy accomplishments have been achieved. He is heard daily over WLW at 7:00 a. m., and on Sunday at the noon hour. In appreciation of the light and beauty emanating from the great light house at the cross roads of America, illuminating many darkened, lonely lives, Peter Grant, of radio fame, spoke glowing words of commendation Sunday morning.

Charles, Jackie and Bessie Morgan deeply appreciated three lovely Easter baskets from Miss Dotty Settle of Kenton.

Like a beacon in the dark were the lovely greeting of Florida relatives, Mrs. Bruce Wallace, Mrs. Flora Rich Maddox, Mrs. J. E. McCabe, Mrs. Rollie Hume, Mrs. Abbie Bush, Mrs. H. Hoelpe nd Miss J. Marie Hill. May the Lord "ever lift up the light of His countenance upon them and give them peace and joy," and in the end an abundant entrance into the better land.

A host of friends throughout Kenton county are extending congratulations to Prof. Russell E. Bridges of Ft. Thomas, upon the attainment of his new position, having become principal of the Highlands High school, succeeding Mr. Austin.

"His lamps are we, to shine where
He shall say,
And lamps are not for sunny rooms, Nor for the light of day
But for dark places of the earth,
Where shame and crime and wrong have birth,
Or for the twilight gray,
Where wandering sheep have gone astray,
Or where the light of faith grows dim,
And souls are groping after Him.
And as sometimes a flame we find shining through the night so bright,
We do not see the lamp, but only see the light
So may we shine, His light the flame,
That men may glorify His name."

CONCORD

"He that hath my commandments and keepeth them he it is that loveth me." John 41:21.

Mr. and Mrs. George Lucas spent Friday with their son, Clifford and family.

The men are out working on telephone lines. Hope to soon have it finished.

Mrs. Vevie Webster has gone to Walton to stay with Mrs. Hamilton.

Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Robinson were visiting in Ludlow, Friday.

Mrs. Grace Bingham and daughter Ruth were supper guests at Ross Chapman's, Monday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gibson and two sons visited at Floyd Chapman's Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Bingham, son Ray and daughter Ruth, Mr. and Mrs. Ross Chapman all spent Sunday at the A. J. Stone's at Verona.

Mr. Griffin Pettit and family of Clark's Creek spent Sunday at the Floyd Chapman home.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Wilhoite of Cincinnati were out on their farm last week. He is going to build some fence.

Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Robinson were calling on the Howard Millers, Friday. They were also at the cemetery.

Preaching at Concord Saturday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock. Sunday and Sunday night. The Sunbeams will meet at 1:00 o'clock Saturday.

VERONA

Mrs. Mattie Whitson returned to her home last week, after spending the last few months with her daughters, Mrs. J. L. Hamilton and Mrs. D. H. Vest and their families.

Mrs. Jean Roberts Shetler left Friday morning for Elizabethton, Tenn., to join her husband, Vernon Shetler, who is stationed there for the summer baseball season.

We note that our genial mail carrier, W. N. McCrander, is making his rounds in a new Hudson truck.

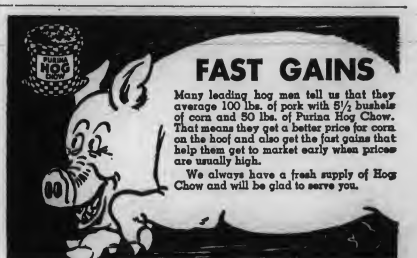
Bob Geaslen of Covington was calling on friends one day last week.

Mrs. Harry Chapman and her daughter, Rosellen, were in Cincinnati on business, Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. George Roberts and Miss Helen Roberts of Latonia, were calling on Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Roberts, Friday evening. Miss Helen was leaving for San Antonia, Texas, on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Lamn were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Reffitt of Erlanger, and of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Lamn. They were disappointed to learn that their grandson, Ronnie Reffitt, who has been in the hospital for several weeks, had contracted measles, and was not permitted to see them. Little Freddy Reffitt, who has been visiting in the country for a time, remained with his parents for a few days, after which he expects to return to the home of his grandaprents, Mr. and Mrs. Lamn.

The W. M. S. met at the church last Wednesday. Nine members were present, and all took part in the discussion of the topic, "An Urgent Gospel—Challenge to True Discipleship." We would welcome more of our women into the society.



Mrs. Grace Brewster is nursing a sprained ankle, sustained when she slipped off a step at her home Friday evening.

GRANT COUNTY MAN DIES APR. 16

Mike Switzer passed away at his residence near Corinth, Ky., Wednesday, April 16th, at the age of 73 years. He had been ill only a few days.

He was the son of the late Taylor and Rebecca (New) Switzer, and was born on Dec. 26th, 1867.

He was married to Mary Northcutt, who preceded him in death in 1926. He was later united in marriage to Leathey Hughes, who passed away in 1932. Since the death of his wife he had made his home with his foster daughter, Mrs. John Gorden.

Mr. Switzer was a very devoted member of the Friendship Baptist church, having become affiliated with that church in 1884, and had faithfully served his Master since.

Mr. Switzer was possessor of a loving disposition and a cheery smile, and was held in high esteem by a host of friends. Most of his relatives having passed on, Mr. Switzer longed for the day to come when he, too, could go Home to be with them, and his going has cast a dark cloud over all who knew him.

The deceased leaves one daughter, Mrs. Sadie Offett, Stamping Ground, Ky.; two foster daughters,, Mrs. John Gorden, Corinth, Mrs. Izetta Clemons, Greenburg, Ind.; one foster son, Raymond Sechrets, Williamstown; and four cousins, Mrs. Ella Brown, Newtown, Ohio, Jim and Albert New, Corinth, and William New, Aurora, Ind.; and a host of friends.

Funeral services were conducted from the residence on Friday, April 18th, Rev. Orlie Hale, officiating. The body was laid to rest in the Henry cemetery at Corinth, Ky., with Coates & Stewart, funeral directors, in charge.

mail from damage by the elements should be replaced with boxes of approved type. Boxes, regardless of type, would, of course, be of such design and in such condition that there will be no likelihood of the carrier injuring his hands when serving them.

The department requests that patrons group their boxes wherever possible, especially at or near crossroads or at other places on the routes where a considerable number of individual boxes are located. A simple and practicable support to be used for the purpose consists of a board erected on posts firmly planted the height of the shelf upon which the boxes are placed to be about three and one-half or four feet above the surface of the ground.

This week precedes the Rural Route inspections in which we have to note the condition of all Rural Route boxes, and report, patrons which have not repaired or replaced their boxes, after proper notices have been sent, to the Post Office Department. I do not like to report to the department that Rural Route patrons, and my good friends, in this community, have failed to cooperate in improving their boxes and appearance of public highways.

Defense Bonds On Sale at Independence

The United States Defense Savings Bonds and Postal Savings Stamps will be placed on sale at all Post Offices at the opening of business on Thursday, May 1, as part of the national effort to make America impregnable.

Postmaster Al Jaeger at Independence, announced today that plans are completed for this community, along with thousands of others from coast to coast, to do its full part at the opening of the savings program. It is expected that the Town Board and other civic leaders will be among the first purchasers of savings bonds and stamps here.

Postmaster General Frank C. Walker, in a letter to Postmasters throughout the country, said that the help of the local postmasters would be "a real service to the country."

A Defense Bond may be purchased May 1, or thereafter, for $18.75. In ten years, this bond will be worth $25.00. This is an increase of 33 1-3 per cent, equal to an annual intnrest return of 2 9 per cent, compounded semi-annually. Any time after sixty days from the date of purchase, the bond may be redeemed for cash, in accordance with a table of redemption values printed on the face of the bond.

For the smaller investor who wants to buy a Government Bond on an easy payment plan, the post office will have a new series of Postal Savings Stamps, at 10c, 25c, 50c, $1.00 and $5. Each purchaser of any Savings Stamp higher than 10c will be given, free of charge, an attractive pocket album in which to paste his stamps until he has enough to buy a $25 bond or one of higher denomination. Thirty million of these albums are now being prepared.

The cover design of the albums is in color, featuring a United States battleship and an eagle bearing the American flag. On the back cover is a painting of the Minute Man statue by Daniel Chester French, which symbolizes the American citizen ever alert in defense of his country. The inscription is "America on Guard."

Secretary Morgenthau said that even a boy or girl who saved 10c to buy a Savings Stamp would help the country. He added that "you can safeguard your own money and your own future, while helping the national defense, by buying United States Savings Bonds now."

CONNER NAMES RUNNING MATE

Harold Conner, who is at present, deputy sheriff of Boone county, and who will be a candidate for sheriff in the coming primary, has announced his selection of a deputy, in event of his election. His choice is such that should interest and please voters in this and surrounding communities, as Mr. Conner has chosen Roland Glenn, who is a well known Walton resident.

NORTH MAIN PROPERTY BEING IMPROVED

The front lawns of C. Scott Chambers, John L. Vest and W. F. Coop on Nort Mhain street, are being greatly improved by filling the low parts with dirt, this giving gradual slope to these properties. These improvements add much to appearances and when completed will make this section of our town much more attractive.

SUMMER ROUND-UP HEALTH CLINICS

Dr. S. B. Nunally has just completed the Summer Round Up Clinics for Hebron, Constance and Taylorsport.

Practically all children, who are to enter these schools next year, had the following examinations and recommendations where needed: Eyes, ears, nose, throat, glands, teeth, deformities, nutrition, posture, skin, heart, lungs, and weight.

Dr. Nunnally was assisted by the Red Cross Nurse, Mrs. Robert Reimer, Mrs. J. C. Ayler, Miss Mary Bess Cropper and Miss Ida Herbstreit.

By request of the faculty, Miss Elizabeth Lowry, Boone county Red Cross Nurse, will talk to Hening For Nurses," May 1st at 10:30 a. m.

BUSINESS MEETING AT VERONA BAPTIST CHURCH

There will be an important meeting at the Verona Baptist church on Friday evening, May 2, at 7:30. All members are urged to attend.

Mrs. Belle Clore Of Belleview Dies

Mrs. Belle Clore, aged 75 years, passed away at the residence in Bellvue, Sunday morning at 1:00 o'clock, of heart trouble. She had been in poor health for some time.

The body was brought to the Chambers & Grubbs funeral home where it was prepared, and later returned to her home, where it lay in state until Tuesday afternoon.

Funeral services were held from the Bellevue Baptist church, of which she was a member, Tuesday afternoon, Rev. O. M. Huey, officiating. The large concourse of loved ones and friends, and the many beautiful floral offerings attested to the esteem in which the deceased was held.

Mrs. Clore, who was born and had spent her entire life in Boone county, is survived by five sons, Elbert Clore of Maysville, Willard and Lee Clore of Texas, John Clore of Idaho and Franklin, who made his home with his mother; and two brothers, Robert Huey, and William Huey, both of Boone county.

Chambers & Grubbs had charge of funeral arrangements.

GO-TO-SUNDAY-SCHOOL DAY MAY 4

At a recent meeting of the Central Committee of the Kentucky Sunday School Association, Sunday, May 4th, 1941, was designated GO-TO-SUNDAY-SCHOOL DAY in Kentucky.

The purpose of the day is to help make Kentucky Sunday school conscious and to increase enrollment in and attendance upon the Sunday schools, thus encouraging the study of the Bible and helping in the development of Christian character. That there is great opportunity for improvement along these lines, is evident. Not more than 33 1-3 per cent of the people in Kentucky are in any Sunday school, according to F. I. Fowler, Field Secretary. The goal for 1941 is a 20 per cent increase in attendance over Go-To-Sunday-School Day last year.

Walton Post Office In New Quarters

The Walton Post Office was opened for business in its new quarters in the former Dixie State bank building (first door north of the old location) Wednesday morning, April 30.

John L. Vest, owner of the building, has had the interior wholly redecorated, and the Government has fully equipped the office with new fixtures.

We now have a Post Office equal to any in a town of this size, and it surpasses many in towns the size of Walton, and larger. Much of the credit for this needed improvement is due to the untiring efforts of Postmaster Clinton F. Cleek, and we congratulate him.

It is an improvement of which all may be proud. So, if you haven't seen it, drop in at your first convenience.

TO OBSERVE "MAY DAY"

The children of the first, second and third grades of the Walton-Verona school will observe May Day, Thursday, May 1st, at 1:30 p. m., on the school campus. Blue ribbons will be presented to the children who are in perfect health or who have had their defects corrected. All the children have been examined by the Red Cross health nurse. Those children, who had defects, were re-examined by Dr. Ryle.

Drinking milk daily has been one goal for which all children have worked.

We wish to thank Dr. Ryle for helping us so willingly in every situation. He has given his time gratis, at all times.

All parents and friends are invited to the May Day Program.

NANNIE LEE SISKMAN,
LUCY ALLPHIN.

DO NOT PUT TRASH IN HEAVY CONTAINERS

Such heavy containers were used by some to harbor trash and rubbish last time, that we were asked to warn residents to please place the some in such containers as can be more easily handled by the collectors.

CONSTANCE HOMEMAKERS TO MEET MAY 7TH

The regular monthly meeting of the Constance Homemakers' Club, will be held May 7th, at 10:30 a. m., at the home of Mrs. Alice Kenyon. Roll call is to be answered with, "A verse for Mother's Day."

New members and visitors are always wlcome.

—Mrs. Ida Herbstreit.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH TO HOLD VACATION BIBLE SCHOOL, STARTING JUNE 9

The Daily Vacation Bible School of the First Baptist church, will begin June 9th, two weeks following the close of the Walton school term, and one week after dismissal of the Simon-Kenton school, thus enabling the students of both schools to enjoy a brief period of rest.

The Bible School will run for the regular two-weeks period as in previous years and is open to all children from three years up through 16 years of age. The school will also be departmentized, as usual, and an experienced and consecrated group of teachers and workers will direct the activities.

The all-day picnic on Friday, June 20th, with commencement exercises in the church auditorium on the following Sunday evening, will bring to a close the fifth successive Daily Vacation Bible School of the First Baptist church.

DESCIPLES OF CHRIST CONVENTION MAY 1-7

The International Convention of Disciples of Christ, representing 8,070 churches in the United States and Canada, will meet in St. Louis, Mo., May 1-7. These churches, known as Christian or Churches of Christ, have a membership of 1,669,222. An attendance of 10,000 is expected.

Disciples of Christ make up the only major evangelical group having its beginnings in America, and rank fifth in size of all those of our country. Now they have 8,925 churches in forty-one countries of the world with a total membership of 1,829,465.

Harry B. McCormick, pastor of the Lakewood, Ohio, Christian Church, is president of the convention, and brings the keynote address, "Making Christ Central" at the opening session Thursday evening. The theme of the convention is "Thy Kingdom Come."

All sessions of the convention will be held in the beautiful and commodious Municipal Auditorium building, either in the Opera House or Convention Hall. Three sessions will be held daily.

Many outstanding speakers will be on the program: Dr. H. P. VanDusen of the Union-Theological Seminary in New York City, Judge E. J. Millington of Cadillac, Mich., Dr. Emory Ross, Secretary of the Foreign Missions Conference of North America, Judge L. K. Wood of Louisville, Ky., Mr. Merle E. Sidener, Indianapolis, Ind., Dr. P. D. Sukhnandan of Mungell, India, Mrs. Edna Gish China, E. E. Aubrey of the Uni- and Miss Wenona Wilkinson of versity of Chicago, Mrs. Charles Green of Manchester, England, and Bishop Ivan Lee Holt of Dallas, Tex.

A convention prayer service will be held in the Opera House Sunday morning, May 4, at 8:00 o'clock under the leadership of Hugh B. Kilgour, pastor of Central Christian Church, Grand Rapids, Mich. That afternoon at 3:30 o'clock a communion service will be held in Convention Hall under the direction of F. E. Davison, pastor of First Christian Church, South Bend, Indiana.

Ten brooder houses were built in Taylor county last month, and records are being kept on many flocks.

W.-V. Nine Trims Burlington 10-3

The Walton-Verona base ball squad went to Burlington last Friday afternoon and took the home club into camp 10 to 3. The locals had a big eighth inning, salting the game away with an 8-run barrage.

Clifford Ryan was on the mound for the Bearcats, and gave up but 4 hits, while whipping 14 of the opposition. Lawrence Welsh did the receiving.

W.-V. banged out 9 hits, in scoring their 10 runs. The attack was lead by DeMoisey and Gault, who got 2 for 4, and S. Ryan, who had 2 for 5 swings. The only extra base knock of the game was a double by Paul Simpson.

On Monday afternoon of next week the Bearcat baseballers will go to Simon Kenton High for a second session with the Pioneers. These teams played a 9-inning 2-2 tie earlier in the season.

We are glad to see the revival of base ball in Walton, and trust the interest will continue. We also would like to see the boys have a suitable grounds on which to play. What do you think?

DEFENSE BONDS ON SALE MAY 1st

Postmaster Clinton F. Cleek announced this week that new United States defense bonds and postal savings stamps will go on sale at the Walton postoffice on Thursday, May 1.

Your money invested in these bonds, safe from the standpoint that they have the full faith and credit of the federal government pledged for the payment of both principle and interest, will be put to work at once in the national defense program to protect the freedom and safety of the United States.

Postal Savings Stamps, which may be purchased for as little as ten cents may be mounted on a Stamp Card or album furnished by the department, which when amounting to certain values, may be exchanged for bonds.

Everett Jones For Magistrate

In this issue of the Advertiser, Everett Jones, of Big Bone, makes formal announcement to the voters of the 3rd Magisterial District, his candidacy for re-election to the office of Magistrate, subject to the action of the Democratic primary election, Saturday, August 2, 1941.

Everett, in asking for the support of the voters, pledges a sincere, impartial, and efficient administration of the affairs of the office he seeks, and believes that his experience in that office for the past four years—along with a keen interest in the affairs of his community—make of him a candidate worthy of your support.

4-H CAMP VISITED

H. B. Drake, assistant county agent, and Mary Scott Moore, substitute home demonstration agent, visited the new Kentucky 4-H camp last Tuesday. Camp Bingham, as the site is known, is located on the Chaplin River, about 20 miles south of Lawrenceburg, Kentucky.

The new camp is being prepared for the use of 4-H boys and girls throughout the central section of Kentucky of which Boone county is a part. Club camps will be conducted for one week each with members paying a nominal fee to participate in this event. A permanent building is located on the grounds to house 250 people. Recreational facilities, including swimming, tennis, baseball, badminton and croquet, will be available for those attending camp. The Boone county 4-H Council has made no definite plans regarding this camp, but it is expected some local club members will attend. August 11-15 is the time set aside for the Northern Kentucky group of counties.

FIRE DEPT. SUPPER AT INDEPENDENCE

The Independence and Community Fire Department is sponsoring their fourth annual supper. This event, which has come to be looked forward to by residents of the surrounding community, is to be held at the Simon Kenton High school at Independence, on Saturday, May 10. Serving will start at 5:00 p. m. If you have not retofore attended one of these suppers, you'd better go this year, you'll never miss another when you've once "tried their wares."

WALTON RESERVOIR IS RESTOCKED

On April 27, 500 pounds of channel cats were put into the Walton reservoir. Some of the fish weighed as much as six pounds. Anglers should find it great sport trying to land one of these.

LADIES' AID SOCIETY ENTERTAINED THURSDAY

Mrs. Stanley Bush entertained on Thursday, the Ladies' Aid Society of the Walton Christian church, for an all-day meeting. Those present were: Rev. and Mrs. Alderson, W. B. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Spencer and daughter, Mrs. Ora Fry, Mrs. Burgess Haley, Mrs. George Arnold, Mrs. Lula Huey, Mrs. L. A. Gardner, Mrs. Mildred Maxie, Mrs. Ada Moore, Mrs. Bertha Fisher, Mrs. Anna Mae Bush, Mrs. Nettie Watson, Mrs. Ora Stone, Mrs. Marie Pennington, Mrs. Elizabeth Gross, Misses Libbie Ingram, Ruth Haley, Thelma Moore, Jane Alderson and Bettie Lu Watson.

REMODELING SALE COMMENCES TODAY

The Dan Cohen Co., 24 Pike St., Covington, commences a sale today that promises to break all records for Northern Kentucky. It is called a remodeling sale, and will be continued until over $77,000 worth of footwear is sold, regardless of cost. All stocks of shoes for every member of the family have been cleared from the shelves and placed on racks at prices that will attract buyers of family footwear.

The Cohen building at 24 Pike St., the scene of this sale, was built in 1909. It will be rehabilitated at a cost of approximately $50,000. It was here that the first Dan Cohen store was started about 50 years ago. The firm grew rapidly, and today it is recognized as the largest exclusive family shoe store chain in the country, with 50 stores, extending as far South as Texas.

During this sales event many old-time Kentucky families will renew acquaintance with Mr. Mose Cohen, one of the founders of the business, in conjunction with his brothers, Messrs. A. E. Cohen and Nate Cohen.

Contracts for the reconstruction of the Cohen building have been awarded to a Covington architect, Abner Foster, and to a Kentucky general contractor, Mr. Hemmer. All sub - contractors and workmen will be native Kentuckians. It will be a treat to visit the store during this event, even if only to see how a good, old-fashion sale looks during these modern times.

It appears that the reconstructed Cohen building will house a large department store in addition to the Dan Cohen shoe store. An official of the Dan Cohen Co. advises that the sale will continue during the entire remodeling period and the public will forever remember the slashe-drpice items.

Pike street has commenced to undergo considerable new front installations with the view of retaining its position as Northern Kentucky's busiest thoroughfare.

LEAGUE OF SPORTSMEN MEET IN LEXINGTON

The 7th Annual Convention of the League of Kentucky Sportsmen, will be held in the Lafayette Hotel, Lexington, on May 11, 12 and 13.

Everyone interested in conserving natural resources, wildlife and fish are most earnestly urged to attend.

Walton Methodist Church Activities

The Woman's Society of Christian Service will meet at the Methodist church Thursday at 6:00 p. m. for a covered dish dinner. After the dinner they will hold their regular quarterly meeting of the entire Society. Mrs. Lottie Powers, who attended the annual Conference of this organization in the Kentucky Conference, will give an account of the Conference. A good program is planned along with the fellowship. There are several Charter Members who have not been attending either of the Circle meetings from month to month. The Society is anxious to have all of the members present with any of their friends who may come.

Sunday, May 4th is Church School Rally Day. The Church School is a very important part of any Church. Each member of the Church should be a member of the Church School. Any who have not been attending the Church School, are invited to make the start on next Sunday. A special worship program is being planned. We want to set a new record in attendance as well as to create a still better attitude toward this important phase of the Church. We invite you to be present and bring one.

The Methodist people of the Covington District will have an opportunity Monday evening, May 5th, to attend another great layman's rally. Two thousand people are expected to hear Dr. Merton S. Rice, famous preacher from Detroit and Mrs. Grace Story Simmonds' choir of a hundred voices. This will be a great treat for the entire District. A motorcade will leave from the Methodist Church at 6:00 p. m. our time. Friends from other Churches are invited to share in this rally. The place of meeting is the Newport High school.

The revival at the Methodist Church begins Sunday, May 25th, and closes June 8th. Dr. J. W. Weldon, Supt. of the Hopkinsville District, Hopkinsville, Ky., will be the guest preacher. Dr. Weldon is one of the outstanding preachers of the Louisville Conference. We are anxious for our people to begin now making plans for these special services. We are praying and trusting that it shall be a great spiritual awakening in our midst.

SENIOR B. Y. P. U. FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

"Christ is the Supreme Expression of God's Love," is the topic of the doctrinal program for Sunday evening, May 4th, in the Baptist Young People's Union.

Group captain in charge, Harold Soden.

Meditation:

"Speak, history: Who are life's heroes?
Unroll thy long annals and say.
The martyrs, or Nero? The Spartans
Who fell at Thermopylae's tryst,
Or the Persians and Xerxes?
His judges, or Socrates?
Pilate, or Christ?"
Love is the fairest flower that blooms in the garden of God.

MAY DAY EXERCISES AT MIDWAY, MAY 15

Three Boone county girls, students at Midway, are to take part in the May Day exercises, which will take place May 15.

Miss Mary Massey of Athens, George, has been selected as May Queen and Martha Hancock of Morehead, Ky., her Maid of Honor. Carra Lou Huey of Petersburg, Ky. will be one of the maids.

Jane Youell of Covington and Walton will be one of the train bearers; and Wilma Huey of Petersburg will appear in the pageant and orchestra.

In Adair county last month, nine meeting on home gardens for defense, were held.

D. L. Vincent, Hart county, has built a 125-hen-capacity laying house and a brick brooder.

Logan county merchants are donating 7 bushels of hybrid corn to Negro 4-H club members.

This Week In Defense

Secretary of State Hull, speaking in Washington, said, "evidence has been piling up for several years which makes it perfectly plain that one group of powers actually does have designs both upon the new world and upon the principles, the possessions, and the way of life that are ours."

Secretary Hill said, "were the control of the sease by the resisting nations lost, the Atlantic would no longer be an obstacle—rather, it would become a broad highway for a conquerer moving westward."

Navy Secretary Knox, speaking in New York, said "what we all see is an America gradually becoming encircled by hostile military powers . . . openly joined together in a pact they do not hesitate to say is aimed . . . at us alone." Mr. Knox said if Germany should establish herself in Africa where submarines, ships, and bombers "could substantially cut us from all commerce from South America," the Monroe Doctrine would be "a scrap of paper."

Mr. Knox also said "we must fight ultimately unless we find, and put into effect, measures that will enable Britain to do our fighting." He said Germany would be defeated if U. S. war supplies and food reach England; "We shall be beaten" if they do not. Secretary of State Hull also said aid to Britain "must reach its destination. Ways must be found to do this."

Asked to comment on the speeches of Mr. Hull and Mr. Knox, President Roosevelt told his press conference they reflected his opinion. The President also said that the neutrality patrols, established after the outbreak of war to warn against aggressors' ships that might come near the Western Hemisphere, are being extended as the war comes closer. He said they will be extended to the seven seas if necessary to protect the Western Hemisphere. Mr. Roosevelt said the patrols are not convoys.

Aid to Democracies

The Navy released to Great Britain, under the Lease-Lend program, 20 small, fast torpedo boats and announced discussions are under way regarding a program for the construction of additional small craft for Britain in Canadian shipyards.

President Roosevelt and Prime Minister King of Canada jointly announced a program to coordinate Canadian and American defense production. Each country will provide the other with equipment it is best able to produce.

The President told his press conference the war could not be decided by a single sea victory, a defeat in the Balkans, or even the Eastern Mediterranean. He expressed confidence that Britain could hold out with American aid and counseled the public against moving from hopes to deep despair because of day by day reports.

Agriculture

Secretary of Agriculture Wickard said in a radio speech that "the stake of farmers in this world conflict is as great or greater than that of any other group. If the Nazis win, we might as well kiss our export market for farm products goodbye. I think it's time the farmers and the people of this country got excited about this world situation. Nowadays ostrich nations don't last very long."

Mr. Wickard said as far as export crops are concerned, the principal problem is still one of surpluses, "but so far as pork, dairy products, poultry, eggs, tomatoes, and some other foods are concerned," this is not true. After the war, he said, a large part of the world will be looking to the U. S. for food . . . "whether we can give it to them may decide how much weight the U. S. will have at the peace councils."

Price and Civilian Supply Administrator Henderson said that, since steel prices have been frozen, it would not be necessary for manufacturers to increase the prices of farm machinery.

Production Progress

The Army received delivery on the first tank produced at the new Chrysler plant at Detroit, a building a quarter of a mile long constructed in 70 working days. The Charlestown (Indiana) Ordnance Works, world's largest powder plant, able to supply the needs of an army of more than one million, will be opened one month ahead of schedule.

Commerce Secretary Jones, speaking in New York, said the progress of the nation's defense effort is "better than good—but—no matter how fast defense production climbs, it will not be fast enough to meet the need." William Batt, of the Defense Production office, also speaking in New York, called on industry "to do more than it has—without looking to see whether the other fellow is doing his (share)."

Labor Supply

Wage-Hour Administrator Fleming, speaking in New York, said there are still more than 6,000,000 unemployed not now being used in the defense effort. Gen. Fleming said these unemployed can be put to work by the addition of an extra shift in the nation's factories. He said a recent study showed industries could add a shift and still make larger profits even after paying extra for overtime.

The Office of Production Management Labor Division said women have been found satisfactory in virtually every kind of job ordinarily filled by men and said a State Employment Service list for women includes hundreds of occupations in metal works, electrical and automotive manufacturing, aircraft construction, and even shipbuilding. The Labor Division also said "we are informed that there are good workers available who are not being hired solely because of their race."

Labor Disputes

OPM Associate Director Hillman, speaking in Washington, said that most industrial disputes are settled without any stoppage—"every week hundreds of labor contracts expire and are renewed without evoking even a ripple." He said "at the present moment the industrial relations picture is far more favorable than at any other time of equal industrial activity."

The Bureau of Mines reported that because of the labor dispute in the soft coal industry, only a two weeks' supply was on hand. The President called upon coal labor management to settle their differences promptly, and Labor Secretary Perkins certified the dispute to the Defense Mediation Board. The Board announced settlement of two other disputes.

The U. S. Conciliation Service announced settlement of 27 additional disputes.

Defense Financing

The Treasury Department announced unsolicited donations of from 10 cents to $150 have come from individuals throughout the country — from "scrubwomen in Brooklyn, cowpunchers in Texas, aging janitors, youngsters from 10 to 12 years—anxious—to keep America safe." The Treasury program to sell defense savings bonds begins May 1 when bonds and defense stamps are placed on sale in 16,000 post offices, banks, and savings institutions throughout the country.

Selective Service

Selective Service headquarters amended its regulations to provide that volunteers can apply only through their local board and will be classified in the same manner as Selective Service registrants. Selective Service headquarters also amended regulations so that no registrant will be inducted while an appeal is pending or during the period when an appeal may be made.

Air Raid Protection

The War Department requested civilians wishing to enroll as volunteer observers in the air warning service to apply to the nearest branch of their State Defense Council and not to Air Corps stations. Between 500,000 and 600,000 volunteers are to be enrolled before August.

OUR DEMOCRACY——by Mat

Washington Snapshots by James Preston

The head of the Division of Production in the Office of Production Management, John D. Biggers, in talking the other day to a group of defense manufacturers, had this to say about the progress of the rearmament effort: "The progress is good—in most cases amazingly good; but gentlemen, you and I know that we cannot be satisfied. The task is so tremendous, the need so urgent, that greater and greater efforts are the order of the day."

Those remarks are a good digest of the general attitude in the capital these days. Astonishing progress has been made, but the job is so terrific that constantly more endeavor is being asked of all who have a part in it. That approach is helpful to keep in mind if you want to follow defense news intelligently.

Washington observers, who have had the need for defense speed dinned in their ears constantly for the past few months, and who have had a good chance to watch the immense progress that has been made so far, feel pretty sure that any additional step-up in the program can only be achieved by men of the type now on the job.

Here is a little bit of history on this subject.

When our federal government began to "buy defense" on a large scale last June, it was putting the American public, which it represents, in business for itself in a big way. For the defense program was a kind of super-super enterprise that could only succeed if it were run along sound business lines of planning, coordinating, spending where it would do the most good, and producing the best possible finished product.

It was only natural, then, that business men should be put in charge of defense production and raw materials purchases and various other phases of this big industrial job. The presence of Messrs. Knudsen and Stettinius and Biggers and their compatriots gave the general public confidence, and rightly so. These men were not primarily interested in performing interesting statistical tricks; they liked to see products rolling off the end of a well-synchonized assembly line. That was what the American people wanted to see, too.

Today, the public is getting what it wants in the form of an astonishing record of accomplishment. The full figures aren't available, of course, but even the scattered ones we have indicate clearly that defense progress has been remarkable, in the tradition of private American manufacturing achievements. Statisticians tell us that in nine months we have made more progress, working together as free men, than the Nazis did in two and a half years with their much-vaunted government-dictated economy.

American industry has already completed more than 3 billion of the first 12 billion of defense goods ordered. Productive facilities of American aircraft factories increased 28 per cent in the 59 days ending March 1. We are well on our way towards employing one million men in aircraft production.

The machine tool industry, vital because it makes the big "supermachines" upon which all mass production industries depend, has expanded by 2,000 per cent over the depression low.

The two-ocean Navy will be ready two years ahead of schedule. Our newest battleships are coming off the ways a year ahead of the time originally anticipated.

Powder plants, tank factories, great sprawling aircraft plants, have been completed in record time, and the machines have started turning over almost before the plaster was dry.

Steel production reached an all-time high.

And so the record reads . . . It is more than ever evident that it was good judgement to select skilled production men to handle this biggest of all industrial jobs, that of making America strong.

Meanwhile, you can't help but become increasingly conscious, if you move in Washington circles, of the growing part that various Washington officials with little or no business experience are assuming in the defense structure. The names of Messrs. Hopkins, Henderson and Morgenthau are being mentioned ever-more-frequently in this connection.

Particularly significant has been the price policing power recently given to Leon Henderson, who quickly put it to use by "fixing" steel prices.

Observers point out that Henderson's action seemingly runs head on into the activities of other branches of government which, by such devices as raising taxes drastically, stimulating wage increases, and the like, thereby automatically raise costs. Some day, they say, the realization must be faced that these factors enter into prices, and can cause prices to bump into artificially created "ceilings" with disastrous results.

Thoughtful people can't help wondering whether, in the clash of theories, the defense program may not turn out to be the real sufferers. At any rate, the prospect of "planners" instead of "doers" having the final say on defense is one that a great many people in a position to know do not view with equanimity.

POPGUNS

Today as I walked across the campus with a freshman, we passed a dogwood tree covered with bright red berries. I asked him what they suggested, but he did not know. Could it be that the present generation does not know about popguns? If that is true, this article is to tell them of another institution that hey have missed; incidentally, as always, it is to remind the oldsters of what they missed by growing up.

Popguns were of two types: those made of elder stalks and those made of a joint of cane. Both kinds are good, and both kinds made a loud pop when fired properly. You cut a joint of elder, remove the pith, and then trim a stick that fits snugly as a ramrod. Since an elder stalk is pretty large, it is usually necessary to use paper wads for ammunition. Before there were any germs, we chewed up paper of any description and stuffed a wad of the pulp into our guns. Carefully push this wad along until it is near the end. Then insert another one, slowly pushing it down part of the way. Then give a sudden plunge, usually by hitting the end of the ramrod against something fixed and hard, like a desk top or the side of the schoolhouse. The result is a loud pop, which with a little imagination sounds like the report of a gun. Always leave the second wad in the gun, so that you can get into action more quickly.

Now dogwood berries were made primarily for the other type of popgun. The pulp around the seed is cut to fit the gun as you push the berry down with your finger or the ramrod of your gun. The technique of firing is the same, but you can usually give enough force to the cane popgun merely by jamming the ramrod with the palm of your hand. I have seen some palms as sore from this as thumbs were sore from shooting aggies in our games of marbles. Dogwood berries are considerably more sanitary than paper wads and probably should be the kind of ammunition used by boys whose mothers have learned about germs.

Besides creating a pop there are other uses of popguns. With dogwood berries as bullets they make fine guns in a fight. There is small danger of serious injury, but a dogwood berry properly fired can make a sting that lasts most of recess time. When you go inside the schoolhouse, you had better put the popgun in a safe place away from temptation. It might be a good idea to entrust it to the teacher, because she sometimes gets it anyway. I refer, from tender memories, to the unfortunate habit the small boy has of taking out his popgun during books and getting it ready for next playtime. By a species of cruel fate nearly always when this happens, the popgun goes off accidentally, just as real guns so often do. There is no bloodshed, but the popgun is declared contraband, much to the amusement of the other boys, who either did not play with their popguns or did not get caught. Sometimes the cruel teacher would not return the gun at recess time, and it became necessary to make a whole new one, meantime missing most of the fun of scaring little girls half to death and raising a few whelks on one's best boy friends.

Some one has divided the seasons according to what boys are playing: Kite, marble, baseball, football, basketball. Middle autumn at Fidelity was popgun season, and everybody was avid in celebrating it properly.

PHYSICAL ACTIVITY ESSENTIAL TO LIFE

Nature attempts to develop and adapt the body according to the uses we make of it. A part not regularly used becomes weak. If not used at all, it withers and dies. Proper physical activity, by strengthening spinal muscles, will aid the muscles to hold the spinal bones in place and lessen the occurrance of spinal displacements. Also it will increase the circulation of blood and lymph, which nourish the spinal structures, and prevent or retard shortening of the spine as one grows older. Stature can thus be retained, functional alignment of the spine improved, and the spinal cord and nerves better protected. Proper physical activity will do much to maintain life processes at high efficiency. Functional alignment of the spine, however, permitting normal nerve stimulus which motivates and vitalizes all body processes and functions, is absolutely essential to good health and long life.

Dr. Edgar Cyriax, University of Edingurgh, Scotland, wrote: "In the course of time, I have seen more than 1,000 cases of minor displacements of vertebrae, and have become convinced that in a certain proportion of the cases, the malpositions present were wholly or portly responsible for numerous symptoms, from which the patient was suffering."

The High Cost of Getting Well

Within recent years much has been said about the high cost of getting well. After giving this problem a great deal of study, we have devised a simple plan whereby the patient may get the best health service at a very nominal cost, without sacrificing any laboratory tests or x-rays which may be necessary in his particular case.

We shall be glad to explain this plan in detail if you will call at this office.

NAGGING BACKACHE

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action. Don't Neglect It!

Modern life with its ceaseless hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking, exposure, contagion whatnot, keeps doctors busy, hospitals crowded. The after effects are disturbing to the kidneys and oftentimes people suffer without knowing that disordered kidney action may cause the trouble.

After colds, fever and similar ills there is an increase of body impurities the kidneys must filter from the blood. If the kidneys are overtaxed and fail to remove excess acid and other harmful waste, there is poisoning of the whole system.

Symptoms of disturbed kidney function may be nagging backache, persistent headache, dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of strength and energy. Other signs of kidney or bladder disturbance sometimes are burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

"Him that cometh to me I will in no wise cast out."

"I will give unto him that is athirst of the fountain of the water of life freely."

In the Word of God we read of a shepherd bringing home his lost sheep into the fold. He goes into the mountainside and searches until the lost is found.

"There were ninety and nine that safely lay,
In the shelter of the fold,
But one was out on the hills away,
Far off from the gates of gold
Away on the mountains wild and bare,
Away from the tender shepherd's care."

Little Miss Bessie Lucille Morgan is suffering from a severe case of whooping cough.

Sincere appreciation is extended to Mr. Robert E. Hawkins for recent kindness.

Mrs. David Holbrook paid a pleasant call Saturday morning.

"Leaves have their time to fall
and flowers to wither at the
Northwind's breath,
And stars to set, but thou has all seasons for thine own, O
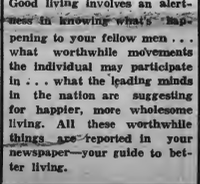
Death."

The tragic passing of Mr. Harley Stephenson, Tuesday, April 8, 1941, has plunged many hearts into deepest sorrow. Injuries received while moving a building resulted fatally, and his untimely death in the full vigor of manhood was most deeply deplored. This shocking occurrence is a tragic demonstration of the uncertainty of life. Truly, "In the midst of life, we are in death." We should therefore heed the admonition to be always ready for "in such an hour as we think not the Son of Man cometh." Besides his wife and children, he is survived by his mother, Mrs. Ora Stephenson of Independence, four brothers, one sister and other loved ones to whom deepest sympathy is extended in this dark hour. Following the last rites at the Chambers & Grubbs funeral home, conducted by Rev. T. H. Alderson of Walton, interment took place in the Independence cemetery. His brothers, Messrs. Vincent, Walter, Ira and Louis Stephenson and brother-in-law, Mr. Curley served as pallbearers.



"Not until the loom is silent
And the shuttle ceases to fly,
Shall God unroll the canvas
And explain the reason why
The dark threads are just as needful
In the weaver's skillful hand,
As the threads of gold and silver
In the pattern He has planned."

BUILDING FERTILIZERS

Record amounts of phosphate and lime are being used by Boone county farmers this year, according to H. R. Forkner, county agent. This work is resulting in more profitable production and the improvement of both quality and looks of farm lands.

The county agricultural conservation association reports that 660 tons of superphosphate and over 3,000 tons of agricultural limestone have been ordered and delivered to date under the Grant of Aid program. This already exceeds the entire 1940 record on phosphate and is the first year that limestone has been supplied to farmers as grant of aid in lieu of cash payments for carrying out soil building practices. Farmers who have not ordered limestone and phosphate should do so before May 15th, the last day that this type of order can be accepted under the 1941 program. The 1941 program year closes June 30th.

A record increase in alfalfa seeding is expected as a result of the lime and phosphate treatment. Farmers are appreciating more the importance of alfalfa as a health building feed for more profitable livestock production and also the ease with which a good stand can be secured on land that has been limed, phosphated and the seed innoculated. April and May usually are good months for seeding alfalfa.

"The harvest is plenteous but the laborers are few."

Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Struve and Mrs. Vevie Webster, all of Walton, spent the week end at the D. R. Chapman home. We were glad to have them all at church, Sunday.

Rev. Thompson, a teacher at Georgetown College, came Saturday to supply for Rev. Smith. Some of his students, who attended Georgetown College, were glad to see him. Among these were Mrs. Althea Craft and Mrs. Boyer. We were glad to have Mr. and Mrs. Boyer out for church.

Leo Webster was a dinner guest at Ross Chapman's, Sunday.

Mr. Sleet Allphin and family spent Sunday at the John Kennedy home. Harry Allphin's son was also a visitor.

The W. M. S. will meet with Mrs. Glacken, Wednesday, the 7th of May. Hope to have a good attendance as the weather is nice. Come and bring some one with you.

Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Robinson were business visitors at Warsaw Friday, he was having some teeth extracted.

Rev. Thompson was entertained at the Jim Beach home over the week end.

-that man IN OUR NEIGHBORHOOD!

A CALL IN THE NIGHT

We heard the children romping in their playroom upstairs—then suddenly, a scream!

We both rushed up and found our young son had fallen and apparently broken his arm. We immediately phoned our family physician, who verified our worst fears.

In time, the arm was carefully set, but other difficulties arose that called for an unusual prescription.

I looked at the clock—where could we get it filled at this late hour? We spoke to the doctor, who then picked up the phone and called "that man" out of bed—again "that man" (our neighborhood druggist) did not fail us.

Our neighborhood druggist never fails us! Should you, like most women, suffer discomforts during the menstrual period, just phone your druggist—he usually advises women to try Vatona Tablets—this may be just what you need!

-:- LESSON -:-

S. S. Lesson for May 4

Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education: used by permission.

THE CHURCH ENLARGING ITS FELLOWSHIP

LESSON TEXT—Acts 8:1-8, 14-17, 25.
GOLDEN TEXT—Therefore they that were scattered abroad went everywhere preaching the word.—Acts 8:4.

In a time characterized by materialism and commercialism, it is refreshing to consider the manner in which the early church spread the gospel far and wide. They did this without thought of personal gain or advantage, and with a sacrificial devotion to Christ which caused men and women to be willing to die for Him, and, what may sometimes be even harder, to live for Him in the face of persecution. Here was loyalty that puts expediency to shame, and sacrifice of self for Christian principle which needs emphasis in this "soft" age.

The enlarging of the church is revealed by our lesson as being

I. By Death or by Life (vv. 1-4).

Stephen, one of the deacons, "a man full of faith and of the Holy Ghost" (6:5), was stoned because of his testimony for Christ. He became the first martyr of the church, leading the line of those noble men and women who down to our own day have been ready to die rather than to deny Christ. The day may not be too far distant when some of us may face that decision. Are we ready?

To every one of us who is a Christian comes the necessity of living for Christ. Some in Jerusalem died (v. 2), some were imprisoned (v. 3), but notice that the others were scattered abroad, like brands from a fire, carrying the message of God's Word. They were not afraid, did not go into hiding, nor did they "adjust" their message to meet the circumstances. They went "everywhere preaching the word."

While persecution may sometimes hinder the spread of the gospel, it also frequently stirs the zeal of God's people to preach and teach. Just now in the midst of the havoc of war and persecution the good news of salvation is spreading in lands which hitherto knew it not. Are you and I doing our part?

II. By Preaching That Brought Joy (vv. 5-8).

Philip, a layman (the first of many great evangelists) and a few, went to the despised Samaritans with the gospel, and God so signally blessed his ministry that a great revival broke out and "there was much joy in the city."

What we need is more gospel preaching and teaching. You laymen, please note that you are not to wait for the preacher to do it. Spread the good news yourself. And note too that it is to be preached to all people, even to those whom we might (humanly speaking) be tempted to despise, either by reason of race or position in life. It was a glorious thing that happened to Philip in Samaria. It can happen again, and "it can happen here."

III. By Fellowship That Brought Blessing (vv. 14-17).

When the church at Jerusalem heard what had happened in Samaria, they were overjoyed, and sent two of their leaders, Peter and John, to encourage and counsel with the new converts.

Such fellowship always brings blessing, and in this case it was unusual blessing; namely, the gift of the Holy Spirit. On this occasion God thus gave these new Samaritan believers the blessing and power of the Holy Spirit in such a way as to bind them in fellowship to the church in Jerusalem. Jew and Gentile believers in Christ thus were joined in one communion of love and faith.

IV. By Broadened Vision That Brought Action (v. 25).

Peter and John had completed their work in Samaria and were on their way home to Jerusalem, but what they had seen had given them a new vision. They acted on that vision, and as they passed through the villages of Samaria they "preached the gospel" with joyful hearts. What an interest and stir they must have created!

It is one thing to see an opportunity and a need; it is quite another to do something about it. For that, one needs determination of purpose. As Lloyd George put it, "You cannot fight a winning battle with a retreating mind." These apostles were reaching out for God, and under His leadership and blessing, into the villages of Samaria.

The Christian church needs more real consecrated action; that is, in the name of Christ and for His glory. The business man who conducts his secular affairs with enthusiasm and dispatch, often forgets all that in his church duties. He advertises and seeks new markets for his goods, but is not interested in the outreach of the church. He can get excited about the Rotary Club or the Lions or what not, but never develops the slightest enthusiasm about the Lord's work. It goes without saying that such a "picture" is all out of focus. Let's make it right. Vision? Yes, by all means. But also action for God.

COMMITTEE RECEIVES MATTRESS MATERIAL

The County AAA Committee has received 13,000 pounds of surplus cotton and 2,400 yards of ticking for use under the Kentucky Rural Mattress Program, according to H. R. Forkner. Applications for 211 mattresses and 211 comforts have been received at the county office.

An actual making of mattresses will begin within the next 10 days or two weeks. Community making centers are being set up in Petersburg, Burlington, Hebron, Union, Beaver, Hamilton, Walton, Grant and Verona.

Those who have filed applications will receive notice in the near future as to the date for mattress making.

You Pay the Bill!

Three million American families could have a Utopian way of life on the money the nation pays each year directly into the hands of the liquor trade.

The average family pays the four billion dollar liquor bill in things it needs but can't buy because father spent several dollars last month for alcohol.

The butcher, the baker and the candle - stick maker pay the liquor bill in lowered incomes.

Analyzing "what might have been" during 1940, the W.C.T.U. lists some of the things that those three million families could have had to enrich themselves physically, mentally, and spiritually.

House rent, $30 a month; bread, two loaves daily at 10c; milk, two quarts daily at 10c; meat, 15 pounds a week at 30c a pound; $4 worth of fresh fruit a month; four tickets to the movies; two magazines at $3 each; extra household supplies at $50 for the year.

In addition, the family could have paid its subscription to the hometown paper, father could have had a new suit, mother and the children could have spent $80 for clothes and bought three more pairs of $5 shoes.

"Turn Off the Faucet"

A total of $50 could have been paid on that long past-due doctor bill and the minister could have been delighted with $52 more for the church.

With all of these extra necessities to well-rounded life, there still would have been something like $665,000,000 left for those three million families to spend.

Instead, the W.C.T.U. declares, all that the money actually purchased was hangovers, wrecked bodies, broken homes, lost jobs, and the other unsocial effects of "public sale of a narcotic [illegible]."

Kenton Farm News

LAMB GRADING DEMONSTRATIONS SCHEDULED

According to Mr. G. P. Summers, Field Agent in Marketing Experimen tStation, Lexington, Ky. Lamb grading demonstrations will be held for Kenton County Sheep Producers on May 12th and May 13th.

Four Demonstrations Will Be Held

According to present plans four demonstrations will be held. One at the farm of S. W. Durr, on the Green road one at the farm of Joe Neumeister, 1½ miles south of Walton on U. S. 25; one at the farm of Chris H. Beck, Oak Island community; and one at the farm of Ira Mullins for the Fiskburg and Morning View sections.

SPRAY YOUR GRAPES NOW

If you want a good crop of luscious, tempting healthful fruit this fall, SPRAY YOUR GRAPES NOW. It is important that the Bordeaux spray be applied when the new growth is one to two inches long.. Most vines are in this stage by April 25th. Black rot can be controlled if you spray early. If you have only a few vines you can buy Bordeux ready to use from your local seed dealer who handles spray supplies. You will need at least three applications during the season so get a supply of Bordeaux and control the black rot.

PEST CONTROL
By John S. Gardner

The Insects

Any insect that attacks any of the vegetables may be controlled by: (a) Using the appropriate material, based on the nature of the insect, whether a chewing one or one that lives on plant sap. (b) Applying it where the insects feed. (c) Applying it at the right time, based on the life habits on the insect itself.

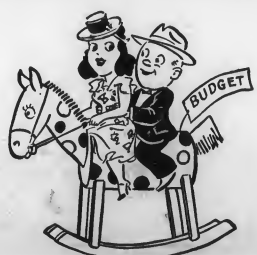
Insects fall into two classes. There are the "chewers"—those that consume foliage, and which are killed by poison spread where they feed. The others are the "suckers"—those that insert their bills into the body of the leaf or the stem of the plant to suck sap. They consume no surface area, hence cannot be poisoned, but are controlled with spray or dust made of material that either corrodes their bodies or else paralyzes them.

Chewing Insects

These are: Cabbage worm, Colorado beetle, Mexican bean beetle, cucumber beetle and other general feeders, but it is not necessary to know their names or even to see them. All that is needed is evidence they have been there (eaten foliage) and then to apply poison. Except the Mexican bean beetle and the cucumber beetle, they consume the whole leaves, and the poison as they come to it. The bean beetle and the cucumber beetle are more subtle and will be dealt with in more detail later.

The following are dusts and sprays for general control of the chewing insects: Dust: Calcium arsenate, 1 part by weight, fine screened lime, 6 parts; or, magnesium arsenate and lime, same proportion as just above. Spray: Lead arsenate, 2 tablespoonfuls (level), water, 1 gallon; or, magnesium arsenate, 2 tablespoonfuls (rounded), water, 1 gallon.

The above poisonous materials may be used on plant parts that are not ever used for food; only on beans until podding starts, or on cabbage until heading begins; on cauliflower, broccoli and on greens, NEVER. Instead, should be used ROTENONE, deadly to insects but harmless to humans. Tastesless and odorless, too. Instead of rotenone, PYRETHRUM may be used, which though it is poisonous when fresh - applied, loses its poisonous property when exposed to air for 3 or 4 days.



Ready-prepared dusts of rotenone and pyrethrum are on the market everywhere. The labels show what percentage the dusts contain; ¾% and 1% have been found satisfactory.

Rotenone extract for making liquid sprays is being increasingly handled but any seedsman or druggist can procure it easily. Directions are on the container.

The Mexican bean beetle is a chewing insect but it has certain peculiarities that must be allowed for. It always and only feeds on the undersides of the leaves, and the poison (calcium arsenate dust or magnesium arsenate spray, and no others) must be directed there by upturned nozzles on the equipment. It is a ravenous feeder and must be taken promptly; the sooner after the eggs hatch the better. For these reasons, the procedure must be followed as given under "April" in Circular 343, which is: Always use upturned nozzled sprayers or dusters, and apply the material as soon as any eggs are seen. THEN, to cover the whole egg-laying period, repeat in 10 days, thus surrounding every egg-cluster. If it is kept in mind that the "spiny" bean beetle larvae are on the beans because they hatched from eggs that were laid there, it is seen that if a perfect job of spraying or dusting where done in time, there should be 100% control. Experiments at Lexington have consistently shown 93%.

Money Talks

By
Frederick Stamm, Economist Director of Adult Education
UNIVERSITY OF LOUISVILLE

"Business as usual" is a thing of the past.

The Government, through its newly created agencies, is assuming functions which normally belong to management and the markets. War preparation is causing the Federal Government to reach out for broad control over essential American industries. It now appears this control will be more sweeping than during the first World War.

Evidence of direct government control was seen when Price Administrator Leon Henderson directed the steel industry to freeze its prices at present levels. This order was issued immediately after a large wage increase to the steel workers.

In another instance, Edward Stettinius Priority Controller, instructed the aluminum industry to curtail deliveries drastically to industries without armament orders. This limiting of production for some civilian industries is further illustrated by the agreement of the automobile industry to curtail 1942 model production by 25%. This will permit factories to turn over more of their plant and equipment to the production of tanks, guns, and other armament.

An additional move toward government control was made recently when Donald Nelson, as Director of Purchases, warned that the immense purchasing power of the Government will be used to influence industrial policies.

Government planning for industry is a reality. Planned control of prices is beginning in earnest. Planned control of production is becoming more and more important. Planned control for savings and investment is rapidly moving out of its formative stage into the stage of reality.

War preparation is beginning to take on a real meaning—to be not only a creator of industrial activity ,but also a regulator of industrial activity. Business now must keep this in mind in planning future programs. They must realize "business as usual" is a thing of the past.

W. S. Ward, Barren county, is terracing his entire farm, according to County Agent J. O. Horning.

This is the age of intense endeavor, of concentration. It's hard to concentrate on anything you can't see perfectly. Consult—

RIGHT—Man o' War as he looks today. The public may visit him at Faraway Farm, near Lexington, from 9 a. m. until 4 p. m. daily. BACKGROUND—Parading to the post at Keeneland race track near Lexington. BELOW—Greyhound, fastest trotter the world has ever known, sets another record at Lexington. This time the mark was set in an unusual way for Greyhound—under saddle.

(Kentucky Press Association Historical Series)

This is one of a series of articles prepared by the Kentucky Press Association which, in 1941, would tell Kentuckians of Kentucky, as Kentucky should tell the world in 1942—Sesquicentennial Year.

By Neville Dunn
Sports Editor, Lexington Herald

Last year in the United States a total of 211 running-horse stakes were decided. One hundred and twenty of them were won by thoroughbred horses bred in Kentucky.

There, in two sentences, is a report of the evidence that no state in the United States can approach Kentucky, especially central Kentucky, in the production of outstanding race horses. The best, the fleetest, the strongest and the soundest race horses come from central Kentucky. It is so proved on the race tracks every year.

The same can be said of the horses with the flowing manes and tails, and with so much style in their action—the five-gaited saddlers—and the horses with the roached manes and tails, and so much snap in their action—the three-gaited saddle horses—that are shown in the most fashionable equine expositions of the country. whether at Madison Square Garden in New York, Devon, Pa., Kansas City, Mo., the Kentucky or Ohio or Indiana State Fairs, or in central Kentucky's own brilliant July spectacle, the Junior League Horse Show.

It like wise may be said of the standardbred horses, the trotters and the pacers, which year after year dominate the harness-horse sport.

No state in the United States has a section quite like central Kentucky when it comes to producing the best running horses, the best trotting and pacing horses and the best saddle horses . . . in fact, any type of light horse, which includes also the hunting horse and the polo pony. It stands absolutely supreme in the United States, and has stood so for many a year.

Superiority Explained

Prof. E. S. Good, head of the department of animal husbandry of the University of Kentucky, explains central Kentucky's superiority as a horse-producing section in these words:

"The Bluegrass region of Kentucky is the premier breeding ground for light horses because of its ample rainfall, mild climate abundance of sunshine and a soil rich in calcium and phosphorous, so necessary to produce superior bone, muscle and nerve."

There is one other thing, very important but not so tangible, that Professor Good did not mention. This is the love that the real central Kentuckian, the native son, feels for a horse. Central Kentuckians love a good horse; and they work ceaselessly to produce good horses. When you mix favorable climate, suitable soil and geographical location with love of a horse you have central Kentucky's full formula for producing good horses.

In the Bluegrass, according to a report made not long ago to the Kentucky State Racing Commission by Tom R. Underwood, secretary, there are about 180 farms in the Bluegrass section which advertise thoroughbred stallions. These farms embrace a total of about 80,000 acres and are located in Fayette, Madison ,Scott, Woodford, Clark, Bourbon, Jessamine, Boyle and Franklin counties.

In his report, Mr. Underwood said:

"These do not include the many farms having a few mares but no thoroughbred stallions advertised and do not include the many farms having exclusively either saddle horses or trotting horses but no thoroughbred stallions.

Value 16 Million Dollars

"On these farms a survey shows that there were approximately 200 stallions and approximately 2,500 mares .Conservatively figured at $200 an acre the land in this use would have a total value of approximately $16,000,000."

If one were to try to estimate the value of the stallions on these farms—for example, Blenheim II alone cost $250,000 and Samuel D. Riddle, the owner of Man o' War once refused $1,000,000 for his great horse—the total value of the horse interests in central Kentucky would be staggering.

Many years ago it was discovered that the best race horses in America came from Kentucky. That was back in the days of old Jerome Park—the daddy of Belmont, Saratoga and the other New York tracks of today—when horsemen noticed that the thoroughbreds which had been brought east to race by their Kentucky breeders and owners invariably defeated the best that came from other states. They wanted to know why, and they began an investigation; that is, the shrewdest of them did. Then Kentucky's marvelous facilities for producing horses was brought to light. Of course, Kentuckians themselves had known for a long time prior to that—the 1865's—that they had the best horses in the land ,but now the easterners knew, too.

Origin of "Hard-Boot"

That was in the days when a Kentuckian was known as a "hard-boot." The term is still heard on the race tracks of the country, but it has been bandied and shunted around until it has lost its original meaning and some use it now in scorn.

Back in those days, shortly after the War Between the States—and even before—the Kentuckians, picturesque in hirsute adornment, picturesque in the clothes they wore, picturesque in their language and their manners, wore knee-high boots made of rawhide or some other leather. Paved streets and roads in those days were still a dream and the mud, after a rain, was terrific. Constant wading through the mud around Jerome Park and other tracks caused the oil in the boots worn by the Kentuckians to dry, and soon the boots, especially those of rawhide, became hard and brittle.

Most always the men who wore these boots knew how to drive hard bargains in their horse deals, or they sent to the races, against the eastern cracks, horses that were hard to beat. Sometimes, too, these men were experts at drinking hard liquor and some of them, for convenience sake, used their boots as a respository for their pint bottles of Kentucky corn. This combination of circumstances led the easterners to refer to such men—the Kentuckians—as "those fellows who wear the hard boots, drive the hard bargains, have horses hard to beat and drink hard liquor." Soon all Kentuckians became known as "hard-boots."

To be a hard-boot was no uncommon honor, because it meant that one so designated was a keen judge of a horse and could carry his liquor like a gentleman .

Today, sadly, most people think of a hard-boot as a man who operates a very poor racing establishment or owns only a horse or two, most often crippled and hatched up. In Kentucky, however, such people are known as "gyps," but the term isn't necessarily derogatory or reflective on the honor, integrity or horsemanship of the one so described.

Kentucky Takes Stakes

Ever since the Kentucky Derby was inaugurated in 1875, the Belmont Stakes in 1867, the Preakness in 1873 and other great stakes, horses from Kentucky have dominated them, have won them oftener than the horses from any other state or any other country. Maryland, Virginia, New Jersey, Texas, Missouri, Tennessee and California, to name the most important of the other breeding states, have tried without success to supplant the Kentucky thoroughbred when the blue chips are down. They win lots of races, the horses from those states, but Kentucky horses win more.

One of the first easterners to discover the marvelous qualities of the Bluegrass region and the miraculous effect of Elkhorn creek in the production of top race horses was Major August Belmont the First. This pillar of eastern racing came to Kentucky and founded the Nursery Stud. Later his son, Major August Belmont II carried on, and in the year that the United States entered the World War against Germany he sold all his horses so that he could serve in the army of his country. That was how Man o' War—a foal of 1917—happened to pass into the ownership of Samuel D. Riddle of Glen-Riddle, Pa.

So wonderful was Man o' War as a race horse, Mr. Riddle decided he would raise his horses nowhere else but in Kentucky, so he came to central Kentucky and purchased Faraway Farm. There Man o' War, at stud, has sired a number of the greatest money-winners of the American turf, and there, literally in droves, march lovers of the horse to visit the greatest horse of modern days—Man o' War himself.

45,000 Visitors in Year

In his racing commission report, Mr. Underwood wrote:

"One year more than 45,000 guests registered in the guest book to see Man o' War, rated with Mammoth cave as Kentucky's first tourist attraction, the same as many others have visited the other widely known horse estates to see the famous horse stars of Kentucky."

These tourists who come to the Bluegrass are almost overcome by the hospitality of the horse lovers of that community. Every estate, from the elaborate establishments of Joseph E. Widener, Warren Wright and Col. E. R. Bradley to the more humble farms of the "native sons" is open to visitors and literally thousands of them drive through these stately farms every spring, summer and fall. Probably nowhere else in the world are the private estates of native or absentee landlords open to the general public. In central Kentucky the latchstring hangs out always. Any lover of a horse is welcome.

One farm, Coldstream Stud, owned by C. B. Shaffer, trustee, and operated by Elmer Dale Shaffer, his son, said in a recent advertisement of the stallions at its place:

"The gates of Coldstream are open always to those who love a horse."

Long before Jerome Park was founded in New York, not far from the Broadway of today, Kentuckians were racing horses. A history of the old Kentucky Association track, which passed out of existence several years ago after having had racing almost continuously from 1826, says:

"It is traditional that, following the customs of their forebears, these early Kentuckians tried the mettle of their horses by racing them, though they had no roads or tracks, when scarcely out of the stockades that afforded the pioneers protection from Indians.

Racing Older Than State

"The earliest printed records of racing and the breeding of thoroughbred horses in Kentucky are found in the Kentucky Gazette (then spelled Kentucke Gazette), which made its initial appearance at Lexington, Aug. 1, 1787, nearly six years before Kentucky was admitted to statehood.

"At that time a number of thoroughbred stallions, some of them having been imported from England and others having been brought from Virginia, were standing in the vicinity of Lexington, and there was racing on the 'Commons.'

"Prior to 1787, it appears to have been the practice of horsemen at Lexington to indulge their charming pastime in Main street, but the trustees of the town ordained that they should go to to 'the Commons,' as the level stretch, now occupied by railroad tracks and known as Water street (in Lexington) then was called.

"The Commons had for its southern boundary a small stream of water, called Town Fork, and emptying in Elkhorn Creek. Town Fork now is covered with arches and streets and buildings and is a part of Lexington's sewage system.

"South of Town Fork was a sloping elevation to High street and this formed a point of vantage for spectators when there was racing on the Commons."

Those early Kentuckians learned quickly that their breed of horses, which had romped in their pastures, gently rolling, a sea of movement from the blue-tipped bluegrass that rippled in the breeze, were the best in the world.

They still are.

Modern Highways Aid Tourist Trade

Aims of the administration to develop an integral system of modern highways in Kentucky as an aid in increasing tourist travel in the State were outlined by J. Lyter Donaldson, State Commissioner of Highways, in addressing the Blue Grass Automobile Club at Lexington, recently.

Pointing out that Kentucky possesses an abundance of natural attractions and resources, Mr. Donaldson said these should make the State a mecca for tourists of the nation. He declared that although Kentucky's potential tourist trade reaches the neighborhood of $200,000,000 annually, little more than one-fourth of this figure is being spent annually in the the midst of its most comprehensive constructional program and the standard of the State is being progressively raised," the highway head stated, adding that the support of the State's program by automobile clubs and the general public will assist greatly in its eventual realization.

N. E. Riddell Announces For County Judge

In this issue of the Advertiser the announcement of Judge N. E. Riddell as a candidate for re-election as County Judge of Boone county subject to the action of the Democratic party, appears.

Judge Riddell has served officially in Boone for more than thirty-one years, devoting the best years of his life to the interest and benefit of the county of his birth, Boone.Everyone who is acquainted with the business of Boone County knows that it has been to the best interest of the citizens—not a cent of floating debts exist and the county is operated on a cash basis.

The State examining officers who make annual audits of the records of this county, have complimented the officers for the way and manner they find the business of the county transacted. The judge has been sick the past year but his physical condition has very much improved and he expects to fully recover.

Judge Riddell left Tuesday for a visit with relatives in Texas and during his absence Mr. C. L. Cropper will act in his place.

Under the management of the Fiscal Court which is composed of the Magistrates, County Judge and Road Engineer, the roads in Boone county have been and are rapidly being improved. When Judge Riddell was first elected to office, we had toll roads and many miles of dirt roas, a majority of which have been improved to such an extent that they may be used the year around.

Flower Show Is Great Success

Boone county Homemakers' first flower show was conceded to be a success by those who attended at the Burlington High school auditorium, Thursday, May 1. Records show that 79 entries were made by persons from nine communities in the county. 100 persons, besides the students in the school, saw the exhibit, which included tulips, flowering shrubs and arrangements ranging from lilacs to miniature rock garden plants.

Mrs. Jake Cleek presided at the meeting. She introduced Mr. E. C. Glass, manager of Shillito's Flower Shop, who was guest speaker. He demonstrated his art in four practical flower arrangements for the home. He used low, medium and tall containers showing tricks that aid in obtaining effects desired. Among these were: Chicken wire rolled loosely to hold a moss bouquet in medium sized bowl; florist's wire wrapping to give strength to limber stems, or pliability to stiffer ones; a rose bud forced open by turning petals to effect a camelia; a tulip turned back to resemble open poppy. Mr. Glass stressed the importance of following a mental picture in order to obtain the desired result in an arrangement. Stems should be cut on angle with a sharp knife. Flowers are kept fresh by changing water often. In choosing flowers for others—choose the kind they like, he stated. The flower arrangements were auctioned off by Mrs. Cleek and the money was used to defray the expenses of the show.

Mr. Glass and Mrs. J. C. Layne, Florence, judged the flower show. Many tulips from bulbs bought through Homemakers' clubs last fall, were shown as well as other varieties purchased elsewhere. The judges exclaimed over the quality of many specimen in the show. Winners of the classes are listed below: Mrs. George Morith, was accorded the grand champion ribbon on a beautiful white darwin tulip, the variety name was not listed. A set of three "stick-on" frogs were presented to her with the compliments of J. Charles McCullough's Seed Company in Cincinnati. When Mrs. Morith was asked how she came to grow such a fine tulip, she said, "I start with a good bulb, feed it on bonemeal, and put naptha flakes in the hole to protect it from insects and rodents. I have never lost one of my tulips."

Plans for the flower show were made by the Homemakers county committee on exterior beautification, Mrs. Garnet Tolin, Burlington, chairman, Mrs. John L. Vest, Walton; Mrs. Jake Cleek, New Haven; and Mrs. Anna Engle. N. R. Elliott, landscape architect from the University of Kentucky, gave the committee many suggestions on flower shows. Those who served as local committee on arrangements were: Mrs. Grover Jarrell, Mrs. H. R. Forkner and Mrs. Vernon Pope. Registration committee was: Mrs. A. D. Yelton, Mrs. Nelle Garrison, Mrs. Eddie Smith, Mrs. Herbert Snyder. Suggestions were made by Miss Mary Hood Gillaspie, home demonstraagent, and Mrs. Mary Scott Moore, substitute home demonstration agent. Others, who contributed to arrangements for the flower show were: Prof. Walton and the school management, Miss Amanda Holliday, who made posters, Mrs. M. A. Yelton, who secured the speaker and local newspapers, who contributed the publicity.

TESTING TWO HYBRID VARIETIES

Edward Rogers and Will B. Rogers, both well known farmers of the Belleview section, are testing two hybrid corn varieties with their best pen pollinated variety. U. S. 13 and Ky. 103 are the hybrids being used. These two hybrids have proven very satisfactory for general planting throughout the county, but no definite check plots for comparisons have been planted in this section. These two men are rendering a service to local farmers and it is haped that all interested persons will observe the results on these plots. Seed for these plots was supplied by the Boone County Hybrid Seed Corn Growers Association.

Meditation—

Napoleon was once asked what France needed most. He replied, "Great mothers." He was right, for first and most lasting impressions are usually gotten from mother. "The hands that rock the cradle rule the world." For weal or for woe, a mother's influence is truly great. Byron's mother was ill-tempered and violent; Nero's mother was a murderess; while Sir Walter Scott's was a lover of poetry, and those of Wesley, Augustine, and Chrysostom were remarkable for intelligence and goodness.

Who taught my infant lips to pray,
To love God's holy Word and day,
And walk in wisdom's pleasant way?
My mother!
THANK GOD today for mother.

Charles W. Riley Seeks Re-election

Chas. W. Riley announces his candidacy for re-election to the office of County Attorney in this issue of the Advertiser, subject to the action of the Democratic primary Saturday, August 2, 1941.

Mr. Riley wishes to thank the people of Boone County for their support and co-operation during the last four years. He feels that on account of this experience as County Attorney he will be better able to serve in that capacity in the future than during the past and respectfully solicits your support.

LAST CALL FOR AGRICULTURAL LIMESTONE

May 15th has been set as the final date for farmers to file applications for securing grant of aid advances of limestone and phosphate under the 1941 Agricultural Conservation Program, according to H. R. Forkner, county agent.

This week's paper offers the last opportunity to notify farmers interested in securing these important soil fertilizers. Agricultural limestone is of special importance in that the farmer may secure the agricultural limestone already crushed and delivered to the farm or may have the stone crushed on the farm.

Agricultural limestone under the A. C. Program, represents probably the best investment in soil improvement a farmer can make. While applications for limestone as grant of aid must be filed by the 15th, the lime may be spread any time up through June 30th with credit, under this year's program.

MRS. KOTTMYER GUEST OF FLORENCE HOMEMAKERS

Florence Homemakers held their regular monthly meeting at the Town Hall, with 19 present. Our honor guest of the day was Mrs. George Kottmyer, our county president, who gave an interesting talk on the mark of the Homemakers' Clubs.

Mrs. Mary Moore, our assistant H. D. A., discussed the various projects that we might study next year, our club decided on "Meal Planning."

Mrs. Verda Martin, "Live at Home" chairman, gave a report on the cheese and butter classes recently held. She also gave suggestions for gardening.

Mrs. Gladys Fullerton gave a talk on defense, and suggested gifts for the soldiers.

Mrs. Roy Lutes was appointed Reading chairman, and gave everyone a copy of the "Aims For Reading For Homemakers," as compiled by the district reading chairman.

Mrs. Henry Barnett was appointed to succeed Mrs. Orville Ossman, who resigned as Program chairman.

Selective Service Speakers On Air

"The State of Our National Health as Revealed by Selective Service," will be the subject of three speakers, Prof. Louis Worth, Dr. Arthur C. Bachmeyer, both of University of Chicago and Col. Leonard C. Rowntree, Director of the Medical Division of National Headquarters in radio talks Sunday, May 11, 12:30 to 1:00 p. m. C. S. T., over Station WLW.

This program should prove helpful, not only to those interested in the Selective Service System, but to every citizen.

Washington Snapshots

by JAMES PRESTON

As Congressmen prepare to vote billions in new taxes for defense, many of them are sending a fervent if unspoken prayer to the folks back home. Their constituents, if they will do it, can help them out of a tight spot.

The legislators have been translating the tax proposals into terms which fit the pocketbooks of their constituents. Their only hope to keep the tax burden from rising entirely out of sight is that they can cut down on some of the wasteful non-defense expenditures.

Even Secretary Morgenthau suggested a billion dollar cut in non-defense expenditures. But the men on Capitol Hill are between the devil and the deep. The minute they begin to talk about cutting the expenses of a government bureau with peacetime functions, the bureaucrats in that agency buzz around them like flies around a jam pot.

On the other hand, the constituents apparently are willing for taxes to be increased to the extent necessary to arm America. But the legislators know that the heavier taxes will fall due next March, in an election year, and they are afraid that the dose will be too heavy for some voters.

What the legislators actually want is support from their constituents for a reduction in non-defense expenditures. For the first time in many months, the Congressmen are actually hoping for a letter and postcard demand from back home—that non-defense spending be slashed.

If they don't get support from home, then the Washington bureaucrats will triumph and the people simply will have to keep on paying taxes for defense plus taxes for wasteful spending.

One thing that stimulated the fervor behind this telepathic plea for constituent support is that some figures have been passed around on Capitol Hill translating tax and defense billions into terms that anybody can understand.

Figures, the solons realize, may be boring to a lot of people—but they think they aren't so boring when they are expressed in a size that fits the average man's pocketbook.

For instance, before the defense emergency arrived, the government in 1939 collected an average of $43.21 in taxes for every man, woman and child in the nation. In the same year, the government spent $70.65 for each man, woman and child.

Next year, in 1942 however, the Treasury wants to collect $92—instead of $43.21—for each man, woman and child. But even that won't pay the defense load.

For defense alone, expenditures this year will average $110 per person. Next year, they will amount to $183 per person. So that despite the fact that taxes will be more than doubled, defense expenditures alone will be only about half paid.

Consequently, if the non-defense expenditures aren't reduced, then the solons will find themselves doubling the taxes and more than doubling the deficit. That, some of them think, isn't a very sound thing to do.

Those figures are sound, but some others that are being bruited around are a lot less applicable. Sidney Hillman is the author of some of them. He says, for instance, that in 1940, four days of labor were lost by accidents to each one lost by strikes.

That much of the truth sounds fine. But there are other things too. First, 1940 was a low-strike year. Most of the trouble started after 1941 began.

Even more important is the thing that anyone can understand: When one man in a branch of a factory is hurt, that whole branch doesn't shut down. A substitute takes his place, or his co-workers double up, or something else is done. Production goes on.

Yet when a strike shuts down that branch entirely, it may and frequently does keep a whole factory from turning out airplanes or bombsights or other defense goods.

Money Talks

By Frederick Stamm, Economist Director of Adult Education
UNIVERSITY OF LOUISVILLE

The threat of an inflationary price rise is one of our biggest domestic worries. Many of our foremost economists, both in government services and in private enterprises, realize that inflation is not out of the question. In fact, some believe it is almost a certainty.

Just what are the reasons for believing we may have inflation? First, we have the vast outpouring of purchasing power due to defense spending and the inability of industry to satisfy both armament demands and all the demands of civilian consumers. Consequently, we have the government and its citizens bidding against each other for the products of industry. In the past this has always caused increases in price.

Second, wage costs are rising and making it more difficult for the manufacturer to produce at present prices. Even though the government frowns upon price increases it recognizes that as costs go up prices must eventually go up.

In the last world war the big commodity price increase did not begin until 1916. But from 1917 on, we had a tremendous increase in prices which did not stop until after the war was over. And we had price controls in the last war.

In this war, the action of prices is not far different from the first world war. Up to six or seven months ago prices were rising slowly but recently markups have become rather general and more severe.

The biggest offset to inflation is drastic government control of prices, higher taxes and the sale of defense bonds. Higher taxes and the sale of defense bonds draw off purchasing power and decrease the demand for consumer goods. The government is determined to prevent inflation. We may ask "Will these controls be effective?" The answer is: "It is anybody's guess."

FARMERS IMPORTANT IN NATIONAL DEFENSE

The farmer, in the present emergency as in the past, is playing, and will play, a most important part in National Defense, according to H. R. Forkner, County agent. The Department of Agriculture is working out a definite program for the farmer in the present emergency.

The present program calls for increased production in poultry, dairy, pork and vegetables. A price support program of these commodities is to last through June 30th, 1943. Average minimum support prices will vary during the season but will work out to the established averages set.

Green county farmers have set 100,000 black locust seedlings on 80 acres of eroded land.

Six Barren county farmers are building a total of 11,250 feet of terrace.

RUNNING A STAND

When I was a boy and went through the usual gamut of wishing to be something when I grew up, I had a long devotion to the ideal of being the man who ran a stand and sold refreshments at a picnic or political gathering or a Confederate reunion. The thing that made me so fascinated with this particualr occupation was this: Our neaerst neighbor owned the land on which there was the spring that was one of the meeting places at Fidelity. On occasions such as those I have mentioned he ran his stands and made me wish to grow up just as soon as possible, so I could help him and thus learn my future business. It was ages before he realized what a good clerk I would make for him; by and by he employed me, and I felt as big as the boys who fed the elephants at the circus or the man who carried a corner at a barn-raising or the equally great man who cut bands at a wheat threshing. It took several events like this to dull my desire to follow the profession of ministering to the needs of a thirsty, hungry crowd. Though I would gladly have worked for nothing, I was actually paid, and, in addition, I was allowed considerable freedom in eating, enough to have indigestion for days afterwards.

Though there were set times to dispense soft drinks and ice cream and cake, just any gathering was a sufficient excuse. The crowd expected it, and they were rarely disappointed. Of course, the biggest days of all were the Fourth of July and the Confederate Reunion day, both of which came in hot weather, when iced drinks and foods were much in demand. On the latter day, though, my services were of another sort, for I had become expert in saying pieces at school and was nearly always drafted to speak to the aging veterans and try to stir in them some memories of their heroic lives. With the aid of a little incidental music by our postmaster-actor-druggist and his fiddle I usually succeeded in bringing plenty of cheers.

So far as I know, nobody has ever published a list of what people actually consumed on such occasions. Fortunately, my diary for July 4, 1905, gives explicit figures, so that he that runs may read. About 500 people, it seems, had gathered at the spring for the day, to celebrate by having a day off, to eat ice cream and drink soda pop, and to hear the candidates for the legisalture speak. There was a big dinner on the grounds, largely of a private nature, as the tablecloths were not spread together but individually. There was a "refreshment stand and also an ice cream parlor," which "did a very good business." The sales were "240 bottles of soda pop, about two tubs of lemonade, a great lot of candy, wax, cigars, etc. The ice cream trade was rather slim, but they sold four or five gallons." For Fidelity on a spree that was something. You must recall that the bottles of pop were those huge things that were difficult to open without getting the bubbling stuff all over your Sunday shirt. "Wax," my dear children, was and is the correct name for "chewing gum." "Gum" meant "sweetgum," a sticky substance left after the sap of that tree dries. Not to have chewed it and got it all over one's teeth argued that you had not been about.

The eats being consumed and the figures properly recorded, I added, very naively: "After the speaking the crowd wandered first this way and that, staying until rather late in the afternoon. Everyone seemed to have a most delightful time. Courting couples were plentiful." (Of course, or what would have been the use of having a holiday or ice cream and soda pop?) "We had only one little difficulty, and that was settled in a short while." (Even the Eden of Fourth of July near Fidelity had its serpnt; otherwise life might have seemed too good for this world.)

Food For National Defense

All patriotic Americans are eager to do something to strengthen themselves and put their country in a strong enough position to defend itself successfully. They want to make America and Americans so strong that no enemy will hazard an attack upon us, directly or indirectly.

Individuals and groups are anxious to know what they can do to help. For farm families a program of action is presented in the following statement.

The United States Department of Agriculture is asking that more food be produced for defense, first for defense on the home front by making it possible for our own people to be well fed and, second, for defense abroad by producing food to send to the countries which are actively engaged in the struggle to preserve the democratic way of living.

To help reach the first objective, farm people must grow larger gardens ,with a greater variety of vegetables and with ample surpluses to can and store for winter use. They must increase the production of dairy and poultry products, of pork, beef and lamb for the home meat supply. Added to this may be home produced orchard crops and small fruits, home cereals and sorghum.

To reach the second objective, it is urged that farm people produce beyond their own needs foods particularly needed for defense purposes abroad. It is further urged that this increased production be within the limits of the facilities available on the farm, that it be done without investment of capital for additional stock, housing or feed and that in no instance the family be sold short to the detriment of its own health for cash income. The health of its people is the nation's first line of defense. The production of foods for defense abroad is secondary to and supplementary to the production of food for home consumption.

The foods needed for defense abroad are pork, poultry and dairy products.

In the Government's call for more pork, dairy and poultry products, it is announced that prices will be supported by Government buying over the period ending June 30, 1943. These supported prices will be on a Chicago basis as follows: Hogs, $9 a cwt.; dairy products, based on 31 cents a pound for butter; eggs, 22 cents a dozen; chickens, 15 cents a pound.

Under plans for this program of increased food production, farmers are urged to: (a) increase pork production by feeding hogs to heavier weights and by breeding a larger number of sows and gilts for fall farrowing; (b) increase dairy production by better feeding of sows and milking more cows; (c) encourage additional production of poultry by increasing the size of flocks.

The Department of Agriculture asks that hogs be held on feed until they weigh more than the customary marketing weight. This means more pork. All suitable sows and gilts should be bred for fall farrowing, where facilities and feeds are to be had for raising hogs in the fall and winter. Such sows and gilts should be removed from fattening pens now.

Farmers are asked to feed more grain to dairy cows where such feeding will bring increased milk production. Desirable heifers Desirable heifers should be retained in the herd and bred for milk production.

Increased chick production is urged this spring. Hatcheries are said to be in a position to furnish the chicks. More chicks should be hatched either in incubators or under hens on farms. It is possible greatly to increase the number of chickens raised this year without additional equipment or housing.

Hens should be better fed and should be given better care generally in order to maintain their laying. Culling should be less severe this season, and all hens and pullets with fair laying capacity should be retained. Every effort to keep the chicks healthy and thriving is in order, that the pullets may come into laying early and continue through the fall and winter.

Preserving eggs in waterglass or by other methods, for home use should be considered on many farms. Eggs thus preserved can be used next fall and winter when eggs are scarce and prices are high .

(Crowded Out Last Week)

Mrs. Cloyd Johnson is ill at her home on Big Bone road.

Mr. and Mrs. Robin Struve and son of Walton called on Mr. and Mrs. David Houston, Friday evening.

Mrs. Stone of Louisville spent several days, recently, with her daughter, Mrs. Boyd Jones and Mr. Jones.

Walter Pennington and family were called to Walton last week, when his mother, Mrs. Polly Pennington, suffered a heart attack. She is some better at this writing.

Rev. R. A. Johnson will conduct regular services at the Baptist church here, Sunday, May 4, at 2:30 p. m. All are invited.

New Haven Homemakers Hold Regular Meeting Friday

The New Haven Homemakers' club met at the Beagle club house, Friday, for their regular meeting.

Mrs. Jake Cleek was appointed Reading chairman. In the absence of Mrs. Cloyd Johnson, who was absent because of illness, Mrs. Sam Sleet gave the lesson on crocheting rugs. Mrs. Cleek gave an interesting lesson on exterior beautification.

At noon, all went to Beacon Lite Restaurant, where Mr. and Mrs. Jones had prepared a delicious luncheon, which was enjoyed by all.

The following ladies were present and enjoyed the day together: Mrs. Raymond Snow. Mrs. Sam Sleet, Mrs. John Conley, Mrs. J. M. Jack, Mrs. Walter Pennington, Mrs. Orpha Miller, Mrs. Mary Scott Moore, Mrs. S. B. Godbey, Mrs. Jesse Callen, Mrs. Will Abdon, Mrs. Jake Cleek, and Mrs. Mamie Moore.

Of deep regret to the people of this community, was the sudden passing, on Wed., April 23, of Robert Lee Hoffman, at his home near Atwood.

He was born and reared at this place, having spent all but the last two years here. He was a good neighbor, kind friend, a loving father, a model husband and a christian gentleman.

He leaves to miss him on many tomorrows, a daughter, Mrs. Mabel Gatewood; a son, Eugene Hoffman; his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Hoffman; six grandchildren, two great grandchildren; three brothers, one sister, and countless other relatives and friends.

-that man IN OUR NEIGHBORHOOD!

I DARED NOT LEAVE THE HOUSE

I had just put the children to bed and turned out the lights, when the youngest started to cough. With confidence, I went to the medicine cabinet — the bottle was empty!

I knew from experience the child would grow worse through the night unless relieved, but my husband was away — I could not leave the house.

In this predicament, I thought of "that man", (our neighborhood druggist) and phoned immediately — then in what seemed but a few moments, I heard welcome footsteps — the filled prescription had arrived.

Yes, our neighborhood druggist fills prescriptions with infinite care and also carries a fine line of cosmetics and proprietary products. For women, he usually recommends Vatona Tablets to aid in the relief of those trying discomforts of the menstrual period — this may be just what you need — at least get in touch with your druggist. Improved Uniform International SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D. Dean of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

S. S. Lesson for May 11

Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education; used by permission

THE RESPONSIBILITY OF THE HOME REGARDING BEVERAGE ALCOHOL

LESSON TEXT—Deuteronomy 6:4-7; Jeremiah 35:5-10.
GOLDEN TEXT—Train up a child in the way he should go: and when he is old, he will not depart from it.—Proverbs 22:6.

The responsibility of the home regarding liquor is primarily that of providing a place for children to grow up under proper principles and practice. That means that the home should be a Christian home, where both parents follow Christ in life as well as profession. Young people about to establish a new home should give themselves without reservation to Christ. Those who began their home as a Christian home, but who have drifted through careiessness or unbelief, should renew their devotion to Christ. America needs many things, but first and foremost it stands its need of real Christian homes.

I. Preparing to Meet Temptation (Deut. 6:4-7).

Temptations will come, and when they do it will be too iate to prepare a defense against them. We are all "defense conscious" these days. We have seen in the sad events of the last year that there must be adequate preparation in advance if we are to withstand the enemy. That is doubly true in the realm of the moral and spiritual. We must build morai fiber and appreciation of spiritual things into the lives of our boys and giris from their infancy. How?

1. By a Consistent Example (vv. 5-6). Only the father (or mother) who loves the Lord with all his being and who has permitted God's Word to enter into his heart will set the right example. It is weii to know something about child psychology, about the principles of rearing children, etc., but these, without a right relationship to God, are cold and powerless. But let the parents waik before their children in earnest christian living, let them honor God's Word in their lives and in the home, and they will iay the finest foundation for Christian character in their children.

2. By Correct Teaching (v. 7). The parent should make the teaching of God's Word to children a matter of first importance. It is to be expected that the children will be in church and Sunday school with their parents (notice the word "with"—it's not enough to send them), but that is not sufficient. Biessed and fruitful is that home life in which the Word of God is a normal and easy topic of conversation, where spiritual things are discussed intelligently and without restraint. Every home can be that kind of a home, if the parents will do what they know they should do about it.

II. Standing in the Hour of Temptation (Jer. 35:5-10).

As a protest against the heathendom, the intemperance, and corruption of the city life of his day, Jonadab instructed his house or tribe to live an itinerant life and, above all, not to touch wine.

We are not called to imitate in detail their way of living, but rather to iearn from them the principles of consistent temperance.

1. Remembrance (vv. 6, 7). Jeremiah was sent to test the Rechabites (not to tempt them to fall) by offering them wine, but to them it was a real temptation. They met it promptly and without fear, because they had in their hearts and minds the teaching of their "father" Jonadab.

Blessed is the boy or girl who in the lone and trying hour of temptation is not confused by the negative or unchristian example of parents, but who at once has a vision of a God-fearing father and mother, and a remembrance of their faithful teaching of God's standards of life.

2. Obedience (vv. 8-10). Here again is a lesson which must be learned from the tender years of babyhood, but which bears glorious fruit in the days of young manhood and womanhood. The parent who does not tactfully, kindly, but withal, firmly, teach children to obey has undermined their life in advance.

The Rechabites loyally obeyed the word of their founder, and passed their hour of testing with flying colors. They had his example, they knew his teaching, and life itself had proved to them that they were in the right way.

A closing word. The liquor interests are concerned because the consumption of beer is rapidly falling off and because most of their customers are "elderly or middle-aged." They are spending tremendous sums in advertising to "get the beer drinking habit instilled in thousands, aimost millions, of young men who do not at present know the taste of beer."

That is their avowed aim. Shall they be permitted to put it across? Not if Christian people will put the influence of the American home squarely where it ought to be—against the liquor traffic.

Rum Undermines A Democracy

A powerful and tireless voice which always fought for the people's best interests was stilled in April, 1941, with the death of Sen. Morris Sheppard.

He was recognized as one of those rare leaders whose every action sprang from a base of personal conviction and Christian belief.

After 39 years in Congress, he knew the weaknesses and the strengths of the American democracy. As chairman of the important senate committee on military affairs, Senator Sheppard knew all about the threats to democracy from fascism and totalitarianism. Seriously ill for several months, he remained on the job and gave his energy without stint to promoting the national defense program.

Sen. Sheppard

Against this background, his address to the Senate on Jan. 16 of 1940 should have been a clarion call to the nation. Speaking—as was his annual custom on the anniversary of the effective date of the Eighteenth Amendment—he said:

"Not only are the material and moral values of the nation imperiled by a promoted liquor interest, but the very machinery of democracy for the expression of the will of the people is too often dominated by those whose power is derived from a commercialized traffic in intoxicating liquor."

Again, he said:

"No one, wet or dry, will argue that either the physical or mental well-being of men is increased by indulgence in intoxicants. And yet the strength, endurance, intelligence and alertness of our forces on land and sea are even more important than the ships they sail, the airplanes they fly, or the guns they fire."

The last phrase of his January, 1941, speech was:

"I condemn it (liquor) because an alcohol drinking democracy cannot develop the maximum strength for national defense."

One of his last legislative efforts was introduction of a bill—strongly supported by the churches, National W.C.T.U., and others—which would forbid the sale of beer in training camps and set up zones about the camps in which liquor and vice would be forbidden.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Fisk of Morning View visited Mr. and Mrs. John Points on Tuesday.

The R. A. boys of the Baptist church were delightfully entertained at the home of James Ned Mason on Monday evening. A twilight ball game and weiner roast were enjoyed by all. Mr. Harold Weaver is their new leader and a very popular one we must say.

Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Jones had as their Sunday guests, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Shields of Big Bone.

Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Bristow entertained their daughter, Mrs. Harold Weaver and son Norman last Monday evening.

Several of our local members attended the group meeting of W. M. S. at Crescent Springs on Thursday. More than 200 were present and plans were made to meet at the Union Baptist church next time.

Mrs. Elmer Noe and son Jimmie were visiting friends in Walton, Friday.

We are glad to report that Mrs. Tom Robert Huey is improving nicely at her home. Her many friends will be happy to see her out again soon.

Tickets are on sale now, and much interest is being shown in the Mock Trial to be staged by our local Boy Scouts, troop No. 128, at 7:30 C .S. T., on May 2, at New Haven school auditorium. We understand they have engaged a popular lawyer of Covington to fill the "Judge's" seat, so we feel sure you will enjoy every minute of this program. A movie, of interest to all, will be shown as an added attraction, so come out and cheer these fine young boys on in their good works.

Mrs. Bud Aylor (nee Emma Jane Black) is still confined to her room, but her many friends are wishing for her a speedy recovery.

Mrs. Harold Weaver had as her week end guests, old friends of Washington, D. C.

On Tuesday evening, May 6th, the New Haven P.-T. A. will meet at the school for the purpose of installing our new officers for the coming year, as well as to make final plans for our annual free clinic, which will be held on Thursday, May 8th, in the school gym. All members and friends are urged to be present for the meeting on Tuesday evening.

Several little classmates were visiting Crystal Masters on Saturday.

Mrs. Clinton Jones and daughters were shopping in Covington on Friday.

Russell Doane has returned home after a two weeks' visit with his sister, in Kenton county.

HAMILTON 4-H CLUB

The meeting was opened by the Secretary calling the roll. After the roll was called the club stood and gave the pledge of allegiance.

The members gave reports on the work they were doing. Ella Ruth Black, our vice-president, had made up a citizenship program in which several of the group took part.

After the program was over, Mr. Drake talked to the club about their projects. Mrs. Moore told us of different events that were going to take place this summer.

MORGANSVILLE

"As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he." It takes more than the uniform to make a soldier.

"Do we live so close to the Lord
each day,
Passing to and fro on life's busy way
That the world in us can a likeness see
To the Man of Calvary?"

The love of Christ is given to us that we may radiate it. It is not to be locked in our inmost heart, but as a spring of water to give to thirsty souls, which is kept a continual flow by passing it on.

One of the most beautiful traits is patience, but is not always worn by those who walk on life's sunny side in silver slippers. It is a product of days of adversity. "The trial of your faith worketh patience."

On observance of Mother's Day, Sunday, May 11th, let each of us pay homage to those who went down into the valley of the shadow to give us life, with loving remembrances. Wear a white blossom in honor of those who have passed on, and a red rose in honor of those who remain. Motherhood is, indeed, a synonym for constancy.

Of interest to a wide circle is the announcement of the recent marriage of Miss Marjorie Pickett and Ralph Jones and warmest felicitations are extended. The bride is an attractive young lady, formerly of this place, now residing at Florence. May their future ever be bright and cloudless.

The many friends of Wayne Stephens will be delighted to know that he is making satisfactory progress toward recovery in St. Elizabeth hospital, having undergone an appendicitis operation, but through it all has born his sufferings with characteristic cheerfulness.

Kenton county lost a highly esteemed resident, in the recent passing of Mr. Robert L. Hoffman of near Atwood. In apparently good health was he summoned, and we should therefore heed the admonition to be always ready for "in such an hour as ye think not the Son of Man cometh." He was noted for his kindly spirit and was at all time affable,. His congeniality during his pilgrimage had won for him a host of friends. He has only vacated the mortal home that his spirit occupied for 74 years, and is awaiting his loved ones in that land where ties remain unbroken, where there is happiness unmixed with sorrow, loss or disappointment. Besides his wife he is survived by his son Eugene Hoffman, his daughter, Mrs. Mabel Gatewood of Covington, several grandchildren and great grandchildren, one sister, three brothers and other loved ones to whom deepest sympathy is extended. Following last rites at the Hickory Grove church interment took place in the Independence cemetery.

"They are not dead who live in hearts they leave behind,
In those whom they have blest,
They live a life again."

That Nagging Backache
May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action

Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.

You may suffer nagging backache headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling—feel constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

POULTRY TOUR THURS., MAY 22ND

Boone and Kenton county Poultrymen will hold a combined poultry market tour on Thursday, May 22, according to H. R. Forkner, county agent. The tour will start from the new Post Office building on Scott Street in Covington, at 9:00 a. m., Central Time.

The poultry and markets departments of the College of Agriculture are assisting in plans for this tour. Leading poultry commission and storage houses and the market exchange will be visited. The purpose of the tour will be to study marketing problems after the poultry and eggs leave the farm, with the idea of securing information that will enable the producer to prepare a more desirabel and more profitable product.

Everyone interested in poultry and egg production is invited to attend. A good turnout of poultry producers took part in last year's tour. All reported the day spent profitably.

MANN-HAMILTON NUPTIALS SATURDAY

Mr. Guy Mann, son of Eli Mann of Flingsville, and the late Mrs. Mann, and Miss Loretta Hamilton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Hamilton of near Flingsville, were married Saturday afternoon at the home of the officiating minister, Rev. R. F. DeMoisey.

After a short honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. Mann will be at home to their many friends at Mr. Mann's home on his farm near Flingsville.

Rev. DeMoisey has performed the marriage ceremony for four of the Hamilton girls, having previously "tied the knot" for three of the bride's sisters.

SHOE SALE NOW IN PROGRESS

The Quality Sample Shoe Shop, 627 Madison Ave., Covington, continues its sale of nationally known brands of ladies', girls', boys' and men's shoes.

In view of the fact that the prices of footwear are rapidly advancing, the entire stock of dark shoes are being sold at extremely low prices. A large shipment of summer shoes is now coming in. NOW is the time to select your dark shoes, brown, blue and mixtures, as well as black. A look will convince you of their quality.

Seeing is the most valuable of all the senses. If we fail to see or form a distorted conception of the facts as actually exist, we make mistakes and must taste failure and disappointment. Come in for a visual checkup.

Annual Operetta at Verona School Fri.

On Friday evening, May 16th, at 8:00 o'clock, the children of the Verona Grade school, will present an operetta, "Aunt Drusilla's Garden."

The operetta has a very good plot, concerning an orphan girl, Nelda, who is one of a large family living in poverty in a city tenement. She is taken into the home of her maiden aunts for charity's sake, but finds it very lonely in the village. Her Aunt Drusilla has antagonized the boys of the neighborhood by her aloofness and temper and Nelda is seldom allowed to go outside the garden.

The boys get on the good side of Aunt Drusilla by putting out a fire in her kitchen while she is away from home, and everything turns out happily for Nelda.

Come and see the pretty choruses of daisies, pansies, fishing boys, fire brigade and dreamland girls. You will want to know Pat, the Irishman, Aunt Drusilla, and her deaf sister, Nelda and her childhood friends, Bob, Tad and Tiny Little.

Your presence will be greatly appreciated and we are sure you will have a full evening of laughter and fun.

Admission—10 and 20 cents.

Tom Carr Announces For Magistrate

In this issue of the Advertiser will be found the formal announcement of Tom Carr of Verona, as a Democratic candidate for Magistrate from the 3rd Magisterial District of Boone county, subject to the action of the Primary election, Saturday, August 2, 1941.

Mr. Carr was born and reared in Boone County and has always been a Democrat. He is a farmer and if elected will try and do all in his power to see that the affairs of the county are conducted in a business like manner and that all sections will get a square deal in the expending of road funds. He will try and see each voter in the district before the election and solicits the support of every voter in the district.

NEWLYWEDS ARE SHOWERED

COUNTY HIGH SCHOOL GRADUATES INVITED TO U. C.

Boone County High school seniors have been invited to attend the High School Night program, to be sponsored May 23 on the University of Cincinnati campus by the Evening College.

The program is to open at 8:30 p. m. in McMicken Hall. A dance will follow in the Great Hall of the Student Union Building. Many seniors in Northern Kentucky High schools are forming parties to attend in a group.

Tickets for the affair are to be sent to Boone county school principals for distribution, Dean Norman Auburn has announced. Each ticket will admit one senior and his or her guest.

Maintenance Appeal For Booth Hospital

Reverend Tally of Walton, Ky., has been asked by officials of the Wm. Booth Memorial Hospital, to act as chairman of the local group in connection with the Annual Maintenance Appeal for the Institution.

Campaign dates are from May 12th to 23rd and the quota is $28,000.00. Over six hundred persons assist in the campaign each year, and it is hoped that a team of at lease ten local workers will assist the local chairman.

Henderson G. Hightower, chairman of the Wm. Booth Memorial Hospital Advisory Board, stressed the fact that in 1940, 41% (or 10,870) free days' care were given by the Institution, while another 32% (or 8,513) days were partpay. Only 27% of the hospital patients paid their bills in full.

It is interesting to note that 1,434 operations were performed at Booth Hospital last year. In addition to this, 2,067 emergency treatments were given. Laboratory examinations totaled 12,473, while 1,960 X-Ray treatments were given. The hospital facilities are available to all citizens of Northern Kentucky.

G. A. Slayback Passes Suddenly

George A. Slayback, aged 70, passed away unexpectedly at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. McCabe, near Beaver, early Saturday morning. A heart attack was given as the immediate cause of death. Mr. Slayback had suffered an attack of flu the past winter, which left him with a heart ailment.

The deceased had made his home with Mr. and Mrs. McCabe since the passing of his wife, six years ago.

The body was taken to Chambers & Grubbs funeral home for preparation, and laid in state there until Monday afternoon, when it was taken to Hughes Chapel, from where funeral services were conducted at 2:00 o'clock, Rev. J. Russell Cross officiating. Interment was in Hughes Chapel cemetery. A large number of friends and relatives gathered for the last rites and displayed the love and esteem in which he was held.

Mr. Slayback leaves to mourn his passing, one grandson, George Slayback; one great gradnson, and several nieces and nephews; and one sister. One niece, Miss Emma Slayback, is deputy clerk of Kenton county.

Chambers & Grubbs were in charge of arangements.

SENIOR B. Y. P. U. FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

"Home is Transformed by the Love of Christ," is the topic of the Christian Service Program for Sunday evening, May 18th, in the Baptist Young People's Union.

Group captain in charge, Harold Soden.

Meditation—

From the physical heart springs life or death, if the blood be pure or diseased; so spiritually, as the heart is, so is the life. The source must be guarded, kept pure that the life may not be poisoned. In the sight of God the heart is the main spring of life. God looketh on the heart (I Samuel 16:7).

"Blessed are the pure in heart; for they shall see God."

Alvin Kidwell In State Senate Race

In this issue of the Advertiser will be found the formal announcement of Alvin Kidweil, Sparta, as a Democratic candidate for State Senator from the 26th District of Kentucky, subject to the action of the primary election, to be held on Saturday, Aug. 2, 1941. The 26th District is composed of Boone, Gallatin, Grant, Owen and Pendleton counties.

Mr. Kidwell, a resident of Sparta (Gallatin county) for the past 12 years, is a nurseryman by profession, member of the Methodist church, the American Legion and the Democratic party.

If elected to the State Senate, Mr. Kidwell states that he will support the Democratic platform at all times, and will vote on all matters to the best interests of the people of this district.

Your support is most earnestly solicited by Mr. Kidwell.

WALTONIAN 4-H CLUB NEWS

The Waltonian 4-H Club held its third meeting on April 14, with 25 members present and three absent.

Mr. Drake, the assistant county agent, Mrs. Moore, substitute home demonstration agent, Mrs. Walter W. King, the community leader, and Mrs. Marie Kendall, the foods leader, were present.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mildred King.

The minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary and approved by the president, after a correction was made concerning the presence of Mrs. Marie Kendall at the last meeting, a fact which was overlooked when the minutes were written.

A program on Citizenship was given by members of the club with Jean C. Pennington, the vice-president, directing the program.

Rose Marie Johnson, foods captain, announced that the Foods Class had held one meeting.

Edward McIntyre, garden captain, asked that the gardens be plowed by Friday, April 20th.

J. B. McCubbin, poultry captain, announced that the clothing class had heid one meeting. Mrs. King asked that the girls have their material by April 26th.

The members and leaders saluted the American flag and repeated the 4-H pledge.

The meeting ciosed and the members adjourned.

Literary Club Is Entertained Wed.

The Walton Woman's Literary Club held their monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. R. G. Moore, of the Walton-Nicholson road, last Wednesday afternoon. The topic of the program was "Cuba, the Pearl of the Antilles."

Mrs. Alan Gaines, president, conducted the business meeting.

Mrs. C. Scott Chambers, program leader, gave a very interesting talk on, "Points of Interest in Cuba." "Porto Rico" was ably described by Mrs. John Myers, of Verona.

Those attending this meeting, were: Mrs. C. Scott Chambers, Mrs. Alan H. Gaines, Mrs. Clayton Jones, Mrs. C. W. Ransler, Mrs. John C. Bedinger, Mrs. Sam B. Sleet, Mrs. C. F. Blankenbecker, Mrs. A. M. Edwards, jr., Mrs. B. W. Franks, Mrs. E. E. Fry, Mrs. Lula Huey, Mrs. J. E. McCabe, Mrs. John Myers, Mrs. W. O. Rouse, Mrs. W. W. Rouse, Mrs. J. L. Hamilton, Mrs. D. Hess Vest, Mrs. John L. Vest, Mrs. Howard Stephenson, Miss Emma Jane Miller, Miss Helen Ruth Gardiner. Miss Virginia Moore assisted her mother, Mrs. G. H. Moore in serving delicious refreshments.

HOMEMAKERS ENTERTAINED

The Walton Homemakers were entertained in the home of Mrs. Ora Fry, May 9th, with 20 in attenadnce, four being visitors. We were so glad to have Miss Gillaspie, our leader, with us again, after a siege of sickness. She gave a very interesting talk on proper food. Mrs. Edna Vest announced that we would have a meeting on beautification, in the near future, hoping to have Mrs. Layne and Mrs. Ann Stewart with us.

Mrs. Gaynelle Flynn also stated that we would have a rug exhibit on the 15th, 16th and 17th of July, one to be held in Walton; one in Florence; and one in New Haven.

A letter, from Dr. Elliot, on cultivation of shrubs, was read. And a paper, on the proper way to make butter and cheese, by Henry Morrison, was also read.

Mrs. Gaynelle Flynn gave a very instructive lesson on knitted rugs, in which all manifested great interest.

An interesting report was given by our delegates who attended the District meeting at Maysville. They were very proud of Boone county, whose attendance was second to the largest.

The next meeting of the club is scheduled for June 13. The major project will be Rugs.

Senior Play Given By Candle Light

Except for fixtures and clothing, one might have imagined they were attending a Senior class play in pioneer days, last Friday evening, when the local class of '41 presented, "Pleased to Meetcha." This back-woods atmosphere was attained by the 20-candle-power lighting system (I think it was about that number.) About ten minutes afte rthe curtain was drawn the electric current failed, so after a short time in total darkness, the candles were brought out "and the show went on."

"Pleased to Meetcha" was above the average, and presented the usual amount of romance, comedy and mystery. Under the circumstances, we thought all did very well.

A rather large crowd was present to view the production, and all seemed to enjoy themselves. During intermissions and throughout the "black-out," Mrs. William Crouse supplied piano melodies.

UTOPIA CLUB DISCUSS "WHAT'S NEW"

What's New in Agriculture and Home Economics, will be discussed by Utopia Club members in their meeting Thursday evening, May 22, at Burlington, according to H. R. Forkner, county agent. The discussion will be given by leading members of the club.

The discussion "What's New," will be led by the following members: Poultry, Grant Maddox; Landscaping, Albert Dickey; Dairy, Woodford Crigler; Canning, Nannie Lee Siekman; Room Improvement, Florence Vice; Tobacco, Rogers Knox.

Carl Jones, field agent in older boys' and girls' club work from the College of Agriculture, will be a guest speaker on the program.

LADIES' AID TO MEET SATURDAY

The Ladies' Aid of the Walton Methodist church will meet at the church, Saturday, the 17th, for an all-day meeting. All members are urged to be present.

TEACHERS NAMED TO FILL VACANCIES

The vacancy, made by the resignation of Mrs. Charles Alphin, teacher of the first grade, is to be filled by Mrs. Mary E. Humphrey. Mrs. Otwell Rankin, who has specialized in public school music, has been engaged to take the place of Mrs. Nanna Lee Siekman, who resigned as teacher of the third grade.

Wood Stephens Is Candidate for Jailer

Wood Stephens, of Florence, Ky., officially announces his candidacy for the nomination of Jailer of Boone County in this issue of the Advertiser.

Wood, as he is better known, was born and reared in Boone, and is known in all parts of the County.

His statement is as follows:

"To the voters of Boone County: In seeking the election to the office of Jailer, I shall say that I have had ample experience in this line of business. I was custodian of the Doctors Building in Covington for one year, also was janitor of Florence School for five years, and for the past four years have been Marshal of Florence, all of which gives me the experience necessary to fill the office of Jailer, and if nominated August 2nd, 1941, shall strive to conduct the office of Jailer with an efficiency that will be a credit to Boone County."

TOBACCO PLANTS ARE DAMAGED

Tobacco plant injury this year has been widespread and severe, according to Russell Hunt, tobacco specialist from the College, in a letter addressed to the county agent's office, this week.

Young plants have been severely injured due to consentration of fertilizers, including cyanamid applied to the bed. The extra dry weather has resulted in the salts being brought to the surface and the concentration has been strong enough to burn the young feeder roots. Heavy watering of the beds will tend to dissolve the fertilizer and lessen the injury.

Mr. Hunt will visit the county in the near future for a meeting and tour of plant bed demonstrations, according to H. R. Forkner, county agent.

Increased Food Production Needed

Increased food production of pork, dairy, poultry and vegetables are needed in the National Defense Program, according to H. R. Forkner, county agent. The Secretary of Agriculture has called upon farm people to assist in this National emergency.

It will be noted that no increase in wheat, beef cattle, tobacco and certain other commodities of which there is a surplus at present, is requested.

Farm and rural people can do certain definite things adjusted to needs of their individual farms and gardens to fit into the program. These needs varying with the individual cases, are:

1. Live at Home or Better Farm Living Program—Every farm family is urged to grow a good garden and home meat supply. This supply should be for year round use by canning, curing and storing surplus fresh commodities. Home raised and home canned food will release canned foods for defense workers in cities and for shipment under the Lend-Lease Program.

2. A 15% increase in pork production—This may be accomplished by marketing hogs 25 pounds heavier than customary for the hogs now on feed.

3. A six to eight percent increase in dairy products—Increased proudction can be secured through better feeding and management practices.

4. A 15% increase in poultry products and a 6% increase in egg products.

5. A 33 1-3% increase in tomato production for canning.

The increased production can be secured without additional equipment but through increased and improved feeding and management. A meeting of local farmers will be called in the near future to discuss the farmers' part in the National Defense Program.

Laurel county farmers have built several "gulley dams" during the past six weeks.

TOBACCO PLANTS NEED RAIN

Tobacco plant beds are being seriously affected by the drought, according to County Agent H. R. Forkner. Many farmers are watering their beds.

Farmers report that on an average the beds sowed early are not as good as the beds sowed late and that plants in many instances have not come up good.

A few farmers, who treated their beds with Bordeaux mixture for the first time, have questioned if the treatment injured the plants. A survey of a number of these beds and of beds not treated indicates that this has not been the case with any bed checked to date. Plants from the beds will be much better off when more favorable weather arrives.

ORDINANCE NO. 164

An Ordinance fixing the several tax levies of the Town of Walton, Kentucky, for the year 1941.

THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES OF THE TOWN OF WALTON DO ORDAIN AS FOLLOWS:

Section 1. That an advalorem tax of 49 cents on each one hundred dollars worth of property subject to taxation by the town of Walton (except unmanufactured agricultural products, and shares of stock of State Banks and Trust Companies incorporated under the laws of this Commonwealth) is hereby levied for the use of the general expense fund of the town of Walton for the year 1941.

Section 2. That an advalorem tax of Fifteen cents on each one hundred dollars worth of all unmanufactured agricultural products subject to taxation by the town of Walton, be, and the same is hereby levied for the use of the general expense fund of the town of Walton for the year 1941.

Section 3. That a tax of Twenty cents on each one hundred dollars of their fair cash value, is hereby levied and imposed upon the shares of stock of State Banks and Trust Companies incorporated under the laws of this Commonwealth and located in the town of Walton, for the use and benefit of the general expense fund of the town of Walton for the year 1941.

Section 4. That an advalorem tax of Twenty-six cents on each one hundred dollars worth of property subject to taxation by the town of Walton (except unmanufactured agricultural products and shares of stock of State Banks and Trust Companies incorporated under the laws of this Commonwealth) is hereby levied for the year 1941 for the purpose of paying interest on all outstanding unpaid Water-Works Bonds of the town of Walton, and creating a fund sufficient to pay off and retire such bonds according to their terms and provisions as to maturities.

Section 5. That a Poll or Capitation tax of one dollar, be, and the same is hereby levied upon all male citizens of the town of Walton past Twenty-one and under Seventy years of age at the time of the passage of this ordinance, for the use of the general expense fund of the town of Walton for the year 1941.

Section 6. That this ordinance be in full force and effect from and after its passage and publication as by law required.

Passed by the vote of four member of the board of trustees of the town of Walton, Kentucky, this 9th day of May, 1941.

D. L. LUSBY,
Chairman of the Board of Trustees of the town of Walton, Kentucky.

Washington Snapshots
by JAMES PRESTON

Washington officials—particularly those connected with defense activities—hope the nation got as much inspiration and comfort as they did out of a recent development which illustrates what a free nation can do.

It involved steps necessary to call into full operation all of the nations tremendous industrial productive capacity sa the country can be made so strong that no aggressor will dare to attack it.

The "ism" method is to send a horde of agents from factory to factory. Many of these agents know nothing about production methods. But they give orders as to what the factories must make.

One reason why American production in a few short months has speeded up as much as Germany's did in several years is that the United States method has been different up to this point. The men who know what their factories and the men and machines in them can produce are still being consulted.

The recent development is part of an interesting story which begins in 1919. In that year, the United States made plans for any future emergency which called for industrial mobilization.

As part of that plan, government officials made continuing surveys of some 20,000 major factories, to find out what defense goods they could turn out on short notice.

Last summer, however, it became apparent to some that in these days of mechanized warfare, the 20,000 factories alone could not do the whole job. So the question arose of what to do about getting more productive facilities.

Government agents could not do the job. They did not have enough industrial experts to canvass thousands of additional plants. They did not feel that questionnaires sent into these plants would produce results, because manufacturers already were getting questionaire after questionaire from the government.

So the National Association of Manufacturers and some 150 national, state and local manufacturers' associations affiliated in the National Industrial Council decided to do the job.

After a necessarily long period in which all government agencies were consulted about the information they might want, and creation of the machine necessary to handle the inventory, the job was begun.

And now the findings have been turned over to government officials. In brief, this survey has covered in less than five months 18,002 industrial plants. A great majority of these are not included in the 20,000 surveyed by the government since 1919. So that as of this moment, the government knows exactly what some 38,000 plants around the nation can produce, what machines they have, how many employees, etc.

This material not only is available in Washington, but in the offices of the state and local organizations which cooperated in the survey. It also has been turned over to scores of federal agents who are placing government contracts and looking for sources of supply.

Washington officials feel that since the information was supplied voluntarily by men who know their own plants, it means first that is sound information, and second that it indicates a willingness to produce for defense. A manufacturer would hardly supply the information without expecting that he might be called upon to produce.

Such is the way of a free people.

Congressmen, incidentally, are still waiting for demands for economy from back home. They don't want to vote the $3½ billions in new taxes and also vote millions for non-defense items which could be cut. But so far, their constituents are silent, although they probably won't be when next year's tax bills come due.

Meanwhile, they are appealing through Speaker Reyburn to the President to take the lead in reducing nondefense expenditures.

OUR DEMOCRACY——by Mat

Money Talks

By
Frederick Stamm, Economist Director of Adult Education
UNIVERSITY OF LOUISVILLE

For the past seven or eight months I have repeatedly advised consumers to buy now and avoid paying more later. To the business man I have advised laying in a large inventory of goods at low prices. Today I want to repeat this advice for I believe now, more than ever, prices are going up materially.

Defense money is finding its way into laborers' pockets and it is being spent and spent freely. Very little is going into savings banks and insurance policies. As a result, the demand for all types of consumer goods is rising more rapidly than the supply .

Sales of most products were much higher the first three months of 1941 than the same period of 1940. To illustrate: electric refrigerator sales were up over 40%; washing machines, over 15%; passenger automobiles, over 25%; department sales, over 10%; rural sales, over 10%. The only important sales figure which was down, to my knowledge, was life insurance.

With the demand for consumer goods so much greater, and with the production of many of these products being curtailed because of defense contracts, I can see nothing but higher prices.

Another fact to be considered seriously is the rise in taxes which will increase prices. The proposed new laws include stiff increases in taxes on automobiles, refrigerators, radios, and many other household necessities.

The stage is all set for a period of at least, mild inflation and higher prices. The only way to avoid it would be an early peace and a discontinuance of the defense program. And the prospect of these two things is not very good.

THE "FOOD FOR DEFENSE" PROGRAM IN BRIEF

Food is a weapon for defense of democracy. This is a program of turning the ever-normal-granary feed supplies of the AAA program into ever-normal food supplies for ourselves and other democracies. The farm program's adjustments—upward or downward—continue. To enable farmers to make the new adjustments, the Government will support prices fair to farmers and consumers on the needed foods for a period ending June 30, 1943. The effect of the program would be:

Poultry—(Prices quoted are on Chicago basis). Wanted: Eggs, 6% (10 million cases) more. Hatchery chicks, 15% more. Price: Eggs (fresh graded firsts) 22c; chickens 15c lb. How to do: Improve feeding of hens, care of eggs; fill up now, unused poultry equipment.

Dairy Products—(Chicago prices quoted). 6 to 8% increases in milk for butter, cheese, dried and evaporated milk. Price: Basis 31c lb. 92-score butter. Ho wto do: Improve feeding and management; add numbers by holding good heifers.

Pork Products—(Chicago prices quoted). Wanted: More weight—25 lbs. more per head at market; 1941 fall pig crop, 15% more; 1942 spring pig crop, 15% more. (Minimum figures). Price: Hogs, $9.00 per cwt. (Good, heavy butcher hogs). How to do: Feed to heavier weights; increase farrowings in line with present production equipment.

Vegetables — Wanted: Canning tomatoes, 33% more; dried beans, 33% more. Price: Support through market purchases. How to do: Acreages non-depleting under AAA program.

General—The prices Chicago basis announced April 3 assume continuation of existing price relationships, take into account seasonal price variations, market grades and qualities, and the support is intended on a long-term basis. Thus price support will avoid price pegging.

Increases From 1940 Production

A study of the above program indicates that the increased production is to be secured through better feeding and management practices and not through the purchase of new equipment. The program is in full cooperation with the present AAA and affects only those commodities in which there is expected to be a shortage. Present indications are for a continued over supply of wheat, tobacco and certain other commodities on which acreage control will continue. Additional information will be made available as the program develops.

12,432 EGGS MONTH OF APRIL

Six hundred sixty-one hens in the flock of Grant Maddox of Florence laid 12,432 eggs during the month of April; according to H. R. Forkner, county agent. The flock averages 18.5 eggs per hen.

Grant has the largest flock of chickens in the county and one of the largest flocks of single comb Rhode Island Reds in the State. His flock shows a substantial profit under the good management practices followed.

Poultry is one commodity the production of which should be considerably increased under the National Defense program.

WATCHMEN ON THE WALLS OF ZION

Many, many years ago I was visiting between terms at the home of my roommate. On Sunday we went to a small country church near his home and heard a preacher of a sect now almost vanished, like so many of the institutions that I have chronicled in these three hundred articles. The sermon was not impressive to us beginning-to-be-sophisticated college boys, but the manner of its presentation and the honesty of it have lasted through all the intervening years. Recently I drove by the same shabby little church, which evidently has been innocent of paint all the thirty years since I first saw it. But it brought again to my mind that preacher and his fast-disappearing type.

They are in the Bible, but for some reason I had never seen the words "Watchmen on the Walls of Zion." I suppose that this phrase was the preacher's text, for he said it over and over in nearly every species of tune, a characteristic of his vanishing sect. What else he said I do not know, but those sonorous and poetic words stuck. All the rest of that day I repeated them, fascinated with their poetry, little thinking what future significance they would have. Long ago the rather ignorant but sincere preacher passed away, and it is highly doubtful whether his grave is marked in any fashion. "Watchmen on the walls of Zion" these preachers were, literally. Probably having little or no formal education and compelled, as this preacher was, to make their living by farm work, they had yet caught a vision somewhat above that of their parishioners and were willing to brave storms and floods to carry their message to the less-fortunate. "Where there is no vision, the people perish." Very perversely I recall that the collection that day amounted to the munificent sum of a dollar and a quarter; I remember hearing the preacher say that this would pay the man he hired to work in his tobacco crop while the preacher rode horseback clear across a whole big county to keep his appointment the next day at his little church.

Monuments, tablets, institutions, and churches bear proudly the names of great benefactors to mankind. You can hardly drive your car safely for trying to read the inscriptions by the roadside, especially in the older parts of Kentucky and all of Virginia and New England. But who has erected a tablet of the simplest nature to these humble "watchmen on the walls of Zion," who gave as generously of what they had as any millionaire who has blessed us with his wealth. Many of these preachers were not ordained in any strict sense, any more than some of the faithful old-time doctors were graduates of medical colleges. They felt a call and followed it, led by no hope of financial rewards here but believing firmly that the laborer is worthy of his hire sometime, somewhere. Enough of these faithful souls are left to be familiar to most of the people who will read this, but long ago they sank into insignificance in numbers and have largely been crowded into the remotest parts of the state, where they carry on still their quaint but sincere preaching of the gospel as they understand it.

TOBACCO DISEASES—
BLUE MOLD

According to Kentucky Extension Circular No. 230, "Blue Mold, a disease which has caused extensive damage to tobacco plants in the bed some years, in the southeastern states since 1930, appeared in Kentucky in 1937 and spread to plant beds in nearly all parts of the state in 1938. The first sign of it in a plant bed is likely to be a group of plants whose leaves turn yellow. It may then appear suddenly during a damp period over most of the bed causing large scalded spots on the leaves and in severe cases destruction of most of the leaves and death to some of the plants. At this time a moldy growth may be seen on the under side of some of the leaves. The surviving plants begin to recover in about a week or ten days and from that time on appear to be resistant to the disease. Recovered plants may be safely set in the field. Recovery is hastened by an application of nitrate of soda applied according to directions on page 9."

"There are several ways of reducing injury from blue mold. Growers claim that the application of Bordeaux mixture for the control of leafspots has delayed the appearance of the disease in beds a week or ten days beyond that of untreated beds, which is often sufficient to complete planting. The disease frequently appears first in beds used the previous year and spreads from these beds to other beds in the neighborhood; therefore, all growers should use new bed sites each year. Beds should be located in an open area. Removal of cotton from the bed during the day following the first appearance of the disease in the neighborhood toughens the plants and slows down the spread of the disease. Use Bordeaux mixture 3-4-50 for 200 square yards of bed. (How to make Bordeaux will be explained next week.)

POULTRY POINTERS FOR MAY

Produce and market high-quality eggs: (1) Dispose of all roosters; produce infertile eggs; (2) keep the laying house and nests clean; (3) confine the hens until noon on rainy days; (4) feed properly balanced feeds; (5) gather eggs often, using a wire basket; (6) cool eggs as soon as possible; (7) keep eggs in cases in a cool place, below 60 degrees F., if possible; (8) sell eggs twice a week.

Do not Let Lice and Mites Rob You

Lice and mites multiply rapidly in warm weather. Kill these pests before they cause the hens to quit laying. Kill lice by dusting each fowl with sodium fluoride or, in warm weather, by dipping each in a solution of 10 gallons of lukewarm water in which one pound of sodium fluoride has been dissolved. Nicotine sulfate applied to the roost poles just before the birds go on the roosts, controls lice. The nicotine treatment should be repeated at 10-day intervals until it has been used three times. Care should be exercised to see that every bird goes on the treated roosts.

Mites may be destroyed by cleaning the house and nests and spraying. New nesting material and clean litter should be put into the laying house. Use engine oil (crank case drainings) diluted with kerosene destroys mites with which it comes in contact. The spraying or painting of the roosts, nests and nearby cracks with the oil or 5% compound creosol solution should be repeated in a week to 10 days to kill the newly hatched mites. (1 pint to 2½ gallons of water is 5% solution.)

DAIRY HERD IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION NEWS

On completion of the March records in the Northern Kentucky Dairy Herd Improvement Association, we find the herd of E. A. Thomas and Son of Foster, in Pendleton county leading all other herds of the association. This herd is all purebred Guernseys and the herd average was 38.0 pounds of butterfat. In fact, this herd was also high in the preceeding month.

The next herd close to the Thomas herd is the herd of Grant Maddox. Mr. Maddox's herd is Jerseys, and the average was 33.8 pounds of butterfat. In both herds the cows were fed a legume hay along with a concentrated feed sufficient in protein. Needless to say, the lower herds in the association were those not fed a legume hay. However, those herd owners, not feeding a legume hay, are making efforts to feed such next winter.

Now that the warm weather is here, the different herds in the association are on a more equal level. Past records of the winter show a more uniform production of milk for those herds receiving the best care and management Most important, perhaps, is the milking room where the cows stay altogether from fall to spring. Those herds in the tighter, yet well ventilated barns, held their production up much better than those subject to severe changes in temperature. This condition is being improved for dairymen, all conscious of the fall.

W. B. Smoot of Augusta, in Bracken county, is just completing a new dairy barn. It is built to hold some 40 cows and is equipped with drink cups for the cows. Drink cups have proved most benificial in holding production up, especially in the winter months.

At present, all members in the association own or use purebred bulls, except three. One of these, Otis Kells of Williamstown, has recently purchased a young purebred from the University of Kentucky Dairy Experiment Station, and before the year is over, we hope to have all members using purebred sires. Dairymen must realize the importance played by the sire in building up one's herd, for it can be more easily run down than built up by the use of the wrong sire.

Five hundred and twenty-two farmers in Hardin county have enrolled in a livestock sanitation program.

BETTER PASTURES FENCES NEEDED

Pasture improvement, better fences and more abundant supply of good livestock water are needed, according to farm leaders attending the Land Use Planning meetings on last Wednesday in Belleview and Petersburg communities, according to County Agent H. R. Forkner.

Problems, outstanding toward farm improvement, were listed as (1) low farm prices; (2) Bushes on much of land; (3) Lack of capital required to properly manage and equip farm; (4) The fertility of the soil; and (5) Much land ha s a high capital investment to pay out.

Recommendations of the committees included: 1.—Fence, graze and mow pasture land. 2—Lime and phosphate should be used on all land including pasture land. 3—Produce more good legume hay, supply livestock needs. 4—AAA payments for fence improvement, clearing bushes off pasture lands, ponds. 5—Soil analysis and study to determmine fertilizer needs. 6—Use of cover crops on 100% on all but overflow land. 7—All farm families should raise own meat and food supply. This is especially true of tenant farmers.

Problems in the land use program varies in the different communities and in the different soil areas. The Land Use Program is being studied by leaders in nine community centers. All who are interested in this study are invited to take part.

The High Cost of Getting Well

Within recent years much has been said about the high cost of getting well. After giving this problem a great deal of study, we have devised a simple plan whereby the patient may get the best health service at a very nominal cost, without sacrificing any laboratory tests or x-rays which may be necessary in his particular case.

We shall be glad to explain this plan in detail if you will call at this office.

Poultry Management

By Stanley Caton
Extension Specialist in Poultry

Between now and July 1st poultry raisers will have some problems of importance to consider in the management of the young flock. You are depending on this crop of young pullets to grow into sturdy producers of eggs next fall. Consider the following points seriously.

Cockerel Selection—A too common practice has been to sell the best of the cockerels as broilers early because they feathered fast and grew rapidiy. The result has been that slow feathering, slow growing cockerels have been kept in many flocks to be used as breeders. This year make it a point to save some of the best cockerels to head the flock in 1942. Select fast growing, full feathered males at an early age. Mark these for "seed" stock for next year.

Green Feed—There are at least two real advantages to be gained by furnishing plenty of green feed for the growing pullets, first the saving in feed cost, and second, the improvement in the health of the flock. Green feed is really full of most of the vitamins required by poultry. Grow just as much of these vitamins as your pullets need, it will save buying them. Alfalfa, bluegrass, lespedeza and Sudan grass are good. If you use Sudan grass sow it thick and keep it cut back or pastured so that fresh green shoots grow from it. Plan early this year for your supply of green feed for July and August.

Coccidiosis—This disease usually makes its appearane after a warm, damp period of time and is characterized by a dull listless appearance, drooped wings, pale shanks and beaks and a lack of appetite. Bloody droppings are not always present. Treat the flock by confining it to the brooder house and dry cleaning the house each day at the same time for a period of a week. Use a small amount of clean litter and keep the floor dry.

Chicken Pox—An outbreak of this disease in the fall of the year can be disastrous as far as egg production is concerned. Vaccination of the pullets and cockerels to be saved for breeders when they are 10 to 12 weeks old will be insurance against this trouble when fall comes .The procedure for vaccinating is simple and your local veterinarian can order the vaccine for you. If you had pox last fall by all means vaccinate this year. If your neighbor's flock had it last year it would be wise to vaccinate your flock. The cost per bird is low and the treatment is effective. If there has been no pox in the community, vaccination is not as important as where outbreaks have occurred.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Improved Uniform International

By HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D. Dean of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

S. S. Lesson for May 18

Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education; used by permission.

BROADENING CHRISTIAN HORIZONS: SAUL'S CONVERSION

LESSON TEXT—Acts 9:1-16.
GOLDEN TEXT—I was not disobedient unto the heavenly vision.—Acts 26:19.

The conversion of Saul is recognized as one of the outstanding events in Bible history. When two brilliant English lawyers, Lord Lyttleton and Sir Gilbert West, set out to disprove the truth of Christianity, they selected the resurrection of Christ and the story of Paul's conversion as the focal points of their proof. Working independently, they then came together to compare notes, and found that they had both become Christians as they had become convinced of the truth of the Scriptures.

The two events may well stand together as mighty evidence for Christianity, for only on the ground of regeneration can the change in Saul be accounted for, and only on the assurance that he met the risen Christ on the Damascus road can we account for his conversion. This is a great lesson, let us make the very most of it.

I. Saul, a Bold Persecutor (vv. 1, 2).

As our lesson opens we find the brilliant and zealous young Jew, Saul, "yet breathing out threatenings and slaughter against the disciples of the Lord." The persecutions in Jerusalem had practically wiped out the church in that city, but had scattered the disciples abroad, and thus the witness had been spread. The death of the godly Stephen, to which Saul had given his approval, had only increased his determination to destroy those who were "of the way" of Jesus. Looking for new fields to conquer, he carried with him to Damascus letters from the high priest at Jerusalem, giving him authority to imprison the followers of Christ. But on the way he met Christ Himself, and was stricken to the earth.

II. Saul, a Convicted Sinner (vv. 3-9)

Stricken down by a brilliant heavenly light, he finds himself talking to the Lord Jesus. He hears from His holy lips the solemn indictment of those who persecute God's people—"Why persecutest thou me?" He who lays unkind hands upon, or brings untrue accusation against, God's children had best beware, for so closely is our Lord identified with His people that when they suffer, it is He who bears the hurt.

In a single sentence the Lord disposes of the persecuting zeal and the sinful skepticism of this proud young Pharisee, and Saul enters into Damascus not as the haughty persecutor, but as a man trembling and astonished. He spends three days shut in with his own soul and God, not seeing, not caring to eat, but entering into communion with God. By God's grace the old life is pulled up by the roots as it is displaced by the new life in Christ Jesus.

III. Ananias, an Obedient Disciple (vv. 10-12).

Ananias was the "I am here, Lord" type of Christian to whom the Lord could confidently commit His important business. All we know of him is what is contained in this chapter, but it is a very beautiful and enviable record. God is able to work directly on any human soul and accomplish His end (as He did with Saul on the Damascus road), but His usual manner of working is through faithful human agencies.

One wonders how much would be accomplished for God if every Christian were as willing and ready as was Ananias to do the Lord's bidding in seeking out and helping a struggling soul.

The greatest of all Christian leaders, the apostle Paul, was led out into his life of loyalty and service to Christ by a humble layman. Repeatedly God's Word by precept and example stresses the vital importance of personal work on the part of laymen and women. The leaders of Christian work during the coming generation are now in the Sunday school classes of our churches, perhaps in a little wayside chapel in the country, in the village church, in the mission or settlement house, or in the great city church.

IV. Saul, a Chosen Witness (vv. 15, 16).

The fears of Ananias that Saul might still be a worker of evil (v. 13) were soon overcome by God's assurance that in the praying Saul He had prepared for Himself "a chosen vessel" (v. 15) to bear the gospel to the Gentiles and to kings, as well as to Israel.

The great witness of Saul was to be accompanied by great suffering. How often the two go together, and both may be (as they were in Paul's life) for God's glory. Saul knew nothing of that subtle hypocrisy known as being "a secret believer," for at once he made open confession of his faith in baptism, and "straightway he preached Christ in the synagogues that he is the Son of God" (v. 20).

Voters Say "No" To Liquor

Each year an increasing number of Americans decide the liquor question for themselves by making the liquor traffic illegal in their cities or counties.

These hard-headed American citizens seem to be coming out from under the delusions fostered by high-powered propaganda during the liquor-inspired fight on national prohibition.

They look around their own neighborhoods, mull over the easily visible effects of liquor on parents, on car drivers and on youth, and then they decide—as their parents were forced to decide early in this century—that the best means of liquor control is a resounding "no" at the ballot box.

Voters' Choice

Not much gets into the press about the number of wet-dry elections held each year in a score or more of states. The results of these elections are difficult to total; but, the best available statistics show that 12,400 elections have been held in local communities since repeal and, in 7,700 of these elections the drys have won.

In two states, South Carolina and Oklahoma, very definite results were shown. The liquor traffic tried unsuccessfully again, in Oklahoma, to repeal that state's constitutional prohibition. The state's citizens voted overwhelmingly dry. In South Carolina the voters by referendum ordered their legislature to pass a state prohibition law. South Carolina has tried post-repeal methods of control. Now its citizens say "Outright prohibition is the only answer."

Election Result

Several states are reported planning attempts to secure outright prohibition, with church and temperance and welfare groups uniting for the fight against the well-financed liquor trade.

Groups like the W.C.T.U. quote history to show that, after Americans try all manner of legal regulation, they always return to complete prohibition as the only feasible answer to the evils of alcohol.

-that man IN OUR NEIGHBORHOOD!

I DARED NOT LEAVE THE HOUSE

I had just put the children to bed and turned out the lights, when the youngest started to cough. With confidence, I went to the medicine cabinet — the bottle was empty!

I knew from experience the child would grow worse through the night unless relieved, but my husband was away — I could not leave the house.

In this predicament, I thought of "that man", (our neighborhood druggist) and phoned immediately — then in what seemed but a few moments, I heard welcome footsteps — the filled prescription had arrived.

Yes, our neighborhood druggist fills prescriptions with infinite care and also carries a fine line of cosmetics and proprietary products. For women, he usually recommends Vatona Tablets to aid in the relief of those trying discomforts of the menstrual period — this may be just what you need — at least get in touch with your druggist. MORGANSVILLE

"The earth is the Lord's, and the fullness thereof." Each one must be His witness. No other person can tell the old, old story of Jesus and His love for you or for me. May we life the Golden Rule so high that its bright word will flame against the sky, "Do unto others as ye would that they should do to you," and then will come the day the crushed will rise, the bound will find release, and we shall know the blessedness of peace."

Springtime is now fully upon us, and new life is flooding the land. Enjoyed in all of its splendor is the verdant landscape, the perfumed air, and the spreading boughs of the fruit trees, which have been glorious with blossoms. "For, lo! the winter is past and flowers appear on the earth, the time of the singing of birds is come, and the voice of the turtle dove is heard in the land." In the rosy dawn of these lovely spring mornings, in the golden glow of the noontide, and even in the peaceful silence of early twilight is heard the twitter of the merry little songsters.

Bobby Stephens, Dale Stephens, Warren VanHorn, Sammy Reeves, Michael Beck ,Carl Beck and Tom Martin were recent guests of Charles Otis Morgan.

THE TRUTH SIMPLY TOLD

Today's popularity of Doan's Pills, after many years of worldwide use, surely must be accepted as evidence of satisfactory use. And favorable public opinion supports that of the able physicians who test the value of Doan's under exacting laboratory conditions.

These physicians, too, approve every word of advertising you read, the objective of which is only to recommend Doan's Pills as a good diuretic treatment for disorder of the kidney function and for relief of the pain and worry it causes.

If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove waste that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole body suffers when kidneys lag, and diuretic medication would be more often employed.

Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warn of disturbed kidney function. You may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel weak, nervous, all played out.

Use Doan's Pills. It is better to rely on a medicine that has won world-wide acclaim than on something less favorably known. Ask your neighbor!

A record never before approached!

★When the 29,000,000th Ford rolled recently from the assembly line, an all-time record for the industry was set. 29,000,000 units built by the same management and all bearing one name—a name that has become one of the best-known trade-marks in the world!

It is significant that this achievement comes at a time when our country is making a mighty effort to re-arm swiftly. For to further that effort, to help speed it along in any possible way, we have offered the vast facilities of the Rouge Plant and every ounce of our experience.

As you read this, a new $21,000,000 Ford airplane engine plant, started only last fall, is nearly completed. A new magnesium alloy plant, one of the few in the country, is already in production on lightweight airplane engine castings. Work is right now under way on a new $18,000,000 plant for mass production of big bomber assemblies. Orders have been filled for military vehicles of several types, including army reconnaissance cars, staff cars and bomb service trucks.

In the midst of this activity for National Defense, building the 29 millionth Ford car is simply one part of the day's work.

The public has acclaimed the 1941 Ford car as the finest in Ford history. Ford Dealers are enjoying their greatest sales and expecting their best year since 1937.

It is good to be producing the things America needs, and to be setting records on the way!

Casserole Meals

Everyone likes casserole dishes —the men because they fill them up, and women because they save time in meal preparation. A crisp salad or perhaps a fresh vegetable completes the main part of your meal when you have a casserole dish.

When you want to prepare a casserole meal in double quick time, use the cooked macaroni in cream sauce with cheese which comes in cans. Serve it either by itself or in combinations of your own devising. Its creamy, flavorsome sauce serves to bring out the fine flavor of various meats, vegetables and fish you may want to add to it and serves well to help you use up leftovers in an attractive way. The recipes below are excellent examples.

A tempting variation on the buttered crumb topping idea is buttered bread squares or circles arranged border fashion on the casserole. They brown as the casserole bakes. A crisp cereal such as rice flakes combined with the butter in the same way as the crumbs makes another good topping for casserole dishes.

Bacon strips which broil on top while the casserole bakes add a bit of extra flavor and juiciness to certain dishes which need this touch. And some India relish sprinkled on with buttered crumbs or cereal adds a bit of piquancy to mild-flavored fish casseroles.

Macaroni and Corn Casserole

Open—
1 medium (17-oz.) can cooked macaroni in cream sauce with cheese.
Arrange half of it in a shallow baking dish, then sprinkle with—½ cup whole kernel corn
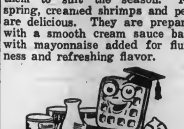
½ red pimiento, chopped.
Season with—
Salt and pepper.
Repeat layers.
Combine—
2 tablespoons butter, melted
¼ cup soft bread crumbs.
Sprinkle over top of macaroni mixture. Bake in a moderate oven (375° F.) 25 minutes. Serves 4.

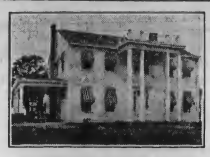
Macaroni and Ham Casserole



Open—
1 medium (17-oz.) can cooked macaroni in cream sauce with cheese.
Prepare—
1 cup ground cooked ham.
Place a thin layer of the macaroni in a buttered casserole and top with a layer of ham. Repeat the layers, using all the macaroni and ham.
Combine—
½ cup rice flakes
1 tablespoon butter, melted.
Sprinkle buttered rice flakes over macaroni. Bake in a moderate oven (375° F.) about 20 minutes, or until well heated through. An excellent way to use leftover ham. Serves 4.

Macaroni Corned Beef Casserole

Shred—
1 medium (12-oz.) can corned beef.
Add, mixing well—
2 tablespoons prepared brown mustard.
Open—
2 medium (17-oz.) cans cooked macaroni in cream sauce with cheese.
Line 1 large or 6 individual casseroles with the macaroni, leaving a depression in the center of each. Fill with the meat mixture and bake in a moderate oven (375° F.) 25 minutes. Serves 6.



Waffle Wisdom

Waffles are a favorite any time of the year, but it's clever to change the toppings you use on them to suit the season. For spring, creamed shrimps and peas are delicious. They are prepared with a smooth cream sauce base, with mayonnaise added for fluffiness and refreshing flavor.

Creamed Shrimps and Peas

Melt—
4 tablespoons butter.
Add—
4 tablespoons flour.
Blend well and cook until bubbling.
Add—
2 cups milk.
Cook, stirring constantly until thickened.
Add, blending thoroughly—
½ teaspoon salt
Pepper
Dash cayenne
2 tablespoons lemon juice
½ cup mayonnaise.
Add—
2 cups canned or fresh cooked shrimps
1 cup cooked peas, drained.
Heat well and serve over crisp waffles. Serves 6.

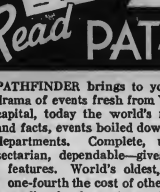
Doings of The REDS

At last, the Reds are settling down on their home field for an extended stay. They opened at Crosley Field Saturday against the Chicago Cubs, continued against the same team Sunday and Monday, then were set to face the high flying Brooklyn Dodgers Tuesday and Wednesday.

The first night game of the season, against the Phillies, is scheduled Thursday. This will be quite an affair, for, in addition to the ball game, there will be two pre-game events of importance. No. 1 will be the appearance of the Indiana University band of 125 pieces. No. 2 will be a patriotic defense display that promises to surpass anything the Reds have ever shown.

Once before, in 1939, the Indiana band appeared at Crosley Field before a night game. That caused so much favorable comment among Cincinnati fans that an effort was made for a return appearance. The Indiana group is recognized as one of the finest marching units in the country.



Friday, following the night game, will be an off day, but the Phillies, who defeated the Reds in their only two meetings this year, will meet McKechnie's men again Saturday . Sunday the Boston Braves, who have more youthful stars than any club in the league, face the Reds. The Braves also will appear at Crosley Field Monday and Tuesday, May 19 and 20, after which the New York Giants appear for games Wednesday and Thursday, May 21 and 22. Wednesday, May 21, will be ladies' day. The second night game of the season is scheduled Monday, May 26, against Pittsburgh.

There has been plenty of rocky going for the Reds on the road, but they feel they'll be able to settle down now that they can stay in one place for a while. Until they opened at home Saturday, they had played only five games at home, and three of them were in the first series of the season. So, since that opening series, they had been at home only two days, which is indication of just how much they have been hopping around the country.

Playing on the home diamond is an advantage not only on the playing field, but off as well, because the players have an opportunity to get settled and don't have to worry about jumping around. Road trips are fine when a ball club is going well, but when things break adversely, it's just that much harder to swing out of a slump when everything isn't in your favor.

—o—

The Reds' downtown ticket office at 307 Vine Street now has available for sale tickets for any game for the remainder of the season. Facilities are also available to handle mail orders for any game.

Methodist Revival Begins On May 25

Dr. J. W. Weldon

Revival services begin at the Walton Methodist church, Sunday, May 25th. Dr. J. W. Weldon, superintendent of the Hipkinsville District, Louisville Conference, will be the guest preacher. Dr. Weldon is one of our leading preachers. He is a strong preacher, a good pastor with fine administrative ability and a passion for souls. We are indeed fortunate to have such a man to lead us for two weeks.

Miss Florence Virginia Weldon, daughter of the evangelist, will also be present to lead the singing, and work with the young people. Miss Weldon graduated from Asbury College, and has had a great deal of experience in this type of work. She is a fine consecrated young lady with many worthwhile talents that are being used by the Lord.

There will be two services daily, with the young people meeting at 7:00 p. m., and the evening worship hour at 7:30. The hour for the morning service will be announced and there will be a service for the children each afternoon. This work with the children will take the place of our Daily Vacation Bible School, which ordinarily would be held at this time.

These promise to be two of the best weeks that we have ever experienced. Pray for the services and come to the services when it is possible. The public is most cordially invited.

MEETING FRIDAY TO DISCUSS CHANGING TIME

It was announced Tuesday by D. S. Lusby, chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Town of Walton, that there would be a meeting on Friday night, May 23, at 7:30, in the city building for the purpose of discussing the possibility of changing Walton's time from Central Standard to Eastern Standard. This meeting is open to the public, and all residents of the town are urged to attend, and express themselves—either for or against such a move.

Personally (and no one asked for our opinion) we dislike Eastern time, and probably always will, but with the advent of the "move-up" in practically all our surrounding towns, a change seems inevitable. It would, however, eliminate the worry and confusion in business and social engagements now existing, by having the two times.

Think it over and express yourself, in order that the time we have will please the greater number of our people.

DR. HARRY L. DENMAN TO BE AT COVINGTON, MAY 25

Dr. Harry L. Denman, chairman of the Commission on Evangelism of the Methodist church, will be in the Covington District, leading in a simultaneous revival effort, in which about 20 churches are participating. He is an outstanding national christian leader, and the public will want to hear him on every possible occasion.

His first appearance will be at the Shinkle Methodist church, Covington, Sunday, May 25, at 3:00 p. m., fast time. It is hoped that several can go from Walton to hear him.

Gallatin Gets Road Appropriation

Judge H. G. Beall, of Warsaw, received word from Senator Barkley, that $54,811.00, was appropriated for Gallatin county roads.

PLAN TO AID T. B. VICTIMS

A meeting to make some plans for care and prevention of Tuberculosis in Boone county, will be held in the Court Room, Burlington, Thursday, May 22, at 7:00 p. m., Central Time.

All those interested in this movement, are urged to attend.

Walton-Verona Graduating Class of '41

With perhaps many misgivings, with many tears, and yet with a great deal of joy, the members of the graduation class of 1941 of the Walton-Verona High school, are about to write "finis" to their High school careers.

Festivities, which are usually the pride of the graduates, began Sunday evening, when Rev. J. Russell Cross brought a very inspiring message to the class. His advice is well worth remembering, and we hope that each one of the class will treasure these suggestions, and use them in the future, for Rev. Cross has had so much experience in work with young people and with public interests, that his talk should serve to save these young folks from many "mis-steps."

The services, which were held at the High school auditorium, were largely attended, the various churches dispensing with their regular services, so that their members might have the privilege of attending.

On Tuesday evening a large crowd gathered to witness the Class Night Program.

The program was opened appropriately, with the Senior class singing the "welcome."

The program was carried out in an original and interesting manner. We were led to believe that we were listening to a newspaper, each part of the program representing various departments of a newspaper office. Preceding the drawing of the curtain, Mary Zelma Richards, president of the class, made the announcements.

Edith May, salutatorion, then in a very gracious manner, welcomed the guests. In the "story department," Jack Roberts gave the history of the class over a period of the past four years; Mary Evelyn Sizemore very cleverly presented the class prophecy—she turned each prophecy from the "magic grinding box"— you've read all about its powers in your fairy tales. In a very artistic manner, Evelyn Coffman played a piano solo. This was followed by "Local News," which was "interestingly" presented by Mary Zelma Richards—as were also the "Statistics," by Morgan Campbell.

Charles Vest, in the Poet's Corner, very cleverly put his sentiments into verse. And George Heginbotham very delightfully entertained the audience with a trumpet solo.

When Johnny Gault had finished his "Who's Who and Why," we wondered what there was left for graduates of other schools, for it appears that he believes his classmates are to aspire to all the highest goals—not excluding president. He didn't however, say they would achieve their goal. And the "Facts," which were given by Albert Hunt, almost brought the audience to tears, when Albert so realistically brought to our attention, the ill-treatment these poor Seniors had received at the hands of their underclassmen and even the teachers! One would never realize such things could or would be tolerated in a civilized country. George Heginbotham "Advertised" all the cast-offs of the class; and Kenneth Lock read the class will. Mabel Cook very graciously presented each member of her class with an "appropriate" gift.

Evelyn Coffman, as a fitting close, and in her gracious and sincere way, and in behalf of her class, thanked all who had helped them to attain their high school education; and very sadly wished the underclassmen and "their school" a fond farewell.

Mrs. Blanche Ransom served as accompanist for the evening.

The final exercise occur Friday night, when Commencement exercises will take place.

County-Wide Red Cross Meeting Wed.

On Wednesday, May 28th, the Boone County Chapter of The American Red Cross will hold a county-wide meeting at the Florence school, at 2:00 p. m. Rev. J. Russell Cross, county chairman, will preside over the meeting, and will introduce Mrs. Hazel Fish, executive secretary of the Campbell county Chapter; Mrs. Lucy T. Hume, executive secretary of the Kenton county Chapter; and several members of the Kenton county delegation to the Natoinal Convention of the Red Cross, held in Washington, D. C., in April.

The Nursing Program being sponsored by the local chapter will be discussed and reported on, and the War Production Quotas will be discussed and plans made for carrying out effectively the work of the chapter in sewing and knitting for the months to come.

The Nursing Activities committee will have charge of the refreshments to be served, under the leadership of its chairman, Mrs. Kirtley Cropper. Mrs. Cropper will be assisted by the other members, namely, Mrs. Lula Huey, Miss Elizabeth Lowry, R. N., Miss Lucy Lee Grant, Mrs. Jane Utz and Mrs. Walter Ferguson.

Mrs. Martha L. Huey, chairman of the Boone county Production Work, will have a meeting of her county-wide committee after the general meeting.

All the women of Boone county are earnestly urged to attend this very important meeting to learn of the activities of the Red Cross in general, and of their own local chapter in particular.

F. H. Brown Candidate For Judge

In this issue of the Advertiser will be found the formal announcement of F. H. Brown, Belleview, as a Democratic candidate for County Judge of this county, subject to the action of the Primary election to be held on Saturday, August 2, 1941.

Mr. Brown is a graduate of A. and M. College, Lexington, and has read law. He was married to Grace M. Rogers, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Boone Rogers, in 1900. In 1908 he organized the Citizens Deposit Bank at Belleview, and was elected a director and cashier. He was elected a member of the Belleview school board in 1909, acting in the capacity of secretary and treasurer, at various times. He is a staunch Democrat, and would appreciate your support in the coming election.

The following is a statement, issued Monday, by Mr. Brown:

"If elected, I will do my best to see that for every dollar spent by the county, the voters will receive in return 100 cents in value. I am not a candidate representing any firm or business organization. I will do all in my power to give a safe and business-like administration—on the job six days a week. I also believe in probation, and will show mercy."

Spring 4-H Club Rally Saturday

The annual Spring Rally for Boone County 4-H clubs will be held in the auditorium of the Burlington High school, on Saturday, May 24. The program will begin at 10:00 a. m., C. S. T. Local leaders, club members, parents and friends of the 4-H club members are expected to attend.

Features of the program include 4-H songs, led by Mr. J. F. Moore, a talk on the club members and Citizenship by Rev. J. Russell Cross; Style Revue of Clothing completed by girls 'project groups; team demonstrations in approved Farm and Home practices; and group games, directed by Mrs. Mary Scott Moore and H. B. Drake. H. R. Forkner, county agent, will be chairman of the program and Miss Mary Hood Gillaspie will discuss plans for summer 4-H club activities. A picnic lunch will be spread in the cafeteria at noon.

Winners of the Style Revue and Team Demonstration contests will be presented ribbons. The Style Revue champion will receive a trip to Junior Week, to be held at the University of Kentucky, Lexington, June 9-14. Winning demonstration teams will represent the county in the district contest at Dry Ridge, May 30. Judges will be Miss Louise Tucker and Katherine Russell, Home Demonstration Agents from Campbell and Carroll counties, respectively, and Maurice K. Williams, assistant county agent of Kenton county.

Committees of local leaders will assist with the events of the day. Program arrangements are being made by Miss Mary Hood Gillaspie, Mrs. Mary Scott Moore, home demonstration agents, and H. R. Forkner and H. B. Drake, agricultural agents.

POPULAR COUPLE WED RECENTLY

A wedding of interest to their friends in Walton, was that of Mr. R. Wayne Bailey, of Gardnersville, and Miss Ruth Wills, of Crittenden, Wednesday evening, May 7, at six-thirty, at the home of the officiating minister, Rev. James H. Talley.

The bride is the attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herndon Wills of Crittenden, and is one of the most popular young ladies in Grant county. She is a graduate of Crittenden High school and attended Business school in Cincinnati. She is now employed with the Citizens' Telephone Company of Williamstown.

Mr. Bailey is also a graduate of Crittenden High school, and received his A. B. degree from the University of Kentucky. He is now teaching in the Portland Consolidated School, Pendleton county. He is well known throughout Northern Kentucky as a capable young man with fine personal habits, and as one of the most successful teachers.

Mr. and Mrs. Bailey plan to reside at the home of his parents, for the present time.

Their host of friends wish much success in their happy married life.

COMMITTEE PLANS PROGRAM

The Boone county Utopia club program planning committee met at Burlington, Friday, May 16, and planned a meeting program for the last six months of 1941, according to H. R. Forkner, county agent.

The program will be presented to the members at the regular meeting, Thursday evening, May 22. Carl Jones, club specialist, and a number of charter members will take part in the Thursday evening meeting.

NEVER MISSED A DAY OF SCHOOL

Miss Catherine Gilpin

When Miss Catherine Mae Gilpin was graduated from New Haven High school on May 13, along with four other girls and five boys, it not only was the end of her high school days, but also marked the completion of 12 years in school without missing a single day. We feel sure that there were times during those 12 years when it was an effort to be at school, but Catherine "stuck with it," and finished with a perfect attendance record. This is, indeed, quite a record, and we, along with her relatives and friends, wish to extend congratulations.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gilpin of Frogtown Road, Walton, Route 2.

ATTEND NATION DEFENSE MEETING AT LEXINGTON

Mrs. John Stephenson of Walton, and Mrs. G. K. Gregory of Edgewood, attended the National Defense meeting, held at the State University building in Lexington, last Friday.

About 200 attended this meeting to discuss ways and means of providing recreation for the soldiers in camp.

Friday night, Mrs. Stephenson and Mrs. Gregory went to Berea to attend the District Board meeting of the Kentucky, Tennessee, Y. W. C. A. Saturday and Sunday the National Area meeting of the Y. W. C. A. was held there.

These ladies also visited the different industries connected with Berea College.

Homemakers Select Major Project

The Major Project to be carried by Boone County Homemakers' clubs, will be selected by the Advisory Council next Monday, May 26th. Local club presidents, county officers and project chairmen will meet at 1:30 p. m., at the Court House in Burlington. The presiding officer will be Mrs. Geo. Kottmyer, president, Boone County Homemakers.

Local homemakers' clubs have voted on their choice of a major project at meetings during the past month. The following seven projects were suggested by members at the April Advisory Council meeting: General Nutrition, Meal Planning, Vitamin Study, Accessories for the Home (Home Lighting and Picture Study,) the Completed Livable Home, Consumer Problems in Home Furnishing and Upholstery. Each club representative will cast their vote for one of the seven possible projects at the Monday meeting. The project receiving the most votes will be carried by Boone county Homemakers next fall and winter, according to Mary Hood Gillaspie, home demonstration agent.

Miss Lulie Logan, assistant state leader of home demonstration agents, plans to attend the meeting.

REV. HUEY TO PREACH AT BETHEL CHURCH, SUNDAY

THE FOURTH HUNDRED

As I begin this article, the 301st of the series, I feel I ought to review some events with those who have been kind enough to follow this column throughout its life. Many years ago I wrote some seventy-five of these articles and then laid them aside, feeling that they were of little interest to anybody except me. Then I was asked to contribute something to the newspapers and suddenly thought of this old file of essays on passing institutions. I at once put a whole year's supply of them into shape, writing new ones to fill in some gaps. At that time I had no thought of doing anything more.

Within a few days after the first article appeared, "fan" mail began to come in from many places. These cheering letters not only commented on my articles but often gave me many suggestions for future ones. I have kept most of this mail and have some fascinating letters in my file. Twenty-nine states, the District of Columbia, and the Canal Zone are represented. All sorts of people have written me: old-timers whose memories are similar to mine, children who have heard their elders talk about other times and places, antiquarians, school librarians, rural teachers, columnists, and historians. They have been the means of my getting acquainted with many interesting people in all parts of America, and have also renewed old acquaintances that I treasure highly.

All of this confession—a bit egotistic, I realize—is to remind the readers that folklore is an interesting subject that hosts of people know something about. Not everybody likes to write about it, but nearly everybody likes to think, or talk, or laugh about our quaint old customs, superstitions, clothing, language. I know of nothing that so warms up a group of otherwise cold and chilly people like a bit of chatter about folklore, whether the people be learned or average.

As time goes on, we are likely to be more inquisitive about our ways of doing things. We have heard much lately about the "American way of life." Folklore is a study of just this thing in its most primitive and basic form. "Why do we do like we do?" is a folk way of expressing it. Our lives have been so full of labor, of subduing the wilderness, of adjusting ourselves to a very changeable world that we have had little time or inclination to look into the foundations of our customs. With a shorter working week, with a wider range of literacy, with a growing patriotism that fears for the future of our way of life, we have come nearer and nearer to a serious study of racial and national folkways. The folklorist may come to be regarded as not merely an entertaining old fellow who knew our grandparents but as a person working in the bed rock of our cultural backgrounds. People in other countries, some of whom we look down upon, have realized already that there must be something fine about the numerous customs that make a race distinctive. Little Finland, poor but brave and honest, has delved into its racial backgrounds probably more than any other nation of our time. It believes that whatever shows the beginnings of folkways is permanently interesting.

May I take this oppotrunity to acknowledge suggestions and encouragement of the numerous people who have written us. Whatever there may be in the column henceforth will depend much on your interest, for because of it I have planned many another look into the ways we think and believe and fear and hope.

GRANT 4-H CLUB NEWS

The Grant True Blue 4-H club held its fourth meeting on May 6th. The meeting was held at the school house.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Roselea Shinkle. Twenty-one members were present. We had our 4-H club program. It was conducted by the vice-president, Charles Newman. It was very nice. Louise McArthur, Harold Presser, Lewis Kelly and Emma Brady took part in it.

Mrs. Moore told the members about the 4-H club camp. It sounded very interesting. Some of the members are thinking about going.

The members in our 4-H club are sorry that Miss Gillaspie could not be with us. We are looking forward to seeing her at Spring Rally.

Mr. Drake told us, when all the different events would be held during the summer. We set the date for our tour for July 28. We selected Charles Newman and Harold Presser to try and find a place for our picnic.

The project captains gave nice reports as to what they had been doing at their meetings.

There were three leaders present. They were: Mrs. Moore, Mr. Drake, and Mr. J. F. Moore. The meeting was closed with the club pledge.

Money Talks

By
Frederick Stamm, Economist
Director of Adult Education
UNIVERSITY OF LOUISVILLE

One of the most interesting regulatory measures proposed by a government agency is one to curb installment buying. The Federal Reserve Board and Price Administrator, Leon Henderson, have already discussed legislation designed to put a crimp on "buying on time."

To date they have not asked Congress to pass such a law. They feel the imposition of greatly increased income taxes on the lower brackets (the middle class) and higher excise taxes on important installment sales items(such as automobiles, radios, refrigerators, washing machines, etc., might make such legislation unnecessary. These higher taxes will divert a considerable amount of our purchasing power to the government.

The finance companies have voluntarily tightened their cerdit extensions by shortening the time of their loans and demanding a larger down payment. In most cases, finance companies are demanding one-third down payment and requiring customers to pay the balance in 18 months.

Why is the government interested in installment buying? It seems to me there are four important reasons:

First, the government desires to release production capacity for manufacturing war material. In other words, the less you buy, the more left over for national defense. One of the best ways to curtail consumer purchasing without actually cracking down on the public, is to make installment buying more difficult.

Second, the government is anxious to curb inflation. With more money flowing into the pockets of industrial workers and farmers, it is feared the price of consumers' goods will be bid up considerably. Remember, the public has more money to spend, but with more going into war production, there is less to buy. Greater demand, smaller supply always means higher prices.

Third, by curbing present buying, there will be a tremendous demand built up which may be turned loose a year or two from now after the feverish war production is over. This should increase industrial production just when it is needed most.

Fourth, if the government can stop you from buying automobiles and such, there's a good chance you will put your money in defense stamps and bonds.

If you are in the market for automobiles, radios, refrigerators, etc., it will pay you to buy now. Prices are lower than they will be later on; taxes are less than they will be six months form now, and you can get better installment terms.

HEBRON 4-H CLUB

The meeting was brought to order by the vice-president, as our president was absent. The meeting continued by some of the members giving talks on safety. Mrs. Moore told the members about our new 4-H camp. The meeting adjourned by the cheer leader leading us in our pledge.

Louisville Proves Right to Her Claim As Entertainment Center of the South

Recreational Centers Listed

By MERRILL DOWDEN, of The Courier-Journal and Times.

(This is one of a series of articles sponsored by the Kentucky Press Association which in 1941 would tell Kentuckians of Kentucky as Kentucky should tell the world in 1942—Sesquicentennial Year.)

So you're going to Louisville this summer!

Your decision will prove a happy one, we think, for this city of beautiful homes and home of beautiful women has much else to recommend itself either to casual visitor or prospective resident.

And this year you'll find a new Louisville . . . a Louisville bustling with defense activities . . . a prosperous Louisville, with an army of new residents and millions upon millions of dollars in additional spendable income.

Friendly, Gay As Ever.

But you'll also find a Louisville which has lost none of its quaint charm . . . a Louisville as hospitable and friendly and gay as ever.

How, then, to make the most of your time in the metropolis of Kentucky? It all depends upon what you like, and no matter what it may be, in Louisville you will find it.

Let us suppose that you have arrived in Louisville. After partaking of a cuisine such as would delight any gourmet, you probably will be in the mood for an evening's entertainment in one of the several air-conditioned, first-run moving picture houses. Or if your trip happily is during the six-weeks' run of Iroquois Amphitheater, you undoubtedly will avail yourself of the opportunity to see and hear one of Broadway's best musical hits staged in a scenic sylvan glen under the stars in what has been called America's most beautiful outdoor theater. The repertoire for 1941 is particularly appealing, combining glorious music, romance, laughter, action, Broadway's singing and dancing stars, beautiful girls . . . everything to make Louisville a gay summer entertainment center. Outstanding attractions of the season include "Too Many Girls," "Chocolate Soldier," "Rio Rita," "Three Waltzes," "Street Singer," and "Irene."

Plenty of Things to Do.

If, after attending the amphitheater presentation you feel the urge to dance, you will find a number of well-managed, beautifully furnished night clubs with top-ranking orchestras ready to entertain you into the wee hours.

The warm glow of a new day will offer a wealth of outdoor recreational opportunities. Perhaps you would like to golf? The cost is nominal . . . green fee at all municipal courses is 35 cents plus tax per round of nine holes. For eighteen holes, it's 50 cents, plus tax. Municipal courses are in Cherokee, Seneca and Shawnee Parks. Private courses are at Louisville Country Club, Big Spring Golf Club, Standard Club, Audubon Country Club, Owl Creek Club, and Mapother Club.

Tennis? You may play without charge at Cherokee, Tyler, Crescent Hill, Wyandotte, Shawnee, Shelby, Triangle and various other municipal parks, Action At Parkway Field.

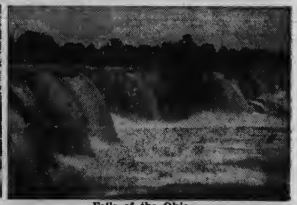
Baseball? If you're lucky enough to catch the Louisville Colonels at home, you'll see some flashy action at Parkway Field, and no mistake! Racing? Whether the meeting is over or not, no visit to Louisville would be complete without an inspection of historic Churchill Downs, home of the Kentucky Derby. Handball? Squash? You'll find excellent courts at the Pendennis Club, Y.M.C.A., and Y.W.C.A. Swimming? Outdoor pools at Crescent Hill, Shelby Park, Fontaine Ferry! Indoor at Henry Clay Hotel, Y.M.C.A. and Y.W.C.A. There also are a number of first-class swimming places and picnic grounds throughout Jefferson County.



Or perhaps you'd like a sightseeing trip! Certainly you'd want to visit the Speed Memorial Auditorium on the University of Louisville campus . . . the Louisville Free Public Library and Museum. . . the Memorial Auditorium . . . Filson Club . . . the river front. And surely you wouldn't miss the opportunity to drive through scenic Cherokee, which often has been called one of the most beautiful parks in the entire United States. After leaving Cherokee, you'll probably insist upon driving through adjacent Seneca to Bowman Field, Louisville's fine municipal airport and home of the Sixteenth and Forty-sixth Bombardment Squadrons.

Then, if time permits, there's always the allure of Fort Knox, headquarters of Uncle Sam's mechanized forces and site of the world's greatest hoard of gold. Or, you may ride across the river for a glimpse of the U. S. Quartermaster Depot and Charlestown, home of the world's largest smokeless powder plant.

Yes, no matter what you like, from horseshoe pitching to hockey . . . from boating to bowling . . . you'll find it in Louisville. For Louisville truly may be called the entertainment center of the South!

Following are detailed directions for making Bordeaux mixture, for tobacco plant beds: Fifty gallons of the mixture treats 200 square yards of plant bed.

1. Fill a clean 50-gallon barrel or iil drum three-fourths full of water strained through a cioth.

2. Thoroly mix 4 pounds of commercial hydrated lime in 3 or 4 gallons of strained water. Hy-50 gallons.

6. Stir the mixture each time the sprinkling can is filled. CAUTION: The water, barrel and other containers should be free from bits of material which will clog the nose of the sprinkler.

drated lime is the powdered lime in paper sacks commonly sold at lumber yards.

3. Dissolve 3 pounds of powderd bluestone in about 4 gallons of water in a wooden bucket or crock. If powdered bluestone, which dissolves readily, is not available, beat the crystals into a fine powder before trying to dissolve them. Your hardware dealer can get powdered bluestone for you.

4. Pour the lime paste into the barrel of water and stir. While stirring vigorously, add the bluestone solution slowly.

5. Add enough water to make The nose should be easily removable for cleaning.

Farmers Beginning to Cut Alfalfa

The Extension Division, College of Agriculture has a leaflet on cutting, curing and storing of hay which is of timely interest at this period of the year. It has the following suggestions on "Curing."

"No more hay should be mowed at one time than can be handled readily without too long exposure to drying after the first is ready to stack or bale. Lespedeza is perhaps the most easily damaged by overcuring. One hour too long in the swath before raking may result in great loss of leaves, that could have been prevented by raking a little sooner. Windrows should be loose.—Dump rakes usually drag the hay into compact piles before dumping, which results in overdrying the outside before the inside is cured.

"Moisture goes out of hay most rapidly while the leaves are wilting but not dry enough to break. If the leaves are buried in the swath or a tight windrow, the stems give up moisture slowly and may be damp enough to cause spoilage in the bale or stack even though part of the hay may be dry enough to rattle. When the stems can be taken in a small bundle about an inch in diameter and easily broken by twisting, the hay is well cured and ready to put up. Experience is necessary to interpret this or any other test farmers may use. Rain on newly cut hay may cause little damage, but after wilting is well on the way the damage from rain may be serious."

CHICKEN-POX

Chicken-pox is an infectious disease characterized by the formation of nodules, scabs or ulcer-like sores, principally on the unfeathered parts of the fowl.

The disease is caused by a virus which is quite resistant to drying and disinfectants.

Chicken-pox is first noticed by the appearance of nodules on the comb, wattles and other unfeathered parts. Feathered parts also may be affected. Cheesy patches are found in the eyes, nostrils, sinuses, mouth, throat and windpipe.

In mild forms chickenpox is first noticed in the flock by a slight decrease in egg production with mortality usually low. In severe outbreaks birds become droopy, lose appetites, become emaciated, egg production ceases and mortality is often very high.

Dampness, drafts, unsanitary surroundings and parasites favor the spread of chicken-pox but are not the cause of the disease. Healthy, vigorous birds kept in clean, dry, well ventilated houses will contract chicken-pox but once the disease is introduced into the thrifty flock, it will not spread as rapidly and mortality will not be as high.

Chicken-pox may be prevented by vaccination. Pullets and cockrels should be vaccinated when they are from 10 to 12 weeks old. In vaccinating, a few feathers are plucked from the front part of the leg and the vaccine rubbed in with a camel's-hair brush.

If there has been an outbreak of chicken-pox in the flock during the preceeding year, it is necessary that the birds be vaccinated before they are put in the laying house. Several poultrymen in the county make it a practice to vaccinate the whole flock each year regardless of whether or not there has been any previous outbreaks of chicken-pox.

I wish to correct an error, which appeared in the paper last week, in regard to the services at Warsaw, Sunday night. The correspondent understood Brother Dunaway was to conduct the service. The writer's mistake.

Mr. and Mrs. Thurman Noel and children spent several days with Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Webster.

UNION

Mr. and Mrs. Winston Mason and son Jimmie Ned spent the week end visiting friends and relatives in Campbellsburg and Sheibyville, Ky.

The W. M. U. of the Baptist church held its regular monthly meeting on Wednesday, May 14, at the home of Mrs. Charles Hedges. There were 19 members and visitors present, and all enjoyed the day together. Our next meeting will be held on June 11th at the home of Mrs. Elaine Greenup.

Marion Waltong made a trip through Gallatin, Carroll and Jefferson counties, this week, and he reports a more severe drought there than here. He says that pastures are hardest hit, but seeding is being delayed due to lack of rain in these and adjoining counties.

Will Doane and two daughters, Miss Nell Jean and Mrs. John Points, were shopping in Cincinnati last Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. James Smith Head had as their guests, their son, James Clinton and wife of Cincinnati, this past week.

We are glad to report that Miss Patricia Rachal is recovering rapidly from the many bruises and severe shock she received in a wreck last week, while riding with friends on Madison Avenue, Covington. Mrs. Peter Hutchinson and Miss Jean Ann Tanner were among the passengers, but escaped injuries.

Bennie Setters has accepted a nice position with the Philip Carey Roofing Co., of Cincinnati, since last Thursday.

Mrs. Elza Hopperton was visiting Mrs. Mary Belle Noe last Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Sally Carver is recovering nicely from severe burns which she received some time ago, at her home on U. S. 42. We are missing her from our midst and hope for her a very speedy recovery.

Our very popular County Court Clerk C. D. Benson was calling on his many friends here last Wednesday afternoon.

The many friends of Mrs. Myrtle Pressor Hicks will be glad to know she is somewhat improved at this time.

The entire graduation exercises at the New Haven auditorium on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday evenings, were splendidly rendered, but the high light was our class night program, in the form of a "Gypsy Harvest Festival," which was enjoyed by a house filled with admiring friends and relatives. Our graduates of the class of '41, are as follows: Miss Catherine Gilpin, Miss Sara Sutton, Miss Rebecca Knox, Miss Jeanette Swartz, Miss Alma Frances Stevens, Bobby Ryle, Meier Taylor, Bobby Shields, Jimmie Day and Preston Tillett. We wish these ten fine young girls and boys the very best of everything.

Mrs. Sam Hicks of Owenton, is visiting relatives and friends in the village.

Mrs. Harry Petit of Hamilton, Ohio, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Jessie Cleek.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Newman entertained Rev. Henry Beach of Covington, on Sunday.

Mrs. Minnie Wallace of Children's hospital, Cincinnati, spent the week end with Mrs. Hannah Edwards and daughter.

Mrs. Ed Radford is convalescing from an operation at Booth Memorial hospital in Covington. We hope that she will soon be able to return home.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cayton of Paint Lick spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Earl Wallick.

Roberta Clifton and sisters entertained, Tuesday evening, Charles Miskell and sisters, Ruby Caldwell, and Nellie Hamonds of Glencoe, Robert Miskell of Covington, Frank Ellis and brothers and David Clifton and mother. The evening was enjoyed in making candy.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Story entertained relatives from Cincinnati, Sunday.

Roberta Clifton was the Thursday evening supper guest of Dallas Wallick and parents.

INDEPENDENCE R-1

"If ye love me, keep my commandments." John 15:14.

This entire community was shocked and saddened when the news was received that Mrs. Sophia Hawkins had passed away at her home near Staffordsburg, last Monday evening. Funeral services were conducted at the home, Thursday afternoin, by her pastor, Rev. E. Kidwell, assisted by Rev. Waldon of the Hickory Grove church. Mrs. Hawkins had been a long and faithful member of the Staffordsburg M. E. church, and will be sadly missed by the church, as well as by her loved ones, neighbors and friends. May God's blessings rest upon the bereaved ones, and may they trust in God, for He is always near in the time of trouble, and will help when all other friends fail.

We are glad to report Charles Ballanger a little improved at St. Elizabeth hospital. We are hoping for much improvement soon.

Rev. E. Kidwell fulfilled his regular appointment at Staffordsburg, Sunday, and with his wife, dined with Miss Emma Yates. Other guests were: Mrs. Raymond Giles and family.

Mrs. Joe Sweeney has been visiting her son, Russell Sweeney, and family, the past week.

Against Interruptions to Your Electric Service

YOU probably know him as Tom or Dick or Joe, a friend and neighbor. There's nothing spectacular about him and he doesn't claim to be a hero, but his role is an important one in seeing that you get dependable electric service.

When Nature goes on a rampage and causes breaks in power lines, he's the fellow who braves driving rain, howling wind or stinging sleet to locate the source of the trouble and restore service with a minimum of delay. Unmindful of personal discomfort and the risk of injury, he is ready day or night to go wherever duty calls. At his disposal, if needed, are motorized line crews, skilled engineers and nearby reserve stocks of materials and supplies. All are part of an organization geared for quick action in emergency.

Every effort is made to prevent interruptions to service, but when occasionally they do occur, in spite of all precautions, it is comforting to know that your electric serviceman is on the job with but one thought in mind—to restore the flow of current as quickly as is humanly possible.

Good Electric Service Doesn't Just Happen

It takes a huge investment in costly generating, transmission and distribution equipment; the expenditure of large sums annually for maintenance and taxes; the ceaseless efforts and constant watchfulness of a trained personnel. It takes all this and more to render good electric service, yet electricity is one of the smallest items in the average household budget.

Mattress Program Now Under Way

The Boone County Mattress program, which is being directed by local extension service agents, Miss Mary Hood Gillaspie, Mrs. Mary Scott Moore and H. R. Forkner, through cooperation of ministration, opened activities at the Agriculture Adjustment Ad- the mattress center, located in the old Burlington High school building on last Thursday. Mrs. Vernon Pope is county supervisor. Volunteer leaders from Homemakers' clubs, are assisting Mrs. Pope.

Twenty mattresses had been completed when the center closed Saturday afternoon. Applications have been received in sufficient number to take up all material on hand. The deadline for making new orders was May 1; therefore, the program will be closed when 240 mattresses and comforts have been completed.

As the work progresses and all applicants in the Burlington area have their mattresses made, the center will be moved to other sections of the county. The Petersburg center will be opened probably the latter part of this week. Work will be done at Grant, Union, Walton, and Verona in the order listed. Notices will be sent to applicants in advance of center openings, so that they may be prepared to work and finish on scheduled time.

Centers will open at 7:00 a. m., C. S. T. Workers are asked to come promptly; wear comfortable work clothing; bring something to wear on hair, and a muslin piece to cover mouth and nose. No smoking is permitted inside of building because of fire hazard. The cotton is being hand fluffed, therefore, the work goes slowly and is time-consuming. No loafers are allowed; there is work for everyone and "cooperation" is the watchword.

NEW RADIO PROGRAM AIRED OVER WHAS

A new radio program, to be known as, "Here and There With the Homemakers," has been initiated by the College of Agriculture through the courtesy of WHAS. This program will be broadcast every Saturday at 11:50 a. m., Central Standard Time, (12:50 p. m. Eastern Standard or Daylight Saving time,) and will be devoted entirely to activities of the homemakers and home demonstration service in Kentucky. In this weekly discussion on homemakers affairs, the plan to give brief accounts of happenings among the homemakers' clubs all over Kentucky, human interests stories of achievements and accomplishments of homemakers, interesting activities and unusual programs presented by these clubs.

On last Saturday, Miss Vivian Curnutt, home improvement specialist, who has come to Boone county monthly since last October, spoke on "What's Been Going on Through the State in Her Improvement Project." Reference was made to the Rug Making project in Boone county and three times during the broadcast she spoke of the work being done in the Homemakers' clubs. Special reference was made to the hooked rug work done by Mrs. Rod Hughes, Walton, and Mrs. Carl Campbell, Hebron. It would be worthwhile for Homemakers and others to bear this broadcast in mind, and tune in next Saturday.

WILLING WORKERS ENTERTAINED AT DOAN HOME

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Doan and Miss Mary Ransler graciously entertained the Willing Workers class at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Doane on Taft Highway, on Tuesday evening, May 20th.

The following guests enjoyed the delightful covered dish supper, which was one of the most important parts of the evening: Mr. and Mrs. Burgess Haley, Rev. and Mrs. T. H. Alderson, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Miller, Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Hall, Mr. and Mrs. Powers Conrad, Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Grubbs, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Ransler, Mrs. W. W. Rouse, Mrs. Shirley Bertram, Mrs. Ralph Carpenter, Mrs. Stanley Bush, Mrs. Gilbert Groger, Mrs. Lula Huey, Mrs. Raymond Gross, Mrs. Louie Schwab and daughter Virginia, Mrs. Estelle Gordon, Miss Helen Ruth Gardner, Cloyd Johnson and the hosts.

LOCAL PEOPLE ATTEND FUNERAL OF RELATIVE

Mr. and Mrs. George P. Nicholson, of South Walton, and their daughter, Mrs. Dewey Benson of Burlington, attended the funeral of Mr. Nicholson's nephew, Frank Chase, which was held at the Highland cemetery, Monday afternoon, at two o'clock.

Mr. Chase died at his home in Louisville, after an illness of three months.

Services, in charge of his pastor, were held at the church of which the deceased was a member, the Masonic Lodge of Louisville having a part in the service.

The body, accompanied by his widow, his daughter of Lansing, Mich., and other relatives and friends, was then brought, by a special coach of the L. & N. to Covington, where they were met by friends, and members of the Covington Masonic Lodge. They proceded from there to Highland, where services were conducted by the Covington Masons.

Mr. Chase, who was 60 years old, had been an engineer on the L. & N. for the past 35 years. He was a splendid gentleman, a loyal christian, a loving husband and father, and was beloved not only by his family and intimate friends, but by his fellow workmen, and all those with whom he associated.

He was a brother of the late C. C. Chase, president of the First National Bank of Cincinnati.

Sixty-six men in Union county are keeping complete farm accounts for the year.

SENIOR B. Y. P. U. FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

"Following the Great Physician" is the topic of the denominational program for Sunday evening, May 25th, in the Baptist Young People's Union.

Group captain in charge, Geraldine Elliott.

Meditation—

Lord Bacon wrote, "It is heaven upon earth to have one's mind move in charity (love), rest in providence, and turn upon the poles of truth." Antonius said, "Neither learning nor fame nor wealth nor pleasure alone gives happiness; but a right set of principles for thought and practice, among which must be love and justice, temperance, and benevolence."

Within you, welling up, by day and night,
Say not, "I love the Lord, unless you find
A love, strong, full and deep, for all mankind.

DOUBLE FUNERAL AT JONESVILLE

Double funeral services were conducted at the Jonesville Baptist church, Tuesday afternoon, May 20, for two prominent Grant county women, Mrs. Maggie Stewart and Mrs. Mary Nancy Beatty.

Mrs. Stewart, who was 69 years, 3 months and 20 days of age, died at St. Elizabeth hospital, Covington, Saturday, May 17, following an operation for tumor.

She was the daughter of the late Jackson and Mary Mayers Dell.

Mrs. Stewart is survived by her husband, E. B. Stewart, of near Jonesville; six sons, Bradley of Sparta, Edgar of Detroit, Mich., Letchel of Louisville, Estill, Andrew J ,and R. C. Stewart, all of Jonesville; a number of grandchildren and great granchildren.

Mrs. Mary Nancy Beatty, 87, passed away at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Lizzie Herndson, South Main St., Williamstown, Sunday, May 18, as a result of a fall which she suffered several day previous, in which she sustained a briken hip. A stroke resulted, and death followed closely.

Mrs. Beatty was born in Grant county, on Sept. 25, 1853. Since the death of her husband, Robert Beatty, several years ago, she had made her home with her children.

She leaves two daughters, Mrs. Lizzie Herndon of Williamstown, and Mrs. James Houes of Jonesville; two sons, John and A. R. Beatty of Jonesville; two brothers, Mr. E. Stewart of Goldvalley, and Emett Stewart of Indiana; and several grandchildren.

The double services, at which Rev.· G. C. Mullens, assisted by Rev. John Ransdell, officiated, were attended by a large concourse of friends and relatives, who held these two christian, neighborly and devout mothers in the deepest love and admiration. Both were faithful members of the church from where last rites were conducted. Coates & Stewart had charge of funeral arrangements.

BAPTIST Y. W. A. ENTERTAINS WITH BANQUET, FRIDAY

The Grace McBride Y. W. A. of the Walton Baptist church, assisted by the Missionary Society, entertained the senior young people at a banquet, Friday night.

Green and white were used as the color scheme, and the table, which was beautifully decorated in these hues, was centered with white peonies and green and white tapers, and at each place was a program. These were in the shape of small flower pots, and were green.

After the sumptuous banquet, a very interesting program was given. There were talks by Rev. C. J. Alford and Rev. R. S. Moore, of Independence, the latter giving the main address of the evening; and Miss Grace Weller favored the group with a lovely piano solo.

Those present were: The Misses Martha Brown, Mildred Soden, Grace Weller, Geraldine Elliott and Lucy Pennington, Mrs. Bryan Rector, Mrs. R. E. Ryle, Mrs. Wm. Soden, Mrs. Levi Pennington and Mrs. Clifford Powers; Messrs. Wm. Taylor, Geo. Heginbotham, Leon Pennington, Harold Soden, Rev. R. S. Moore, Rev. C. J. Alford and Bryan Rector.

BURLINGTON HOMEMAKERS MEET AT COURT HOUSE

The regular meeting of the Burlington Homemakers, which was held at the court house May 15, was, as usual a very interesting and most helpful session.

It was a meeting in which several chairman had a lot to give us. The Citizenship chairman suggested ways in which the clean-up campaign committee might get greater response.

Sponsored by the County Citizenship committee, a Silver Tea will be had in the Florence Christian church on July 31, 1941. Mrs. Ann Stewart and Mrs. Lane will be the speakers for the afternoon. This promises to be interesting and entertaining. To hear an author of one's own community is quite a treat. Many of us are familiar with her, "Let the Earth Speak."

Mrs. Lane is of the committee on Beautification of Highways, and as our exterior Beautification project is so much alive, a lot will be gained from her talk.

While this seems such a good program and a full one also there is yet another "highlight." There are those who have been interested in the "Lloyd Home" and who have been eager to go through it. On this day the home will be opened. Those who have read "String-Town on the Pike" and other John Uri Lloyd's books, will appreciate this opportunity.

Those books may soon be available to persons who have not read them. "Burlington Homemakers" is to have a lending library from which books may be obtained very reasonably. Books may now be obtained from the State Library. Any book may be kept in the club for two months. The reading chairman has a list of books covering all from which to choose. This project will prove to be educational and also afford relaxation, so should be heartily accepted.

The chairman of Citizenship stressed the fact that the local Red Cross is urgently in need of knitters and women who can sew. There is an allotment of yarn on hand, which the Red Cross chairman is anxious to give out to women who are willing to knit. Women who cannot knit and had rather not learn, but who are willing to do their bit, can help by sewing. There is a large quota of children's dresses on hand. These are simple patterns and the material is that which is easily handled. Thus, we are urged to put our shoulders against the wheel. Get in touch with Mrs. Cropper and Mrs. Gaines, respectively, concerning same.

At this time of year the ladies start thinking and talking trips and tours. Much time was given over to the discussion, but no decision made, nevertheless a good time is in view sometime in July.

Knitted rugs, was the subject for the day. No lady could see these quaint and originally designed rugs without hoping to make one.

The lesson was well presented by the assistant project leader, in the absence of the leader.

Anyone, who is interested in becoming a Homemaker, will be welcomed at the next meeting, which will be the first Thursday in June.

CONSTANCE 4-H

The Constance 4-H held its fourth meeting at the Constance school, Monday, May 12, with Mr. Drake. and Mrs. Moore.

MRS. DICKMAN ENTERTAINS RYLAND HOMEMAKERS

Mrs. Wm. Dickman entertained members of the Ryland Homemakers' club at her home in Covington, Tuesday, May 13.

The meeting was opened by members repeating the Lord's Prayer, and singing songs.

Mrs. Wm. Dickman, president, presided over the business meeting. A report of the tour of places of interest in Cincinnati, taken recently by members of the club was given by several members who attended.

Mrs. Clarence Armstrong gave a lesson on shrubbery and how and when it should be pruned.

A discussion of present world conditions followed the lesson on Citizenship, given by Mrs. Wm. Damon.

And all members agreed that the freedom of our country is something for which everyone, young and old, must work, and strive to keep.

The lesson on foods was given by Mrs. Edward Houser. She discussed proteins and their important place in our every day diet.

These members enjoyed the hospitality of Mrs. Dickman: Mrs. Clarence Armstrong, Mrs. John Murchison, Mrs. Oliver Gee, Mrs. J. C. Brown, Mrs. Edward Houser, Mrs. Alfred Rich, Mrs. Harry Rubbe, Mrs. Wm. Damon.

The June meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Harry Rubbe on East Nineteenth Street.

We are planning to go to Spring Rally Day at Burlington.

Most of the boys and girls have their projects started and hope to make good progress.

The minutes were read by our secretary. Bill Maegley made the motion to adjourn; Robert Snow seconded it. Motion carried. We adjourned by repeating the club pledge.

EARLY HISTORY OF BOONE COUNTY

—o—

By A. M. Yealey

—o—

NOTE—A few years ago, the Walton Advertiser published a great number of articles entitled, "Early History of Boone County," written by Prof. A. M. Yealey, of Florence. Mr. Yealey is preparing a book on the "Early History of Boone County," and from now on the Advertiser will publish weekly, a chapter which will be included in his book.

The first issue will be a continued chapter of several years ago, which appeared in this paper in reference to Major John P. Gaines, who once lived at Richwood.

—o—

When Mr. Gaines received his appointment as Governor of the Oregon Territory, he owned a large farm at Richwood, and hesitated quite awhile, as he was in good circumstances and pleasantly situated, and finally General Taylor led him to accept the office. He sold his farm and all his personal property, intending to make Oregon his future home, and took with him $75,000 all in silver currency.

His family consisted of wife, son and two daughters, all of whom he took with him, and set out on his journey to New York City, where he took the store ship, "Supply." As he proceeded to his destination in 1850, yellow fever became prevalent on the ship as they were near the Brazilian coast. The two daughters were attacked by this deadly pestilence and one of them died when near the coast line of the Island of St. Cathrines.

This Island, which is about 30 miles long and 10 miles wide, lies about four miles from the Brazillian coast, and in 1850 it had a population of 30,000. The capitol of the Island is Dosterro, and it has a population of 8,000. Very few of the people at that time could read or write, in fact, their Island was a wilderness of coffee and orange trees, shrubs and foliage that never felt the frost.

During that period our Consular Agent was Robert S. Catheast, a native of Massachusetts, once a captain of a whaler. Misfortune in early life drove him in exile, and here he had made his home without seeing any of his former friends. Here he married a Brazilian woman, and reared a large family, and became very wealthy. Mr. Gaines had the ship to anchor here, and got in contact with Mr. Catheast (our agent) and Mr. Catheast made arrangements for her grave on the back of his estate, but while this procedure was taking place, the other daughter also died, following her sister to her last home in a land of strangers. Mr. Gaines was deeply affected, and seemed to sink into a state of deep depression, encountering such a blow before reaching the scene of his future labors and life. He did not mark the graves with a fence or a tombstone, expecting soon to have the remains removed to his new home in Oregon, but they still remain there and the next chapter will enlighten the reader to a fuller concept of this tragedy, if so it could be called.

-that man IN OUR NEIGHBORHOOD!

I DARED NOT LEAVE THE HOUSE

I had just put the children to bed and turned out the lights, when the youngest started to cough. With confidence, I went to the medicine cabinet — the bottle was empty!

I knew from experience the child would grow worse through the night unless relieved, but my husband was away — I could not leave the house.

In this predicament, I thought of "that man", (our neighborhood druggist) and phoned immediately — then in what seemed but a few moments, I heard welcome footsteps — the filled prescription had arrived.

Yes, our neighborhood druggist fills prescriptions with infinite care and also carries a fine line of cosmetics and proprietary products. For women, he usually recommends Vatona Tablets to aid in the relief of those trying discomforts of the menstrual period — this may be just what you need — at least get in touch with your druggist.

Improved Uniform International SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

BROADENING CHRISTIAN HORIZONS: PETER'S VISION

LESSON TEXT—Acts 11:5-18.
GOLDEN TEXT—Then Peter opened his mouth, and said, Of a truth I perceive that God is no respecter of persons.—Acts 10:34.

"The best argument for Christianity is a Christian" (Henry Drummond). Peter presented just such an argument when, early in the history of Christianity, there arose a difference of opinion regarding his ministry to a Gentile and his family. The stumbling stone of offense became a stepping stone to higher things, leading to the place of broader horizons. Peter, instead of appealing to his apostolic authority or asserting his position, simply related what God had done. He presented the best proof that God had actually been at work; namely, a redeemed soul.

We may learn from this lesson that the way to broadened horizons and greater usefulness for the church is by

I. A Vision of God's Plan (vv. 5-10).

All men are equally precious in God's sight. God taught Peter very effectively that, whether Gentile or Jew, the Lord is "not willing that any should perish, but that all should come to repentance" (II Pet. 3:9).

When God speaks we do well to give heed to His message, even though it cuts across our ideas and prejudices, as it often does. It is not our plan that is important; it is God's plan and purpose. As we walk in that way we shall have

II. An Experience of God's Power (vv. 11-15).

The Holy Spirit had fallen on the Gentiles and they actually had been saved. Is it not singular that in the early church they could hardly believe that a Gentile could be saved? Now we are astonished if a Jew is saved! Why will we in our unbelief grieve the Holy One of Israel?

The all-powerful gospel of the grace of God is still saving men and women, Jews and Gentiles, from their sins. Have you seen it happen? It is a great inspiration to faith and service. God is ready so to encourage us—He is the same today as He was when He sent Peter to Cornelius. Are we willing to run His errands, proclaim His message? To do so we need

III. An Appreciation of God's Word (v. 16).

The best way to learn the meaning of God's Word is to use it, live it, obey it. "If any man will do his will, he shall know of the doctrine, whether it be of God" (John 7:17). Peter had learned anew that God's Word meant just what it said. We who are God's servants should believe His Word and act on it in faith.

Observe that Cornelius had gathered a group in his household to hear the Word of God (Acts 10:27, 33). Could we not do the same? "Cannot each calculate with exactness some time and place where the gospel is to be preached, and is it not possible to bring thither one's relatives and friends? Secondly, when present in a place of worship, cannot each be prepared to say, 'We are all here present'—all, family and friends, mind as well as body; 'in the sight of God'—not to be seen by others, not conscious so much of others as of the presence of God; 'to hear all things'—not to be amused or to sleep; 'that have been commanded thee of the Lord'—not to listen to human conjecture or the exploiting of doubts, but to receive a positive message which is delivered in a reverent spirit and with the prophetic formula: 'Thus saith the Lord.' What would happen were all Christian churches filled with such audiences?" (Charles R. Erdman).

This brings us to what is most important of all in broadening our spiritual horizons.

IV. An Understanding of God's Love (vv. 17, 18).

God's love is for all people. Since He has not raised any barriers of race, creed, color, class, or social position, it is not for His followers, and assuredly not for His servants, to set up hindering restrictions which He does not countenance. If God intended to save Gentiles, Peter wanted to be an instrument in His hand, not a hindrance in His way. One of the needs of our day is that those doing God's work should not withstand Him and His love. He who is the same yesterday, today, and forever, is ready to work as powerfully today as He did in the days of Peter and Paul, or of Finney and Moody. Let us give Him liberty to work in and through us, not as we may wish, but as He desires. Who are we that we should withstand God?

Goal of Life

Oh, yet we trust that, somehow,
Good will be the final goal of ill,
That nothing walks with aimless feet,
That not one life shall be destroyed,
Or cast as rubbish to the void,
When God has made the pile complete.—Tennyson.

MORGANSVILLE

"Today if ye hear His voice, harden not your hearts," as the door of opportunity may soon close.

In those hours when life moves serenely forward over a tranquil sea, and all goes on quietly and comfortably with us, most of us are satisfied with a casual contact with Christ, but when twilight deepens, black storm clouds gather and the fountains of the great deep are broken up, no anchor holds but the one that grips the Rock of Ages and none but the promises of God can comfort lonely troubled hearts.

Most warmly welcomed on Tuesday morning, were Mrs. Jasper N. Williams, her attractive daughter, Mrs. Edith Williams Turner and bright little grandson, Richard. Again, are we indebted to Mrs. Williams for giving roses, while their fragrance may be inhaled. Deeply appreciated were lovely gifts of luscious strawberries, canned fruit, tomato juice and grape juice. Truly, her noble example is worthy of emulation!

"She had only passed from mortal sight,
Beyond the silence of life's mystic bar,
To us is left the shadows and the night,
To her the radiance of the morning star."

When Mrs. Mary Klein of near Kenton, was called from earth's shadows into the unclouded presence, a few months ago, there was hushed the voice of a noble character and in the circle of Christian there is a void that cannot easily be filled. As silently as the night glides into day in the eventide of her beautiful life with its graciousness and gentleness of manner, has she passed on to receive of her Maker the crown of life promised to those who are faithful to His cause. She knew that whether in "green pastures, beside still waters," or "in the valley of the shadow," there would ever be a "rod and staff to comfort," and "goodness and mercy would follow her all the days of her life." How deep would be the grief over the grave did not the rainbow of Christian hope span the dark gulf between time and eternity. Fidelity to her church and home was indeed typical of Mrs. Klein's faithfulness to life's duties as a whole. Her genial personality radiated in circles of admiring friends, and the lives that touched her's were made sweeter by the contact. Her quiet devotion was as seed sown in good soil which has yielded a golden harvest in the lives of those who had known her. Blessed is the heritage of memories she has left to those who follow in her footsteps, "going about doing good."

In peace and serenity she descended the sunset slope at the home of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. John Riggs, where every comfort was given, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Riggs and bright little son, Glenn, also contributing to her happiness, and with the kind thoughtfulness of her sons and their families, her last days were her brightest and best.

"So live that when thy summons come to join the innumerable throng which moves to that mysterious realm where each shall take his chamber in the silent halls of death, that you may be sustained and soothed by an unfaltering trust and approach the grave as one who wraps the drapery of his couch about him and lies down to pleasant dreams."

Frank Browning is the eighth farmer in Adair county to enroll in the state ton-litter contest this year.

Why He Drinks

The crux of the whole liquor question is "Why do people drink?"

A great deal of thought is being given to the various answers to this query at National W.C.T.U. headquarters, where the fight against alcohol has never slackened.

It is realized that a few persons drink because they think it is smart, because they do not wish to be conspicuous among drinking friends, or because they lack the strength of character to say "No." In other words social pressure makes up their minds for them.

But many drinkers look upon alcohol as a means of temporary escape from reality. They mistakenly think drinking makes them feel better, whereas it really only anesthetizes their mental perceptions and makes them less able to feel anything.

As Dr. A. C. Ivy of the Northwestern University Medical School has pointed out, "Alcohol gives temporary relief from worry; abolishes mental tension; relieves a feeling of inferiority; makes a weak person feel strong, an ignorant person feel smart, a poor person feel rich, an oppressed person feel free, a bad person feel good, and makes one imagine himself a good driver who may be potentially a motor car murderer."

All these sensations are directly traceable to the narcotic effect of alcohol, which deadens the power to feel pain or care or responsibility and deceives the drinker.

"Alcohol depresses the critical and most sensitive faculties of the brain," says Dr. Ivy. "Alcohol disturbs motor control. Alcohol affects memory and learning."

There would be much less drinking, scientists and psychiatrists believe, if drinkers in their sober moments would submit themselves to searching self-analysis as to the motives impelling them to turn to alcohol.

"Not a Solution"

"Drowning sorrows in alcohol" is an old excuse for drinking, but no sorrows were ever permanently disposed of in a saloon. Back they come, usually in aggravated form, when sobriety returns, and often with a lot of new ones brought on by the "cure."

"It is very poor policy to play with fire or with firewater," says Dr. Ivy.

Doings of The REDS

The Reds are taking inventory of themselves as they prepare to wind up their home stand. They were to meet the Boston Braves in a three-game series that started Sunday and continued through Tuesday, then were to take on the New York Giants Wednesday and Thursday. Wednesday is on the schedule as a ladies' day.

Following the Thursday game, the Reds will head for Chicago, where they will battle the Cubs in a four-game series in three days. A doubleheader is scheduled for Saturday. This will be the Reds' first twin bill of the season.

Monday, May 26, the Reds will be back on their home lot for a night game against the Pittsburgh Pirates. Preceding this night game will be the customary spectacular fireworks display, and shows by two bands, in addition to the regular Crosley Field band. The Ensign John L. Schrimper band of 52 pieces will maneuver for ten minutes starting at 8 o'clock, whereupon the Sons of the American Legion Norman Barnes Post No. 70 Drum and Bugle Corps will put on another ten-minute exhibition. Fireworks are scheduled to go on at 8:25. Game time is set for 8:45.

Tuesday, following the night game, will be an off day, but the Reds and Pirates will be back at it again on Wednesday, May 28, which will be ladies' day. May 29 and 30 (Memorial Day) the Reds will be in St. Louis. They will return here for a one-day stop with the Cardinals on Saturday, May 31, then head for the East, where they will remain until they open their second long home stand against the Giants on Saturday, June 14.

General Manager Warren Giles and Manager Bill McKechnie have announced their plans for the future, which includes refusal to stand pat with players, who, in their opinion, are not up to the standard they set. At the same time, however, they well know that no player can be replaced until one of greater capabilities is obtained as a replacement. Their object is to strengthen the team, not weaken it.

A step in the right direction was made during the week when they purchased Outfielder Ernie Koy from the St. Louis Cardinals and recalled Third Baseman Chuck Aleno from Indianapolis, where he had been playing on option. Koy and Aleno broke in right. Each smashed two hits in his first appearance and made a fine general impression. Koy was given the leftfield spot, while Aleno was instituted at third until Bill Werber, the regular hot corner guardian, recovers from his injured right knee. That knee, incidentally, is responding to treatment. It won't be long before Bill is back there.

J. E. Moore is preparing to furnish to consumers in Perry county at least 1,000 gallons of strawberries.

Watch Your Kidneys!
Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste
Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.
Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.
Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.
There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

They're Saying No!
Beer retailers are frequently asked to violate the law. But they're saying "No"—because they realize that a clean, law-abiding establishment is the best "insurance policy" their business can have.
That is why most beer retailers want to, and do, co-operate with the Kentucky brewing industry's self-regulation program. They want to be among the great majority of reputable retailers who know that good conduct is good business.
You can help us—by patronizing only the reputable places where beer is sold and by reporting to us any objectionable conditions you may observe.

GOVERNOR JOHNSON PROCLAIMS "CHINA SUNDAY"

"China Sunday," proclaimed by Governor Keen Johnson for May 25, marks the combined appeal of China relief agencies to secure aid for the 50,000,000 refugees who have been driven into the interior of the country by armed aggression. In its campaign to raise $5,000,000 between now and July 31, United China Relief seeks to supply food, shelter, medicine and rehabilitation to the one-ninth of the entire Chinese population made homeless.

Donations may be handled through local church committies or may be sent to Mrs. E. J. Weeks, Berea, Ky., Field Representative for China Relief in Kentucky and the Southern States.

TRAINING MEETING FOR MATTRESS MAKERS

A training meeting for Homemakers volunteer leaders in the mattress program, was held at the local mattress center on Wednesday, May 14. The day was spent in learning to make the cotton mattresses. Two demonstration mattresses were made; thus each one present had a chance to participate in all the detail procedures necessary to complete a mattress. The training class was conducted by Mrs. Mary Scott Moore, substitute home demonstration agent.

It was pointed out in the discussion that this is a cooperative program to help ones self while helping another. Those who make a mattress will have worked for it. The small fee paid was necessary to defray expenses included in setting up the centers and in carrying on the program. The cotton being used was purchased by the government as surplus cotton to aid the cotton farmer of the South in securing a living wage for his product.

The program will give non-members of the Homemakers clubs an opportunity to benefit by the worthwhile information available through that organization and the University of Kentucky Extension Service. The standards considered good in selection and care of bed clothing will be the basis of the educational work in connection with the project. It is the desire of the Homemakers, that members will be added to the club rolls because of benefits derived from the mattress making program.

Leaders, who attended the training school were: Mrs. Vernon Pope, Mrs. Grover Jarrell, Burlington; Mrs. A. B. Ligon, Mrs. Huey Aylor, Mrs. Anna Engle, Mrs. Marshall, Bullittsville; Mrs. Chas. Klopp, Miss Edna Berkshire, Petersburg; Mrs. Lorie Morith, Florence; Mrs. Christina Kirtley, Miss Marion Rogers, Grant; Mrs. Maude Wilson, Mrs. Pearl Lamn, Mrs. Sibbia Gordon, Mrs. Walter King, Verona; Mrs. Flora Tanner, Hebron; Mrs. Mary Wilson, Mrs. Ida Mae Ryle, Rabbit Hash.

Laurel county farmers are growing 175 acres of potatoes and 38 acres of onions for northern markets.

GREATEST SHOW ON EARTH WILL HEAD THIS WAY

With Mr. and Mrs. Gargantua the Great, the world's most publicized gorilla couple, as its superfeature, the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus will exhibit in Cummingsville, on June 7th and 8th, bringing to that city 1,600 people, 50 elephants, 1,009 menagerie animals and hundreds of horses. The performances will start at 2:15 and 8:15 P. M., with the doors open at 1 and 7 P. M., admitting the public to the radically restyled menagerie, gorilla tent, horse fair and big top—all re-designed by Norman Bel Geddes, of New York World's Fair Futurama fame.

Among the outstanding features are: the new fairyland fantasy, "Old King Cole and Mother Goose," designed and costumed by Bel Geddes, with ensembles staged by the famous Albertina Rasch, Hollywood and New York musical show dance director; Alfred Court's three mixed groups of performing wild animals of almost every known specie, appearing simultaneously in three steel arenas; the new Birdland aerial ballet, starring Elly Ardelty and costumed by Max Weldy of Paris; the many aerial and novelty acrobatic troupes from South America, headed by the three famous Flying Diego-Fernandez acts; the new high school and liberty horse offerings, headed by Viscomte Roberto Vasconcellos, the famous Riding Cristianis; the great Truzzi, juggler; the three Flying Concello troupes, with Antoinette. In all, 800 performers.

DONATIONS MADE TO DEARBORN COUNTY FAIR

Leonard Haag, secretary of The Dearborn County Fair, Lawrenceburg, Ind., which will be held one month later this year, the week of Aug. 18 to 23rd inclusive, announced this week that R. N. Nanz, Manager of The Old Quaker Co., Mr. C. O. Brein, president of The A. D. Cook Co., Incp., advised the Fair Board that their respective Firms would again make their usual contributions to the racing purses. M. F. Cook, manager of The Joseph F. Seagarm Co., advised that in keeping with their policy of encouraging raising better farm crops and animals, will offer $10 for the best ten ears of yellow corn, $10.00 for the best one-half peck of rye, and $10.00 for the best 4-H hog shown at this year's Fair. This splendid co-operation of the Lawrenceburg firms help make The Dearborn County Fair, the leading County Fair in this section of the Country and the American Legion is grateful for this splendid support.

BIG BONE

This community was visited by a nice rain Friday night, but much more is needed.

Tom Black was one of the first around here to set tobacco.

Joe Noell sold some nice shoats to Sam Kite and Ross Atha.

Mrs. Sophie Jones of Florence, and Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Jones of Erlanger, attended church here Sunday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Doolin and son of New Haven were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Marsh and family.

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Moore are deeply concerned over the continued illness of their little son, Glenn, who is atSt. Elizabeth hospital in Covington.

Mr. and Mrs. Claud Black and daughter, Ella Ruth, and Mr. Conner Carroll and daughter, Catherine, returned home Saturday evening, after spending the past ten days with relatives and friends in Florida, and attending the wedding of Miss Bertha Newberry.

Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Beach and Mrs. Myria Odor of Napoleon, and Mrs. Omer Atha and children, Tommy and Glenna Rose spent Thursday with Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Robbins.

The Hamilton High school Seniors, with the exception of Hansell Williamson, accompanied by Prof. and Mrs. R. Z. Asbury, Mr. and Mrs. Steve Gabbard, and the Misses Norma Powers, Margie Miller and Londalea Ryle, returned home from a week's sightseeing tour of eight states and the District of Columbia. Some points of interest were: Washington, D. C., Gettysburg Battlefield, Naval Academy at Annapolis, the grave of the Unknown Soldier and Arlington Cemetery, the Smoky Mountains, Norris Dam, Cumberland Falls, Virginia Beach, and others too numerous to mention. Everyone came home well pleased with their trip and decided that as necessary as schooling is, much can be learned outside the school room.

GREYHOUND OFFICIAL DIES

Roy Forman, 50 years of age, secretary and treasurer of the Southeastern Greyhound Lines, and director of the corporation, died early Saturday morning, at St. Joseph hospital in Lexington, after an illness of several months.

Mr. Forman was born in Burbon county, a son of the late William A. and Annie Tucker Forman, and moved to Fayette county about 40 years ago.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Grace Steele Forman; a daughter, Mrs. James E. Henry of Lexington; two granddaughters, Marcia and Mary Elizabeth Henry.

He was a member of the Victory Christian church, at Lexington, Lodge No. 1, F. and A. M. and Lexington Lodge No. 128 Odd Fellow. He was a past grand patriarch of Kentucky Odd Fellows.

Mr. Forman was employed by the Lexington- Utilities Co. in 1908, and remained with that firm until 1929, when he became assistant secretary-treasurer of the Consolidated Coach Corporation. In 1934 he was elected secretary-treasurer and director of the Greyhound Lines. He lived at his beautiful country home on the Surr Pike, near Greendale.

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon at the Keer funeral home, Lexington. Floral tributes were numerous and beautiful. Burial took place in the Lexington cemetery.

LAND USE PLANTING COMMITTEES COMPLETE REPORT

The Boone county Land Use Planning Program committee have completed their preliminary work with the holding of this second series of meetings in nine communities. The final meeting was held at Constance on last Tuesday evening.

A summary of the work of the committees to date, will be published in the near future in mimeographed bulletin form, according to H. R. Forkner, county agent. This summary will be supplied all committeemen assisting in the meetings and to others, on request.

Land use planning has for its purpose the identifying of local agricultural problems on the basis different soil types, based on the experience of leading farmers residing in these soil type areas. Each soil type, regardless of community boundaries, is grouped together after they have been outlined by the community committeemen. A marked resemblance of farm problems on any one soil type is found regardless of community boundaries. The survey will cover a period of years and gives promise of uncovering solutions of many basic agricultural problems from angles that have not heretofore been clearly understood.

VERONA 4-H CLUB NEWS

The Verona 4-H club held its third monthly meeting, May 13, 1941, at the Verona school house. We were very sorry not to have our secretary, Mary Hope Chipman, present, because of sickness. Our president, Vernon Myers, appointed Flossie Locke as secretary. The roll was called and we were very sorry to have only 17 of our members present. We were glad to have Mrs. Chipman with us.

Mr. Drake made a very nice talk on the following date: Tour, Aug. 1; Rally Day, May 24; County Fair, Aug. 24, State Fair; 4-H Club Camp, August 9-15.

We were glad to hear that Miss Gillaspie is improving rapidly and will soon be with us again, though we will be sorry to lose Mrs. Moore.

We were led in our club pledge by our cheer leader, Virginia Rose Clemons, and we adjourned.

—Club Reporter, David E. King

DEFENSE COMMITTEE MEETS

The county agricultural and nutritional National Defense committee met at Brulington Tuesday, May 20th, according to H. B. Forkner, county agent.

The National Defense needs in agricultural production and more efficient use of foods in supplying the Nation with a better diet, were outlined by Mary Hood Gillaspie, home agent, and local leaders.

Commencement Exercises Held

A large crowd filled the auditorium at the Walton-Verona school last Friday night, to witness the final Commencement Week activities, the receiving of cherished diplomas.

As the processional, "Pomp and Circumstance" was being played, the class took their respective places on the platform, after which Rev. D. E. Bedinger offered the invocation.

Dr. L. G. Kennamer, of the State Teachers' College at Richmond, delivered the commencement address. He reminded the class that they are living in an age of marvelous opportunities; an age in which modern conveniences and modern scientific advancements are such a help on the road through this life. He admonished the class, first, to tithe on their earnings; then take out another ten per cent for savings, and with the remaining 80 per cent, to get the best out of life.

Supt. W. F. Coop very fittingly presented Miss Evelyn Coffman, as valedictorian of the class, with a pin, in recognition of her scholastic achievements. This is a custom which has been observed for many years. He then presented the diplomas to the graduates. Rev. J. H. Talley pronounced the benediction.

Music for the occasion was furnished by an instrumental trio from Cincinnati.

The Advertiser joins relatives and friends in wishing each one of these graduates, happiness and much success in their chosen careers, as they wend their separate ways down the paths of life.

A. M. Yealey to Be Candidate for Judge

In next week's issue of the Advertiser will be found the official announcement of A. M. Yealey, Florence Precinct, for the office of County Judge, subject to the action of the Democratic primary, Saturday, August 2nd, 1941.

Mr. Yealey was formerly a teacher in the Boone County schools, having been the principal of the Florence High school from 1901 to 1930. Then he entered a business career and disposed of this business in March of this year and since then he is continuing writing the Early History of Boone County, which he hopes, in the near future, to publish in book form.

Mr. Yealey's statement is as follows:

"I hereby enter the race for County Judge of Boone County, with the understanding that I am not under any obligation to anyone. That if I am successful and elected, I shall give the County of Boone a business-like administration, the same as I did while principal of the schools I taught, or in business for myself."

REVIVALS TO START AT EAST BEND CHURCH, SUNDAY

DEATH CLAIMS ATWOOD RESIDENT

George W. Alexander, aged 92, passed away Sunday, May 25, at his home at Atwood, Kenton county, of infirmities of old age. He had been feeble for some time.

The deceased was born in Grant county, and was well and favorably known in this neighborhood.

Mr. Alexander leaves to mourn their loss, two sons, Robert of Atwood, and Ollie of Elliston; one daughter, Mrs. Effie Lambert of Granite City, Ill.; and 13 grandchildren.

Rev. D. E. Bedinger conducted funeral services at the Pleasant View church on Tuesday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock. Burial took place in the Pleasant View cemetery. Chambers & Grubbs were in charge of funeral arrangements.

J. L. Williamsan Passes May 21

Rev. Wm. Smith officiated at funeral services, Friday afternoon at 2:00 p. m. for James L. Williamson, 77, who passed away at his residence at Mackville, Boone county, Wednesday, May 21. He had been suffering the past two years with carcinoma of the face.

The body was brought to Chambers & Grubbs funeral home for preparation, and was later removed to the home from where the final rites were conducted.

Mr. Williamson, who was a well known Boone county farmer, having been born and reared in this county, was a faithful member of the Bellevue Christian church, and the F. & A. M.

The deceased leaves his widow, Mrs. May Williamson, two sons, Sam and Robert; seven daughters, Nellie Ryle, Sadie Hegletower, Mary Williamson, Fleta Rector, Ruth Rector, Beulah Philson and Thelma Johnson; 17 grand children.

Chambers & Grubbs had charge of funeral arrangements.

SENIOR B. Y. P. U. FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

"Christ is the Light of the World," is the topic of the doctrinal program for Sunday evening, June 1st, in the Baptist Young People's Union.

Aim: To present Jesus Christ as the Supreme Revealer in matters of fundamental importance to men of every age.

Harold Soden is Group Captain in charge.

Meditation: "Old age will write failure across any life that does not draw its central and enduring qualities from the living spring of Divine righteousness." Sin is a debt that must be paid. If we do not trust Christ to pay it for us, we must pay it with our own lives. ys

"Change and decay all around I see;
O Thou who changest not, abide with me."

4-H Domonstration Teams to Compete

Two Boone County 4-H demonstration teams will compete in the District Contest at Dry Ridge, Friday, May 30, 8:00 a. m., according to H. B. Drake. Both of these teams are from the New Haven Club and were selected competatively at the 4-H Spring Rally, held at Burlington, Saturday, May 24.

Meier Taylor and James Stephenson will compete in the Agricultural practice contest with heir demonstration "Method of Controlling Leaf Diseases of Tobacco." Wanda Pennington and Mary Katherine Shields will demonstrate "Making Tomato Soups Without Soda," in the home practice demonstration contest. Winners in the District Contest will be entitled to a free trip to Junior Week, University of Kentucky, June 9-14. While there they will compete in a state-wide contest. Local 4-H leaders, John Masters and Mrs. Walter Pennington, were responsible for the training of these teams.

FARM SOLD

W. B. Johnson sold his 200-acre "Thomas A. Johnson homstead," on Verona Road, to T. C. Cane of Ft. Mitchell. Possession was given at once. "Easy terms" was spot cash, $7,500. The deed was made by W. B. Johnson, a widower.

Large Crowds Attending Revival

Miss Florence Virginia Weldon

The revivals, which opened at the Methodist church Sunday, are attracting good-sized audiences.

Miss Florence Virginia Weddon, daughter of the evangelist, with her sunny disposition, is capably working with the young people.

Dr. J. W. Weldon, in a simple, unaffected, Christ-like fashion, brings the forceful, pleading messages of our Saviour. These meetings are an inspiration—a sort of tonic for rejuvenation for those who already know and serve Christ, and should touch the hearts of those who have not a yet made his acquaintance. It is hoped that none will miss this opportunity of hearing Dr. Weldon's messages.

Services are held each morning at 10:00 o'clock, and in the evening at 7:45. There is a special service for children each afternoon at 3:00 o'clock.

Wool Growers To Meet Monday

Boone County Wool Pool members will meet at Burlington Monday, June 2, at 1:30 p. m., according to H. E. White, president of the association. The directors and members will make their final reports on the signup and will set the date for the sale of the pooled clip.

All sheep growers in the county are invited to sign up and take part in the county pool. The signup is the simple listing with the director or officers of the association the number of fleeces that will be delivered to the pool.

All growers expecting to sell through the pool are urged to list their flocks before Monday. The highest price can be secured only if all wool offered for sale is signed pool wool. Many buyers refuse to bid on the wool until they are assured that they are bidding in signed pool fleeces.

The county pool has proven one of the most successful in the State. It has secured the highest possible cash price for its members for over 40 years. It serves as a simple service organization for its members. The pool sells direct, arranges for the receiving and paying for each member's individual clip at one of three convenient delivery places in the county and most of all has a sales committee of pool members who attempt to see that each member gets correct weights and fair and impartial treatment. If you have not signed up your wool—act now. Sign up not later than Monday.

TWO-WEEK REVIVAL AT FLORENCE CHURCH

A two-week series of revival meetings, being held in conjunction with the present revival program of the Northern Kentucky District of the Methodist church, was opened Sunday night at the Florence (Ky.) Methodist church.

The Rev. F. E. Mosley, pastor, announced that evangelistic meetings would be conducted each night at the church by Dr. W. L. Clark, pastor, Paris (Ky.) Methodist church. John O. Jordan is directing the music and is in charge of the young people's services.

X-Ray Clinic For Boone County

Through concerted effort on the part of Boone County Red Cross Nursing Committee, Dr. John B. Floyd, Director Bureau of Tuberculosis, State Department of Health, Louisville, Ky., has been secured for an X-ray clinic in this county.

Quoting from the National Tuberculosis Association: "Doctors who have made a study of tuberculosis agree that the chest X-ray is indispensable in the diagnosis of tuberculosis. Early symptomless disease can not be found by any other method. In advanced disease it is needed to show the location and extent of the trouble. The records of sanitoria are full of case-histories proving that early tuberculosis escaped diagnosis because chest X-rays were not taken in time.

If we could find ways and means to X-ray every member of every family in which there has been a death from tuberculosis where particularly children and young people were in contact, and X-ray every member of a household in which there is a tuberculin-positive child, we would uncover a great amount of tuberculosis now unknown and would prevent much further spread. This search for tuberculosis in families must not stop with blood relations; it should include everybody who has had a prolonged contact with the family, such as people who have lived in the home for some time or who were frequent visitors."

Persons will not be taken at this clinic first because some one for no good reason decides he would like to have an X-ray.

If you think you should have a chest X-ray, consult your doctor, and then if he thinks it should be done, make your appointment with the County Red Cross Nurse, Court House, telephone 141.

A small fee to cover the cost of the film will be charged for each picture.

It is most likely there will be no time left for those who do not make their appointments early.

DAYLIGHT-SAVING TIME NOW IN EFFECT

At the meeting of the Town Board Friday night to determine wether or not Walton would follow the example of her neighbors, it was deciced to use Day Light Savings time, which went into effect Saturday at midnight.

Washington Snapshots
by JAMES PRESTON

Every real American would be tremendously interested if he knew the real inside truth behind the Congressional fight over the "Vinson priorities bill," for the basic issue is whether planners and theorists or experienced men shall arm the nation for defense.

Despite the fact that "priorities" is a slightly strange word to many people, the story is simple. It is this:

"Priorities" are the mechanism used by government to tell people the order in which they shall produce goods for defense. When factories are loaded above the limit with orders, something has to be made first. The government decides, and issues "priorities" fixing the order in which things should be produced.

A priorities system was inevitable under the present defense program. So government officials created one. They figured too that the people and the factories would believe in the priorities system if they knew that the order of production was being worked out jointly by military men and experienced business men. So they created an agency which brings that close cooperation of military and business men.

Now, though, the system is established and generally accepted. And the planners and theorists, who used to be called "brain trusters," want to run the defense show. They never have liked the influence which Knudsen, Biggers, Stettinius, Nelson, and other business men have exerted.

Stettinius, who headed one of the nation's most important businesses, the United States Steel Corporation, was bossing the priorities system, in cooperation with the Army-Navy Munitions Board. So there would be no taint of personal profit, he resigned his U. S. Steel job. But that still left a business man in the driver's seat.

Then Leon Henderson began to forge to the front. He is an economist who has been in Washington ever since NRA, and his prestige and position have both grown rapidly since that time. From Henderson's standing as an economist, it can fairly be deduced that there is considerable logic in having him head up the agency which supervises prices.

The question that is troubling many Washingtonians, however, is whether the price and priorities situation isn't rapidly reaching a stage in which the civilian and military needs supervised by Henderson and Stettinius won't become confused in a kind of "twilight zone." The Cox amendment to the Vinson bill was aimed at achieving clarity in this direction.

Capital friends of the Cox measure point out that it has already been endorsed in substance by high ranking Naval officials in recent testimony before the House Naval Affairs Committee on another bill, known as the Vinson "Cooling Off" measure.

And during the debate on the priorities bill, Representative Vinson said the Cox amendment "breathes statutory life into the Office of Production Management," and continued:

"Why should it not do so? As one member of Congress, I want to pass laws to govern the American People instead of governing them through executive orders . . . Why should not a man who almost holds the life and death of industry in this country be confirmed by the Senate?"

The proponents of the Cox amendment "followed through" on this particular line of reasoning when they amended the original bill bearing the Vinson name in order to "freeze" Stettinius in his present job.

That, then, is the background of these happenings. Only time can sketch in the complete forground.

As for what has been accomplished under the Knudsen-Biggers-Batt-Nelson- Stettinius leadership, A. G. Glancy of OPM had interesting things to say in a recent speech.

One company, he said, which used to turn out 500 fifty-caliber guns a year now is making 5,000 a month. Another company is making machine guns EIGHT MONTHS before the date called for in its contract. He recalled, too, that it took 25 years to build the automobile industry up to a 3½ billion dollar annual volume, but that in 2 years the aviation industry has turned into a $5 billion business.

Yet the planners want to take over the show!

Tidbits of Kentucky Folklore

BY
Gordon Wilson, Ph.D.
WESTERN KENTUCKY TEACHERS COLLEGE
BOWLING GREEN, KY.

"IN HIS OWN COUNTRY"

It is significant that "New World Symphony," a musical composition that Americans generally are proud of, was not the work of an American composer. It remained for Antonin Dvorak, a Bohemian, to find in our folk songs and folk ideas the inspiration for one of his greatest works. This is typical of a neglect that has too often characterized our American evaluation of our own treasures. Enamored of foreign countries, even to the extent of ignoring our own, we have expected our artists to bring back from abroad music that we ought to know. Much of what was brought back has been thoroughly worthy of all the attention given it; but it has often happened that an attitude has prevailed that what we have as an inheritance is not worth recording, not worth using for inspiration.

Our own artists, or whatever kind, who have turned to native subjects have had to battle a prejudice that remains one of the oddities of our American life. Since Revolutionary days we have been stoutly declaring that we should write about our American subjects, dare to be Americans and not colonial Europeans. In the very ages when we have been loudest in proclaiming our genuine Americanism, we have gone on trying to be as nearly like Europeans as we possibly can, particularly in arts and literature. There is and always has been a species of insincerity about this, which should have made us more often laugh at ourselves. England has accepted some of our most original people before we have and has seen in them distinctive contributions of America to the world. It has been a sort of custom for us to scorn the original American genius until somebody else has proclaimed him and then honor him ad nauseam.

Reposing in our national consciousness right now are many "New World Symphonies," ready to be discovered and utilized by musicians in America. In art there are hundreds of subjects as folk as any that Wood or Morgan has found in our big country. It is no avid Americanism that prompts this belief. All of us who pretend to any advanced education have had to know the best of Europe from our infancy up. But what is good in other literatures in finding and portraying local scenes and peoples ought to be equally good in ours. Our poets have often dared to be original, some of our artists are gradually becoming so, but music has been long about making up its mind as to the value of Negro, cowboy, camp-meeting, hillbilly, and other forms of native music. Some time, I do not doubt, some unassuming foreigner will slip past the immigration authorities, study our rich folk contributions to music, and then slip out as deftly, only to give again to the world as unexpected a transcription of our life as Dvorak presented in his "New World Symphony." Somehow, with some two hundred years of American life behind me, I wish that some native-born American could do this first, that we could write our own music from our own rich backgrounds.

Is Your Subscription Paid?

Thus he says that industry is co-operating, continually "offering itself for any use to which we may care to put them." And as for the reward industry expects, he quotes a maker of anti-aircraft guns as saying:

"If possible, try to arrange it so that we get back the same number of dollars that we will have to put into this program."

CAN NERVE ACTION BE ABNORMAL?

To discuss this question, it is necessary to give consideration to a few facts regarding the structure of the spine. First it should be remembered that each and every organ of the body is connected with the brain or spinal cord by nerves that branch off from the spinal cord and pass out through openings between the vertebrae or bones which form the spine. The brain and spinal cord, (which is merely an extension of the brain), are very delicate nerve structures in which there are many vital nerve centers, and must, therefore, be protected from all possibility of injury. A bony wall which encases them offers this protection. It is evident that, since the brain and spinal cord are encased within a wall, and since all organs are connected by nerves with the brain or spinal cord, these nerves must pass through the bony case.

In the adult the brain is in a vault, the case of which is one continuous shell of bone except for the openings through which nerves and blood vessels pass, and through which the spinal cord emerges. The bony protector for the spinal cord, known as the spinal column, is composed of twenty-six separate bones, called vertebrae, placed one upon another. These bones have an oval shaped hollow in their center, and as they are placed one on top of another, these hollows form a long canal in which is lodged the spinal cord. The spinal cord is connected by nerves with every organ of the body.

Each vertebrae contains a notch at the top and bottom. As these adjoining bones are fitted together to form the vertebral column the notches in the bones so meet as to form an opening. Between each vertebrae there is such an opening, one on either side of the spine.. It is through these openings, that nerves pass to connect inside with the spinal cord, and outside with some organ of the body. If the relationship of two adjoining vertebrae is disturbed through the spine being injured or strained, the size and shape of the openings between them would be changed. With the openings thus changed, there could be interference with the normal action of the nerve that passes through them.

Because abnormal nerve action means abnormal health, vertebral displacements by interfering with nerve action, could be the cause of poor health. These conditions could only be corrected by a doctor trained in locating and caring for them.

Money Talks

By
Frederick Stamm, Economist Director of Adult Education UNIVERSITY OF LOUISVILLE

This week in my mail there was a letter from a woman in West Central Kentucky, asking "About how long will it be before the war causes prosperity?"

First, let me say that different industries react differently to war booms; some prosper much more than others. Of course, all armament and allied industries are booming already. This means that the steel centers such as Cleveland, Youngstown, Pittsburg, Chicago, and Birmingham are more prosperous than they have been for years. Retail sales in these cities are way up over a year ago. Almost everybody is making good money and in that section of the country business is excellent.

Detroit and the automobile manufacturing centers are booming now, too. Automobile production is higher this year than any since 1937 and may even exceed it. During the first four months of this year we sold 1,874,817 automobiles and trucks.

Soft coal producing regions, including some sections of Kentucky, are in a better shape than they have been for a long time. This is also "prosperity caused by the war." Production, despite recent strikes, is up fifteen per cent over a year aog.

So there are industries and regions all over the country that are booming right now. But there is another side to the picture. The consumer goods industries (food, clothing, shoes, etc.,) have not shared in this boom. Consequently, the cotton and tobacco producing regions are not as prosperous as the great manufacturing centers. Many farmers in the South have felt the pinch of low prices this last year. The effect of the boom may be felt later, though. Many small cities and towns, which do not have defense industries will not share very largely in the boom at all. In fact, they may suffer because they have nothing to sell at high prices but must pay high prices for what they buy.

So you see the question asked is not a simple one to answer. Whether the war brings prosperity depends upon where you live and what you do.

The High Cost of Getting Well

Within recent years much has been said about the high cost of getting well. After giving this problem a great deal of study, we have devised a simple plan whereby the patient may get the best health service at a very nominal cost, without sacrificing any laboratory tests or x_rays which may be necessary in his particular case.

We shall be glad to explain this plan in detail if you will call at this office.

TVA Dam At Gilbertsville, Ky., Is Largest Federal Project East Of The Mississippi

KENTUCKY DAM FROM THE AIR—This aerial view of the Tennessee Valley Authority's Kentucky Dam at Gilbertsville, on the Tennessee river in Western Kentucky shows, at the left, the navigation lock which soon will be completed, and in the center, the coffer dam. Visitors may view the construction work from the bridge which spans the stream. Because of its large storage capacity and its strategic location near the confluence of the Tennessee and Ohio rivers, the dam will be important for flood control in the Mississippi as well as the Tennessee and lower Ohio Valleys.

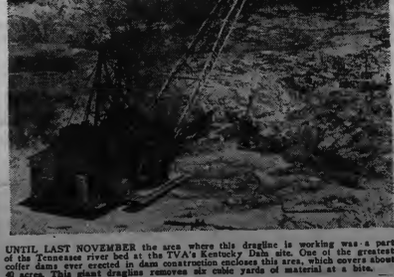
By JOE LaGORE
Managing Editor, Paducah Sun-Democrat

UNCLE SAM'S largest construction project in the eastern half of the country is in Western Kentucky.

At Gilbertsville on the Tennessee river 22½ miles upstream from Paducah, the Tennessee Valley Authority is in the third year of the construction of its Kentucky Dam, which with its reservoir development will have cost about $105,000,000 when completed in 1945.

Kentucky Dam, largest of TVA's system of nine dams, will be a combined flood control and power project. Its reservoir will extend 184 miles to Pickwick Dam in Tennessee, and will have a shore line of approximately 1,800 miles, providing one of the finest fishing and water recreation grounds in the country. Provision is being made for the installation of generators which will provide 128,000 KW of electric power.

The dam is drawing hundreds of tourists daily to watch the construction operations, on which 2,000 workers are engaged. The public has not been barred from the site as from other big construction projects.



Paved roads lead to the dam site. It is easily accessible from Federal highways 60, 62, 68, 45 and 51

The dam is being built on a bed of solid limestone. Approximately 500,000 yards of overburden will be removed so that the concrete structure can be built directly on the rock, which extends to an average depth of 600 feet below the river bed.

The dam will be 8,650 feet in length, 160 feet in height, about 160 feet in width at the base and about 50 at the top. Across the top will be a railroad and perhaps a highway.

Many TVA workers and their families live in the TVA model village at Gilbertsville. There are 80 modern homes, 25 dormitories, and a modern school which the workers' children attend. There is also a mess hall for workers and visitors, a hospital, recreation hall, and numerous office buildings which combine to make a neat and attractive town.

George P. Jessup, who built the TVA's Wheeler dam, is the project manager of the Kentucky Dam.

UNTIL LAST NOVEMBER the area where this dragline is working was a part of the Tennessee river bed at the TVA's Kentucky Dam site. One of the greatest coffer dams ever erected in dam construction encloses this area, which covers about 40 acres. This giant dragline removes six cubic yards of material at a bite.

SERVICE THAT SATISFIES

Continuous Activity

THE majority of mankind have been accustomed to considering employment as a material activity in which they engage for the purpose of "making a living." When this activity is taken away from them for any reason, and the income which they have been receiving and which is considered necessary for maintaining a comfortable home, ceases, then doubt and fear creep in, together with the suggestion that they may be permanently cut off from any activity which will afford a living. This condition of thought is the result of holding the concept of man as material, finite, and limited in activity.

In the first chapter of Genesis it is clearly stated that man was made in the image and likeness of God. Christ Jesus said, "God is a Spirit" (John 4:24); and in the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" (p. 465), Mary Baker Eddy has given Spirit as one of the synonyms for God. Therefore man, His image and likeness, or reflection, must be spiritual. . . . Spiritual man, therefore, is continuously expressing the uninterrupted activity of Life, God, Mind, and constantly manifesting intelligence and wisdom. Jesus had a clear realization of man's relationship to God when he said (John 5:17), "My Father worketh hitherto, and I work."

"Well," one may say, "granted that there is spiritual activity, what bearing has that on my problem? I need some concrete material employment that will bring in the income necessary to meet my human needs." True, we all do, but this can be demonstrated and made manifest in our experience by right, active, spiritual thinking about God and man's relation to God; in other words, by seeking "first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness" (Matthew 6:33), which Jesus said would be followed by the addition of "all these things" that are needful.

In "Miscellaneous Writings" (p. 307) Mrs. Eddy says, "God gives you His spiritual ideas, and in turn, they give you daily supplies." It is our receptivity to the ideas which enables us to express right activity. If we go forth in search of work, understanding that we possess those spiritual qualities which are so much needed in the business world today, and holding uppermost in our thought the desire to give of what we have rather than the wish to get, this spiritual thinking will direct us to those who are in need of what we can give. The Bible promise (Luke 6:38), "Give, and it shall be given unto you; good measure, pressed down, and shaken together, and running over, shall men give into your bosom," is always fulfilled.

Sometimes we may be asked to perform services which we have previously thought were beneath us, but if we perform our present tasks humbly, gratefully, and efficiently, we shall soon find suitable and congenial occupation. . . .

We can all be more active in our expression of thanks for all blessings by being more watchful and alert to seize an opportunity to help others, by doing some little act of kindness, and giving a word of encouragement to some one struggling under a heavier load than we are bearing.

The thought that inactivity is a result of advancing years is one that must be destroyed. Mortal mind may argue that we are beyond the age when we can be of use in business, or, at best, that our opportunities to engage in lucrative employment are limited. Does God manifest failing faculties or other infirmities? No; that is unthinkable. Then man, His image and likeness, cannot be hampered by beliefs of age. . . .

Sometimes we may be tempted to think that we have been wrongfully forced out of our place, to make way for some one else, and resentment and self-pity may try to control us. In the only real universe, the spiritual realm, there is no taking from one to give to another. Each of us has his work to do here and now, and that work is the daily endeavor to demonstrate man's oneness with God and to manifest the abundance of good which God has bestowed upon all of His sons.

VERONA HOMEMAKERS DISCUSS INTERESTING TOPICS

Tuesday, May 20th at the Verona school building, the Verona Homemakers held their monthly meeting, twelve members being present.

Many topics of timely interest were discussed. Mrs. John Boyer, our Citizenship leader, talked on, "In Time of Crisis." Mrs. J. L. Roberts, discussed, "Game of U. S. A."; Mrs. Gladys Stewart, "Defense Program;" Mrs. Will McCormick, "Live at Home Program;" Mrs. Walter King, "Beautification;" Miss Mary Hood Gillaspie told of many things we will have in near future. All were glad to welcome her back.

A bountiful lunch was enjoyed by all at the noon hour.

All enjoyed having Mrs. Curtis Moore in the afternoon. Each member was very busy learning to knit rugs, being instructed by our leader, Mrs. Will McCormick.

STAFFORDSBURG

We were sorry that Rev. Wright could not be here for services Monday evening, but are expecting him Tuesday. Come and join with us in worship and pray for an inspiring revival.

HYBRID CORN PLOTS

Three hybrid corn variety demonstration plots have been planted to check seven common hybrid varieties with the best available open pollinated ones. These plots are located on the farms of Reuben Kirtley in East Bend; Shelby Beemon on the Hopeful Church Road and Ira Tanner on the Mt. Zion Road. U. S. 13, Ky. 102, Ky. 103 were the yellow hybrids used in these plots with white hybrids Ky 69, Ky. 69B, Ky. 72 and Ky. 201 being included. Each of the demonstrators provided the seed of a yellow variety which they considered to be a high yielding corn. These plots will be open for inspection at any time during the growing season, according to H. B. Drake, assistant county agent.

If electricity were sold "Cash and Carry"

...it would cost you considerably less than it does today. But electricity is not a commodity that you can carry home like sugar or potatoes. It is useful only when it is delivered into your home, ready to serve you at the flick of a switch.

To handle this delivery job—to be prepared to serve thousands of customers simultaneously and without delay at any hour of the day or night—is not a simple matter like delivering groceries or meat. It requires a huge outlay for transmission and distribution lines...carloads of poles...miles of wire...costly substations ...large numbers of transformers, meters and other delicate and expensive items of equipment. It takes a trained personnel and the expenditure of thousands of dollars annually for maintenance.

All this makes the delivery of electricity one of the most expensive distribution jobs in the world, but it is only one item in the cost of rendering electric service. To it must be added the cost of generating the electricity and the cost of meter reading, billing, collecting, servicing, accounting and management, to say nothing of taxes, depreciation and interest on invested capital. Yet despite the complex and highly technical nature of the business and all the items of expense that enter into it, electric service rendered by this company costs the average family only 11 cents per day.

EARLY HISTORY OF BOONE COUNTY

—o—

By A. M. Yealey

—o—

We sincerely believe that the people of our county do not always care to read dry historical facts at all times, but would rather read happenings of past years that perhaps concerned their parents or grandparents, and the writer has preserved from time to time, old papers, histories, in fact documents of all kinds and shall continue to give the reader local news in the different localities at different times or previous to 1876, as information after that date can be obtained by a great number of resident who are living today.

We shall now give you some general news of Boone county, 1876.

The many friends of Samuel Coffman will be sorry to hear that he is seriously ill, having been confined to his house for several weeks with lung trouble.

Dump Marshall, we are glad to report, is contemplating—well it makes no difference what.

Mr. Batty Judge and wife, equipped with a handsome lot of turkeys, started to Covington one night last week, but before getting far, were fortunate to meet a huxter, who purchased all of them, and they returned in the short space of an hour.

Died at Beaver on the 31st day of December, 1875, Davy Richardson, aged 100 years. He was a veteran of the war 1812.

Miss Ella Baker has returned home from a prolonged visit to Posey Hills, Indiana. She attended eleven dances during the two weeks. The reason for not having more was bad condition of the roads.

Many sore arms in the neighborhood of Waterloo, result of vaccination.

On Monday, Mr. Ben Aydelotte, while repairing a gun for Dennis Nead of Florence, put a cap on to see if it was all right, not knowing it was loaded. He pointed it toward a board that stood in front of the window in his shop. He fired the gun, which was loaded with shot, and tore a hole through the board and rattled around one of the windows of the Southern Hotel, near where Mrs. Grant was sitting sewing. For fear of accidents she immediately changed her quarters. Mr. John Ahern barely escaped. He was just passing the window and some of the shot struck him on the cheek. It did no more harm, however, than to flatten the shot. Some one, expressing suprise to Jack at the hardness of his cheek, he offered to bet $10 that the cheek of his friend, Charles Bradford, would turn a rifle bullet.

Mr. Fulton, an old and well known school teacher of Boone county, died at the residence of his son, near the Hopeful church, last Friday night. His remains were interred in the Florence cemetery, Monday. The Rev. Cavanaugh, of the Methodist church, preached the funeral sermon. A large number of friends attended the funeral.

-that man IN OUR NEIGHBORHOOD!

I DARED NOT LEAVE THE HOUSE

I had just put the children to bed and turned out the lights, when the youngest started to cough. With confidence, I went to the medicine cabinet — the bottle was empty!

I knew from experience the child would grow worse through the night unless relieved, but my husband was away — I could not leave the house.

In this predicament, I thought of "that man", (our neighborhood druggist) and phoned immediately — then in what seemed but a few moments, I heard welcome footsteps — the filled prescription had arrived.

Yes, our neighborhood druggist fills prescriptions with infinite care and also carries a fine line of cosmetics and proprietary products. For women, he usually recommends Vatona Tablets to aid in the relief of those trying discomforts of the menstrual period — this may be just what you need — at least get in touch with your druggist.

BROADENING CHRISTIAN HORIZONS: THE ANTIOCH MOVEMENT

LESSON TEXT—Acts 11:19-30.

GOLDEN TEXT—For I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ: for it is the power of God unto salvation to everyone that believeth; to the Jew first, and also to the Greek.—Romans 1:16.

Scattered abroad! As the flying sparks and embers from a fire which is wildly beaten will light many new fires, just so persecution of the early Christians sent them abroad and established new centers for the preaching of the gospel. Verse 19 of our lesson connects with Acts 8:4. The ministry by Philip in Samaria was paralleled by that of others in Phenice, Cyprus, and now in Antioch. That great city was not far from Jerusalem, but it was far from God. A mighty city, rich in trade, it was also deep in all kinds of sin; but there it pleased God to establish a great center of Christian testimony. God loves to do new things (see, for example, II Cor. 5:17; Isa. 43:19; Ps. 33:3; Rev. 21:5).

I. A New Church (vv. 19-21).

What a splendid church it was! Here in the midst of the most evil surroundings the sweet flower of Christian faith grew, as it so often does.

It was a church built upon a faithful testimony by God's chosen witnesses "preaching the Lord Jesus" (v. 20). Their names are not noted, but their message is, and its blessed results. It was a gathering place for all people—Jews and Gentiles. The disciples from Jerusalem preached at first only to the Jews, but God sent others (v. 20), who preached His grace to the Gentiles.

Note also that the Antioch church was a living witness. "The hand of the Lord was with them"—little wonder then that "a great number believed and were turned to the Lord." Your church—and mine—might learn much by studying the church at Antioch.

II. A New Fellowship (vv. 22-26).

The genius of Christianity is fellowship. Those who have a religious belief which makes them exclusive—not willing to fellowship with other Christians—do not truly represent their Lord.

When the church at Jerusalem heard the good news, they sent Barnabas to help the new converts and establish fellowship. He was the ideal man to send, for "he was a good man.' It is far more important that a man be good than that he be brilliant if he is to edify young converts. He was 'full of the Holy Ghost.' He was also 'full of faith,' and no man that is not, need undertake the work of instructing and developing young converts, especially converts from heathenism so dark as that in Antioch. He was free from the love of gold (4:36, 37). He was free from personal ambition and jealousy in his work (vv. 25, 26). He was very sharp-eyed to see the sincerity and promise of a young convert (9:27). 'When he was come, and had seen the grace of God, (he) was glad'' (John W. Bradbury).

Into this new fellowship of life and service the gracious and generous Barnabas brought a new evangelist—Saul, God's prepared man for this hour.

But we have another new thing in our lesson, one of great importance.

III. A New Name (vv. 26-30).

Christian, the beautiful name of those who follow Christ was first used at Antioch. It may have held a measure of contempt (see Acts 26:28; I Pet. 4:16), but it was a remarkably suitable name for those who had come out of paganism now to live, in their old surroundings, a new life, a separated life, the Christ life.

This name "combines Jewish thought with Greek and Latin language, and thus, like the inscription on the cross, bears witness to the universality of Christianity as a religion for the whole world. The idea of 'Christ' (Messiah) is Jewish; the substantive 'Christ' (Christos) is Greek, and the adjectival termination 'ian' (-ianus) is Latin . . . This new name was intended to introduce and mark the difference between Jews and Gentiles on the one hand, and those who, whether Jews or Gentiles, were followers of Jesus Christ . . . The term 'Christian' evidently points to the Person of Christ, and to those who are associated with Him as His followers. It implies and involves union and close association with Christ" (W. H. Griffith Thomas).

Those believers at Antioch not only bore the name, they practiced the life of Christ. Next Sunday we shall study their activity for Christ, for in that city began the great missionary movement which goes on to our day. In our lesson today we have another practical expression of their faith. They gave of their means, "every man according to his abilities," to meet the need of their new-found Jewish brethren in Judea

"The time of the singing of birds is come," and the earth again is clothed with fresh new verdure. Over woodland and hills the vernal breezes blow and every tree and blossom greets the joyous spring. Truly, nature is one of the ways in which God speaks to us. As our eyes turn heavenward, we are reminded of His greatness and power.

"When I consider thy heavens, the moon and the stars which thou hast ordained, what is man that thou art mindful of him, and the son of man that thou visitest him?"

Charles Otis Morgan was among the pupils of the Independence school enjoying a trip to the Zoo, Thursday.

Mr. Baker and Mrs. Groat paid a brief call Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Harley Bird was a recent pleasant caller. Last week she attended a delightful celebration tendered Mr. Ellis O. Bird, of Atwood, as a reminder that he had reached another milestone in life's journey. The rooms were aglow with happiness and good cheer, and at the evening hour, an elegant dinner was served. Gracing the beautifully appointed table, was a lovely birthday cake baked by Mrs. Herman Bird. That many more years lie ahead for Mr. Bird, is the united wish of a host of friends.

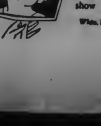
On Saturday afternoon Mrs. Russell Robinson of near Morning View, paid a pleasant call. In observance of "Mother's Day," her soldier-son, Marvin, sent her a lovely box of confections and other remembrances from Camp Shelby, Miss., where 500,000 soldiers are encamped in one of the largest camps in America.

Red roses were turned to white for the children of Mrs. Sophia Borkus Hawkins, when their beloved mother left the earth for the Eternal Hills, Monday, May 12, 1941, the day following Mother's Day. After a brief illness of a heart ailment, her life of more than four score years, was brought to a close. Long had she been a member of Staffordsburg M. E. church, and was a noble Christian character. To the follower of Christ, death is only a sleep so calm and restful, a passage from earth to Paradise, whose end is light.

Death is not an end, but an entrance into fuller, richer living, and is of divine appointment and the only path that all must tread if we ever pass home to God.

She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Anna Portwood, three sons, August, Robert and Henry Hawkins; several grandchildren; and great grandchildren; a sister, Mrs. Caroline Armstrong, and a brother, Thomas Borkus, to whom deepest sympathy is extended.

Following the last rites, Thursday, at which Rev. Kidwell and Rev. Weldon officiated, interment took place in the Independence cemetery.



"Someday when the sunset sky is gold,
Loved ones will follow thee in the West
And join thee in the heavenly fold
On the happy hills and rest."

A Health Toast—With Poison

Outstanding medical authorities agree that alcohol is a poison.

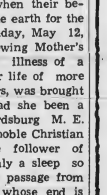
Which, to many thinking Americans, makes it "sort of funny" when a man raises a glass containing alcohol (a narcotic poison) and says: "To Your Health".

Social workers, medical researchers, church leaders, and others don't think it's "funny." They think it's tragic. They are logical people so they wonder why states and the nation prohibit the sale of the white drugs, such as opium and morphine, but permit the public sale and promotion of another narcotic, liquor.

What a Toast!

ALCOHOL CAN KILL

Bertha Rachel Palmer, director of scientific temperance instruction for the National W.C.T.U., says that, if alcohol is taken in sufficient quantity it will kill just as surely as a lethal dose of any other poison.



Taken in less than lethal quantity, alcohol's effect is to break down the body's physical defenses.

The average drinker's behavior is in direct proportion to the amount of alcohol in his blood—and not to whether he gets the alcohol from beer or wine or whisky.

If there are two parts of alcohol to each 1,000 parts of blood, the average drinker's normal inhibitions are numbed. He says or does the first thing which occurs to him. He may be silly or foolish, disagreeable, or unexpected.

When he absorbs four parts of alcohol to 1,000 parts of blood—well, his friends will have to take him home. He's at the mutter and stagger stage.

Another drop or so of alcohol—more than five parts to each 1,000 parts of blood—means a human blackout. It is the down-and-out or dead drunk stage. Not everyone survives the ensuing stupor. There is a real danger of death. A stronger concentration and death more frequently is a possibility.

"Human Blackout"

Poisons can be depended on; they don't compromise. The drinker who proposes a toast to health is really saying goodbye to it.

NAGGING BACKACHE
May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action. Don't Neglect It!

Modern life with its ceaseless hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking, exposure, contagion whatnot, keeps doctors busy, hospitals crowded. The after effects are disturbing to the kidneys and oftentimes people suffer without knowing that disordered kidney action may cause the trouble.

After colds, fever and similar ills there is an increase of body impurities the kidneys must filter from the blood. If the kidneys are overtaxed and fail to remove excess acid and other harmful waste, there is poisoning of the whole system.

THE REASON DOAN'S ARE FAMOUS
All over the country grateful people tell others: "Doan's have helped me; I recommend them to you." That is why we say, Ask your neighbor!

Symptoms of disturbed kidney function may be nagging backache, persistent headache, dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of strength and energy. Other signs of kidney or bladder disturbance sometimes are burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

In such cases it is better to rely on a medicine that has won world-wide approval than on something less favorably known. Use Doan's Pills. They have been winning new friends for more than forty years. Be sure to get Doan's. Sold at all drug stores.

TAX BILL OF MOTORISTS TO HIT RECORD HIGH OF $57.36 IN 1941

A record high tax bill of $57.36 will be paid in 1941 by the average motor vehicle owner in Kentucky, Herbert L. Clay, Secretary of the Kentucky Petroleum Industries Committee, predicted today. Of that amount, $44.13 will be collected by the state, and $13.23 will go to the federal government at current rates.

"The federal gasoline tax increase of last year will add $3 or more to the motorist's tax burden in 1941," said Mr. Clay. With this increase, the average motor vehicle owner in this state will pay to Uncle Sam in 1941 approximately $10 in 'emergency' gasoline taxes.

"These federal gasoline taxes will amount to about two days' pay of the average motor vehicle owner in this state for according to surveys by various government agencies, a majority of the car owners have incomes of less than $30 a week.

"Besides the higher federal gasoline tax, car owners are paying more federal taxes on tires, batteries, parts and other accessories. Last year the federal gasoline tax was increased by 50 per cent, and the various other automotive taxes were raised from 10 to 16 per cent."

WORLD'S GREAT FEATURES WITH MIGHTY CIRCUS

The Big Show—Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey—will exhibit in Cummingsville, June 7th, and 8th, and here's a synopsis of its 1941 features:

Mr. and Mrs. Gargantha the Great, the world's most publicized and fascinating gorilla couple; the new fairyland fantasy, "Old King Cole and Mother Goose," designed and costumed by Norman Bel Geddes, of New York World's Fair Futurama fame, in which 2,000 people and animals take part. Geddes has redesigned the circus from front to back.

"Old King Cole and Mother Goose" cost $80,000, and is the grandest of all Big Show pageants; hence it is spotted on the program to follow Alfred Court's three great mixed groups of performing wild animals, so that late comers won't miss it.

The new Birdland aerial ballet, starring lovely Elly Ardelty, costumed by Max Weldy of Paris and staged by Albertina Rasch, famed Hollywood and Broadway musical show dance director; an invasion of acts from South America, headed by the three flying Diego - Fernandez troupes; the great Truzzi, juggler; Hubert Castle, tight-wire star; the Yacopis, Gauchos and Divisos, springboard somersaulting troupes; Adrianna and Charly, trampoline stars; Mlle Louisa, flying trapeze marvel; the three Flying Concello troupes, with Antionette; the famous Riding Cristiani family — in short, 800 world renowned artists. There are 1,600 people, 50 elephants, 1,009 menagerie animals and hundreds of horses.

The Park Hills school, of which Mrs. Julia A. Rouse is principal, and the 4th, 5th and 6th grades of the Piner school, William Brown, principal, enjoyed a picnic at the zoo in Cincinnati, Tuesday. The 1st, 2nd and 3rd grades of the Piner school, and their teachers, held their picnic at the zoo on Wednesday.

C. A. Rouse of Huntington, W. Va., came Wednesday evining and will be the guest of his daughter, Mrs. M. L. Maze, his sister, Mrs. Martha R. Wallace, and other relatives until Friday evening.

Doings of The REDS

There are plenty of tough obstacles in the path of the Cincinnati Reds, who are fighting to return to the middle of the battle for the 1941 pennant. Their biggest problem of the moment is to successfully hurdle the road trip on which they are now embarking.

First stop on the jaunt was to be at St. Louis, following the Wednesday ladies' day game against the Pittsburgh Pirates at Crosley Field. A single game was scheduled against the Cardinals Thursday and a Memorial Day doubleheader Friday. After this game the Reds and Cards will head east together, both clubs stopping off in Cincinnati Saturday, en route. This Cincinnati game will close the series between these two hot rivals, then on Sunday they will go their respective ways, St. Louis to Brooklyn and the Reds to New York.

A twin bill against the Giants Sunday will face the Reds on their first day in the East. They will remain in New York for single games Monday and Tuesday, then head for Philadelphia, where a night game is scheduled Wednesday, June 4, and a doubleheader Friday, June 6.

Saturday, Sunday, and Monday, June 7, 8, and 9, the Reds will be in dear old Brooklyn for another meeting with the red hot Dodgers. This series will be just as important to the Reds as that with the Cardinals this week.

The road trip will wind up with games at Boston Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday, June 10, 11 and 12. En route home from Boston the Reds will stop at Cooperstown, N. Y., birthplace of baseball, and meet the Cleveland Indians in the annual exhibition game booked by the two leagues to honor the city of Cooperstown.

Poultry raising will be increased by 30 percent in Fulton county this year.

McLean county farmers made a 50 percent increase in the acreage of tomatoes for commercial canning.

MEAL PLANNING MAJOR PROJECT

The Boone County Advisory Council, which met at the Court House last Monday, selected "Meal Planning" for the major project, to be started next fall.

Mrs. Geo. Kottmyer, county president of Homemakers, presided at the meeting. The following chairmen gave reports of work that had been done during the past month and outlined plans for the summer months: Mrs. Orville Willeford of Florence, publicity; she also gave the citizenship report for Mrs. C. F. Blankenbeker; Mrs. John Elliott, Union, reading; Mrs. Elliott told about the new Homemakers' library; exterior beautification report by County Chairman Mrs. Garnett Tolin. Plans made by the county nutrition committee at a recent meeting were described by Mary Hood Gillaspie, home demonstration agent. Mrs. Mary Scott Moore, substitute home demonstration agent, reported that 66 mattresses had been made in the county.

The council decided to include methods of balancing meals, new ways of food preparation and methods of preparing new vegetables in the major project "Meal Planning." Minor project selected to be carried out next fall, are "Live at Home," Exterior Beautification and Style Trends.

Several Boyle county farmers are experimenting with vitamin B-1 in growing tobacco plants.

To Attend Junior Week at U. K.

The 1941 Boone county 4-H delegates to Junior Week, University of Kentucky, Lexington, June 9 to 14 inclusive, were selected by the 4-H and Utopia Club Council, in session at Burlington Monday evening, June 2nd, according to County Agent H. R. Forkner.

The delegates were selected from district demonstration team contest winners, style revue, foods judging, and clothing judging contests and from individual outstanding members over 13 years of age, from community clubs. Preference was given by the council to outstanding members who had not previously attended and to clubs not having contest winners who were automatically selected.

The delegates selected, are as follows: Charles Patrick, Hebron; Harold Flick, Burlington; Vernon Myers, Verona; James Stephenson, New Haven, winner of dist. demonstration contest; Meier Taylor, New Haven, winner of district demonstration contest; and Lee Roy McNeeley, Burlington, alternate.

Girls: Mary Louise McCubbin, Walton; Ella Ruth Black, Hamilton; Elaine Gardner, Florence, winner of style revue; Evelyn Franks, New Haven, winner of county foods judging; Alva Mae Tupman, Florence, winner of county clothing judging; Louise McArthur, alternate.

All delegates will receive scholarship trips through the splendid cooperation of Dearborn Mill, Aurora, Ind.; Early Daniels Feed Company, Cincinnati, Ohio; Sears, Roebuck & Co., Chicago; and Coppin's Company, Covington. The scholarships enable all delegates to attend under the same conditions. Junior Week is the state meeting of outstanding 4-H boys and girls from all counties in the State. It represents one of the most prized awards received by 4-H members each year.

HAS NEW POSITION

Richard S. Hayden, who has been Postmaster at Sadieville for the past six years, has been appointed a Rural Mail Carrier out of Georgetown, and assumed his duties June 2. Mr. Hayden is the son-of-law of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Reffett of Napoleon, who are well-known here.

Homemakers To Exhibit Rugs, Mats

Boone county Homemakers will feature homemade rugs and mats in exhibits to be held in Burlington, Florence and Walton, July 17, 18 and 19. These articles have been made during the study of homemade rugs, which has been conducted in the county by Miss Vivian Curnutt, specialist from the University of Kentucky, since last October.

Rugs and mats in varieties of design and color will be shown. Hooked rugs and mats will feature original patterns in which discarded woolens have been used. Many will show colors from the home dye-pot. Braided rugs and mats of cotton, and rayon or silk, crocheted rugs of cotton and knitted rugs and mats of silk and rayon fabrics will add interest to the exhibits.

Homemaker clubs will make their exhibits as follows: Burlington, Grant, Petersburg and Rabbit Hash at Burlington; Florence, Union, Hebron, Bullittsville, Taylorsport and Constance at Florence; Walton, Verona, New Haven and Walton colored clubs at Walton.

Mrs. Rod Hughes, Walton, is county project chairman. Local club project leaders will serve as exhibit chairmen for their groups. Plans were made for these and other exhibits of project work at the training school several weeks ago, according to Mrs. Mar y Scott Moore, substitute home demonstration agent.

LIGHT CO. SHOW AT BURLINGTON

The Community Public Service presented the motion picture, "Blame it on Love," at the Burlington school auditorium on Tuesday evening ,June 3rd, to a fine crowd of 200 people.

The millionth Hot Point range was also displayed and quite an interest was shown in this unique product, with 14 karat gold trimmings.

Awards were given to the following guests: A. H. Jones, I. E. S. table lamp; Calvin Kelly, toast and jam set; Melvin Elslager, angel food cake.

The Company wishes to express their appreciation to the people of that community for their attendance, and also the fine spirit of co-operation shown.

AUTO CRASHES INTO TELEPHONE POLES

Saturday morning about 5:00 o'clock, a car going north, driven by a Negro, and accompanied by his wife, crashed into two telephone poles on the west side of South Main street, breaking them off at the top of the ground.

The car was evidently being driven at a high rate of speed, and it is not known whether the driver lost control of the car or went to sleep, in causing the mishap. The woman in the car was injured somewhat, but the man escaped injury. The car was damaged considerably.

Matilda Cheesman Dies at Home Here

Mrs. Matilda Belle Cheesman, 67, passed away at the residence in Walton, Sunday, June 1, of arteriosclerosis. She had been ill for some time.

The body was taken to Chambers & Grubbs funeral home for preparation and was returned to the home, where it lay in state until Tuesday afternoon, at which time services were held from the Hickory Grove church at 2:00 o'clock. Rev. Mango officiated.

Interment took place in the Independence cemetery.

Mrs. Cheeseman, who was born in Ohio, came to Kentucky a number of years ago. She was a member of the Baptist church.

Surviving are five daughters, two sons, 34 grandchildren and three great grandchildren.

Chambers & Grubbs had charge of funeral arrangements.

C. A. Rouse returned to his home in Huntington, W. Va., after spending a couple of days with his sister, Mrs. Martha R. Wallace. He was accompanied home by his daughter, Mrs. S. Maze.

4-H FAIR DATE, AUGUST 23RD

The Ninth Annual Boone County 4-H and Utopia Club Free Fair will be held Saturday, August 23rd, according to H. R. Forkner, county agent. The date was officially set by the 4-H and Utopia club council, Monday evening.

The location of the fair will be determined by a committee composed of John Crigler, John Conner, R. V. Lents, and D. H. Norris. The committee is also in charge of locating a suitable site for a permanent fair and county recreational center. Plans are being made for making the 1941 fair the biggest and best on record.

Pool To Sell Its Wool Here June 9

The Boone County Wool Pool will offer approximately 13,000 fleeces of its members for sale at Walton on next Monday, June 9th, according to H. E. White, president of the Association. The date of the sale was set by the members in a meeting at Burlington on June Court Day.

Wool prices have been advancing in recent weeks and growers are optimistic as to the price this year. Sale price estimates vary from 45c to 50c per pound, with most growers hoping for the latter figure.

The demand for wool this year is much greater. National Defense needs account for most increase demand. Eighteen sheep on an average are required to produce enough woolen materials to outfit one soldier for one year.

The local crop this year is reported better than last year's crop. The yield per fleece is reported varying from lighter than 1940 for some growers to heavier than last year for other growers.

"YE ARE THE LIGHT OF THE WORLD" IS B. Y. P. U. TOPIC

The title of the devotional program in the Baptist Young People's Union for Sunday evening, is "Christ Said: 'Ye Are the Light of the World.' "

Aim: To impress the members with their responsibility for rightly representing the cause of Christ in the world today.

Group captain in charge, Geraldine Elliott.

Meditation: God demands and merits supreme regard. The more we honor the Lord the more we honor and refine ourselves. The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom, and whoever does nothing he cannot do in Jesus' name is wise indeed. It is never too early to begin to train oneself to supremely honor the Lord and scrupulously obey him. All his ways are paths of pleasantness and lead to glory.

Speak, for I hear. Make me pure in heart,
Thy face to see, Thy truth to impart,
in hut and hall, in church and mart;
Lord, here am I, Send me!

Mr. and Mrs. Taul of Winchester, Ky., came Wednesday afternoon to visit their daughter, Mrs. Wm. Brown, and Mr. Brown.

TOBACCO & CROPS DEMONSTRATIONS

Tobacco and grass crop field demonstrations were visited in a county tour on last Thursday, May 29, according to County Agent H. R. Forkner. Russell Hunt, field agent in tobacco work from the College of Agriculture, discussed timely tobacco problems with growers at the afternoon field meeting, held at the farm of James Pennington, near Walton.

Excellent tobacco plants were found in most of the beds treated with Bordeaux mixture for rust and leafspot disease control. The plant beds treated last fall with cyanamid for weed control, gave weed control, but for the most part gave very poor stands of plants. The poor stand of plants was attributed entirely to the dry season and failure to water the beds heavily in time. The cyanamid treatment was recommended to be tested extensively next year. Many growers, regardless of treatment, had plant bed failures this year.

Plants in most of the beds seen were ready for setting and will greatly benefit by the good rains falling the first part of the week.

Five new grasses grown on demonstration plats the last three years, showed interesting results on difficult types of soils. Often farmers will make commercial seeding of certain of these grasses this year. Extensive seedings, however, are not recommended at this time.

Vacation Bible Sch'l At Baptist Church

The Daily Vacation Bible School of the First Baptist church, will begin Monday, June 9th, and continue five days a week, for two weeks. The hours will be from 8:30 a. m. to 11:30 a. m.

The school is open to all children three years up through 16 years of age, and will feature the same Bible, Music, Recreational, Craft, and Handwork activities as in previous years.

Mr. and Mrs. Terry Mulford of Toronto, Ohio, spent the week end here, visiting Mrs. Mulford's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Chapman of High St., this being their first visit here since leaving in March.

Dr. and Mrs. B. F. Metcalfe of Greenville, Ohio, spent Thursday and Friday at their home here.

Gallatin Judge To Seek Re-election

Judge H. G. Beall, of Warsaw, recently announced that he will again seek the office of Judge of Gallatin county. Mr. Beall has, in the past four year in which he has had the interests of his county ever present, started many progressive movements, which he hopes to continue, if re-elected.

It was largely through Mr. Beall's efforts that the county was recently appropriated $54,811.00 from the state for roads.

Mr. Beall served four years as Sheriff before he became Judge. He is a World War veteran and is very active in all civic and political activities through the county, and because of this, is well known and well liked.

COTTON MATTRESS PROGR'M PROGRESSES

The Cotton Mattress Program in the county is moving right along. When the center was closed at Petersburg on Thursday, a total of 94 mattresses had been completed. The center was opened at the Grant school on Saturday morning and will run there until the 27 listed for that district have been made. It is expected that the center will be moved and set up for work near Union, Wednesday.

The program is being carried on through the cooperation of the Home Dem. Agent, Homemakers' clubs, County Agent, Agricultural Adjustment Administration, with help from local agencies. The county highway department, the county school system, Walton Lumber Co., Erlanger Lumber Co., are listed as groups who have done much to further the program. Mrs. Vernon Pope, Burlington, is county supervisor. Volunteer local leaders from Homemaker clubs are giving generous assistance to her. Mattresses have been taken into 66 homes already. Many persons have sought to make application, but have been too late to get in on the program.

The mattresses require time and work for completion, but have been received with hearty welcome by those who made them. The centers are open to visitors, but no loafers are allowed, according to Mrs. Mary Scott Moore, sub. home demonstration agent.

SUCCESSFUL DRIVE FOR COL. CHURCH

We, the members of Jolly Six Club, want to thank both white and colored for their splendid help to us the past five weeks. We certainly do thank our white friends for the lovely donations to help us out in our drive. We expect to buy new floor covering and paint for our church floor at once.

We want to thank every one who helped us out in any way; to the members, who doanted to the basement; the ticket sellers, Mrs. Pearl Merry, Miss Alleana Riley, Miss Morthia Johnson.

We also want to thank our pastor, Rev. J. B. Porterfield, for his encouraging remarks, and all other visiting ministers, namely, Rev. Williams, Rising Sun, Ind., Rev. F. O. Locust, Covington, Rev. Britten, and Rev. K. O. Carl. We really appreciate these ministers taking an interest in our club church affair. This club was organized six years ago, and each year we try to help and show some new improvement in our church.

We thank all who bought tickets on the 25 pounds of sugar, which was drawn at Kirtley Sleet's. We thank him for granting us this privilege. The winner was Mrs. Heard of Erlanger, Ky.

Following is a list of the names of our many white and colored friends, who so willingly helped us raise a nice sum of money:

Those contributing 25 cents each, were: S. Holsenham, Wallace Grubbs, G. W. Baker, jr., National Life Ins. Co., Mrs. Walter Ferguson, Miss Lilliam Bristow, M. C. Owens Drug Store, Helen Crouch, Mr. Anten, C. O. Carliale, William J. Gibbens, William Wilson, A. A. Roter, Dr. J. W. Shupert, Mrs. B. H. Bailey Drug Store, Joe Kennedy, E. B. Delaney, O. K. Whit-

Try to place a value on your eyesight. It is priceless. Nature gave you only two eyes and no one has ever invented a substitute for seeing. That is why it's so foolish to take chances with your eyes. Thinking people have their eyes checked over at least once a year . . . far fewer times than even their car . . . and if they wear glasses, they wear only the kind that are good for their eyes. Not those that are advertised at "bargain" prices.

Next time you have your eyes examined—and make it soon (unless they have been checked over within a year)—ask about the superiority of optical science's finest glare-reducing lens, Soft-Lite. If you value your eyesight . . . you'll find it well taken care of with comfort-giving Soft-Lite Lenses.

Washington Snapshots
by JAMES PRESTON

Only a year ago on May 28 did the defense program really get under way with creation of the National Defense Advisory Commission.

On the first anniversary of that event, many people in and out of Washington are asking: "What have we accomplished? What lies ahead?"

The first question is easy to answer. The second much more difficult.

Official figures tell the story of the remarkable progress since Messrs. Knudsen, Biggers, Stettinius, Bat and other businessmen came to Washington to organize the defense production drive. Here are just a few:

In the nine months ending in March, airplane production rose nearly 300 per cent; in the twelve months ending in May, tank production has increased 600 per cent; powder production 1,000 per cent, small arms ammunition 1,200 per cent, Garand automatic rifle 360 per cent, 50 caliber machine guns 400 per cent, 30 caliber machine guns 300 per cent.

Present plans call for an even greater expansion of production of military items. For example, present tank production, which is 600 per cent greater than last year, is to be quadrupled; present powder and small gun production will be increased five times.

In the year in which business leadership has accomplished these results and laid these plans for the future, the "planners" whom everybody knew have been in the background. But slowly and surely, they are moving again to the fore.

The old National Defense Advisory Commission is virtually gone. Nothing remains of it but a name and a telephone number. It has been replaced by the Office of Production Management, better known probably as the OPM.

It is no longer a defense program guided by businessmen. A labor leader, Sidney Hillman, has an equal voice with Knudsen, even on problems which relate solely to production. Leon Henderson, a so-called "New Dealer," has taken over price policing. The $1-a-year men who, official figures show, have done such a grand job, are under fire. But the production job is being done.

How long it will be, if ever before businessmen are completely subordinated to "planners" whose only experience has been graduating from a University and staying on the government payroll, is something no one dares predict. But the present trend is in that direction.

At the same time, the strike problem remains. It has caused tremendous worry. It is getting worse instead of better. Yet while a "New Dealer" is supervising prices, the Treasury is taxing away excess profits, and Congressional investigations are closely scrutinizing the activities of businessmen, not a thing—except talk—has been done about the strikes.

A defense Mediation Board has been created. But its present trend is to force manufacturers of defense goods whose plants have been closed by strikes to settle for what the union organizers will take.

The result is that official War Department figures show that so far this year more than 1,700,000 man days have been lost through strikes in plants producing for the Army. Applied in the proper spot, these lost man days of work could have produced 40,000 Garand rifles, 1,000 light tanks, 200 Curtiss-Wright pursuit planes, 30,000 anti-aircraft shells.

The OPM recently published a pamphlet prepared by Sidney Hillman entitled, "Labor Speeds Defense." No similar publication has yet described industry's contribution to defense. The record shows that industry already has accomplished wonders; it is ready to do more.

Yet the strike organizers get praise for speeding defense, coupled with a gentle slap on the wrist and the gentle reprimand: "You shouldn't be such a naughty boy!"

This Week In Defense

President Roosevelt, stating the European War is "coming very close to home," proclaimed an unlimited national emergency. The President called upon "all loyal citizens to place the nation's need first in mind and in action" and said "the nation will expect all individuals and all groups to play their full parts, without stint and without selfishness."

Speaking over the radio, the President said it is the U. S. policy to give "every possible assistance" to Britain and her allies by whatever measures are necessary. He also said U. S. will not accept a Nazi-dominated world and will resist any German attempt to gain control of the seas or bases which could be used for an attack on the Western Hemisphere.

Production

OPM Director of Purchases Nelson, speaking at Baltimore, said Germany is producing war materials at a rate of $50,000,000,000 a year, British production is at the rate of $15,000,000,000 a year "and the least we can do is see to it that British and American production together will top $50,000,000,000."

Labor Disputes

Labor Secretary Perkins appointed a three-man committee, including the Chairman of the Mediation Board and the Chief of the U. S. Conciliation Service, to select disputes to be referred to the Board. The U. S. Conciliation Service reported settlement of 23 additional strikes.

Selective Service

President Roosevelt proclaimed July 1 as Selective Service registration day for all men who have become 21 since the first registration on October 16, 1940. Selective Service Deputy Director Hershey asked local boards to give serious consideration to individual claims for deferment of men engaged in agriculture. Gen. Hershey nontified local boards that Agriculture Secretary Wickard reported the defense program has drawn heavily upon the supply of farm labor and an adequate supply is becoming a serious problem, particularly along the Atlantic Seaboard, in Ohio and Michigan, and parts of Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota and Arizona.

Army

Army Chief of Staff Marshall announced that training manuevers this summer and fall are designed to create an "all-purpose" force capable of operating in the Arctic, the tropics ,in deserts or mountains. He said every man must be be given basic infantry training before he can "pull his weight" as a specialist.

Undersecretary of War Patterson, speaking in New York, denied charges the Army is devoting too much time to basic training. He said "ours is not a mass Army, staking its success on sheer weight of men and machines." He said the ratio of infantry to air service—nine to one in 1917-18— is now almost one to one and "our plans call for a higher proportion of armored and motorized units than Germany has today."

Navy

Presidentd Rooseveit approve legislation authorizing the purchase or construction of 58 additional naval auxiliary ships. The Maritime Commission began immediate acquisition of the vessels, including the 27,000 ton "America," largest liner ever built in the United States. The Navy asked Congress to grant naval commanders authority to "take whatever steps they deem necessary . . . for proper protection of the naval forces" in the U. S. territorial waters.

Navy Secretary Knox announced the Navy will open 23 schools for training regular and reserve enlisted men as petty officers. Mr. Knox estimated 114,500 of the Navy's 256,000 enlisted men will be petty officers by July 1. The Navy also announced a three-months course at Harvard to train 400 college graduates as supply officers.

Air

The President asked Congress for an additional $2,790,000,000 for planes for the Army and $529,000,000 for planes for the Navy. The War Department announced that construction of new Air Corps school is "proceeding much faster than expected," with eight of 100 stations already completed and 50 partially occupied. Some of the fields, the Department said, were completed in three months.

The Air Corps announced that examinations of applicants for flying cadet appointments who have not had two years of college have been changed to include seven instead of nine subjects, with two of the subjects elective.

Ships

The Maritime Commission awarded contracts for 123 additional merchant vessels. To date, the Commission said, 850 ships have been ordered—312 emergency vessels, 85 cargo ships for private concerns, 72 tankers and 60 ships on British contracts. The Commission said the first of the emergency ships will be completed by November, a month ahead of schedule.

Congress voted the President authority to requisition foreign ships in U. S. ports.

Nutrition

Agriculture Secretary Wickard told the National Nutrition Conference for Defense "at least three-fourths of us" do not have satisfactory diets. He said "we need to consume twice as much green vegetables and fruit. 70 percent more tomatoes and citrus fruits, 35 percent more eggs, 15 percent more butter, 20 percent more milk."

Surgeon General Parran of the Public Health Service recommended the following minimum diet: One pint of milk for an adult and more for a child, at least one serving of meat, one egg or substitute, two green vegetables, two fruits rich in vitamin C, bread and cereal, butter or oleomargerine, and "other foods to satisfy the appetite."

Prices

Leon Henderson, Price Control Administrator, reported that although industrial production is now almost 35 percent higher than in 1929, the cost of living has risen only about three percent and wholesale prices only about seven percent in the past year, considerably less than during the comparable period of the World War.

He said leading oil companies in New England and middle-Atlantic areas have agreed not to increase gasoline prices "substantially" unless basic cost conditions change. He announced a ceiling will soon be placed on cow hide prices. He requestsd producers of ammonium sulfate used as fertilizer to continue prices at the present level because there is on justification for an increase.

DAIRY HERD IMPROVEMENT NEWS

The month of May is credited with an increase in total milk production along with a higher butterfat average. In the Northern Kentucky Association, the herd average for May was 27.1 pounds of fat which is higher than it has been in several months; however, the turning of herds on pasture has not brought about the increase in milk production that normally comes about. This is due to the dry weather which has hurt pasture considerably and prospects are not so favorable for summer pasture. In view of such, dairymen are being encouraged to supplement scant summer pasture with grass silage. Bulletins can be obtained from the county agent with complete information on such.

Along other lines toward improvement has been the purchase of registered sires by three members of the Association. Dr. R. C. Garrison has just purchased a Guernsey sire from Berea College which has a notable blood line. Mr. Henry Feldman of Newport, another Guernsey breeder, purchased a sire from the Walnut Hall Farm at the Guernsey sale of April 29. The third sale purchased was from the University of Kentucky herd which was bought by Otis Kells of Williamstown. This calf is not of serviceable age but promises to go far in herd improvement.

These men as well as many others, realize the importance the sire plays in building up the herd. By using males from cows with production records, the chances are more favorable toward a rapid building up of any herd.

That Nagging Backache

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action

Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling—feel constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass of harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

BY ROBT. A. BLAIR

Cumberland Falls, Kentucky's Million Dollar State Park, is indeed the most interesting and beautiful of all our Parks, Shrines or Memorials.

Located in the very heart of the famed Kentucky mountains, near Corbin and Williamsburg, this roaring cataract offers to the public who trek there by the thousands, a place where nature did far more, than she expected, then added a final touch in the general surroundings of the Falls; a delicate touch that changes with the four seasons so that Spring, Summer, Fall and Winter finds a new and different picture.

To all who really know Cumberland Falls, this is indeed the one season most pleasing to the true lover of nature. At present, the snowwhite dogwoods are a real picture, with this being the grandest season for the blooming of the dogwoods in the history of the Falls. Even many redbuds are still in bloom, forming a background for the dogwoods. The wahoo trees are beginning to spread their magnificent leaves and will soon open to the world the one and only wahoo flower—a picture worth traveling thousands of miles to see. Then we must not forget the wild honeysuckle that is now adding sweet fragrance to the atmosphere, and which will be followed the last of this month, by the delicate and abundant Mountain Laurel and Rhododendron with their blossoms of sweetness and beauty.

Cumberland Falls State Park is even more interesting. Wonderful highways lead into the area from every direction; north, south, east, and west, with a toll-free ferry across Cumberland River a short distance above the Falls. Highways are smooth — with long straight-a-ways and wide sweeping curves that make driving in the hills of Kentucky a real pleasure.

After the Park has been entered, there are miles and miles of well marked trails that lead the hiker to all points of vantage—up the river to the two shelter houses, down the river to the beautiful Eagle Creek falls, the gorge, Lovers Leap, the Bath House and bathing beach, and on down through the palisades to Dog Slaughter and an area unspoiled by man or improvements. It is little wonder that visitors, in speaking of Cumberland Falls, say they are "amazingly beautiful."

The present race of people, here and elsewhere in Kentucky and the other States, know only of the Falls and the river as Cumberland Falls and Cumberland River, but long before the white man knew of the Falls and learned to love them, we are told that the Falls and River were known as The Shawnee Falls and River—named after that great tribe of Indians, the Shawnees. Then again history tells us that Dr. Thomas Walker, Kentucky's first white visitor, named the river and mountains after the Duke of Cumberland, in England. Dr. Walker, viewing Southeastern Kentucky, from the Gap, had found an area far more beautiful and interesting than he had ever dreamed of finding . . . and Daniel Boone on his first visit said it was "the most beautiful country my eyes have ever seen."

Here is a view of the Falls showing also the profile of an Indian —and reviving interest in the ancient name, Shawnee Falls.

And Cumberland Falls is just as beautiful and interesting today, and unlike the early days when it was almost impossible to even get a wagon to the Cataract, our modern roads are marvelous, and the Park, under its present management of the Department of State Parks and the National Park Service offers to the public an area in which the visitor is welcome, and services to make his stay pleasant.

Historic Moonbow Inn, nestled on the very brink of Cumberland Falls, is again open, and the new stone duPont Lodge will be completed by mid-season. There are two groups of native log cabins, well equipped and ready for occupancy. Trained park personnel is now in charge of the Park and its accommodations, and everything possible is being done to present to the public a new Cumberland Falls park service that will make a visit to the park, as said by such a person, "something to remember."

It is interesting to know that more than one million dollars have been spent in the Cumberland Falls Park area, and to the lover of the Falls and this grand section of Kentucky, it is even more pleasing to note that the National Forest Service, through the Cumberland National Forest, now owns and controls practically every acre around Cumberland Falls, thus making the area as it were a diamond in a platinum setting. Such a program means that forever and ever, we will have the area as it is—millions of trees, shrubs, wildflowers and wild life. A place where the tired public can go for rest—an area that is a paradise for the vacationist—and a section known far and wide for its beauty and friendly people. To those who live near the Falls, nothing is more pleasing than to see our "neighbors" come and go, because we want to share this bit of nature with them—and it pleases us more and more to see them return time and time again. For nineteen consecutive years a Cincinnati family has visited Cumberland Falls for their yearly vacation—are the Falls not unusually interesting to have and hold such attention?

Then we must not forget the World's Largest Sunken Garden that is just a short distance from the Falls—an area owned by the National Forest, and an area that is to be developed into a recreational unit at an early date, but is outstandingly attractive at this time and should be on the "must see" list of every lover of the out-of-doors.

Cumberland Falls State Park and its 593 acres was an outright gift to Kentucky by the late Senator Coleman T. duPont and family of Wilmington, Delaware, at a cost to them of $400,000.00. While there was no passable road to the Falls many years ago, the Corbin Kiwanis Club sponsored the old "Kiwanis Trail" and with the help of many other Organizations and a multitude of citizens, the first automobile trail was opened to the public on September 22, 1927—almost fourteen years ago.

People from every state in the Union and many foreign countries have stood on the brink of the Falls or viewed the cataract from Lovers Leap—poems have been written about the lace-like curtain as it plunges from the rocks above to the whirling gorge below in an endless stream of rushing water, and some of these same poems have been set to music.

Truly Cumberland Falls is a mecca for that person who loves to take to the open road, and when that person enters Southeastern Kentucky, better known as the VALLEY OF PARKS, the highways flow quickly and surely to the very heart of the area, beautiful Cumberland Falls State Park.

Obedience to Law

WE are all familiar with the statement, "When they are in Rome, they do there as they see done." In other words, follow the custom of the land in which you are living. The writer remembers very vividly stepping out of an underground train in a London station and making her way to the street, greatly impeded by the oncoming rush of people. When she reached the street, she realized suddenly what was wrong. She had been holding to the right side of the passage as one does in America, when all the time she should have been keeping to the left. She knew the law, but for the moment forgot to make use of it. Much confusion and discomfort could have been avoided by walking with Londoners while she was in London.

In his letter to the Galatians, Paul writes (5:25), "If we live in the Spirit, let us also walk in the Spirit." . . . The words, "If we live in the Spirit," imply that we actually do live there. Let us then obey the laws of Spirit; let us prove that we are the children of Spirit, God. The opposite of Spirit is matter; therefore we do not live in matter. Why, then, should we fear or obey the so-called laws of matter? Living in the realm of Spirit, we find the way to walk in the Spirit.

To "walk in the Spirit" means to walk in the light of spiritual understanding, to follow the leadings of Truth. It means to avoid human will and let God direct our ways. We need to be receptive to the truth, allow God's plan to unfold in our consciousness, taking one step at a time. Even as the children of Israel were guided by a pillar of cloud by day and of fire by night, so shall we be guided in all our activities. We may be tempted to follow the broad highway of materiality with its false appetites, pleasures, and pains, or to wander away into one of the many intriguing by-ways that lead to sin, disease, unhappiness, and death. If we are wise, we shall stay close to the straight and narrow path, keeping our eyes always on the goal of spiritual understanding, for this path leads to health, holiness, and joy unspeakable. . . .

The law of Spirit is the law of Life. Christ Jesus knew the Mosaic Decalogue, which was divinely revealed to Moses, and obeyed it, as evidenced by his words and works, recorded in the New Testament. When asked which was the greatest of all the commandments, our Master replied (Mark 12:29-31): "The Lord our God is one Lord: and thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind, and with all thy strength: this is the first commandment. And the second is like, namely this, Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself. There is none other commandment greater than these."

In referring to the First Commandment, Mary Baker Eddy writes (Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures, p. 340): . . . The divine Principle of the First Commandment bases the Science of being, by which man demonstrates health, holiness, and life eternal. One infinite God, good, unifies men and nations; constitutes the brotherhood of man; ends wars; fulfils the Scripture, 'Love thy neighbor as thyself;' annihilates pagan and Christian idolatry,—whatever is wrong in social, civil, criminal, political, and religious codes; equalizes the sexes; annuls the curse on man, and leaves nothing that can sin, suffer, be punished or destroyed."

To know the "one infinite God, good," is the need of the world today. We must obey the law of Spirit or we shall find ourselves trampled upon by oncoming erroneous beliefs—beliefs of hatred, envy, revenge, poverty, suffering, bloodshed, and violence. It is not enough to know about the law of God. We must understand it and make use of it in all our thinking and living.—The Christian Science Monitor.

Building Profitable Pastures on Kentucky Farms

Lush, productive pastures that are the result of careful soil management and fertilization are among a farm's greatest assets.

CHICAGO.—How Kentucky farmers can obtain the most profitable results from pasture improvement was described in a statement issued here by the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee.

"The farmer's primary job," says the statement, "is to get a good stand of legumes and grasses.

"To accomplish this it is important, first of all, to prepare the seedbed early so as to kill as many weeds as possible.

"Next, it is vital to have the soil tested for acidity and to determine whether it is adequately supplied with phosphorus and potash. Whether the stand is a good or poor one will be determined by the presence or absence of plant food.

State Colleges Co-operate.

"Agronomists at state colleges, or county agents are prepared to co-operate in making these tests and providing recommendations covering the use of fertilizers on pasture crops in a rotation.

"In general, where a permanent pasture crop is planned, farmers will find that a top dressing of a complete commercial fertilizer in the fall will pay for itself many times over in producing earlier and more succulent grass for spring grazing, as well as a more sturdy root system, encouraging heavier growth.

Need Fertilization.

"The value of a program of legumes and grasses is manifold. Thousands of acres of farm land throughout the Middle West have been seriously depleted of their life-giving plant food elements by years of grain cropping without the regular and frequent production of legumes and without a program of fertilization which returns nutrients to the soil removed by growing crops. Decreased yields and a serious erosion problem have resulted from this condition.

Improving Soil Tilth.

"A good sturdy stand of legumes will improve the soil tilth, promote nitrogen fixation, add materially to the active organic matter in the soil and increase the yield of corn or grain crops which follow in the rotation.

"Every farmer knows that his soil 'works' better at some times than at others. Some years a good, firm seed bed is easy to secure. At such times the soil is said to have good physical condition or is in good tilth. At other times only a cloddy field can be obtained. Then the soil is in poor tilth. While the degree of tilth in a soil is a somewhat intangible factor, experience has proved that a good stand of legumes or grasses definitely promotes good tilth, increases fertility and improves the yield of crops which follow."

LOCAL 4-H BOYS IN STATE CONTEST

James Stephenson and Meier Taylor, both of the New Haven community, won the district 4-H demonstration team contest with their demonstration, "Controlling Leaf Diseases of Tobacco." This contest was held Friday, May 30, at Dry Ridge with county winners from Northern Kentucky competing. By winning the district contest, the local boys become one of twelve teams to enter the State contest to be held during Junior Week, June 9-14 at the University of Kentucky.

The winning demonstration included an explanation of the common leaf diseases of tobacco, angular leaf spot and wildfire, and the method used in their control. The 3-4-50 bluestone and lime treatment was mixed and applied to the plant bed to illustrate the proper method of controlling these diseases. The demonstration will be given Tuesday, June 10, according to H. B. Drake, assistant county agent. Mr. John Masters, New Haven club leader, and principal of the school, is coach of the team.

So many requests for hybrid seed corn were received by dealers in Spencer county that supplies were exhausted.

Butler county 4-H'ers went to Bowling Green to see the champion steer "Sargo" while he was on tour.

"What is Man," by Mrs. H. Hoelke:

"What is man to dare to destroy the creations of God? That is what he is doing in this age with his bomb and shell. Cattle grazing in the fields are left maimed, dying and suffering. For what? Children are separated from those they love—left bewildered and afraid. Sons are forced to kill their brethren—when Christ said: 'Love ye one another.'

"Money is being spent for destructive purposes which should be used to spread the Word of God, instead. Historic buildings are crumbling to the dust; things which beautify the world are no more. Why, oh why? Job 31-1: 'Surely such actions cannot go unrewarded, man will reap that which he sows.' The harvest is bound to come and woe to man. Job 28, verse 28: 'God has given man freedom of voice, but let him choose wisely and constructively. Think on these things.' "

"Whosoever will, let him take the water of life freely." Refreshing waters make the desert "blossom as the rose."

There is no more beautiful sight to those who live in a dry, barren land than that of a bubbling spring. The source of most all streams is a spring hidden away somewhere in the hills, so the source of the "River of Water" for His followers is Christ embedded deeply within the heart.

"Try to forgive the unkind thing
That to you has been done,
The hasty word that had the sting
From some bitter tongue.
Let's try to turn the other cheek,
Though that is hard to do,
Do not angry words now speak,
Let patience conquer you.
Try hard to see some good,
And by His Golden Rule to live,
Be kind, no evil to belie
Your hurt, but just forgive."

Forgiveness is the fragrance which roses yield when trampled upon.

It matters not how long you live, but how.

-that man IN OUR NEIGHBORHOOD!

I DARED NOT LEAVE THE HOUSE

I had just put the children to bed and turned out the lights, when the youngest started to cough. With confidence, I went to the medicine cabinet — the bottle was empty!

I knew from experience the child would grow worse through the night unless relieved, but my husband was away — I could not leave the house.

In this predicament, I thought of "that man", (our neighborhood druggist) and phoned immediately — then in what seemed but a few moments, I heard welcome footsteps — the filled prescription had arrived.

Yes, our neighborhood druggist fills prescriptions with infinite care and also carries a fine line of cosmetics and proprietary products. For women, he usually recommends Vatona Tablets to aid in the relief of those trying discomforts of the menstrual period — this may be just what you need — at least get in touch with your druggist. BEGINNING OF WORLD MISSIONS

LESSON TEXT—Acts 12:25-13:13.
GOLDEN TEXT—And he said unto them, Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature.—Mark 16:15.

Nineteen hundred years of "front line action" for Christ began that day in Antioch when the first missionaries of the cross were sent forth. There is no more thrilling story in all history than that of missions. The glorious thing is that it goes on year after year, and will do so as long as the Lord of the harvest continues to send forth workers. The writer of these notes is glad to be associated with a training center which in its half century of operation has prepared for service about 2,300 men and women who have been sent to the foreign field by their churches and missions, and of whom approximately 1,600 are still active on the field in spite of "peril, toil and pain."

Our lesson teaches us how "to fight the good fight of faith" (I Tim. 6:12). First we must have

I. The Base of Operations (vv. 1-3).

Every army must have a home base; just so, the army of the Lord looks to the home church, the local gathering of God's people. An army would fail if those at the base of its action were asleep, or so interested in the pleasures of this world, or so indifferent to their responsibility, that they would not work hard in support of the active army. So the cause of Christian missions cannot go ahead if it has to depend on a home church which is spiritually asleep, indolent, indifferent, and worldly minded.

The church at Antioch prayed and fasted. It ministered the Word of God. It was responsive to the guidance of the Holy Spirit and ready to sacrifice by giving its leaders to the missionary cause. Is your church that kind of a church? If not, why not?

Observe also that it is from such a church that God calls His workers. Sunday school teacher, you may have in your class next Sunday one of the missionary leaders of the next generation. See to it that the message from God reaches that heart.

II. Good Soldiers of the Cross (vv. 2-4).

The army does not call for the weak or physically handicapped to serve. Just so, God's service calls for the strongest men and women of the church, not the misfits or failures. A girl was once heard to remark: "If I can't get married, I will be a missionary." Fortunately for God's work, she did get married. Some men who cannot succeed in business think that means they should be missionaries.

God wants our best (Deut. 15:2) and He wants the best a church can give, which means the best spiritually, but in other ways as well. Note also in verses 3 and 4 that the messengers of the Lord must be constantly led of the Holy Spirit.

III. The Heat of Battle (vv. 5-10).

Warfare is not a Sunday school picnic. It means conflict with the forces of the enemy. So the missionary of the cross must be prepared to meet Satanic opposition. Saul and Barnabas met this "son of the devil" (by the way, reader, we trust you do not belong to that family) who opposed the work of grace which had begun in the heart of the governor (vv. 8-10).

However, there are those who do seek to hear the Word of God (v. 7) as did Sergius Paulus. The business of the missionary is to preach to them, but not only to them. The city of Paphos was really a miniature of the world of that day. It was a Greek city of high culture and low morals. It was ruled by the Roman governor, a man of noble character and a "man of understanding" (v. 7). But right with him was Elymas the sorcerer, a wicked and ungodly Jew, a disgrace to his own people and a hindrance to the work of God. The messenger of God rejoices in the opportunity to minister the Word, whether to Roman, Jew, or Greek, of high or low estate, wicked or good, interested or antagonistic. They all need God's Word.

IV. Victory for Christ (vv. 11, 12).

The army goes into battle with the purpose of winning a victory, or it is defeated before it starts. The Lord's army is on a victorious march, certain of success, because He that is in us is "greater than he that is in the world" (I John 4:4).

In dealing with the sorcerer, Paul brought down the drastic judgment of God. Note that this was not done because Elymas opposed Paul, or because he had some different belief, but because he in his wickedness opposed God. Those who fight against God are in a losing battle, the victory is always on His side.

There was another kind of victory here, and the soldiers of the cross are (or should be) far more interested in that type of victory; namely, the surrender of a sinner at the foot of the cross God won a victory in the heart of Sergius Paulus.

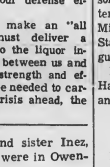
More for Liquor Than Defense

During the development of the present national emergency, the country has heard the phrase "all out" used with increasing frequency.

Appeals are heard for "all out" aid for European democracies, and for "all out" efforts to strengthen national defense.

The national W.C.T.U., which gave "all out" support to the government during the war effort of 1917-1918, is wondering how the nation hopes to go "all out" in the present crisis as long as it continues to squander more money on booze than it appropriated for the initial lend-lease program.



The President asked for $7,000,000,000 to finance the lend-lease program of "all out" aid to the democracies.

And the direct expenditures for intoxicating liquor by the American people, constantly encouraged by government sanction and the trade's unlimited promotion program, is daily diverting nearly $9,000,000 from retail merchants to the coffers of brewer, distiller, winemaker and their distributors.

This adds up to well over $3,000,000,000 a year, and to this must be added the indirect cost which is greater yet, the economic drain resulting from liquor lawlessness, crime, diseases, inefficiency, and premature deaths.

In an address entitled "The Special Cost of Alcoholism" delivered last December before the American Society for the Advancement of Science by Dr. Horatio M. Pollack of the department of mental hygiene of the State of New York, this indirect annual cost of liquor to the nation was placed at $5,000,000,000.

How, they are asking at National W.C.T.U. headquarters, can any nation gird itself for an "all out" effort toward anything when it permits itself to suffer such a huge drain on its resources? And how can it expect to maintain efficiency in its mines and factories and armed forces when liquor in prodigious quantities is flaunted attractively before those to whom we are entrusting our defense efforts?

Before we really make an "all out" effort, we must deliver a "knock out" blow to the liquor industry which stands between us and the combination of strength and efficiency which will be needed to carry us through the crisis ahead, the W.C.T.U. believes.

Marvin Black and sister Inez, and Alice Vankirk were in Owenton Saturday night.

Mrs. Sallie Wharton and Miss Hattie Higgins spent the week end with their brother and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Higgins.

Money Talks

By
Frederick Stamm, Economist Director of Adult Education
UNIVERSITY OF LOUISVILLE

There is hardly a day in which I don't hear some one say that the chain stores are driving the independent stores out of business.

It has always been my contention that the aggressive, wide awake independent merchant who has modernized his store and who has accepted modern merchandising methods can compete successfully with the chains. There is plenty of proof for this statement. In the last five years I have traveled in every state east of the Mississippi River and have failed to see one town in which there was not at least one prosperous independent merchant.

It is the unprogressive independent who sees the chains come in but who fails to modernize his business methods who has passed out of existence.

The Department of Commerce recently released some very interesting figures supporting my argument. Its figures show that in 1939 independent stores accounted for 74.4% ($31,409,859,000) of the retail sales distribution, while chain stores accounted for 21.7% ($9,105,825,000). All other types of distributors (cooperative stores, mail order, door-to door, etc.) accounted for only 3.6%. This indicates very clearly that the independent stores are still the most important retail distributive agency in this country today.

It is true, the chains have made tremendous strides in the past several decades. They have done so because they have adopted the most modern merchandising methods so far developed. But in spite of their large capital, wide advertising campaigns, and large purchasing power, independents still continue to do the lion's share of the retail trade (74.9%.)

The record of the progressive independent merchant has been excellent and he can continue this, I believe, if he is willing to keep up to date in all merchandising methods. The day of the independent is not gone; it is here.

BROKEN POTTERY

Modern children have so many playthings that they must get pretty tired of them. Almost every year brings some fad that surrounds most children with dozens of new contraptions, many of them miniatures of real man-sized bits of machinery. All of this is good; I am not begrudging the children all they want and can enjoy. But somehow I cannot help remembering the days when it took a lively imagination on the part of children to play with the toys they had. And nothing brings finer memories than bits of broken pottery, such as those we played with in the last century.

As ancient as were the houses we lived in, there were predecessors that had vanished before our time, leaving a few bricks at the site of the old chimneys and kitchen midden, as archaeoligists would call the refuse from the house itself. Ashes, broken glass, bones, rusty iron, and broken pieces of plates and other dishes could be found in many a place where a house had stood. We children loved to visit these places after the winter rains had washed the dirt off some more of our treasures. Little chips of old blue plates no bigger than my thumb were collected and treasured highly. By accident one of our places to explore was not only the site of a pioneer cabin but the camping ground of Indians long before the white man had come to the Purchase. Thus we picked up arrow heads and chips of flint right among the particles of blue china. Everything seemed equally odd, as if the pioneers and the Indians had lived back in the days of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob.

These ancient dishes were not merely to look at; they formed the basis for playing house. Viands that one tastes may be good enough, but the real viands are those that one imagines that he tastes. Keats says that "heard melodies are sweet, but those unheard are sweeter." When we played house, we "played-like" we were eating things out of these little scraps of pottery, and the taste was of nectar and ambrosia or whatever gods eat. There were things that we tasted but seldom in our remote section; how easy it was to imagine foods such as angels have on their bables! This old fragment might hold ice cream, this other one oranges, and still another candy of many a fancy kind. It must have been hard on the family larder after a day of play such as this, for our childish appetites, good enough at any time, had had a workout while we "played-like" eating the things we most wanted. After such a feast, of course, bread and meat seemed coarse and tasteless, but served to fill an aching void.

We did not know it, but our probing around in old ashes was a species of archaeology, related to Howard Carter's unearthing old King Tutankhamen. We reconstructed the remote past from the few things that escaped destruction when the pioneer cabin burned down or was removed to convert into a smokehouse or a stable. Every time I see whole blue plates in some antique collection, I fill out another chapter in the imagined life of the people who lived before my time and left me only a few broken bits of pottery to remind me that they had their three square meals a day and lived and died just like other folks.

Doings of The REDS

Road days are hard days for any ball club. And, so, there is nothing soft staring the Cincinnati Reds in their faces as they tour through the eastern section of the National League.

Their eastern trip opened with a Sunday doubleheader against the New York Giants. Single games against the New Yorks also were scheduled Monday and Tuesday. Wednesday the club was due to move to Philadelphia for a night game. Thursday will be a day of rest, then Friday the Reds and Phils will battle it out in a doubleheader.

Saturday the tempo increases, for on that day the Reds will invade the home field of the steaming Brooklyn Dodgers, who have been performing so many heroics this season. Three single games are scheduled against the Flatbush Flock, whereupon the Reds will move to Boston Tuesday, June 10, for a three game series.

Following the third game of the Boston series on Thursday, June 12, the Reds will hop a rattler west. En route to Cincinnati they will stop at Cooperstown, N. Y., the birthplace of baseball, for an exhibition game against the Cleveland Indians on Friday, June 13.

Return to Crosley Field is scheduled for Saturday, June 14, against the New York Giants. A doubleheader against the Giants is booked the following day, Sunday, June 15, and a single game Monday, June 16. Boston will be here for ladies' day game Tuesday, June 17, and a night game on Wednesday, June 18.

Tickets for all of the Reds' home games for the remainder of the season are on sale at the Reds' downtown ticket office at 307 Vine Street.

HAMILTON

EARLY HISTORY OF BOONE COUNTY

By A. M. Yealey

NOTE: This article is the conclusion of the story in reference to Major John P. Gaines. The first installment appeared in our May 22 issue.

After the two daughters had been laid at rest, the Ship "Supply" proceeded on her way around Cape Horn to Oregon and no sooner did Mr. Gaines get located than his son took sick and died of that dreaded disease, consumption. A very short time thereafter his wife, while riding a horse, was thrown to the ground and killed, and at last Gov. Gaines himself, crushed by blow after blow, and bereft of all held dear, sunk to the grave in what was almost as much a land of strangers to him as St. Catherines to his lovely daughters.

About 1857 the U. S. Steamer Metacomet, on her way to Paraguay, called at this Island of St. Catherines and the officers, hearing this sad affair, ordered a wooden tablet to be erected to perpetuate the memory of his solitary and sacred spot, but did not erect any permanent monument or clear away the brushes or put up a fence; probably from the want of material or time. There was no stone cutter on the ship or on shore or marble slabs to be had. The officers were content with what was humble.

During 1859 and 1860 the officers of the Metacomet and Powhattan, making another trip to Paraguay, anchored here and found the spot, cleaned the grass and shrubs away, and let the sunlight in of ten years' repose upon these fair and young sleepers.

A nice slat fence was erected around the graves and painted, and a thick well carved plank, which will endure for many years, was erected between the graves of the two sisters—whose christian names were not known. The following is the inscription that was placed upon this plank:

Sacred—"To the memory of the two daughters of Gov. Gaines, of Oregon, who died of yellow fever on board the United States Store Ship 'Süpply' in 1850, while on their passage to Oregon. Ground cleared up and enclosed by officers of the United States steamers Metacomet and Powhattan in 1859 and 1860."

One of the officers of the ship had this to say: "A spot of greater natural beauty can hardly be conceived, one of such utter loneliness I ever saw. I walked around this cemetery and looked upon the graves again and again, calling up the history of these fair sleepers in this distant land, and the fate of the unhappy family, till the luxury of sorrow became painful, and gathering up some memorials of the sad spot, I returned to the ship."

JONESVILLE LADY PASSES MAY 28th

Mrs. Jennie McDerment Wainscott, resident of Jonesville community, passed away at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Jim Goulds, at Falsom, Ky., Wednesday, May 28.

While Mrs. Wainscott had been in poor health for some time, her death came as a shock to her relatives and friends. She had been visiting her daughter, and retired Tuesday night in apparent usual health, but was found dead in her bed early Wednesday morning.

The deceased was born on November 22nd, 1882, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Lee McDerment.

Besides the husband, Thomas Wainscott, she leaves six sons, Herman of Wheatley, Noah of Wheatley, Vick of Williamstown, Lloyd of Covington, Jess of Ellis-ton Station, and Stanley of Williamstown; three daughters, Mrs. Floran Perkins of Owenton, Mrs. Jim Goulds of Falsom, and Mrs. Jennie Burgess of Stewartsville; two brothers, Lee McDorment of Beechwood, and Tom McDorment; two sisters, Mrs. Floran Honaker of Beechwood, and Mrs. Tom Roberts of Sparta; and 26 grandchildren.

The body was removed to the Coates & Stewart funeral home and prepared for burial, and was then taken to the residence at Jonesville. Funeral services were held from the Jonesville Baptist church Friday, May 29 at 2:30, Rev. Chambers of Falmouth, Ky., officiating. Mrs. Wainscott was a member of the New Liberty Christian church. Burial was made in the Jonesville cemetery, with Coates & Stewart in charge of arrangements.

CLOTHING & FOODS JUDGING CONTESTS

Miss Alva Mae Tupman, Florence, and Evelyn Franks, New Haven, will be among those who represent the 4-H clubs of the county at Junior Week, to be held at the University of Kentucky, June 9-14. These girls won their trips by placing at the top in the clothing and foods judging contests held at Burlington on Tuesday, May 27. The contests were conducted by Mrs. Mary Scott Moore, substitute home Demonstration agent, assisted by Mrs. Sibbia Reimer, Miss Evelyn Conrad, Hebron, and Mrs. Sam Sleet, New Haven.

The foods judging was done in the forenoon. Classes of biscuit, whole wheat rolls, and menues were placed. Judges heard the girls give oral reasons for their placings. They received ratings as follows: Champion, Evelyn Franks; superior, Mary K. Shields, New Haven; excellent, Billye Wilson, Hamilton, Bernice Sebree, Florence; good, Mildred King, Walton; Elaine Gardner, Florence; Wanda Pennington, New Haven; Ella Ruth Black, Hamilton; Mary Hope Chipman, Verona; Alva Mae Tupman, Florence; Bessie Ford, Walton; Mary Louise McCubbin, Walton; Betty Sturgeon, Florence; Kathleen Kenny, New Haven, did not judge all rings.

During the afternoon three clothing classes were judged—Street costumes, afternoon dresses and playsuits. These girls also gave oral reasons for their placings. They were rated as follows: Champion, Alva Mae Tupman; superior, Mary Louise McCubbin, Walton, Mary Katherine Shields, New Haven, Wanda Pennington, New Haven; excellent, Billye Wilson, Hamilton, Evelyn Franks, New Haven, Bernice Sebree, Florence; good, Ella Ruth Black, Hamilton, Mary Hope Chipman, Verona, Bessie Ford, Walton, Elaine Gardiner, Florence.

Others who attended the judging contest and served on committees were: Mrs. Walter King, Verona; Mrs. Walter Pennington, New Haven; Mrs. Roy Kenney, New Haven; and Mrs. Black, Hamilton.

Kenton Co. Home Economics Fair

On June 17, Simon Kenton High school will be the hostess for the Kenton County Home Economics Fair to three other schools in Kenton county, namely, Dixie Heights High school, Ludlow High school, and Lloyd High school, and the Dry Ridge High school at Dry Ridge, Kentucky.

All girls, who are taking home economics and are carrying on a summer project, from these five High schools, will be eligible to enter their projects at this fair. Some girls have done more than one project, and they may enter as many different projects as they have done. Some of the major divisions for the entries are: Clothing, foods, decoration of cakes, child care, home improvement, laundry work, repairing of clothing, flower arrangements, and hobbies.

These projects will be judged by able and competent leaders of home economics, as buyers for department stores, dressmakers, food specialists, home demonstration agents, and interior decoration.

The fair will be open to the general public at 2 p. m. and everyone is cordially invited to come over to Simon Kenton and see what the future homemakers of Kenton county and neighboring counties are doing. There is no admission fee.

SUCCESSFUL REVIVAL

Revival services closed at the Walton Methodist church, Sunday night, with everyone deeply grateful for the fine Spiritual uplife that they had received during the meeting.

Dr. Weldon brought warm, heart-seaching messages each time, and Miss Weldon did a good job with the children and leading the singing. The people also looked forward to her special message in song each service.

We shall not soon forget this season of refreshing. A large number received definite blessing and about a dozen surrendered their lives to the Lord Jesus. We should all be thankful for such a wonder Savior, especially when other friends and helpers are failing. Jesus satisfieth the needs of every heart in this world today that will be opened upto Him. The Church must not fail in its presentation of Him to such hungry hearts all about us.

County Pooled Wool Is Sold

The Boone County Wool Pool, sold, under sealed bids Monday, the county clip of approximately 55,000 pounds to M. Sable Sons, of Louisville. Growers will deliver their wool and receive payments in full on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of next week, according to H. E. White, Burlington, president of the Association.

The schedule of delivery for growers is as follows: Wednesday, June 18th, at Petersburg; Thursday, June 19th, at Burlington; Friday, June 20th, at Walton.

The price received is not officially announced until the date of delivery. The price is reported the highest since the last war.

VERONA HOMEMAKERS TO MEET TUESDAY, JUNE 17TH

Tuesday, June 17th, the Verona Homemakers will meet at the home of Mrs. Will McCormick, for their regular meeting. The meeting is called for the usual hour, 10:30 o'clock. Major Project, miscellaneous. Roll Call, "What are you doing to help defense at home?"

All members please be present. Visitors always welcome.

Try to place a value on your eyesight. It is priceless. Nature gave you only two eyes and no one has ever invented a substitute for seeing. That is why it's so foolish to take chances with your eyes. Thinking people have their eyes checked over at least once a year . . . far fewer times than even their car . . . and if they wear glasses, they wear only the kind that are good for their eyes. Not those that are advertised at "bargain" prices.

Next time you have your eyes examined—and make it soon (unless they have been checked over within a year)—ask about the superiority of optical science's finest glare-reducing lens, Soft-Lite. If you value your eyesight . . . you'll find it well taken care of with comfort-giving Soft-Lite Lenses.

DAIRY CATTLE BRING GOOD PRICE

Dairy cattle brought a good price at Harry Ruffar's sale at Union last Saturday. The high cow with calf by side brought $131.00. Several other cows brought over $100 per head.

Good stock that is in good condition and of the right age, always sells to a better advantage than old stock poorly kept. Prices of dairy cattle are unquestionably higher than in recent years. We should at the same time cull our herds more closely, feed our stock better and grow a larger amount of cheap feed, which means better pastures and larger amounts of higher quality hays and roughage. Good stock must have large amounts of good feed and it must be low cost feed.

ANNA B. NORMAN, SOUTH FORK, DIES

South Fork lost one of its oldest and most beloved citizens, when death claimed Anna B. Norman, 78, who passed away at St. Elizabeth hospital, June 3, after an illness of two days.

The deceased was born in Owen county, Kentucky, and had lived at Glencoe, moving from the latter place to South Fork 49 years ago. She had been a devout and faithful member of the South Fork Christian church for over 25 years.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman had celebrated their 59th wedding anniversary on January 22 of this year.

Mrs. Norman leaves to mourn their loss, her husband, E. N. Norman; one brother, Riley Butts of Cincinnati, Ohio; several nieces and nephews besides other relatives and many friends.

Funeral services were held at the grave in Hance cemetery, Thursday, June 5. Funeral directors J. L. Hamilton & Son had charge of funeral arrangements.

HAY PROSPECTS IMPROVED

Hay and roughage prospects have been much improved by recent rains, according to H. R. Forkner, county agent. Despite the severe spring drought that cut grass hay and pastures, there are excellent prospects for good crops of korean and late cutting of alfalfa.

Korean, an increasing popular hay in recent years, has come out wonderfully the past few days. Practically unnoticed until recent rains, it has begun to grow rapidly. A few rains in July and early August and with proper curing weather, two to three tons of good korean hay will prove a great benefit to livestock feeders.

Work On Florence By-Pass to Begin

We were informed last week by Chas. W. Riley, County Attorney, that work on the Florence by-pass is expected to begin within a week or ten days, and this will be followed by the resurfacing project on U. S. 25 between Richwood and Florence.

The by-pass project, to cost about $40,000, begins at the north city limits of the town and continues beside it to the intersection of Highways 42 and 25. This will relieve traffic congestion on the present highway through Florence.

Mr. Riley said that deeds for all rights-of-way, except one, had been procured and turned over to the Highway Department, and that court action is under way for the one remaining.

The Richwood-Florence project will be built at an estimated cost of $60,000. It has been delayed pending cleaarnce of rights-of-way for the by-pass.

This project should prove of great worth to this section of the county, and we trust that no further delays will be encountered.

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union will meet with Mrs. James H. Talley of North Walton, on Friday afternoon.

E. E. Reid For Representative

In this issue of the Advertiser will be found the formal announcement of E. E. Reid of Williamstown, as a Democratic candidate for State Representative from this district (Boone and Grant counties) subject to action of the Primary election to be held on August 2nd.

Mr. Reid is a native Kentuckian and has resided in Grant county for the past eight years. At the present time he is engaged in the lumber business at Williamstown. He is the eldest son of a protestant minister, Albert Reid, and is a nephew of the Revs. K. J. and Alex Reid, Christian ministers in Louisville.

This is Mr. Reid's first venture into politics, and it was only through persuasion by his friends that he entered the race. He respectfully solicits your support.

B. Y. P. U. FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

"Walking in the Light of Christ's Standard of Morality," is the topic of the Christian Service Program in Baptist Young People's Union, Sunday evening, June 15th.

AIM: To consider and discover the principles that govern present-day Christian living.

Harold Soden is Group Captain in charge.

Meditation:

"Happy is the man that findeth wisdom,
And the man that getteth understanding.
Length of days is in his right hand;
In his left hand are riches and honor." Solomon, Prov. 3:13

"But where shall wisdom be found, And where is the place of understanding?"—Job 28:12

"Behold the fear of the Lord that is wisdom, And to depart from evil is understanding."—Job 28:28.

MISSIONARY SOCIETY MEETS

Members and guests of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Baptist church, met for their regular session at the church on Thursday, June 5.

An interesting part of the program was the recognition paid to Mrs. Lucy Sanning and Mrs. Susie Norman, who are the only living charter members of the organization.

Those present were: Rev. and Mrs. C. J. Alford, Mrs. Clifford Powers, Mrs. R. E. Ryle, Mrs. Fannie Brittenhelm, Mrs. D. K. Johnson, Mrs. Elnora Hodges, Mrs. W. L. The Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist church, will hold their all-day meeting, Saturday, at the home of Mrs. Sallie Miller and Miss Miss Emma Jane Miller.

MRS. AMMERMAN PASSES AWAY JUNE 4

Cordelia Peebles Ammerman, 72 years of age, passed away at the residence on Bagby Road, Crittenden, Ky., June 4, 1941, following an illness of about four weeks.

She was the daughter of the late Calvin Peebles and Florinda Souther Peebles, and was born in Kenton county. Her husband, Perry Ammerman, preceded her in death.

The deceased was a member of the Crittenden Baptist church, from where services were held at 3:00 p. m., Saturday, June 7, Rev. R. F. DeMoisey officiating. Interment was in Crittenden cemetery. Elliston and Stanley, funeral directors of Williamstown, had charge of arrangements.

Mrs. Ammerman is survived by three daughters, Mary Ammerman of Crittenden, Mrs. Roy Dickerson of Owenton, Elza Ammerman of Florence; two sons, Ambrose Ammerman, New York, and Wm. T. Ammerman, Richmond, Va.; and one brother, Edward Peebles, Crittenden, Ky.

John W. Grant Is Sheriff Candidate

In this issue of The Advertiser appears the formal announcement of John W. Grant as a candidate for Sheriff of Boone county, subject to the action of the Democratic primary election, Saturday, August 2, 1941.

Mr. Grant is well known by the people of this county, and he expects to see as many voters as possible before the primary. He is a farmer, a member of the Baptist church and several lodges, and is president of the Farmers Bank of Petersburg.

Mr. Grant solicits the support of the voters of Boone county, and if elected will perform the duties of the office he seeks to the best of his ability.

THE DAN COHEN SALE STILL DRAWS LARGE CROWDS

The tremendous sale which the Dan Cohen Store of Pike St., Covington has been holding for several weeks, continues to draw large crowds, by their attractive prices on their footwear and other merchandise. Read the ad on page 5—it'll pay you.

Cleek Withdraws In Magistrate Race

Monday morning, J. F. "Jake" Cleek of Walton, Route 2, announced his withdrawal from the political race as a Democratic candidate for Magistrate from the 3rd Magisterial district of Boone county.

Mr. Cleek stated that he was retiring from the contest in favor of no one, but that there were three good men in the race, any one of which would make a good magistrate. Lack of time to devote to the campaign was given as the reason for withdrawing.

"Many thanks to all the voters who were going to give me their support.—Jake Cleek."

Harold Conner, Deputy Sheriff, of Florence, was a pleasant visitor in Walton, Wednesday.

County Nutrition Meeting June 13

A meeting of the Boone County Nutrition Committee has been scheduled for Friday, June 13th, 1:30 p. m. (E. S. T.) at the Burlington Court House, according to Mary Hood Gillaspie, home demonstration agent. Representatives of civic and commercial organizations have been asked to attend the meeting.

A county program of work will be set up by the group. Plans also will be made for starting community nutrition committees.

Reports of the District Nutrition Conference, held in Lexington June 3, will be given by the county representatives. The following people represented organizations at the Lexington Conference: Miss Evelyn Conrad, vocational home economics; Miss Elizabeth Jane Utz, county relief administrator; Mrs. Lowry, Red Cross; Mrs. George Kottmyer, Boone county Homemakers' president; Mrs. Sam Sleet, Bluegrass Federation of Homemakers; Mrs. J. C. Layne, Federated Woman's clubs; Mrs. Joe Berkshire, Florence Homemakers; Mary Hood Gillaspie, home demonstration agent; Mrs. John E. Crigler, Utopia club; John Crigler, A. C. program; Mark Cook, A. C. P. committee chairman; D. H. Norris, county superintendent; and H. B. Drake, assistant county agent.

NEW SKATING RINK OPENS

The beautiful new skating rink, The Mayflower Recreation Center, on Route 25, ½ mile north of Williamstown, and 16 miles south of Walton, had its grand opening on Thursday evening of last week. About 500 attended the initial festivities, with representatives from cities as far away as Lexington and Cincinnati, being present.

This building, the finest of its kind in this section of the country, is of brick and concrete block construction, 72x130 feet, and is modern throughout. Its features include a nice kitchen, booths for refreshments, check room, storage room, lavatories, and ample room for those who wish to "look on" as well as for the skaters. Several of the skaters remarked that it was the best floor they had ever skated on.

Music is furnished by Mrs. Wm. Crouse, Walton, at the console of a new Hammond Electric organ.

G. P. Nicholson & Son of Walton, contractors and builders, erected the building, and James E. Falls, also a local man, is the proprietor.

P.-T. A. SPONSORS PICTURE SHOWS

Do you want to give your support to an organization that has the welfare of your boys and girls at heart during their school days? Then come as often as you can to the moving pictures sponsored by the New Haven P.-T. A., throughout the summer months.

A CORRECTION

In our Glencoe correspondence last week, there appeared an item which would make it appear that Alfred Baker and Gladys Breeden were together at a dance May 31. This, however, was incorrect—they were not together, and are only casual acquaintances. We are sorry for this misrepresentation, and trust these people will accept our apologies.

LADIES' AID TO MEET THURS.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Christian Church, will meet with Mrs. Ida Stephenson of Green Road, Thursday.

Washington Snapshots
by JAMES PRESTON

Behind-the-hand whispers in Washington tell of new plans for a reorganization of the defense setup in an effort to speed the rearmament drive.

The present machinery, as nearly everyone admits is hodgepodge, hit and miss, and particularly unwieldy because everything has to funnel through a bottleneck—the White House.

For example, OPM cannot decide whether to build new steel plants until the President makes up his mind whether they are needed; Leon Henderson and his price regulators cannot determine whether legislation is needed to strengthen their powers until the President reaches a decision; and so on and on.

The President naturally spends a large part of his time worrying over details of that kind. The truth is that William Knudsen is as right now as he was a year ago when he said the only defense bottleneck is "Time." Valuable time is lost while things drip through the White House funnel.

With few exceptions—and businessmen at OPM are among those who agree—there is little argument against a change. But the important thing to some is that apparently those who are in charge of key phases of the program are not being consulted about the new plan.

OPM businessmen have speeded production tremendously since the first new defense machinery was created a year ago. But today they know nothing about the proposed reorganization. As one strongly proadministration businessman at OPM puts it:

"Somebody in an office or a bedroom (Harry Hopkins' office is a White House bedroom) blocks away from here is thinking up a new scheme. As usual, those involved will not hear about it until it is signed on the dotted line and sealed."

OPMers might not be too surprised at that if they had been in Washington longer. For after all, when the present defense machine was created, it was set up with almost complete disregard for an industrial mobilization plan drafted by the War Department after 20 years!

Typical of the way things are going and, in fact, an indication of a complete lack of understanding of what is happening, was a recent press release issued by the Office for Emergency Management (not the Knudsen OPM), which is the holding company for all defense agencies.

This release summarized what has happened in the last year, and included these sentences:

"On March 19, the President set up the National Defense Mediation Board, and its prompt settlement of the 75-day-old Allis Chambers tie-up and a number of smaller strikes stemmed the tide. Public fears began to subside as industry and labor put their shoulders to the wheel, National defense again forged ahead."

The very day that release was issued, this was the strike picture:

Eleven thousand workers in the Pacific Coast airplane industry voted to go on strike.

Pacific Coast shipyards were closed down by a strike;

Production at the government's own $35,000,000 munitions plant in Ravenna, Ohio, was halted by a strike;

AFL leaders warned that new shipyard strikes threatened in the Great Lakes area;

And the threat of another disabling strike hung over the coal industry.

That was not an exceptional day. The government's own figures show that the number of disputes has increased since March, and the number of strikes actually adjusted has dropped in the last 20 years.

In February, before the Mediation Board "stemmed the tide" of strikes, the U. S. Conciliation Service assigned its men to 327 strikes. In March, the total was 378, in April 439, and in the first four weeks of May it had risen to 474.

At the same time, the number of disputes adjusted by the Conciliation Service dropped from 102 in April to 98 in May.

That's some "tide stemming!"

Since the time that the Wright brothers made their first successful flight, the airplane industry in the United States has built about 60,000 planes of all types. The present defense program, by contrast, calls for the completion of 40,000 planes by the end of the next eighteen months.

All incomes of $10,000 and over, if taken entirely for taxes, would pay all costs of government for only about two months.

The United States, with only 6 per cent of the world's population, has nearly 19,500,000 telephones, or about half of all those in existence. And a telephone in New York City will reach 93 per cent of all the rest of the phones in the world.

In eleven months' time since the defense program first got under way, American industry's output increased 24 per cent. This is a larger increase in productive output than during any other similar period in our manufacturing history.

"Science can give mankind a better standard of living, better health and a better mental life, if mankind in turn gives science the sympathy and support so essential to its progress."—Vannevar Bush, President, Carnegie Institution.

This Week In Defense

Dr. Will Alexander of the OPM, speaking in Atlantic City, said defense industries will need 4,000,000 more workers by January. He said, as examples, the San Diego, San Francisco and Vallejo area of California will need 31,000; Detroit, 66,000 to 88,000; Philadelphia, 70,000; northern New Jersey, 30,000; Dallas and Fort Worth, 17,200; and Wichita, 7,000. He asked employers not to discriminate against persons with necessary skills because of race, religion or color.

Labor Secretary Perkins reported 324,000 workers will be needed in the shipbuilding industry, 408,000 in aircraft, 291,000 in machine tools and ordnance, and 384,000 in other defense industries. She said the greatest single need is for 156,000 skilled machinists and 139,000 semi-skilled assemblers.

War Secretary Stimson announced that skilled workers in the Army will be released, if required by civilian jobs, upon the request of former employers. Sidney Hillman, OPM Associate Director General, again appealed to all unemployed, all persons not in defense industries, and all persons who can do more highly skilled work than required by their present job, to register at local public employment offices so they may be trained and placed in defense work.

Prices

Bureau of Labor Statistics reported food prices increased for the sixth consecutive month and are now about 6.5 percent above last November. Prices of all foods moved upward but the latest increase resulted from advances in prices for dairy products, fresh fruits, vegetables, pork and lamb, the Bureau said.

The Department of Justice announced Federal Grand Juries in San Francisco, New York, Philadelphia, Hartford, Denver, Dubuque and Washington have indicated 300 firms and individuals in a nation-wide drive to prevent unwarranted increases in food costs.

Agriculture

Agriculture Secretary Wickard asked for a one-third increase in Cheddar cheese production and a one-fourth increase in evaporated milk. He said an increase in total milk production, asked several weeks ago, has been made, but the milk supply must increase in areas surrounding cheese and evaporated milk plants. He said prices would be supported by Government purchases for lease-lend activities.

Priorities

The OPM added copper, cork and steel to vital defense materials under priority control to give defense needs and essential civilian needs first call on the materials.

L. Edward Scriven, Assistant Priorities Director, speaking in Chicago, said, "you can walk through any large retail store today and see all around you commonplace objects—stoves, toasters, vacuum cleaners, typewriters, cameras, tools, and lots of other things—which cannot escape being hit by the demands of the defense program."

Consumers

The Office of Price Administration and Civilian Supply suggested that local consumer groups aid the defense program by establishing local market radio news service, analyzing price rises, and establishing consumer information centers to advise on buying problems and check quality, grading and labeling of consumer goods.

Prospective Oil and Power Shortage

Secretary of Interior Ickes, Defense Petroleum Coordinator, said a temporary restriction on the use of gasoline and oil on the East coast may become necessary because of the shortage of tanker transportation. He said a proposed $70,000,000 pipe line from Texas to ease the situation would require 12 to 15 months to build.

The Federal Power Commission began a series of conferences with electric utilities officials regarding rapidly expanding defense needs for power, aggravated by a drought in the mid-Atlantic and Southern areas. President Roosevelt asked Congress for $285,000,000 to complete the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence seaway and power project to permit ocean-going vessels to reach the Great Lakes and make available an additional 2,200,000 horse-power of electric energy.

Home Defense

New York's Mayor LeGuardia, Director of the Office of Civilian Defense, reported it will take at least a year to obtain equipment to protect the nation's cities during bombing raids. He said it would cost about $43,000 each to equip the permanent fire companies in the country, and in many places auxiliary fire companies would be needed.

Foreign Affairs

Secretary of State Hull, said French - German collaboration threatens seriously to alter French relations with the United States. The President told his press conference rumors of German-English peace discussions were Nazi-inspired and not true.

Ships

President Roosevelt authorized the U. S. Maritime Commission to take over foreign ships in U. S. ports. The Commission announced it has arranged with Britain for American ships to take over services from Canada and the U. S. to Australia and New Zealand to relieve English vessels for war work. The Commission also announced purchases of 28 merchant ships for use as Army and Navy auxiliaries and ordered Atlantic and Gulf Coast line ship operators to make available 50 percent of their tonnage—between 60 and 70 vessels, totaling 375,000 tons—for the 2,000,000 ton emergency shipping pool for lease-lend operations.

Navy Secretary Knox announced competitions would be worked out to speed building of ships by awards to the fastest workers and the fastest shipyards.

Navy

Navy Secretary Knox announced the launching of the 35,000-ton battleship South Dakota, five months ahead of schedule. He said he hoped the warship would be ready for service by January although this normally takes a year after launching. Mr. Knox said the Navy's 35,000-ton ships far exceed in power, guns and armor the sunken German warship Bismarck. The Navy announced that all Atlantic bases acquired from Great Britain are now available for limited operations and will be completely finished within a year.

Army Air

The War Department announced high school graduates without sufficient education to become officers may enlist in the Air Corps for training as pilots. Applicants between 19 and 22 will receive preference. The Army said eventually 20 percent of its pilots may be enlisted men who will be trained to fly and given the rating of flight sergeant with pay of $108 to $207 per month, depending on length of service.

The War Department also announced Army Air Corps aviation cadets now receive the same pay and allowances as Navy and Marine flyers and receive a $500 bonus for each year or fraction of a year of active duty and $10,000 in insurance.

Selective Service

Selective Service Director Hershey asked Congress to approve legislation authorizing deferment of all men 27 or more years old last October 16. SS Headquarters amended regulations to permit review of classification at any time prior to induction.

Defense Financing

The Budget Bureau estimated the Federal deficit for the current year would be $747,000,000 less than previously estimated because of the higher tax collections and cuts in non-defense expenditures.

MORGANSVILLE

"The gift of God is eternal life." Salvation is free to all, and is not obtained through any of our efforts. It has been procured at an infinite cost and Christ's sacrificial death on the cross is for the atonement of all mankind who are invited to "believe and be saved."

There is no darkness too dense or night too dark that the Light of the World cannot make bright.

"It is always right to do right."

"It is always a sign of a noble spirit when one is not jealous of his superiors."

If you think wrong, it is impossible to act right.

"I will not doubt—though shadows cross my way
And clouds obscure the sunlight—for a day,
Through the gloom, a beacon light I see the silve rlining
He reveals to me, I clasp the guiding hand of hope and cheer
And follow on—nor pause to doubt or fear—
Knowing that someday 'twill be known
Why tears amid the joys were sown."

"Live so as to be missed when you die."

The recent death of Mr. George Mann, 72, marked the passing of an aged, respected citizen. Death is not an end but an entrance into fuller, richer living and is but a path that all must tread if we would ever pass home to God. Following the last rites burial took place in the Goshen churchyard.

Money Talks

By
Frederick Stamm, Economist Director of Adult Education
UNIVERSITY OF LOUISVILLE

A year ago we were worrying about the large surplus of most of our farm products; today we are urging farmers to produce more. A year ago we were worrying because the prices of farm products were too low; today we are talking about a price ceiling for many farm crops.

What has brought about this change? In a sentence, I would say the War in Europe, the defense program at home, and, more specifically, the passage of the Lend-Lease Bill which has enabled this government to begin the accumulation and shipment of foodstuffs to Britain.

The pattern of prices today resembles that of twenty-five years ago. During the first World War food prices in the U. S. did not begin to rise sharply until the middle of the second year. During the first year of this present war prices did not go up strongly But during the past year important agricultural products increased in price from 6 to 65% over this time a year ago.

The Department of Agriculture has already allotted larger acreages to the production of tomatoes, and dry edible beans, vegetable items demanded by the British in large quantities. Likewise, as long as two months ago the government announced that to stimulate the production of hogs, dairy products and eggs, it would try to maintain prices at $9 for hogs, 31 cents for butter, 22 cents for eggs, and 15 cents for chickens. All these prices have been surpassed already.

One of the best ways to measure price change is to study the wholesale markets as their prices are more sensitive than retail prices. The Chicago wholesale price of butter has risen from about 26 cents a pound a year ago to 35 cents; cheese, from 14 to 19 cents; eggs, from 16 to 25 cents a dozen; and hogs, from $5 a hundred-weight to around $9.50 average. These are but examples.

Food prices received by farmers and paid by consumers are now only slightly below those of 1930, and the trend now points to higher prices.

The farmers should have a good year, barring a severe drouth, and should make more money than they have for some time. At least, some of their worries have vanished with higher farm prices.

SERVICE THAT SATISFIES

CAN THERE BE VERTEBRAL DISRELATIONSHIP?

By Dr. Thomas Sullivan

It has often been stated that there could be no disrelationship of vertebrae without having fracture of the bones. As applied to a complete, or major, disrelationship between two bones of the spine, such a statement is probably true. But, if applied to slight disrelationship, the statement would be entirely at variance with established facts.

Today, nobody denies the possibility of flat feet or fallen arches. In this condition, the bones that form the arch of the foot have dropped from their normal position and are in disrelationship to each other. Aching feet are the result, and the degree of discomfort is usually in proportion to the disrelationship and the extent to which the feet are used. Tired, aching, uncomfortable backs might likewise be the result of slight vertebral displacements that could be easily corrected. The foot is a rather compact structure as compared with the spine. So, if the bones of the more compact structure could be displaced, it is logical to assert that the parts of an erect single column of individual bones could be displaced.

It might be thought that the arch, which bears the weight of the entire body, is subjected to greater strain than the spine, but wait. Between each two bones of the spinal column there is a cartilage which has a cushion effect. Looking at the spine from the back it should be straight. From a side view, however, it is normally curved, giving it a spring effect. The spring action and the presence of the cushions make it a shock absorber. This is necessary because the shocks of every step we take, as well as the effects of every jolt to the body, and every movement in which we participate, are transmitted to the spinal column, a structure which must take more punishment in twenty-four hours than do the feet. The possibilities of its individual parts becomng displaced are great.

The expression "Sacro - Iliac strain" is commonly known. Approximately fifteen percent of the adult population have experienced the discomforts of the condition. Such a strain is nothing more than a disrelationship between the sacrum, the largest bone of the spine, and the ilium, that big bone that is generally spoken of as the hip. If these two large bones can slip from their normal relationship to each other, surely the smaller bones of the spine can. "Poor posture," "round shoulders" and "curvature of the spine" are terms that imply disrelationship of the vertebrae of the spine. X-ray pictures showing disrelationship of vertebrae, are part of the case records of many patients in every chiropractor's office.

Cooking With Your Refrigerator

By Katharine Fisher

Director, Good Housekeeping Institute

You'll find hot-weather meal preparation lots easier if you will make your refrigerator an active partner of your range. Don't limit your refrigerator to the storing of foods until you are ready to prepare and cook them. Use your refrigerator, also, to store prepared dishes, ready to pop into your oven, or even ready to serve. By using your refrigerator in this way, many a preparation job can be done in the cool of the morning, or even the night before, helping you keep out of the hot kitchen for longer stretches at a time. Here are two menus that carry out this idea.

Sunday-Dinner Menu

Jellied Consommé
Baked Stuffed Fish
Asparagus with Never-Fail Hollandaise Sauce
Crisp Rolls
Packaged Coffee Ice Cream and Raspberry Ice

This entire dinner can be prepared on Saturday. The consommé is chilled in the can; the stuffed fish is wrapped and put into the evaporator tray; the asparagus comes from the vegetable drawer; the sauce is stored in a jar; and the ice cream is kept in the freezing compartment at proper setting.

Baked Stuffed Fish

2 2-lb. fish, cleaned and trimmed but not split
2 c. water
4 tbsp. salt
4 tbsp. melted fat or salad oil
8 strips of bacon or fat salt pork

Let fish stand for 5 min. in water and salt, which have been mixed together. Drain. Cut three or four gashes through the skin on each side of the fish. Stuff the fish, using following recipe; close opening with toothpicks and string, or with needle and thread. Brush the skin thoroughly with melted fat or salad oil. Lay four strips of bacon in a shallow, greased baking pan 14" x 10" x 2¼", and place the fish on the bacon. Lay 2 more strips on top of each fish. Bake in hot oven of 500° F. for 10 min. Reduce the heat to moderately hot oven of 400° F., and bake 10 to 15 min. longer, or until fish is easily pierced with a fork. Lift fish carefully from pan onto a hot platter. Remove thread or toothpicks, garnish with slices of lemon, or tomato, or canned cranberry sauce. Serves 6.

Stuffing For Baked Fish

8 tbsp. finely chopped onion
6 tbsp. butter or margarine
1 qt. day-old bread cubes
1 tsp. finely chopped sage leaves
½ tsp. salt
⅛ tsp. black pepper
1 c. diced cucumbers
4 tbsp. water

Cook chopped onion slowly in butter until transparent. Mix bread cubes, sage, salt, and pepper together; add cucumbers, water, onions, and butter; mix thoroughly with a fork. Cover and let stand for 5 to 10 min. Will stuff 2 2-lb. fish.

Help's-Day-Off Menu

Sizzling Platter
of Chopped-Meat Patties
Sautéed Onions
Hashed-Brown Potatoes
Grapefruit Sections on Crisp Romaine
Strawberry Chiffon Pie

All the dishes in this menu can be prepared early Thursday morning. The meat patties are stored in the meat keeper, and the onions, potatoes, and grapefruit sections are stored in covered bowls or refrigerator dishes. The pie does not need to be covered, because it is stored merely for chilling.

Strawberry Chiffon Pie

1 baked 9" pie shell
1 envelope plain, unflavored gelatin
½ c. cold water
4 eggs, separated
⅔ c. granulated sugar
1 tbsp. lemon juice
½ tsp. salt
1 c. crushed strawberries
2 or 3 drops red coloring
½ pt. heavy cream
3 tbsp. granulated sugar

Soak gelatin in cold water about 5 min. Beat egg yolks slightly, and add ½ c. sugar, lemon juice, and salt. Cook over boiling water until of custard consistency. Add the softened gelatin, stirring thoroughly; then add strawberries and coloring. Cool, and when mixture begins to congeal, fold in stiffly beaten egg whites, to which has been added remaining ⅓ c. sugar. Fill baked pie shell, and chill. Just before serving, spread the pie with the cream, whipped and sweetened with the 3 tbsp. sugar. Garnish with strawberries if you wish.

SPARTA

Mrs. Ruby Reeker and daughter Bettie of Covington returned home after a week's visit with her mother, Mrs. Gypsie Skirvin.

Mrs. Sallie Greene, who has been ill for several months, is able to be out again, much to the delight of her many friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Moore, of Lewis Lane, Mr. and Mrs. Sammy Connelly of Owenton, and Mr. and Mrs. Druard Estes spent Sunday the guests of Hardin Furnish and wife.

Robert Wilson returned home Saturday from Ft. Knox, where he had a position. He is suffering with sciatica rheumatism.

Mrs. Jarney Hall and Anna Sanders spent the week end in Memphis, Tenn.

Mrs. Emma K. Riley was a business visitor in Cincinnati, Saturday.

Cary Edwards and family of Detroit, Michigan, were called here Wednesday, by the death of the former's stepfather, Uncle Ed Skirvin.

Mrs. Ella Collins, Emma K. Riley and Mrs. Jas. Bond spent Wednesday afternoon in New Liberty, attending a card party.

Hearty congratulations are extended Phil E. Stallard and bride. He was married May 30, to Miss Sue McDarmant of Covington. This is the first adventure for the bride, and third for the groom. They will reside in Indianapolis.

The recent rain Sunday night did quite a bit of damage to farm land. The Glencoe and Sparta road has been washed out so as to render travel impossible.

Those from a distance, who attended the funeral of Mr. Ed Skirvin, were: Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Brock of Owenton, Mrs. Ruby Reeker of Covington, and Cary Edwards and family of Detroit.

DEATH CLAIMS ONE OF SPARTA'S OLDEST CITIZENS

June the 4th marked the passing of another of the town's oldest and most highly respected citizens, when the death knoll was sounded for Edward Skirvin.

The deceased had been in ill health for some time, due to infirmities of old age.

He was born in Owen county, Ky., January 2, 1862, living there until he retired from farming, he came to live here, where he endeared himself to all who knew him. Early in life he was married to Miss Florence Bond of Owen county, who with an infant daughter, preceded him to the grave. In 1927 he married Mrs. Gypsie Wilson Edwards, who with one brother, Richard Skirvin, survives him. Uncle Ed, as he was familiarly known, was a man of unassuming nature, kind and considerate of others; a good citizen and neighbor, always ready to do a good deed for friends and neighbors.

Funeral services were held Friday at 10:30, at the late home, by Rev. W. J. Clarke, after which the remains were laid to rest in Owenton cemetery, by C. L. Carlton & Son. A large concourse of sorrowing friends and relatives were present to pay the last tribute of respect to one who has been among them for the last quarter of a century. The pallbearers were: Cary Edwards, Howard and Gipp Wilson, Everett Carver, Leslie Minor and Irvin Scott.

SUGAR CREEK

Mr. and Mrs. Less Hon called on Alva Hon, Sunday.

WATERLOO

Hood-Craven

A very pretty wedding took place at the home of Rev. Arthur Tipton, Ludlow, Saturday afternoon, June 7, at three forty-five o'clock, when Vivian Elizabeth Hood, eldest daughter of Irwin Hood of Constance, became the bride of Paul Craven, son of Mrs. Henrietta Kottmyer Craven, Constance.

The bride was pretty in a gown of white crepe with which she wore white accessories. Her corsage was of white roses.

Miss Avalon Hood, sister of the bride, and Miss Shirley Hood, cousin of the bride, served as bridemsaids. Miss Avalon was dressed in blue crepe, wearing a corsage of yellow roses, while Miss Shirley wore a costume of pink, and wore roses of the same shade.

The groom wore a black suit. His attendants, his brother Carl, wearing blege, and Manilus Goodridge, blue.

After the wedding supper, which followed the ceremony, the bride and groom left for a motor trip with destination unknown. On their return they will be at home to their friends with the bride's father in Constance.

FUNERAL SERVICE

VERONA -:- KENTUCKY

SOCIAL AND PERSONALS

STAFFORDSBURG

We are sorry to see the close of the revival meetings, which have been in progress here for the past two weeks. The evangelist was Rev. James E. Wright, who was accompanied by his daughter, Miss Roberta. The heart-searching, soul-warming sermons delivered, as only Bro. Wright can, were a help and inspiration to all who heard. Come out next Sunday and worship with us.

The Misses Hope and Ruth Keeney returned last week from Lexington, where they had spent the school year.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Bird are spending the week with Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Ballinger, who also had as guests from a distance, Mr. and Mrs. H. Hageman of Ohio, and Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Brannock and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Brannock of Kelat, Kentucky.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Ballinger, after a short honeymoon spent in the Smoky Mts. National Park, are at home with his parents for the present.

Mrs. Ella Tailliferro is spending a few days with her cousin, Mrs. L. J. Rapp.

Funeral services for Michael Sweeney, 81, were held at St. Cecelia church, on Monday morning. He died Friday at his home on Klein Road. He leaves a son, Thomas Sweeney; two brothers, Patrick Sweeney and Joseph Sweeney; and two sisters, Mrs. Nellie Mills and Mrs. Margaret Mills.

G. W. Klein is home, following the close of the school term at Georgetown College, at Georgetown, Kentucky.

Miss Kathryn Keeney spent the week end with her friend, Miss Eva Wharton, near Waynesville, Ohio.

Mr. and Mrs. Klein Gordon visited Sunday, with her father, C. A. Ballinger, who is very ill.

FLORENCE HOMEMAKERS

The Florence Homemakers met at the Town Hall May 24, for an all-day meeting, with 23 ladies and several children present.

We were delighted to have Miss Mary H. Gillaspie and Mrs. John Elliott with us. Mrs. Elliott is the county reading chairman, and she gave us a very interesting report on the meeting held with the different reading club chairmen, and an outline of the work that they have planned for the year. Mrs. Elliott is very enthusiastic about her work, and makes everyone feel that they should do more and better reading.

Mrs. Sarah Marksberry and Mrs. Nell Blankenbeker gave a report on the joint Citizenship and Exterior Beautification meeting. They urged that everyone help with the Red Cross work and other activities of the Citizenship committees, and they also told about the Silver Tea which this committee is planning for July 31, 1941. Mrs. Blankenbeker and Mrs. John Vest, of the Walton club, are making final arrangements for the tea, which will be held at the Florence Christian church. Guest speaker for the afternoon will be Mrs. Ann Stewart, well known for "Let the Earth Speak;" and Mrs. James Layne, who is connected with the Federation of Women's Clubs and the State Highway Beautification Department. This tea should be of much interest to all Boone county people, since they plan to use the proceeds from the tea to beautify the Boone county roads. Mrs. Blankenbeker, citizenship chairman, and Mrs. Garnett Tolin, exterior beautification chairman, are both working hard in the interest of our local communities and county, and it is the duty of everyone to get behind them and help to make their work grow and survive.

Mrs. Mabel Sayre told the story of the first successful operation in Kentucky, which was performed at Danville, Kentucky.

During the afternoon session, Miss Gillaspie spoke on the essentials of a well-balanced diet. She stressed the need of balanced meals at all times. She also told about the plans for the "Rug Shows," on July 17-18-19. She compared them to a three-ring circus, the county will be divided into three groups, of about three to four clubs in a group; then they will show the rugs which they have made during the project, at the place designated for them. The shows will be held at Burlington, Florence and Walton. Rally around, Florence Homemakers, and get your rugs finished.

In the absence of the project leaders, the knitted rug lesson, in which much interest was shown, was given by Miss Gillaspie.

POPLAR GROVE

Rev. and Mrs. James Cummins were entertained, Sunday, in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Willie Shirley and son, William Byron.

Mrs. Birdie Herndon and children spent Friday with Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Stewart and daughters, Vivian and Lillian.

Mrs. Thelma Clifton and children spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hall.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Brock and daughters, and Mr. and Mrs. Buford Stewart were the Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Herndon and daughter, Linda Lou of Jonesville.

O. B. Stewart was the week end guest of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Stewart and daughters, Vivian and Lillian.

John Wainscott was the Sunday guest of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Hicks and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Stewart and daughters entertained as their Thursday night guest, Little Herschel Jones Stewart.

RYLAND HOMEMKERS CLOSE PROFITABLE CLUB YEAR

The final meeting of the year, of the Ryland Homemakers' Club, was held at the home of Mrs. Harry Rubbe, in Covington, Tuesday, June 3rd.

Mrs. Harry Rubbe presided over the business meeting, in the absence of Mrs. Wm. Dickman, club president.

Mrs. J. C. Brown gave the report of the Advisory Council meeting, at which members, representing various clubs, discussed the projects liked and disliked.

Because of the importance of nutrition in the defense program, the study of food will be a main project next year.

Mrs. Oliver Gee gave the lesson on foods and an account of a trip to the Nutritional National Defense meeting (at Washington D. C.) by Miss Imlay, who is the Extension Specialist in Food and Nutrition. This meeting was attended by leading doctors and home economists of the country.

One of the attending doctors gave this definition of a vitamin: "A vitamin is something that makes you sick, if you don't get it."

Dr. Statie Erikson, chairman of the Kentucky Nutrition committee said, "In addition to giving aid to Britain, America has determined to raise the health of her own people."

And Mr s.Roosevelt, in addressing the meeting said, "We can be and must be the strongest people on earth."

Mrs. Gee told of the importance to young and old, of the mineral calcium, for a healthy body.

Plans were made for a picnic to Coney Island on Covington Day, for members and friends.

There will be no regular club meetings until September, at which time Mrs. Wm. Damon will entertain the members at her home near Visalia.

Members answering roll call at the Tuesday meeting, were: Mrs. Oliver Gee, Mrs. J. C. Brown, Mrs. Edward Houser, Mrs. Alfred Rich, Mrs. Wm. Mendenhall, Mrs. Harry Rubbe.

Emily Post Notes Social Changes Of Two Decades

JUST because she receives some three thousand letters a day from people asking advice about social and personal problems doesn't mean that Emily Post isn't a woman confronted with several deep perplexities of her own.

One of the greatest, writes Margaret Case Harriman in the June issue of Good Housekeeping magazine, is the fact that although she has written five novels and three other books, she is known chiefly for Etiquette or the Blue Book of Social Usage which she wrote in 1922. It has made her the foremost authority on social manners in the country. Mrs. Harriman says it has run through four editions, which means sixty printings or more than half a million copies.

Even though it's logical to guess from her book that Mrs. Post is a stickler for formality, Mrs. Harriman reveals that her manner has an easy charm that breaks candidly into impatience or an occasional mild profanity in the presence of anything flossy or phony. When asked by a linen company to comment on an advertisement of a table fancily set for a formal dinner, "Lord," she stammered, "it's lousy."

Mrs. Harriman's article relates that Mrs. Post was born and bred in New York City where she was the belle of her debutante season, 1892. Now she is a gay, friendly woman, very handsome and with the spirited good looks one romantically associates with the eighteen nineteen. Shortly after Mrs. Post's father died, she divorced her husband, and suddenly found herself a divorcée and, through necessity, a working woman at a time when neither divorce nor gainful employment by gentlewomen was recognized by the kind of people Mrs. Post had known.

Among many other virtues, Mrs. Post's volume on etiquette presents a panorama of the vast changes in America's social scene during the last two decades. When the first edition appeared it was filled with hints on how to handle butlers, chauffeurs, and footmen. The latest edition (1940) now has a scant two-and-a-half pages on butlers and almost nine on the woman who wants to be an efficient cook, waitress and hostess at the same time. The chaperon who figured so largely in the early editions has completely vanished, and as for that old bugaboo about which fork one should use in eating, Mrs. Post has this to say, "Nothing is of less importance."

Sister and Brother Reunited After Long Separation

Mr. and Mrs. Winston Mason had as their special guest last week end, Mr. Mason's long lost sister, Mrs. Lois Hancock of Winslow, Arizona. Winston and Lois were left orphans, in infancy, and had become separated years ago when they were adopted into different homes.

Since then they have grown up, married, and each has one child, and have established homes some seventeen hundred miles apart. It was indeed a beautiful sight to witness these two fine young people together again, after all these years, and may God grant that they will be able to be together often now that they have found each other. A three-day leave was granted Mr. Mason from his work, and this time was well spent in entertaining Mrs. Hancock. They visited the Zoo and many other local places of interest.

On Sunday they drove Mrs. Hancock to Louisville, where she was to meet friends and drive home to Arizona. God grant them a very pleasant return trip, for we found Lois a very charming person.

Little Miss Thelma Fisk of Morning View, was visiting her aunts, Mrs. C. P. Hedges and Mrs. John Points, last week.

The nice rains of last week seem to have washed away all of our dusty frowns, as every growing thing has taken a new lease on life.

There was a nice crowd out for Harry Ruffra's sale on Saturday, and everything brought a good price.

Mr. and Mrs. John Points entertained Mrs. Eltena Rupert and friend on Sunday.

Several local families have made application for mattresses, through the community mattress program, and we understand work for the Union center will begin Monday, June 9, at Beaver colored school. It is indeed a privilege to get these nice mattresses, as we feel that by making use of this surplus cotton, we are helping our southern neighbors to solve a serious problem that has faced them for several years.

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Friend and son Scott were visiting her mother and family of Dayton, Ky., on Sunday afternoon.

Miss Nell Jean and Russell Doane were guests at a party, given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Foster Cook, ofHempfling Road, in Kenton county, last Sunday.

Harry Rich and his mother were calling on the C. Jones family, last week.

WALNUT LICK

There has been quite a bit of rain the past week. The creeks around here have been pretty high. Guess everybody is blessed with plenty of water, now, as water was getting scarce before the rain. Many around here have finished setting tobacco since the rain.

Mrs. Anna Davis spent from Wednesday until Saturday with her aunt, Mrs. Bessie Webster, who has been sick, but who was able to attend the funeral of her brother, George Plunkett, at Mt. Zion, Saturday.

Mrs. Flossie Greenwell and daughter, Ellena, were shopping in Covington, Friday.

James Webster spent Saturday night with Mr. and Mrs. Atwood Greenwell.

Mr. and Mrs. Atwood Greenwell visited his parents, Sunday.

Miss Nina Glacken stayed with Carmel Blanche and William Webster, while their parents were visiting in the mountains.

Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Edrington and James Whitson were calling at Christ's hospital, Sunday afternoon, to see the former's sister, Mrs. Anna North. They found her improving slowly after a very serious operation last Monday.

This community was shocked, when they heard of the sudden death of George Plunkett, which occurred Wednesday morning. We extend sympathy to his wife and four little children and brothers and sisters in the loss of a husband, father and brother.

Miss Nina Glacken and Miss Blanche Webster attended a birthday dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Worth Collins and family of Napoleon, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Hensley and daughter, Mrs. Russell Webster, and Mr. Webster and Hobart Speagle spent from Friday until Sunday in the mountains, visiting Mr. Hensley's sister and brother. They returned by way of High Bridge, and reported a nice trip.

Rev. G. N. Smith filled his regular appointments here Sunday and Sunday night. His mother and wife accompanied him down and were entertained in the George Lucas home. Mr. and Mrs. Truman Lucas were also guests there.

Mrs. Bessis Webster has been on the sick list again, but glad to report her better.

Sorry to hear of Mrs. Anna Norman passing away last Tuesday. This community extends sympathy to her husband, Uncle Buddy Norman, as he is called. He is up in the eighty's.

INDEPENDENCE

Among the guests, who spent the week end holiday, Decoration time, were: Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stephenson of Dayton, Ohio, with the former's sister, Mrs. Will Frazier and Mr. Frazier; Mr. and Mrs. Don Stephens of Detroit, Mich., with his mother, Mrs. Ida Stephens, and aunt, Mrs. J. M. Chambers; Ben Thomas of Mt. Sterling, Ky., with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herndon Thomas; Fred Folmer of Iowa University, Iowa, with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Folmer and family; Mr. and Mrs. Bob Ferguson of Indianapolis, Ind., visited the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Will Tippett; Miss Kate Folmer of Clinton Memorial St. John, Detroit, with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Folmer and family.

Friends of Miss Louise Gunning will be glad to know that she has returned home from St. Elizabeth hospital, Covington, where she underwent an operation for appendicitis.

Mrs. Ellis Bird of Atwood, Ky., visited recently with her son, Mr. and Mrs. Remely Bird and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Marquette, Mr. and Mrs. Billie Henderson of Latonia were Sunday callers of Mr. and Mrs. Herndon Thomas.

Mrs. J. M. Chambers spent Thursday with Mrs. Earl Brandenburg on Bullock Pen Road.

Charles and J. D. Conner, who are employed at Marion, Ind., on defense work, spent the week end recently, with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Price Conner.

Mrs. Ida Stephens visited, recently, with Mrs. Carson Cason at at Scott, Ky.

NAPOLEON

Three Celebrate Birthdays With Dinner, Sunday

Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Collins were hosts at a lovely dinner, Sunday, which was arranged in honor of Mrs. Icy Collins, Mrs. Bessie Collins and Miss Erma Jean Collins, whose birthdates were recent events.

Everyone filed into the dining room, at the noon hour, where the dining table fairly groaned with good eats. After filling their plates to capacity, the guests retired to the living rooms, front and back porches, and beautifully shaded lawn, where everyone enjoyed visiting with one another while eating. After dinner a large number gathered in the living room to enjoy music, while others gathered around in groups to talk.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Joe Peacock, Mrs. Lillian Sandlin and daughter Juanita, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Kinman, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Collins and daughter Marlete, Mr. and Mrs. Orville Collins and son Larry, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Surgener, daughter Laura Lou and son Richard McKeown, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hardisty, all of Covington, Ky.; Mrs. Flora Woods, sons Theo, Charlie and Ray, and daughter Dorothy, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Carnes and little son Donald Wayne, and Miss Pauline Carnes, all from Mt. Zion; Mr. and Mrs. Russell Alexander of Covington; John A. Tuggle of Mt. Zion; Mr. and Mrs. Brackie Beach, Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Beach, jr., Mrs. Thomas Furnish, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Collins and son Marvin Ray of Glencoe; Mr. and Mrs. Art Collins and the hosts.

Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Beach had as dinner guests, Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Atha, sons Opal and Larry Marshall and Mrs. Liza Jane Atha.

Mr. and Mrs. Clive Rider entertained Mr. and Mrs. Tom Walls, Jim Lillard and Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Arnold, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Stambaugh and sons, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Hon, daughter Lillie Belle, and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Dance were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Miller and daughters, Sunday. Afternoon visitors were, Miss Ruby Webster, Messrs. Glenn Webster and Gip Rex.

Rev. and Mrs. Wm. Smith and daughter, Mary Belle, were dinner guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Lucas, Sunday.

Miss Mary Turley, Miss Alberta Miller and James Lee Allphin left Monday, for Lexington, to attend the 4-H club Junior Week to represent the Napoleon Club.

Girls Must Behave When Visiting Camps

WITH so many eligible "dates" in training camps all over the country, many a pretty young miss will have to learn a new code of deportment if she wants to endear herself to the boys doing their part for Uncle Sam.

With this in mind Henrietta Ripperger has summed up several worthwhile hints in the June issue of Good Housekeeping magazine, which if followed will make you a welcome visitor to military posts. Here they are:—

Don't show up with chevrons on your jacket, stripes on your sleeves, sailor collars with emblems. The boys have to look at braid and eagles all day long.

They want you in fluff, not in uniform.

Don't say you can't hoof it in the shoes you have on. Wear sports or spectator-sports shoes, or make up your mind to be a sport and suffer. The Service walks!

Don't try to get special privileges. Don't use Influence or try to vamp the Sergeant. Your guy will suffer for it later on.

Don't expect the army to feed you. Learn to live on sodas and like it.

Don't yoo-hoo at the General even if he is your dad's best friend. Wait until the General yoo-hoos at you!

Don't be chummy with privates if you're out with a Brass Hat.

Don't run about like a child star bringing her parents together in a movie, coyly introducing privates to officers.

Don't make yourself conspicuous. You might be "posted," which means you're not allowed to come again.

Don't make it hard for your man to report for duty. Don't smuggle him anything to drink. Asked as to the effect of alcohol, an Annapolis man wrote, "The effect on a Midshipman is usually a complete change of residence and occupation."

Learn to smile when you say good-bye, and the Skirt Patrol will be back for you next time.

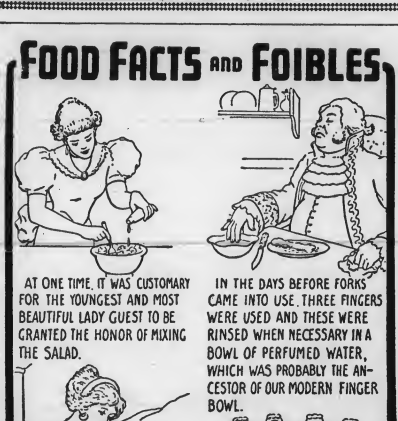
-that man IN OUR NEIGHBORHOOD!

I DARED NOT LEAVE THE HOUSE

I had just put the children to bed and turned out the lights, when the youngest started to cough. With confidence, I went to the medicine cabinet — the bottle was empty!



I knew from experience the child would grow worse through the night unless relieved, but my husband was away — I could not leave the house.

In this predicament, I thought of "that man", (our neighborhood druggist) and phoned immediately — then in what seemed but a few moments, I heard welcome footsteps — the filled prescription had arrived.

Yes, our neighborhood druggist fills prescriptions with infinite care and also carries a fine line of cosmetics and proprietary products. For women, he usually recommends Vatona Tablets to aid in the relief of those trying discomforts of the menstrual period — this may be just what you need — at least get in touch with your druggist. PROGRESS IN WORLD MISSIONS

LESSON TEXT—Acts 13:44-52; Galatians 3:25-29.
GOLDEN TEXT—For ye are all the children of God by faith in Christ Jesus.—Galatians 3:26.

"All people" are included in God's plan of redemption. When the angel of the Lord announced the birth of Christ to the shepherds he said, "Fear not: for behold I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people" (Luke 2:10). The invitation is: "Let him that is athirst come. And whosoever will, let him take the water of life freely" (Rev. 22:17). The disciples naturally and properly first preached the gospel to the Jews, but the time came when God was ready to send them to the Gentiles, that they too might hear the message of redemption. That historic turning point is found in our lesson. As Paul and his fellow workers proceeded from Paphos on the isle of Cyprus to the mainland with their message of Christ's redemption, they met both

I. Popularity and Persecution (Acts 13:44, 45).

In the synagogue of Antioch of Pisidia they were invited to preach, and Paul was blessed in the presentation of a powerful gospel message. Read it in Acts 13:16-41. It met with such a response that the people "besought that these words might be preached to them the next Sabbath" (v. 42). So great was the popularity of Paul's message that the whole city came the next Sabbath "to hear the Word of God." What a wonderful sight that must have been and how the disciples must have rejoiced as they preached the Word.

But wait—there's a worm in that red apple of popularity, and its name is jealousy (v. 45). It caused the Jews to blaspheme as they contradicted Paul's preaching. Jealousy always makes a fool out of the one who yields to it. Yet this green-eyed monster is permitted to go right on destroying, hindering, hurting. In the church and the home, as well as in the social order, we let jealousy come in and wreck friendship, break down reputations, yes, even block the work of God. May someone learn the lesson of our text and turn away from that evil way—right now!

II. Rejection and Acceptance (Acts 13:46-52).

All through the record of Scripture and the history of man to this day we find some rejecting the grace of God—others accepting. Those who reject only prove themselves "unworthy of eternal life" (v. 46) and are themselves rejected of God.

The disciples now turn from the Jews to minister to the Gentiles, even as had been prophesied (Isa. 42:6, 49:6, Luke 2:31, 32). They accepted the word of truth and "were glad, and glorified the word of God." Rejection brought eternal death, but acceptance brought eternal life and joy.

They could not keep the good news to themselves, but had to spread it abroad. A lighted candle begins at once to shine. A redeemed soul longs to bring others to Christ. Persecution continued; in fact, was intensified to the point of physical ejection of the disciples. Were they downhearted? No! for the joy of the Lord filled their Holy Spirit-filled lives. Being filled with the Spirit means being filled with joy, even in the midst of persecution.

It really works! Have you given God a chance to prove it in your life?

III. Neither Jew nor Greek (Gal. 3:26, 27).

This selection from the letter which Paul wrote some ten years later to the people of the area in which he had now preached reveals the same truth, that faith in Christ is primary—and essential—in Christian experience.

In this early life we recognize distinctions based on nationality, sex, social position, and many other grounds. While these are overemphasized by most people, they are legitimate and necessary distinctions. But in Christ—ah! there the differences disappear. We are all one in Him (v. 28). This is a lesson which we have not learned even yet, but our slowness of heart and mind does not alter God's truth.

The church is talking much these days about ecumenicity, which in plain words means the unity of the people of the various branches of the church all over the world. All too often, however, the proposed basis of unity rests on a surrender or a partial surrender of what Paul declares to be the essential (the sine qua non if you wish), which is faith in the Lord Jesus Christ. No other unity but that which centers in Him, and a personal relationship to Him, is sufficient either for this life or for the life to come.

And rides upon the storm.

FLORENCE

Folks on Shelby St., are sorry to lose Mr. and Mrs. Klein as neighbors. They have moved to Ft. Mitchell.

Mrs. Zeffa Osborn and family were called to Latonia this week by the death of her brother, Lewis Smith. Mr. Smith died in St. Elizabeth hospital after an illness of 11 weeks. The family has our sympathy.

Miss Joyce Sullivan spent the day, Thursday, with Janet Byrne.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Oerschel are the proud parents of a fine boy, born Monday, June 2.

St. Paul school dismissed for the summer months, much to the joy of all the children, last Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Rouse, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Darby, Miss Mabel Morris, Mrs. Minnie Bradford, Dick Garnett of Ludlow, and Hubert Grinsley of Covington enjoyed a delightful trip last Sunday, to Butler State Park and Frankfort and other places of interest. The trip was in celebration of the birthday anniversaries of Mrs. Rouse, Miss Morris and Mr. Darby, which occured the same day, June 2. We wish them many more happy birthdays.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Conner had as their week end guests, Mr. and Mrs. Gayle Denny and son Gerald of Lexington, Ky.

Miss Naomi McHargue was visiting Betty Sue Crissenger of Devon, Thursday and Friday.

HOW TO BE YOUR OWN DECORATOR

By Helen Koues
Director, Good Housekeeping Studio

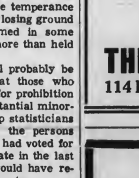
Decorate With Linoleums and Paint

Everybody today, rich or poor, busy or idle, wants to simplify everyday living. In small houses the breakfast nooks, or a semi-partitioned dining room, makes for convenience and requires furniture of small scale. In larger houses many a new plan has a combination living room and dining room. Again for convenience instead of having to move something off of a table used for eating, a little group is set up at the end of a room, or in a gay window or alcove or ell.

HELEN KOUES
Director of Good Housekeeping Studio

Modern upholstered easy chairs, a possible Studio couch, a few units of the low book cases, cabinet, and even a desk, with a group such as that illustrated would make a complete living arrangement. Such a group would be called a dinette perhaps. Such tables are usually of extension type—closed 30 inches x 40 inches—opened 30 inches x 50 inches. The chairs are particularly sturdy and attractive and can be used as occasional chairs in other places in the room as well as at the table. In fact, the drop leaf swivel top serving table at left of picture would make an excellent card table, and the chairs would be comfortable with it. It measures 16 inches x 32 inches folded and 32 inches square when opened.

But as useful a piece as any is the hutch put on a four drawer chest. This is not only attractive but a good example of dual purpose modern furniture. The hutch will hold china and glass—enough for six—and the chest will hold not only table linen and silver, but the bottom drawer could be for bed linen or what you will.



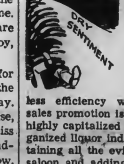
A practical, compact dinette

And as everybody always asks me about color schemes let me suggest that if you have the "blond", "wheat", or light colored modern furniture, you can go quite gay with a dark background (if you have good styled windows and light in your room) or if not a darkbackground, let me say a vivid background of wallpaper and paint combined. Suppose you use a strong blue for the sidewall with the backwall papered in the same color with a design in white, gray, and red. These colors may be repeated in accessories throughout the room. Overdraperies could be in a Modern, rough textured stripe in blue, gray, and white. Red could be used to upholster some of the furniture. Or let us imagine that you choose to paint all the walls a deep, rich, slightly olive green with white woodwork. With this setting you might use overdraperies and some upholstery in a soft yellow with, perhaps, a pink, green, and gray striped material for another upholstered piece. I am assuming, in the cases of these two color schemes, that your breakfast nook is an extension of your dining room or living room. These color schemes would lend themselves particularly well to the combination living—dining room although they could also be used in the separate dinette. If your breakfast nook furniture is traditional in style—Early American perhaps, then you should plan your background and color scheme to harmonize with it.

Drys Winning Hard Fight

If all the citizens of the United States were asked today to go to the polls and vote yes or no on whether the nation should return to constitutional prohibition, one out of every three persons would vote yes.

Surprising as that may sound to some, it is a fact verified by the most recent Gallup Poll. This survey found 32 per cent of the people willing to go on record as ready to vote in favor of national prohibition, as compared with only 30 per cent eight years ago, according to Gallup's statistics.



1 Voter in 3 For Dry Laws

These figures indicate that there has been no rout of the temperance forces, that instead of losing ground since repeal—as claimed in some quarters—they have more than held their own.

Most Americans will probably be surprised to learn that those who would vote tomorrow for prohibition constitute such a substantial minority. One of the Gallup statisticians calculated that if all the persons calling themselves dry had voted for the prohibition candidate in the last national election he would have received about 16,000,000 votes.

All this indicates that only a comparatively small shift in public opinion is necessary in order to give the forces of temperance enough strength to go into battle on even terms.

The rising tide of temperance sentiment is shown in reports reaching National W.C.T.U. of new supporters of the dry cause. Slowly but surely, mass resentment is beginning to be aroused in the American people at the heartless efficiency with which liquor sales promotion is carried on by the highly capitalized and effectively organized liquor industry of today, retaining all the evils of the old time saloon and adding many new ones.

These Americans have given liquor a chance since repeal—with the ever-more-evident result a conviction, based on their own observation, that complete prohibition is the only real solution.

EARLY HISTORY OF BOONE COUNTY

—o—

By A. M. Yealey

—o—

One of the older families to make early history of Kentucky and later Boone county history, was the Bradfords.

The forerunner of this family was John Bradford, born in Fanquier county, Virginia, in the year 1749. He married Eliza James of the same county, in 1771 and had five sons and four daugnters. He served in the Revolutionary War, an dcame to Kentucky in 1779 and fought in the Indian War and took an exceptional part against the Indians and was with the Kentucky Volunteers at the battle of Chillicothe when the Indians were finally subdued. He also published the first paper west of the Alleghany Mountains, called the Kentucky Gazette, in 1789. This paper was published for a long time on half sheet fools-cap. In coming to Kentucky Mr. Bradford's boat capsized while crossing a stream of water and he lost considerable of his type, and later to overcome this, he cut type out of dogwood, in order to continue the publication of his paper.

One of his sons, Charles Bradford, was born in 1793, and married Ann Carlis, but later in life emigrated to Florida, but his son, J. W. R. Bradford, who was born 1818, remained in Boone county and was united in marriage to Cathrine Buchannan, who resided in Burlington, Kentucky, in 1847. To them were born Charles and William Respress Bradford. Charles the older, married Miss Mattie Talbort of Florence, and William, the younger, married Anna Wightman of South Carolina. These two boys will be well remembered of having made Florence famous by the manufacture of the Bradford buggies. This establishment was a two-story building divided into three departments, one for the wood-work, one for the painters, and one for the iron workers, and employed a great number of men, but new inventions produced a new way and a faster way of travel and the auto put this busy enterprise out of commission. And thus Florence lost one of its best manufactories, but the painters, wood-workers and iron workers were called to the cities, where the automobile is made and the building was wrecked. And now an oil station occupies the old site, and should the two boys, who have both passed to that beyond, return, they would hardly realize the wonderful changes that have transpired and still are moving forward.

Tidbits of Kentucky Folklore

BY

Gordon Wilson Ph.D.

WESTERN KENTUCKY TEACHERS COLLEGE

BOWLING GREEN, KY.

THE POOR WHITE VERSUS POOR WHITE-TRASH

I for one resent the implication that many writers about Kentuckians leave as to poor people. Novelists and poets and playwrights often assume in their works (conceived after a few weeks' visit to some exploited mountain area) that all poor people are hillbillies or poor-white trash. Sensation-hunters who visit the state do not stop to reflect that a large percentage of our people, here as elsewhere, are poor but proud, not poor and shiftless. Feature writers often refer to our average rural population as if they were beggars, utterly oblivious to the fact that even the poor self-supporting country folk are among the proudest people of the world and live most consistently by their ideals. Most of the people who will read this were brought up in rural surroundings, with few if any of the modern conveniences. Judged by standards what we are now accustomed to, our early lives were rather bleak and should have been unpleasant. But there is where the sensationists are at fault. Since our belongings were about equal to those of our friends and neighbors and since we were very much alive, the lacks that we suffered did not disturb us much. The few margins to life that we had then brought a pleasure away ahead of their intrinsic values. A ride to town, a day at the circus, dinner on the ground on the Fourth of July, a sleight-of-hand show at the country schoolhouse brought bright moments to our lives, which were not surfeited with entertainment and not made effeminate by our every want being anticipated by an over-zealous neighborhood spirit or an equally zealous local business man or two.

It would be silly for me to deny the existence of the poor white, with all of his problems. I know him and have seen him wherever I have gone. He is not peculiar to Kentucky or to mountainous areas. In fact, he is likely to be more obvious in congested cities and in large plantation areas than in the poorest sections of farming lands. The seeming poverty - stricken man who lives in a cabin and cultivates a few thin acres, often has dreams that would bring shame to the critic who so superciliously looks down on him during his search for picturesuqe stories for jaded palates.

The particular phase of this misinterpretation that "riles" me is the assumption that no good can come out of the poor house. Of course, we live in different times from those of our childhood, and customs are changing. Oddly, however, it seems true in my own experience with the young that the humble cottage still give an astonishing proportion of the able students who come yearly to my classes. There is no class struggle, no array of the forces of the modern house against the cabin or the simple cottage; but the very fact that without appealing to sentiment the boy or girl from the humble home gets right into the best places is sufficient proof that a cottage or a cabin is not necessarily to be associated with poverty of spirit. It would be better, I am sure, if some fairy godmother could wish for every child born into the world a comfortable home with advantages; since this does not happen, it remains true that the human being, by a kind of magic that is unexplained, somehow rises from whatever surroundings may embarrass and encumber him. For a long time to come, I fear, we must look for a goodly portion of leaders from humble backgronuds, since there are not enough of the other sort as yet to assure us sufficient leadership. And meanwhile why not give the benefit of the doubt to the child merely born poor?

Doings of The REDS

"THE COMEBACK KID"

JOHN VANDER MEER

The Reds will come marching home this week-end after a couple of weeks on foreign soil. They'll open a 13-game home stand against the Giants at Crosley Field Saturday afternoon, then meet these same Giants in a double-header Sunday and a single game Monday. Tuesday, which will be ladies' day, the Boston Braves will oppose the Reds, then on Wednesday, June 18, the Reds and Braves will battle it out in a night game.

Friday, Saturday and Sunday, June 20, 21, and 22, will be big days for the Reds. Opposing them will be the rough and tough Brooklyn Dodgers, who would rather be at the Reds than eat. This is saying a great deal, because everybody knows how ball players love to eat. A doubleheader against the Dodgers is on the books for the 22nd, Sunday.

Tuesday and Wednesday, June 24 and 25, the Reds will entertain the Phillies, who have provided plenty of trouble for them this year. A single game is scheduled Tuesday and a ladies' day doubleheader on Wednesday.

Bill McKechnie feels that the time has come for his boys to rise in the National League race. He is greatly encouraged by the pitching form shown by young Elmer Riddle and he thinks Gene Thompson's recent performance at New York should help that young fellow get started again. Thompson suffered greatly this spring because of lack of control. The advent of warm weather should help him correct this fault.

There is no doubt that the schedule is in favor of the Reds' staging a late season putsch. They will spend the greater part of the second half of the season on their home diamond.

Tickets for all of the home games the Reds will play for the rest of the season are now on sale at the downtown ticket office at 307 Vine Street. Mail orders receive prompt attention. Whenever possible, stamped and self addressed envelopes should be enclosed with mail orders to facilitate handling.

4-H CLUB MEMBERS ATTEND JUNIOR WEEK AT LEXINGTON

The Early and Daniel Company, Covington Kiwanis Club and George W. Hill, are sponsoring 4-H club educational trips to Junior Week at Lexington, Ky., for club members in Kenton county.

Junior Stambough, Wallace Gabriel, Kline Haney, William Hopkins left Monday with Mr. Maurice Williams, assistant county agent, to meet with several hundred other 4-H club members from the other counties of the state. The boys are carrying 4-H projects in Dairying, Sheep and Beef Cattle this year. Junior Week is sponsored by the 4-H Club Department of the College of Agriculture at Lexington, Ky.

According to John S. Gardner, Field Agent in Horticulture, Garden Service Letter No. 5 is of timely interest at this season of the year.

This is transition from spring to summer; gardening technique changes, too.

As dryer weather becomes the rule, cultivation should become shallower, but only often enough to keep down crabgrass, and to break any soil crust the showers that we may expect may make. Hilling and ridging should be stopped.

Attention should turn to vegetables for canning and storing. Here are suggestions:

Up to 15th, tomatoes may be started from seed. Beet sowing time continues throughout the month, but the earlier, the safer. Beans for canning may be assured by doubling June plantings. Late cabbage should be started (by 15th) "in place" or in plant beds. Sweetpotatoes, set 15th, should still make a fair crop. White potatoes (except Irish Cobblers) may be started 15th, but soil preparation should begin now, to insure a seed bed moist enough.

JUNE SUGGESTIONS FOR HOME GARDEN

Plant— Sweet corn: Golden Cross Bantam, Stowell's Evergreen (1st and 15th); beans: (1st to 15th), Stringless Greenpod or Refugee, double-size plantings for canning surplus; beets: Detroit Dark Red, for winter storing; summer lettuce: Cos Trianon; Cucumbers: Long Green, Late Picklers and Slicers; Cantaloupes, if you did not plant in May.

Arrange to have your tomato plant bed of late tomatoes for canning purposes.

Provide cabbage plants for early July plantings.

Insects

In this month, the fight against insects becomes intensified because new generations have had time to come.

Blight

The hot, showery weather of this month gives excellent opportunity for the spread of blight on tomatoes, eggplant, potatoes, beans and the melon crops.

Cultivation

The uncertain moisture supply during this month makes it advisable to cultivate carefully. "Working" the soil should be stopped and "cultivation" substituted.

Sanitation

During this month, some of the early crops become mature and spent vines and plants should be removed to prevent the spread of any diseases that may be present and to get rid of insect havens. An excellent way is to chop or spade the soil to make seedbeds for planting other crops.

4-H CLUB MEMBERS HAVE AN IMPORTANT PART TO PERFORM IN NATION DEFENSE

The 4-H Club members in Kentucky have an important work to do in the National Defense Program. 4-H Club members have always taken the lead in worthy events and this is one in which they can be of great service.

Last year 3,854 Club members were enrolled in the poultry project. If each of these will have 10 additional chickens this year that will mean 39,540 -more chickens than they produced in 1940. It is also requested that more and larger laying flocks be established to produce eggs for the family and some to sell.

There were 3,510 club members enrolled in the swine project in 1940. These members owned more than 4,000 head of hogs. It is requested that the hogs they market this year be at least 25 pounds heavier than those marketed last year. This would make available 100,000 pounds of additional pork.

In the garden project there seems to be a much larger number of club members this year than last. Last year there were 2,136 who produced gardens. We are asking that these club members produce a summer and fall garden which would practically double the amount of garden produce in 1941 over 1940.

THE TRUTH SIMPLY TOLD

Today's popularity of Doan's Pills, after many years of world-wide use, surely must be accepted as evidence of satisfactory use. And favorable public opinion supports that of the able physicians who test the value of Doan's under exacting laboratory conditions.

These physicians, too, approve every word of advertising you read, the objective of which is only to recommend Doan's Pills as a good diuretic treatment for disorders of the kidney function and for relief of the pain and worry it causes.

If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove waste that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole body suffers when kidneys lag, and diuretic medication would be more often employed.

Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warn of disturbed kidney function. You may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel weak, nervous, all played out.

Use Doan's Pills. It is better to rely on a medicine that has won world-wide acclaim than something less favorably known. Ask your neighbor!

Friendly Service

Here is a situation that might have brought sadness to a little girl.

Her cat has climbed one of our poles and is unwilling or unable to come down. But a company lineman has been notified of her predicament and has saved the day by climbing the pole and retrieving the cat.

A small thing? Yes. But it illustrates the type of friendly service in which employees of this company take pride. They know that no amount of impersonal efficiency can ever take the place of courtesy, friendliness and a sincere desire to be helpful and accommodating. Retrieving a kite or a cat . . . helping a stranded motorist . . . repairing a damaged appliance . . . lending the office for the church circle's rummage sale—all are small things but they represent a concept of service that goes far beyond the mere delivery of current at a stated voltage.

In dealing with your electric service man, you're dealing with a friend and neighbor who is not only interested in seeing that you get good electric service but who wants to make it easy and pleasant for you to do business with the company he represents.

DEMONSTRATION FLOCKS VISITED

Poultry demonstration flock co-operators were visited by Jim Humphrey, poultry field agent of the College and the county agent on Wednesday of last week. Only a limited number of flocks could be visited during the day. A few high points seen on the visit included:

Mrs. Cad Sullivan, Burlington—100 fine young turkey poults being raised in a brooder house with use of a homemade brick brooder. 300 chicks were also being successfully raised under another brick brooder.

Lucy Lee Grant, Idlewild, Hebron Road—has successfully raised a fine bunch of chicks under an electric brooder. She reports that the electric brooder operated economically and efficiently. Mr. Humphrey recommends the use of a good electric brooder, if one is to be used.

Huey Aylor and Mrs. Lola Ernst both report a successful poultry year.

Cecil Conner of Conners' Hatchery of Hebron reports enlarged hatchery capacity with three new incubators, totalling 42,000-egg capacity. All hatchery chicks this year were from blood tested stock. He reports that the hatchery this year operated at capacity and was unable to supply the demand.

James V. Tupman, Limasburg, has successfully operated a lantern brooder in his 4-H project, raising 60 chicks with no losses. A model lantern brooder at the poultry school last spring looked like just another idea, but James finds it works "extra good." More of these will be used next year.

Grant Maddox, Florence, one of the largest and most successful poultry farm operators in Northern Kentucky, plans to build more houses and run around 2,000 laying pullets this winter. Coming from high production pedigreed breeding stock secured in the East and under Grant's care, they ought to make money.

Ben Lee Poultry Farm, Florence—1500 laying birds on very limited space. Looks like they understand how to do the job.

J. F. Cleek, Beaver, raised no baby chicks this spring, but hopes to have houses filled with laying pullets this fall.

Mrs. S. B. Sleet, Beaver, is doing a good job with her farm flock. She had good brooding and laying houses.

There are many other Boone county poultrymen that are doing a good job this year.

MT. ZION

Mrs. Nannie D. Franks of Waco, Texas, is visiting relatives and friends here.

The Misses Marcella Lawrence and Bonnie Jump are spending a few days in Covington.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Barnes and family visited Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Points and son, Sunday.

Wilbur and Ruth Bingham left for Georgetown College, where they will attend school this summer. Ray is home on his vacation.

Miss Mollie Chapman of Walton is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Frank Barker.

Mrs. Cora Greene spent Wednesday with Mr. and Mrs. Jess Hopkins.

Don't forget, from now on, all of our church service hours will be according to fast time.

Vacation Bible school begins Monday at 9:00 a. m., fast time. We will have three hours daily, from 9:00 to 12:00, fast time. Send your child.

Willie Ferrell passed away Tuesday at his home. He was 50 years, 11 months and 23 days of age. He leaves his wife, Mrs. Margaret Smith Ferrell, and seven children, three daughters by a former marriage. Funeral services were conducted at the Mt. Zion church Thursday by Rev. Wilson and Rev. Bennett, with interment in the Webster private burial ground. We extend sympathy to the bereaved family.

George Plunkett passed away Wednesday night at his residence. He leaves his wife and three children, and two step-children. Funeral services were conducted at the Mt. Zion church Saturday, by Rev. Bennett. Interment was in the church cemetery. The family has our sympathy in their sorrow.

JONESVILLE

"For God so loved the world, that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth on Him should not perish, but have eternal life." John 3:16.

Mrs. Allyne Cammack and daughter of Indianapolis, recently spent a Saturday night here with Mr. and Mrs. Jep F. Cammack.

Mr. and Mrs. Elzie Kemper of Glencoe spent Tuesday and Wednesday with Mr. and Mrs. Lonnie Kemper and family.

Wilburn Poe, a salesman of Winchester, Va., spent from Sunday until Tuesday, with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Poe.

The Sunbeams, G. A.'s and R. A.'s met at the church Saturday afternoon with their respective leaders, for the regular monthly program.

Elbridge Castleman of Anderson, Indiana, spent the week end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gate Castleman and son.

Mrs. Lucinda Jump is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Jep Cammack and husband.

Funeral services were held here Sunday afternoon at the Baptist church, for Mr. Belee Turner, who has lived near here for a number of years. Rev. G. C. Mullins conducted the funeral. Burial was in the I. O. O. F. cemetery, with Elliston and Stanley in charge of arrangements.

Mrs. Clara House returned home Saurday from St. Elizabeth hospital, where she had undergone a major operation two weeks ago, and is convalescing nicely.

Miss Trilby Beatty is visiting her sister, Christine, who has employment at Good Samaritan hospital, Cincinnati.

People here, who have been patients in St. Elizabeth hospital within the past few months, were sorry to hear that one of their nurses, Miss Frances Duncan, was operated on for appendicitis there last week. We all hope for her a complete recovery.

Rev. and Mrs. G. C. Mullins, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Satterwhite and Mr. and Mrs. Orville Stewart and daughter attended the ordination services at Dry Ridge, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Young and family of Middletown, Ohio, visited relatives here over the week end.

WALTON 4-H'ERS TAKE SIX RIBBONS AT SPRING RALLY

On Saturday, May 24th, 15 members, parents and visitors journeyed to Burlington on the school bus to take part in the Spring Rally Day program.

We had a very nice program.

At 1:00 p. m., two girls from Walton, Bessie Jean Ford, and Mary Louise McCubbin, took part in the Style Revue. Mary Louise won a red ribbon and Bessie Jean won a white ribbon.

No girls or boys from our club took part in the demonstrations.

On May 27th, Mrs. King and three girls from the Walton Club attended the Judging Contest.

Mildred King won two red ribbons, Bessie Jean Ford won two white ribbons and Mary Louise McCubbin won one blue ribbon and one white ribbon, making a total of six ribbons won by Walton members.

WALTON 4-H CLUB NEWS

The Waltonian 4-H Club held its fourth meeting on Monday, May 12th, with 21 members present and two absent. Three members dropped out of the club.

Mr. Drake, assistant county agent, Mrs. Mary Scott Moore, assistant home demonstration agent, Mrs. Walter King, the community leader, and one visitor, Miss Ruth Moore, were present.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mildred C. King. The minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary and approved by the president.

Mrs. Moore announced that the 4-H members of Boone county would have the privilege of spending a week, from August 11 to 17, at Camp Bingham, which is being prepared to accomodate the club members.

Rose Marie Johnson, foods captain, reported that the foods class had held two meetings. Mary Louise McCubbin, clothing captain, reported that the girls had bought their materials, had their garments started, and were learning to make different kinds of seams.

J. B. McCubbin, poultry captain, and Edward McIntyre, garden captain, had no reports to make. Plans were made by the members to attend Rally Day on May 24th. The girls planned to model their garments in the Style Revue, and to take part in the Judging Contest on May 27th.

The members and leaders pledged allegiance to the American Flag and repeated the 4-H pledge.

The meeting closed and the members adjourned.

BAPTISTS ENJOY ALL-DAY MEETING, SUNDAY

Sunday will long be remembered by those privileged to attend the services at the Baptist church. A large crowd was present, many coming quite a distance.

At 11:00 a. m., Rev. Alford of Walton brought a fine message, and at 2:00 p. m., Rev. Martin of Erlanger, brought another great message.

Throughout the day Mike and Rachel Acree sang the beautiful songs of the church, which were thoroughly enjoyed by all, and in the afternoon Miss Carol Ann Asbury sang a solo that touched the hearts of the audience.

At noon the tables fairly groaned beneath the weight of the good food spread on them, and to which all did ample jutsice.

At the evening service Brother Dalton of Covington preached a good sermon. And so ended a wonderful day.

SIMON KENTON HOME EC. NEWS

The home economics girls of the Simon Kenton High school are continuing their home economics training in their homes this summer. Each girl has chosen a project which is in keeping with her interests and needs. The girls have shown a variety of interests. Some have chosen projects in the field of clothing, as the construction of children's clothing, adult dresses, sport and afternoon dresses, smocks, pajamas, slips, sport clothes of all kinds, skirts, aprons, blouses, men's skirts, and suits. Others have chosen projects in the foods division of home economics, as the baking of cakes, pies, cookies, desserts, candy, salads, beverages, canning of fruits and vegetables, preserving of fruits and vegetables, and cake decorating. Other girls have chosen the field of home decoration, as the making of dressing tables, draperies, bed spreads, quilts, curtains, cannister sets, whatnots, refinishing and painting furniture, embroidering pillow cases and dresser scarfs, flower arrangements, and party favors. Miss Helen Gardiner, the home economics teacher at Simon Kenton, is helping the girls with their projects.

On June 17 Simon Kenton will be the hostess to three other schools in Kenton county for the Kenton County Home Economics Fair. At this fair the home economics girls will enter their projects and will compete for first, second, and third awards.

Glindmeyer In Kenton Co. Race

B. J. "Barney" Glindmeyer, an affiliate in the firm of Hugenberg and Glindmeyer, Covington undertakers, Friday announced his candidacy for county commissioner.

In making his announcement Glindmeyer issued the following statement:

"I propose to give the Kenton County Tuberculosis Hospital all the support possible.

"I am in favor of purchasing the rock from the farmer to bulid the county roads, thereby helping the farmer and saving the taxpayer money.

"I will appreciate your vote and support throughout the county and will not betray the trust that you have placed in me."

BAPTIST CHURCH TO HAVE COMMENCEMENT FOR DAILY VACATION BIBLE SCHOOL

We are very anxious to have you attend the commencement of our Daily Vacation Bible School this Sunday evening at eight o'clock, and witness a demonstration of what your children and others have learned during the past two weeks. A display of the handwork will be in one of the church parlors. Aim to come before the program to see this.

It has been a joy to the faculty to give of their time and effort to make the boys and girls have a happy and profitable time and we trust that you will make a special effort to be with us.

There has been an enrollment of 142 in the school, and the influence of fellowship along with the influence of consecrated leadership, should go a long way in guiding them in future life.

Truck crops are bringing Kenton county farmers fair returns, despite the unfavorable season.

FORMER WARSAW RESIDENT PASSES

Lemuel S. Sisson, 3301 Rogers street, Covington, toll collector on the Chesapeake & Ohio R. R. Co. bridge between Covington and Cincinnati, was found dead in the bridge washroom by fellow employes, Monday. Death was attributed to a heart attack. He was 57.

The deaceased, who was well known in Warsaw, had been a collector on the bridge for two years. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Ethel Rutherford Sissons; two sisters, Mrs. D. W. Clore, of Covington, and Mrs. W. R. Ward of Warsaw; a brother, J. W. Sissons of Warsaw; and a niece and two nephews.

Services were held at 2 p. m., Wednesday at Latonia Baptist church. Burial was in Highland cemetery.

REGISTRATION DATE JULY 1ST

According to C. G. Kelly, clerk of Local Draft Board, No. 9, registration date for those who have become 21 since Oct. 16, 1940, will be July 1, 1941. He also states that to date, 904 questionaires have been mailed. This leaves 283 yet to be mailed of the 1,187 who registered in this county Oct. 16.

Three more Boone countians will report to the Local Board at the Courthouse in Burlington, on June 25, at 9 a. m., E. S. T., to be sent to Ft. Thomas, for induction into the Army. They are: Joseph Louis Aylor, a volunteer; Johnie Boles, and Tyrus Raymond Ruth. These three will make a total of 13 selected this month.

Furste Seeks Re-election As Kenton County Clerk

Samuel Furste, Kenton County clerk, has declared his intention of seeking re-election, subject to the Democratic primary, August 2.

In his announcement, reference is made to the indexing and filing system which he inaugurated. It is said that the system, when finished will be one of the most complete and best system in the state.

His announcement follows:

"I seek re-election to the office of County Clerk for the reason I started and partially completed a program of indexing and filing which my office force and myself desire to finish and, it will take at least part of another term to do so. We have been working on them several years during spare time.

"Our indexes when finished will take in all old records from the time of the creation of the County Clerk's Office at Covington up until the present and, you will have the history of any transaction under one index arranged in vowel formation.

"Our purpose in doing this is to have for the people of Kenton County the best and most accurate records in the State and it will be of great pleasure to my office force and myself to be able to finish something which will stand as a monument to this County in all time to come.

"I know my friends join with me in the effort and I am sure with their help the task can be completed.

"My ambition has always been that the Kenton County Clerk's Records be the best in the State.

"I have in the past given my entire time and ambition to the people of Kenton County in furthering this work. This I have accomplished in the past and will do so in the future."

FUNERAL RITES FOR MRS. IDA FRAKES

A large concourse of relatives and friends gathered at the Walton Baptist church, Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, to pay their last respects, when services were held for Mrs. Ida B. Cooke Frakes, wife of Earl C. Frakes of Covington.

Mrs. Frakes, who was 42 years old, and who was a member of the Walton Baptist church, passed away Friday at the residence, after a lingering illness.

Besides her husband, she leave two daughters, Anna Margaret and Roberta Frakes; a son, Kenneth Earl Frakes; a sister, Mrs. Annie Mathews, Elsmere, and a brother, Frank D. Cooke, Atwood, Ky.

Interment took place at Independence.

LITTRELL-BOSSE NUPTIALS MAY 24

Relatives and friends of Miss Kathryn Littrell and Allen Bosse were greatly surprised when they learned of their marriage, which took place Saturday, May 24, at Georgetown, Ohio. Rev. Barnsbauer, Baptist minister of that city, tied the nuptial knot.

The bride is the attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. C Littrell of near Walton. She possesses a charming personality, and is well liked by all who know her. She is the youngest of six daughters of the Littrell family, and is the last to embark upon the matrimonial voyage.

The groom is the son of Mrs. Alice Bosse of Crittenden. He is an industrious young man and has a wide circle of friends in this community.

Mr. and Mrs. Bosse will make their home in Urbana, Ohio, where the groom holds a nice position with a large contracting firm.

Their friends join in wishing them much joy and happiness on their joint journey through life.

FIDELIS CLASS MEETS WITH MRS. JAMES BOLINGTON

The Fidelis class of the Baptist Sunday school, was entertained at the home of Mrs. James Bolington last Thursday evening.

Those present were: Mrs. Tom Percival, Mrs. Bryon Rector, Mrs. Kenneth Johnson, Mrs. Helen Graff, Mrs. Theodore Neumeister, Mrs. Joe Neumeister, Mrs. Dan Roberts, Mrs. Wm. Leuceimen, Mrs. Nathan Northcutt, Mrs. Bennie Elliott, Mrs. Ralph Stephens, Mrs. Wm. Soden, Mrs. Bruce Allen, Mrs. Ralph Darling, Mrs. Randolph Beech, Mrs. Joe Rouse, Gale and Charles Roberts, Mrs. N. T. Welsh and the hostess, Mrs. Jame sBolington and daughter, Betty June.

Grover Jarrell In Jailer's Race

Grover C. Jarrell, of Burlington, formally announces his candidacy for Jailer of Boone County in this issue of the Advertiser, subject to the action of the Democratic primary, Saturday, August 2, 1941.

Mr. Jarrell is a native of this county. He has been employed as lineman for the Consolidated Telephone Company for twenty-five years, and is well known throughout the county. He is a member of the Burlington Baptist church.

He is a life-long Democrat and has always supported the Democratic party and its policies. He stated Tuesday that this is the first time he has ever entered the race for any political office, and that to his knowledge there has never been anyone by the Jarrell name to seek office in this county.

Mr. Jarrell will continue his work with the Telephone Company, and will be forced to limit his campaign. However, he stated that he would make an effort to see every voter in the county before the coming primary.

He makes the following statement:

"Due to entering the race for Jailer at a late date, and being forced to limit my campaign, due to my position with Consolidated Telephone Co., I may not be able to see all the voters on this county. If I should not see you, I will appreciate your consideration and support, and if nominated and elected will serve the people to the best of my ability."

Annual Inspection Of Local O. E. S.

The Inspection of the Walton O. E. S. Chapter, number 161, was held Tuesday evening, June 17 at the Masonic Hall, with Mrs. Maud Jones Hunter of Greenville, Ky., Grand Worthy Matron of the Grand Chapter, as Inspecting Officer.

The meeting was opened by the Worthy Matron, Sister Sarah Roberts, and Associate Patron Grover Ransom. Sister Roberts and Brother Ransom then graciously honored the Past Grand Matron, Sister Emma Menefee, who was the first Worthy Matron of the local chapter, and Past Grand Patron, Bro. John L. Vest, also a Past Patron of this chapter, by requesting them to preside.

Mrs. Blanche Coffman Ransom, Past Grand Organist, also organist of this chapter, furnished beautiful piano music during the evening.

Several Grand Officers were present, including the following: Past Grand Matrons Sister Florence Curnutte, Catlettsburg, Ky., and Sister Edna Shewalter, Ft. Mitchell; Past Grand Patrons, Bro. Leo H. Shewalter, Ft. Mitchell, Bro. Ernest B. Dunkie, Covington, Ky., and Bro. Merle C. Seeks Aid For Tuberculosis Victim

Robert Reynolds, a former resident of Walton, has been in the Tuberculosis Sanatarium in Louisville for four months. The doctors there assure us that he has shown much improvement, but that for the most good to be done he should remain longer. The family is unable to keep him there, and have appealed to me to seek help for them.

It seems to me that this is a very fine way for any of us to show our good-neighborly spirit, so I feel no reticence in asking that if you are willing to help you do one of two things: Either send me your check, or leave it at Lusby's grocery store in Walton. Any help that you can give will be appreciated by both Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds and myself.

CHAMPION IN 4-H STYLE REVUE

Elaine Gariner, 13-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Gardiner of North Walton, was chosen as grand champion of Boone county, in the 4-H style revue, held at Burlington, May 24th. She represented Boone county, Junior Week at Lexington, June 9th to 14th. Elaine has won 14 ribbons in 4-H work since 1938. She has also the first prize of $5.00 at the Times-Star Quilt show in Cincinnati, on the best quilt pieced by a girl under 15 years. She goes to school at Florence and belongs to the XL all club at that place.

ICE CREAM AND CAKE SOCIAL SATURDAY, JUNE 21

The Sunday School of Goshen church, Piner, Ky., will sponsor a homemade ice cream and cake social, at the church, on Saturday, evening, June 21, from 5 to 10 p. m., Slow Time. Everyone is cordially invited.

Dr. J. R. Hill of Fayette county put the first cutting of alfalfa in the silo, adding 40 pounds of molasses to the ton.

158 Mattresses Completed to Date

The cotton mattress program has completed 158 mattresses to date, according to Mary Scott Moore, assistant home demonstration agent. The center is now working at Verona. It is the aim that all mattresses will be finished by the middle of next week and work on comforts begun.

About 150 families are participating in the program. Some have received more than one mattress, though none are allowed more than three. A comforter will be made for each mattress.

Mrs. Vernon Pope, county supervisor, has been ably assisted by Homemakers project leaders in the respective communities. The project is being directed by local extension agents, Miss Mary Hood Gillaspie, Mrs. Mary Scott Moore, and H. R. Forkner. The success of the program has been very much facilitated by local agencies who have cooperated in setting up centers. Those in charge of the mattress making program for themselves and also in behalf of those receiving the mattresses wish to thank all local organizations that have so splendidly cooperated in the successful running of the county and community mattress making centers. They especially wish to thank the Boone County Fiscal Court, and Mr. Sherman Burcham and his efficient road department for transporting the needed materials, the County Board of Education and Walton-Verona Board of Education for providing community center buildings, the Erlanger Lumber Company and Walton Lumber Company; Calvin Cress and Gulley and Pettit's Store for their loan of needed supplies.

Fulton county farmers had a 90 percent crimson clover seed crop.

4-H Club Winners At Junior Week

Boone county 4-H members, who attended Junior Week, University of Kentucky, June 9-14, proved themselves worthy of the honor of representing the county 4-H organization. Evelyn Franks of the New Haven Boosters Club, won the State Foods Judging Contest, and will represent Kentucky in the National Contest to be held at the National 4-H Congress in Chicago November 29 through December 4. Alva Mae Tupman of the Florence X-L All Club received a blue ribbon for clothing judging. Meier Taylor and James Stephenson of New Haven received a red ribbon for their demonstration on "Controlling Leaf Diseases of Tobacco." They competed against the twelve district winners of the State. Elaine Gardiner's style revue costume was rated "Good" among costumes from 78 counties. Other club members who received trips to Junior Week by virtue of their outstanding work, were: Ella Ruth Black, Hamilton; Mary Louise McCubbin, Walton; David Clore, Grant; Harold Flick, Burlington; and Charles Patrick of Hebron.

Mrs. Mary Scott Moore, substitute home demonstration agent, and H. B. Drake, assistant county agent, accompanied the delegation

Washington Snapshots
by JAMES PRESTON

The precise implications of the President's most recent fireside chat will be discussed around this town, and probably throughout the whole country, for many weeks to come. There were so many lights and shadows in the long address that it will take a measure of time, and considerable subsequent activity, to clarify the real meaning of many of the hints dropped by the Chief Executive.

The speech has already been analyzed endlessly from the point of view of foreign affairs. But the danger in neglecting another side of the question was dramatized by two observers who, as soon as they received mimeographed copies of the President's talk, calmly sat down and began measuring it. After a few moments of this, one was heard to say cheerfully:

"Well, I win—with something to spare!"

It turned out that he'd wagered that less than 15 per cent of the address would be concerned with "domestic" issues.

And that is significant in view of the fact that our foreign policy can only have real weight if the other nations of the world know that we can back up our statements with guns and planes and tanks.

Directly related to the making of the above-mentioned military equipment were these words from President Roosevelt's talk:

"When the nation is threatened from without . . . as it today, the actual production and transportation of the machinery of defense must not be interrupted by disputes between capital and capital, labor and labor, or capital and labor. The future of all free enterprise—of capital and labor alike—is at stake."

Disputes between capital and capital? That had the experts stumped. Best interpretation your reporter has been able to uncover is that it represented a enxample of the Administration's tendency to take a side poke at capital whenever conditions get serious enough to require a public spanking for labor.

But disputes between labor and labor, and between labor and capital—everyone knew what was being referred to there!

The same week that the President spoke, two significant sidelights occurred. First was the release of a survey conducted by Fortune Magazine, which does a good, accurate job of testing public opinion. This particular straw vote asked the American people some questions about strikes, and it turned out that even factory workers and union members were opposed to letting these interfere with defense.

Meanwhile, the Dies Committee met here in the capital and heard some extremely interesting testimony from present and former heads of locals in the C. I. O. aviation and automobile branches. The witnesses, several of whom were war veterans, offered testimony indicating that rank-and-file unionists had grown tired of Communist influence, and had started a movement to oust Reds from key positions. The Reds, they said, sometimes in co-operation with German Bundists, were anxious to stir up strikes in order to hinder the defense effort, and were active in that direction. It was emphasized again and again, by contrast, that 95 to 98 per cent of the "plain members" of the unions were loyal citizens anxious to speed the defense program.

The Fortune poll and the Dies testimony both point in the same direction. In short, they indicate that the public, and the average American workman himself, considers the strike situation far more serious than the Administration seems to view it. The Allis-Chalmers strike of disagreeable memory, which held up millions of dollars in defense orders for over nine weeks, was called by one reported a "dress rehearsal" for the Reds' program of sabotaging defense. It begins to look as though the public, the workers themselves, and—be it ever so slowly—the government may have something to say about that!

This Week In Defense

President Roosevelt, declaring a strike at the North American Aviation plant in Inglewood, Calif., was impeding the defense program, ordered the Army to operate the plant after workers rejected Mediation Board terms for settlement. Two days after taking over, the Army reported "100 percent efficiency" with all employees returned to work. The President said plants which he might be forced to place under Federal control will be returned to private management as soon as possible.

The House voted for an amendment to the 1942 Army appropriation bill to prohibit the payment of funds to any individual or company failing within 10 days to abide by Mediation Board recommendations for settlement of disputes. The Senate approved a declaration that strikes or lockouts in defense industries are "contrary to sound public policy."

The Mediation Board announced settlement of three labor disputes, including the dispute of the soft coal industry. The U. S. Conciliation Service announced settlement of 34 additional disputes.

Selective Service

Selective Service Headquarters ordered reclassification of all registrants "impeding the defense program." The order said "the citizen who has been deferred because of the job he is performing in the national defense program cannot expect to retain the status of deferment when he ceases to work on the job for which he was deferred."

The Senate approved a bill to defer men who reach their 28th birthday by July 1 of this year, except those already in the Service.

Foreign Affairs

The State Department announced sinking of the American freighter Robin Moor in the south Atlantic by a German submarine. Announcing the rescue of only 11 of 46 persons forced to abandon the ship, Under Secretary Welles told the press that international law requires precautions must be taken for the safety of passengers and crew before a ship is sunk.

Ships

The OPM granted full priority for materials necessary in the building of 289 merchant ships for U. S. and Great Britain and the 312 special lease-lend vessels.

OPM Production Director Biggers, speaking at Quebec, said, "almost every ship now building in our rapidly expanding yards is ahead of schedule." The Maritime Commission directed the Southern Pacific Company to deliver for national defense purposes its entire fleet of 10 vessels (66,600 tons), formerly used in coastwise trade.

Lease-Lend Aid

President Roosevelt reported to Congress that $75,202,425 of war materials have been transferred to the democracies since enactment of the lease-lend law and $4,277,412,879 has been allocated for further aid out of the $7,000,000,000 provided by Congress. He said that work has started on agreements with foreign governments on the terms and conditions of the aid they receive.

Civilian Defense

Civilian Defense Director LaGuardia stated organization of medical groups, auxiliary police and fire units, sanitation, and first aid squads are the the necessary basis for adequate home defense. He said panic is to be avoided under all circumstances and it will be necessary to educate the public to the absolute necessity of obeying instructions.

Mr. LaGuardia said firemen and policemen from 40 Eastern cities will be trained in combating poison gas and incendiary and high explosive bombs in 17, two week courses at Edgewood Arsenal, Md., under the direction of the Army Chemical Warfare Service. Trainees will return home and instruct fellow townsmen.

OPM announced it will soon begin a nation-wide campaign to collect scrap aluminum from civilians. A test drive in Richmond, Va., and at Madison, Wisc., it was said, produced enough of the metal to build 16 pursuit planes or two and one-half bombers.

Oil

Defense Petroleum Coordinator Ickes told a press conference that curbs on petroleum consumption along the Atlantic coast appear inevitable but the degree of restriction would depend on public cooperation in conserving oil and gasoline. He said the American Automobile Association has pledged a campaign to cut down consumption of gasoline by motorists by slower driving, elimination of hasty "getaways" in traffic, and proper engine adjustments. He said Bureau of Standards tests showed a car which gets 18 miles to the gallon at 30 m. p. h. will get only 8.6 miles to the gallon at 80.

Power

The Federal Power Commission reported "many areas of the country are now . . . facing power shortages . . . Unless orders are placed immediately for large amounts of additional capacity for 1943, serious shortages will develop . . . "

OPM Director General Knudsen announced OPM has formally approved the St. Lawrense Waterway and Power Project "as part of the all-out defense effort." The President allotted $200,000 for construction of a cooperative transmission system to carry power from the Pensacola Dam to 15 REA co-operatives in Kansas, Arkansas, Missouri, and Oklahoma to provide for development of zinc deposits for defense.

Coal

The Office of the Bituminous Coal Consumers' Counsel announced a campaign—endorsed by defense consumer, price and transportation officials—to promote buying and storing of next winter's coal this summer to lighten the load that movement of crops and defense materials will place upon the transport system beginning next fall. The Office warned consumers against "panicky" buying at high prices and said the supply of bituminous coal is ample for all needs.

Prices

Administrator Henderson, of the Office of Price Administration and Civilian Supply, arranged with the industries concerned to prevent unjustified price increases in coffee, plywood, paper board, crude oil, gasoline and automobiles. Mr. Henderson told certain auto firms to withdraw recently announced price rises because they "are inconsistent with the favorable earning position of the industry."

Priorities

OPM placed borax and boric acid, aluminum scrap, zinc, copper, and synthetic rubber under full priority control. OPACS announced programs to allocate sufficient quantities of these materials for essential civilian needs.

Vice President Wallace, speaking in Washington, said the democratic way is for each citizen to put off non-essential purchases until after the ememgency so that more material will be available for defense.

Defense Housing

Defense Housing Coordinator Palmer announced there have been completed 14,293 defense dwelling units in 55 localities of 26 States and territories. Speaking to the Conference for National Housing Inventory, Mr. Palmer said it may be necessary to ask Congress for an additional $500,000,000 to construct 125,000 homes in defense areas in addition to the 97,000 already contracted for.

Money Talks

UNIVERSITY OF LOUISVILLE

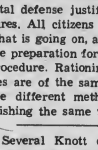
Great Britain recently announced that it would be necessary to ration wearing apparel of practically all kinds. To insure fair distribution she has issued ration cards to the entire population.

In the U. S. we have no rationing of important commodities. At least we do not call it rationing. But we do have priorities. The Office of Production Management has given notice to iron and steel manufacturers to fill defense orders first. The same is true in the copper and aluminum industries.

Automobile manufacturers are cutting production of the 1942 model at least 20% in order to manufacture more tanks, airplanes, and armament.

The government recently (June 10) gave consumers notice that they must step aside until defense needs are met on a long list of everyday items, ranging from woolen and cotton socks, mattresses, wool, cotton, flannel, and other types of cloth, wool and leather gloves, to cameras, motion picture machinery, and fire extinguishers. In all there are now approximately 300 commodities on the Office of Production Management list of "critical items."

This list of "critical items" should bring home to the private citizen how widely the requirement for an all out "total defense" program may effect the routine of his daily living.



Many government officials have already indicated that, before the defense program has run many more months, numerous items formerly obtainable in any specialty or department store will be hard to find at any price.

Rationing has not been used in this country. But we do have priorities and "critical items," and total defense justifies these measures. All citizens should realize what is going on, and that war, or the preparation for war is a costly procedure. Rationing and priorities are of the same family. They are different methods of accomplishing the same thing.

MAMMOTH CAVE WILL BE ESTABLISHED THE TWENTY-SIXTH NATIONAL PARK ON JULY 1.

"TELLING KENTUCKIANS OF KENTUCKY" SERIES

ABOVE: View of Kentucky Press Association dinner three years ago in Snowball Dining Room 267 feet underground in Mammoth Cave. The Kentucky Press Association held its 1941 convention at Mammoth Cave June 5-6-7 Snowball Dining Room is one of the showpieces of the cave.

(This is one of a series of articles sponsored by the Kentucky Press Association which in 1941 would tell Kentuckians of Kentucky as Kentucky should tell the world in 1942—Sesquicentennial Year. Other articles of this nature will appear in newspapers of Kentucky from time to time.)

BY JOE RICHARDSON
Of The Glasgow Times

Mammoth Cave will be accepted July 1, 1941, by the federal government as the 26th National Park. And inasmuch as it lies within overnight ride of more than half of the country's population, it is expected to be one of the greatest and most popular parks in the national park system.

One of the seven wonders of the new world, Mammoth Cave has been attracting visitors in ever-increasing numbers for more than 125 years. Mammoth Cave was discovered 142 years ago. From the beginning Mammoth Cave has had important part in the history of these United States. During the War of 1812 saltpetre was leached from the petre-dirt in the cave and was used in the manufacture of gun powder. Historians believe that had the saltpetre mines of Mammoth Cave not been worked the battle of New Orleans would have been lost. The old vats and workings in the cave are now on exhibit.

Drive For National Park

Mammoth Cave National Park was begun in earnest in 1926, although there was a move to make it a national park many years earlier. Lands for the park have been acquired by the State of Kentucky through the Kentucky National Park Commission, by donations, and by direct purchase by the federal government, using therefor donated funds and the funds derived from the operation of the caves and hotels of the area. The total expenditures to date on the park amount to more than $9,000,000. This includes all the funds made available from each of sources mentioned above. Approximately 51,000 acres of the proposed 71,000 acres have been acquired for the minimum boundary of this great national park.

Area Is Well Protected

The Civilian Conservation Corps has played a large part in the development of Mammoth Cave National Park. Since establishment of the first of three camps in the park area May 22, 1933, the Corps has greatly advanced conservation of flora and fauna in the area many years by the construction of 65 miles of all-weather truck trails which provide the park rangers means of effectively patrolling the entire park area, thereby greatly increasing the protection of wildlife, as well as the detection and suppression of one of our greatest menaces — forest fires.

In addition to the protection of these natural features, and in order to provide for the health, sanitation and fire protection of the visiting public, a new water system and sewerage system, second to none, have been completed by these CCC boys under the supervision of the National Park Service and public health officials. More than $200,000 was expended on these two new improvements.

2,900,000 Seedlings Planted

No CCC camp could boast of a well rounded work program without expending great effort to stop soil erosion. In this endeavor, CCC enrollees have planted over 2,900,000 tree seedlings for gully control of over 3,000,000 square yards. In connection with the tree planting, approximately 8,000 temporary check dams have been constructed to suppress erosion.

The area is protected by one of the best detection systems in the National Park Service. Four big lookout towers have been erected at advantageous points, which enable lookouts to have a complete coverage of the park. This tower observation is augmented by an up-to-date automatic dial phone system which consists of more than 60 miles of copper wire telephone line that is used in connections with the hotel, the caves, the offices and all parts of the park.

Many Improvements Noted

Recent improvements include six dwellings for park personnel and two under construction for others. Stone structures housing the machine shop, the new pumping station, the chlorinating unit, the incinerator, two warehouses, and the comfort station in the big picnic area, all attest to the fine work of the CCC in the park.

Nature trails of from two to eight miles along the picturesque Green river have been constructed, and all trails within the cave itself, have been improved. An amphitheatre has been provided for public meetings; shuffle board and tennis courts have been provided, and a camping and picnic area, with table and bench combinations sufficient to accommodate 1,200 persons, has been recently completed. This picnic area is provided with water fountains and sanitary comfort station. Provision has also been made for boating and bathing in beautiful Green river which runs through the park for a great many miles.

200,000 Visitors In 1940

Mammoth Cave has two main entrances, one natural, known as the Old, or Historic Entrance, and the other, man-made, known as the Frozen Niagara Entrance. There are four routes in the cave and trips are made every hour on the hour. The caves and hotel are open every day in the year for the visitors who come from every state in the union, and from many foreign countries. More than 200,000 visitors were registered in the park area last year. The National Park Service maintains an Entrance Station at the eastern entrance to the park on highway 70 west from Cave City. All roads leading into the cave area are main paved highways. Cave is 100 miles south of Louisville, 85 miles north of Nashville, by either U. S. 31 E or U. S. 31 W.

Mammoth Cave Hotel is open the year around. In addition to the hotel, with excellent accommodations, there are 36 cabins and cottages available. The fine dining room service, the coffee shop and out-of-doors eating place are at your service at all hours.

SOCIAL AND PERSONALS

STAFFORDSBURG

The final meeting of the year of the Staffordsburg Homemakers' Club, was held last Thursday at the home of Mrs. Omer Lucas, on the Walton and Nicholson Pike.

The meeting was opened by the president, Mrs. Earl Hanna, with group singing of several hymns, and with all repeating the Lord's Prayer.

The roll call was answered by 15 members, after which all were invited into the dining room where the hostess had a very beautiful arranged table, and had plenty of good thing on it, to eat.

After the noon hour, Mrs. J. A. Keeney and Mrs. Mabel Valandingham, project leaders, gave some very good points on calcium, an essential element for growth, and health, which was discussed with much interest.

Among those present were: Mrs. Charles Lamb, Mrs. Alice Riggs, Mrs. Inez Beall, Mrs. L. J. Rapp, Mrs. Earl Hanna, Mrs. J. A. Keeney, Mrs. John Shaw, Mrs. Lee Faulkner, Mrs. Emil Stein, Mrs. Stella Richardson, Mrs. Will Gedkar, Mrs. Denver Binder, Mrs. Mabel Valandingham, Miss Zelma Byerly; visitors, Misses Rita Faulkner, Lizzie and Jean Lucas, and Mrs. Mills, and the hostess and baby daughter.

The Club planned a picnic for August 6th, at the home of Mrs. Denver Binders, at 7:30 in the evening.

The fall meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. L. J. Rapp, September 4th, at which time the new officers will be elected.

Remember the date!

INDEPENDENCE R-1

The farmers have all been benefited very much with the wonderful rains. But we need a little sunshine now.

The entire neighborhood was saddened very much, last week, by the loss of one of their old friends and neighbors, Charles Ballanger, who passed away at his home at Staffordsburg. The funeral was held Friday, at the Staffordsburg M. E. church. Rev. E. K. Kidwell delivered a very impressive sermon. The family has the sympathy of the entire community.

Rev. E. Kidwell and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Kirby Richards and daughter Helen, visited with Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Folmer, and mother, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. William Brown returned Tuesday evening from a visit with relatives in Winchester.

Mrs. Ona Kephart, who has been ill in the hospital at Charleston, W. Va., is able to be home, and is improving nicely, but will have to remain in bed another month.

Mrs. Mabel Stansifer returned home Sunday from Aurora, Ind., where she had been visiting her sister, Mrs. Grace Milner, Mr. Milner, and her daughter, Julia Ann Stansifer.

Mrs. Harry Powers of Charleston, W. Va., accompanied her son, William, home Sunday, and is the guest of her mother-in-alw, Mrs. Martha Powers of South Main St.

Mr. George Flynn had the misfortune to dislocate his shoulder, Friday, while unloading some hogs. He was taken to St. Elizabeth hospital by Dr. Ryle, to have it put back in place and will have to carry his arm in a sling for some time.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Daniel and three children of Bellefountaine, Ohio, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Vallandingham.

Mr. and Mrs. John Harris, Mrs. Bess VanLouran and Mrs. Edith Stark of Ft. Thomas and Mrs. Lou Cunningham of Covington, were visiting relatives here Tuesday evening, and attended the O. E. S. meeting.

MRS. FRANKS ENTERTAINS WALTON HOMEMAKERS

The June meeting of the Walton Homemakers' Club was held at the home of Mrs. Blanch Franks, on Friday, the 13th. Fourteen members responded to roll call, and two visitors were also present.

Many interesting things were discussed. Mrs. Edna Vest, our Exterior Beautification chairman, stated that a silver tea is being planned for July 21st, at the Florence Christian church. Guest for that afternoon is to be Anne Stewart, well known for "Let the Earth Speak," and Mrs. James Layne, who is connected with the Federation of Woman's Clubs and the State Department of Beautification. This tea should be of much interest to all Boone county people, since the committee plans to use the proceeds from the tea to beautify the Boone county roads.

The committee on recreation outlined plans for a tour of interest for the members on July 11th, and a county-wide garden tour on July 29th.

Our Rug Project leaders have planned a rug exhibit on July 17, 18, 19 in different windows in the business houses.

Miss Gillaspie stated that at the Advisory Council, the majority voted on Meal Planning, as the project for the coming year, so our main project will be a continuation of "Live at Home."

This concluded our regular monthly meetings until the second Friday in September.

Mrs. W. O. Rouse, Secretary.

A pool handled 95 percent of the wool produced in Taylor county.

MORRIS FAMILY REUNION HELD AT SUGAR CREEK, SUN.

Salad Bowl Trick

It's the dressing on your salads that tells the story of your artistry in salad making. So make it a point to choose just the right one for each particular combination of fruits or vegetables. Certain of them take to fluffy mayonnaise or creamy cooked salad dressings—then there are others whose most outstanding nuances of flavor are shown up only by a tart French dressing.

By all means make your own French dressing. This gives you an opportunity to create different blends of flavors. Such a practice really sets you up as a person in the know, particularly if you make use of all the four different kinds of vinegars—from the more common cider vinegar to the pert tarragon.

Pure cider vinegar is the all-purpose vinegar which goes well with all the fruit and vegetable combinations you might make. But when you want a flavor that gives your meal unusual dash, use tarragon vinegar—a pert blend of malt and distilled vinegar infused with tarragon leaves. Malt vinegar has a sturdier flavor which is just right with main dish salads. And the distilled white vinegar makes fine general purpose French dressings as well as excellent cooked salad dressings.

You can buy delicious salad dressings of both the mayonnaise and the cooked type already made. Both should be kept well covered in the refrigerator, and since the mayonnaise is an emulsion, one should be careful it does not get too cold. Here are some cooked salad dressing and mayonnaise tricks and below are some different French dressings you will want to try out on family and guests:

Horseradish Mayonnaise

Mix—
1 tablespoon evaporated horseradish
2 tablespoons cold water.
Let stand 10 minutes, then add to—
1 cup mayonnaise.

Serve on canned or cooked beets used in salads, or on meat salads.

Russian Dressing

Mix—
1 cup mayonnaise
¼ cup chili sauce.

Serve on quarters of head lettuce or with a molded ham salad.

Mustard Salad Dressing

Mix—
½ cup prepared salad dressing
2 teaspoons prepared yellow mustard.

Serve on coleslaw or a jellied meat salad.

Peanut Butter Salad Dressing

Beat together until consistency of mayonnaise—
1 cup peanut butter
6 tablespoons water.
Add gradually to—
1 pint prepared salad dressing.
Beat hard with rotary egg beater, then add—
½ teaspoon salt.

Chill and serve on fruit salads.

Fruity French Dressing

Combine—
½ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons sugar
1 teaspoon paprika.
Add—
3 tablespoons malt vinegar
½ cup pure olive oil
3 tablespoons pineapple juice
3 tablespoons orange juice.

Beat thoroughly and serve on fruit salads.

Piquante French Dressing

Combine—
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon sugar
¼ teaspoon paprika
¼ cup tarragon vinegar
½ cup pure olive oil
½ teaspoon prepared brown mustard
½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
½ teaspoon onion juice
2 drops tabasco sauce.

Beat thoroughly. Serve on green salads.

The Tangy Touch

Looking for something tangy and tempting to serve with one of your crisp green salads? The Cheesettes whose recipe is given below fill your need. Tomato Ketchup gives them spiciness and dash, and they are easy to prepare and serve hot from the oven.

Cheesettes

Cut fresh bread in one-inch cubes. Beat one egg and one tablespoon tomato ketchup together with a fork until thoroughly combined. Then dip the bread cubes in this mixture and roll in finely grated sharp cheese. Place on a shallow baking sheet and bake in a hot oven (400° F.) or under a broiler flame until cheese is melted and browned. Serve hot with crisp green salads.

RECEIVES LETTER FROM ENGLAND

"Dear Mrs. Wilson:

"Your letter written March 17th reached me on April 9th. I was so very glad to get it and feel that now we are really in touch. Will you please thank your friend, Mrs. Stephens, for her kind letter and say that I am hoping to find someone to write to her, but have not succeeded yet. However, I am sure I shall soon.

"I was most interested in all you told me about your life and about Kentucky. Do tell me more. I shall never evacuate from England as long as England is in trouble, but when we have won the war then I shall hope perhaps to come and see the States, and shall look forward to meeting you.

"As you see, I am in my new cottage. I have had a busy time sowing my vegetable garden and clearing up the mess left by the last owners who lived here 15 years ago. In the kitchen wall one of the workmen found a coin marked 1733. It was turned down on one side like an envelope flap and I'm told that they used to do that in old days so as to make the edge sharp. Then they put the coin—or rather four coins—between their clenched fingers and used them as a knuckle duster! Some people say this cottage is four hundred years old. It has one sitting-room, 2 bedrooms above, a kitchen and a bathroom next the sitting room, on the ground floor, and an attic. What used to be the washhouse I've converted into a garage. The sitting-room has big elm beams and core oak. There is an open fireplace where I burn logs on an iron basket, and there is an inglenook. Some houses have two inglenooks, but they are of later date. At the time this house was built, women weren't expected to sit down, so there was only one seat by the fire—for men!

"A friend of mine—the one I told you drives a mobile canteen in London—has been staying with me for Easter. We worked hard in the garden becaues I want to grow enough to feed myself and send some to her in London. Two days ago we heard London had had another bad raid, so she gave up the rest of her holiday and went back to help. I can't help being anxious about her, but of course she wants to do all she can to help.

"Next week I am going to spend in Lincolnshire where the English bulbs are grown. But I suppose this year I shall find no lovely tulips but only rows of carrots and onions. I shall go by car—it's 130 miles—as trains are rather slow. A week ago I went up north to Cumberland. There they seem right out of the war. They've had no raids and really people living in the county have very little to remind them of the awful things going on elsewhere. Perhaps what has brought home the war most to the agricultural worker is the shortage of cheese. Now that jam is to be rationed too, and bacon is already rationed, it's difficult for him to find anything for his midday packed lunch that he takes with him into the fields. Personally I've never felt short of anything. In fact I generally have some of my rations over at the end of the week to give away. But then I have meals out, when I'm traveling, and you don't have to give up a coupon for that, and also I don't ever eat a lot of meat. In the last ten days I've had two guests and they both brought their rations of butter and margarine—and were most welcome!

"A friend of mine was shutting up her house last week because her husband has been stationed in Scotland, and she came to say goodbye to me. As a parting gift she gave me two onions and a pot of jam, and in return I gave her ¼ pound of butter. We both laughed about it, and wondered what we would have said at such presents a year ago! But today we were both thrilled with our presents. I suppose really it would be true to say that one has to be careful, but no one is short of anything yet, except onions. And everyone has sown so many in their gardens this year that I should think we will be living on onions in 1942.

"I have bowls of king-cups, celandine, primroses and wild daffodils in my rooms, and two big vases of red alder and willow. There are purple primrose just outside my front door and forget-me-nots and wallflower almost out. This afternoon I'm going to sow the border at the back of the house. There is to be a row of peas to eat at the back and clubs of flowers and vegetables alternately in front. So we combine beauty and utility.

"Tomorrow I go to Lincolnshire. The part I am going to is called Holland, and it is like Holland, too. The county town is Boston, the town from which your Boston's name was taken. The chief industry is bulb growing, and I believe a lot are exported to the U. S. A.

"Talking about American towns, my sister was in the Greenwich near New York. My brother-in-law worked in Shell and was manager of the American department over here after they returned from Greenwich.

"I shall look forward to hearing from you again after you get this. And I'll do my best to find a letter friend for Mrs. Stephens quite soon.

"Yours sincerely,

"(signed) Cicely McCall."

DIVIDING RIDGE CITIZEN PASSES

Mrs. Magdilene Taylor Hamilton died at her home near Dividing Ridge, Carroll county, last Friday at 12:15. The deceased had been in ill health for several years, suffering from a complication of troubles and her recovery had, during the past thirteen weeks, not been anticipated.

Mrs. Hamilton was the daughter of John Crampton and Sarah Alice Taylor and was born in Gallatin county, August 19, 1871. She became a member of Sugar Creek Christian church when eleven years of age. She was married to Alex Lee Hamilton, December 23, 1891. To them were born one son who died in infancy.

Twenty-one years ago they moved to Carroll county, and they both united with the Christian church of Sparta, of which both were faithful members. She leaves to mourn her loss, her husband, Lee Hamilton; and one sister, Mrs. Alice Hall of Warsaw, being the only one of her family left; besides a great many nieces, nephews and a host of relatives and friends.

Funeral services were held in the Sparta Christian church, Friday afternoon, by her pastor, Rev. Clark, who payed a beautiful tribute to the life of the deceased, after which the remains were taken to Warsaw by her requested undertaker, Mr. Winish of Carrollton, and interred in the I. O. O. F. cemetery by the side of her infant son.

There's an open gate
At the end of the road,
Through which each must go alone,
And there's a light we cannot see,
Our Father claims His own.
Beyond the gate our loved one
Finds happiness and rest
And there is comfort in the thought
That a loving God knows best.

HER SISTER.

SHEEP SHOULD BE PARASITE TREATED

Sheep, especially late lambs, are beginning to show indications of internal parasites, according to H. R. Forkner, county agent. The wet weather is ideal for parasite development.

Most farmers wait until their lambs show marked signs of being sick before beginning to treat. The sheep at this state is already injured and the farmer has already suffered several dollars per head loss on his market lambs. While it is useless to treat sheep that are not infected, every sheep raiser should be on the lookout for first signs of infectations and begin treatment.

The College of Agriculture in Extension Circular No. 152 give the following recommendations on stomach worm (intestinal parasites) control:

Preventative measures:

1. Breed ewes for early lambing so as to get the lambs on the market before stomach worms have had a chance to affect their market value.

2. Avoid contaminated pastures as far as possible, at least until the lambs are ready for market.

3. Provide as much rotation of pastures as possible and make liberal use of temporary pastures during the hot weather.

4. Do not overcrowd. Better have too few sheep than too many.

Medical treatment:

1. Treat the whole flock with a vermifuge in late fall so that sheep go into the winter comparatively free from worms.

2. Treat all sheep again, except the lambs, in the early spring, after lambing.

3. Treat the sheep regularly every month thereafter until fall.

4. Treat any lambs that will not be ready for market by the middle of June, when they are eight or ten weeks old, and monthly thereafter until marketed.

Among the vermifuges that are used successfully in the control of stomach worms in sheep the following are recommended: (1) Copper sulphate; (2) a mixture of copper sulfate and nicotine sulfate; and (3) tetrachlorethylene. The copper sulfate and the combined treatment are generally administered in the form of drenches while tetrachlorethylene is usually administered in capsules.

Phenothiazine, a new treatment for nodular and other stomach worms, gives promise of effective results. This recommended treatment will be available for sheepmen in a circular letter that will be available at the county office in the near future. Dr. K. W. Ryle at Burlington, has been successfully using this treatment on many classes of livestock the past year.

MARS HILL SUMMER CAMP OPENS JULY 1st

Mars Hill Summer Camp will open July 1, and close Aug. 9. Mr. L. F. Rutledge of Fort Myers, Fla., will serve as director. He will be assisted by a carefully selected staff of counselors. The enrollment will be restricted to young people of high school and college age.

The camp gives an opportunity to live six weeks amid the wonders of the mountains. Each week during the camp season, a free sight-seeling trip to some point of interest will be provided for camp members. These excursions may include any of the following places: Craggy Gardens, Mt. Mitchell, Canton Paper Mills, Enka Rayon Mills, Biltmore Estate, Great Smoky Mountains, Mt. Bailey, and Mt. Pisgah. On such trips comfortable buses will be used.

Each member of the camp will have a daily program calling for two hours in summer school classes, two hours in supervised study, and one hour in supervised sports. He may devote his leisure time to any number of interesting activities, such as field games, indoor games, hiking, swimming, dramatics, glee club, hand crafts, excursions for nature study, and hobbies.

Two hours of class work will be fully accredited.

The sports offered will include football, basketball, tennis, track and swimming.

Evening hours may be devoted to such activities as vespers, campfire games, motion pictures, lectures, concerts, parties, camper forum, and group singing.

Mars Hill Camp is located at Mars Hill, North Carolina, a village situated in the mountains, 19 miles north of Ashville.

Full information may be obtained by addressing Mars Hill College, Mars Hill, N. C., or Mr. L. F. Rutledge, 2012 Alcazar, Fort Myers, Florida.

Several Knott county farmers have purchased registered hogs this spring.

G. W. Batts of Ballard county sheared 351 pounds of wool from 30 sheep, selling it for $47.61 per cwt.

Mrs. William Summey entertained the Independence Homemakers Club at her home, White's Tower, Thursday, June 12.

Mrs. J. E. Reynolds, president, called the meeting to order for the morning business session.

Mrs. F. H. Shanklin called the roll, each member answering with a reason why "I am an American."

A delicious chicken dinner was served by the hostess.

The afternoon talks were given by Mrs. O. T. Tapp, on shrubbery. Miss Zelma Byerly, home demonstration agent, requested the members to plant vegetables, fruit; can and preserve. Mrs. Foster Armstrong and Miss Emily Leslie told the club members about the First Nutrition Convention, held in Washington D. C. May 26. 27, 28 to which which their teacher, Miss Florence Imlay had been a delegate.

The lesson was: "Standpoint of Minerals. Calcium and Vitamin B. Teeth, Bones and Blood."

All National Defense depends upon the strength and alertness of well nourished people.

Mrs. Wm. House, recreational leader and Mrs. Wm. Summey is citizenship chairman.

Members are planning a tour of interest for July, and a picnic for August.

Members present were: Mrs. J. C. Reynolds, Mrs. Wm. House, Mrs. Foster Armstrong, Mrs. O. T. Tapp, Mrs. G. H. Houston, Mrs. F. H. Shanklin, Mrs. Jesse Stephens, Mrs. Mattie Mills, Mrs. Earl Tapp, Mrs. John T. Leslie, Mrs. Louis Doll, Mrs. Wm. Summey, Mrs. Roberts, Miss Zelma Byerly, Miss Lena Mills, and Miss Emily L. Leslie.

COLORED HOMEMAKERS HOLD JUNE MEETING

The Colored Homemakers held their monthly meeting June 9, at the Zion Baptist church. The meeting was carried on by the president. The program was very short, but interesting.

We had one new member, Alice Poore. The lesson was "Rugs," and Mrs. Hughes and Mrs. Rouse gave the instructions on rug making. Everyone is trying to be ready for the exhibit next month.

A delicious luncheon was enjoyed by Mrs. R. P. Hughes, Mrs. W. W. Rouse, Miss Glenn Sleet, Mary Sleet, Mrs. Estell Sleet, Mrs. Robert Sleet, Mrs. Clint Riley, Miss Martha Johnson, Mrs. Lucy Johnson, Mrs. George Crutcherfield, Mrs. Joe Howlett, Mrs. Jas. Riddell, Mrs. Elmer Ross, Miss Alice Poore, and the hosts, Miss Anna P. Ross and Mrs. James Ingram.

The next meeting will be July 8 at Mrs. Lucy Johnson's.

Letter to Editor

"Lincoln Jr. High School
"Syracuse, N. Y., June 16, '41.

"Dear Editor:

"I have read with interest, the fine article on the Bradford family of Florence, by that fine gentleman, Mr. A. M. Yealey, and this letter is not to critize, but supplement it, as these articles will become material for research when a history of Boone county is written.

"J. W. R. Bradford, known as 'Uncle John', who traveled the old Lexington Pike through Walton for forty years, selling and collecting buggies for repairs to be made at Florence, had another son and two daughters, not mentioned in the article by Mr. Yealey. The name of this son was John, who located in Georgetown. The daughters names were Irene and Catherine, the latter of which I have reason to believe, is still living.

"The reason I am so interested in keeping this record straight, is that my grandmother, Martha Buchanan Chambers, and Cathrine Buchanan Bradford were sisters, and soon there is to appear a pamphlet on the Buchanan family, written by me for the heirs of President Buchanan estate.

"Very truly,
"C. Spencer Chambers."

EAGLE TUNNEL

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Clifton spent Monday with Mr. Harrison Scott and family.

Mr. and Mrs. George Moore were callers on Mr. Harry Scott, Wednesday.

Making the Holy Bible Live—and Talk

Serious-minded actors and actresses are shown here producing the famous story of Jephthah's daughter for the Talking Bible, an undertaking of The Bible Foundation for creating increased public interest in the Bible and its teachings.

The Foundation, a non-profit organization sponsored by many well-known Americans, envisions a long range program of recording all of the Scriptures and making the recordings available in all languages throughout the world. The first phase of the program, however, which is already underway, calls for recording some 1500 of the most beautiful and inspiring of the Bible stories.

Believing that a Talking Bible fits the tempo of modern times, since many people these days are taught by listening rather than reading, The Bible Foundation has interested many wealthy people in sponsoring its plan. Because of their sponsorship, the recordings will be made available without charge to churches, clubs, army camps, ships, radio stations—any groups who request them.

The Foundation, in planning the recordings, is adhering as closely as possible to the exact text of the Bible, making separate records of the King James version of the Bible and of the new Confraternity version of the Catholic church.

Actors and actresses, to play the part of Biblical characters, have been chosen with great care in an effort to get men and women whose voices and personalities best fit the parts.

Records of the Bible stories so far produced are available, free of charge, to interested groups in this community as well as in other towns and cities throughout the nation.

Call to Spiritual Defense

Under the direction of Miss Mary E. Hughes, Executive Director of the Foundation, local Bible Foundation Chapters are being formed throughout the nation. Miss Hughes, former head of the Women's Division of the NRA and organizer of the Blue Eagle Campaign, calls on the women of the nation to mobilize for spiritual and moral defense. "Men must be governed by God or they will be governed by tyrants." For information concerning chapters and records write to The Bible Foundation, 156 Fifth Avenue, New York.

FIRST JERUSALEM CONFERENCE ON WORLD MISSIONS

LESSON TEXT—Acts 15:6-21.

GOLDEN TEXT—But we believe that through the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ we shall be saved, even as they.—Acts 15:11.

The conference on missions in Jerusalem was not the result of an appeal to a ruling church organization for a decision, but rather a gathering of the believers from Antioch with those in Jerusalem to confer regarding a serious difference of opinion. The earliest converts to Christianity were Jews, who had come by the way of Judaism into their new faith in Christ. But now, through the preaching of Paul and Barnabas, certain Gentiles had believed in Christ. Their new-found joy was soon beclouded by a theological problem. Certain teachers from Judea (Acts 15:1) declared that the Gentiles were not saved unless they came into the Christian faith the way of the fulfillment of the Jewish law. Paul and Barnabas at once realized that this was

I. The Vital Question—Is Salvation by Grace or Works? (vv. 7-11; see also vv. 1-5).

Paul and his fellow workers had rightly apprehended God's plan of salvation apart from works of the law. Paul realized that the entire future of the gospel ministry was in a sense dependent on the solution of this problem. Christianity is the only religious faith in the world that presents justification by grace as the way of redemption; all others follow (more or less) the path of salvation by works.

The question now was: Shall works of the law be mingled with grace—can Jesus Christ alone save men, or is salvation through Jesus Christ plus something else?

How was such a serious question to be settled? Should argument and strife be permitted to go on until the stronger party prevailed? Better judgment indicated the desirability of a friendly discussion and a joint decision with the believers at Jerusalem. This was

II. The Christian Solution—Council Rather Than Controversy (vv. 6, 7, 12-18).

There may be times when it becomes the duty of the Christian worker to take an uncompromising stand for the truth of God and refuse to be moved, come what may. But certainly there should be no such spirit in dealing with differing interpretations of Scripture on the part of sincere and earnest Christian brethren. How much would be gained in the Church today if, instead of magnifying differences and permitting personal desires and ambitions to intervene, men were willing to sit down in the spirit of Christ around the tables of Christian council and brotherhood, presided over and directed by the Holy Spirit (see Acts 15:28).

Observe the full measure of liberty in discussion, the attentive listening to the messages of the brethren. Note also that there were no secret sessions of a "steering committee" and no "steamroller" tactics.

The whole question was honestly and carefully considered by the council at Jerusalem, with the result that there was a vindication of the preachers of God's grace.

James finally spoke, giving the conclusion to which the Holy Spirit had led the conference (see v. 28). Here for all the future we have

III. The God-Given Answer—Salvation Is by Grace (vv. 19-21; see also vv. 22-35).

In his epistle to the Ephesians (Eph. 2:8, 9), Paul succinctly states this truth: "By grace are ye saved through faith; and that not of yourselves: it is the gift of God: not of works, lest any man should boast." The teaching of Scripture is very plain on this point, and we do well to receive it in all its beauty and grace.

Let us observe, however, that the decision in Jerusalem, while it laid no further burden on these Gentile believers (v. 28), did quite properly require of them that, as those who had been saved by grace, they must "walk in newness of life" (Rom. 6:4) which they had in Christ. Paul had the same thought in mind when he supplemented Ephesians 2:8 and 9 with verse 10, declaring that God has ordained that we should walk "in good works."

There are two opposite tendencies (both of which are wrong) in this matter, which consistently hurt the Christian church. The one which we have already stressed tries to mix works with grace, making salvation either entirely or partially by works. Sad to say, some who have sought to avoid this error have gone to the opposite extreme and have done violence to God's plan of salvation by making grace an excuse for sin, using their freedom from law as a justification of lawlessness. We are God's "workmanship, created in Christ Jesus unto good works" (Eph. 2:10).

FLORENCE

Mr. and Mrs. Shelly Aylor and daughter, Rita, spent Sunday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. Guy Aylor and family.

Mrs. J. O. Richards, jr., and sister, Rita Aylor, left Tuesday for a visit with their brother, Lawrence L. Aylor at Camp Shelby, Mississippi.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Cook, Miss Mildred Zapp and grandfather are on a two week's tour of Oklahoma, Texas, Mexico and Mississippi.

Mrs. Jack Renaker and children and Mrs. M. P. Barlow spent Saturday in Covington, shopping.

Albert Antoinette, and Alma C. Middendorf and children of Maurice Middendorf of Atlanta, Ga., are spending their summer vacation with Albert Schwibold and daughter.

Mrs. Lizzie Finn of Ludlow is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Ben Northcuit.

Friends of Mr. Cook are glad to know he is able to be up and around, but still confined to his home.

Miss Dorothy McHenry left Sunday for Richmond, Ky., where she will attend summer school.

Edd Snyder is able to be out again, after being hit by a car two weeks ago.

In Place of Beer

Every family has its choice to make: on the one hand there's the ultimate unhappiness which flows out of beer stein, wine glass, or whisky bottle; on the other hand, the W.C.T.U. points out, there's a chance for a lot of personal and family happiness.

The nation spends $3,350,000,000 each year for beer, wine, and other liquors. Translating this sum into necessities and recreation, temperance workers show what Mr. Average Citizen could buy if he stayed out of taverns or liquor stores.

"Here?"

The total money "now wasted on alcohol" would buy all of the following items for three million American families:

Pay $30 a month house rent for a year; buy 2 loaves of bread daily for a year; buy 2 quarts of milk daily for a year; buy 15 pounds of meat weekly for a year; buy $4 worth of fruit a month for a year; pay for 4 movie tickets a week for a year; buy a daily paper or 4 weekly paper subscriptions for a year; buy 2 magazines for a year; pay the doctor $50; buy another suit for father and pay $80 for more clothes for mother and children; buy 3 pairs of $5 shoes; pay $50 for extra household supplies. And, all of this would still leave 14 million dollars for miscellaneous items.

"Or, Here?"

This is why the social workers declare that family budgets stand the economic loss in connection with liquor and that the man who actually pays the liquor bill is the grocer, the tailor, the butcher, the baker, the doctor, the landlord, the printer, or the shoemaker.

A Judge's Opinion

A Des Moines, Iowa, judge studied evidence presented to a grand jury and declared that the amount of alcohol it takes to put a man "under the influence of liquor" is 1 cocktail, or 1 highball, or 2 bottles of beer.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Cook and Miss Mildred Zapp have returned home from a motor trip to New Mexico.

Mr. and Mrs. Dolpha Sebree and family of Florence, and Mr. J. T. Jockey of Walton, motored to Lexington, recently, where they attended the University of Kentucky graduation exercises. Miss Kathryn Sebree, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sebree, was a member of the graduating class and received her B. S. degree in Home Economics.

Mrs. Perry J. Allen (nee Lila Floyd), who is a patient in Booth hospital, Covington, suffering from a fractured hip which she received in a fall at the home of Dr. L. E. Rouse of Ludlow last Tuesday, is reported to be doing nicely at this writing. All her friends here wish her a speedy recovery.

Mrs. Mary E. Rouse had for her guest, one day the past week, Mrs. Georgia Rouse of Burlington.

Please leave your items for the Walton Advertiser at the Florence Drug Store. It would be appreciated very much by your correspondent.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Scott and son of Waterloo visited Mr. and Mrs. Lon Clore Tuesday, and Mr. Scott went to Cincinnati to see a friend who has been in very poor health, and will soon undergo an operation.

Mrs. Lillian Ryle, Mrs. Edith Jones and daughter, Betty Jones, and Mrs. Mildred Carroll and son Bobbie, motored to Akron, Ohio, to visit their brother, Joe Moore, and family, and also attended the graduation exercises. Mr. Moore's son was among the class.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon McGuier have returned home from a visit of several days with Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Easton.

Mrs. Harold Conner was in Lexington, Ky., Thursday, visiting her sister, Mrs. Gayle Denney.

Mrs. Anna Clore was in Covington, shopping, Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dinn were calling on Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Stamper of Richwood, Monday evening.

Miss Sarah McCardle of Norwood, Ohio, was calling on friends in Florence, Tuesday evening.

Mrs. W. T. Grant and Miss Virginia Tanner and Henry Smith motored over to Union on Sunday afternoon, to visit Miss Ollie Smith.

Friends of Mrs. Hattie Creel regret to learn that she had the misfortune to step on a nail, running it in her foot, causing much pain.

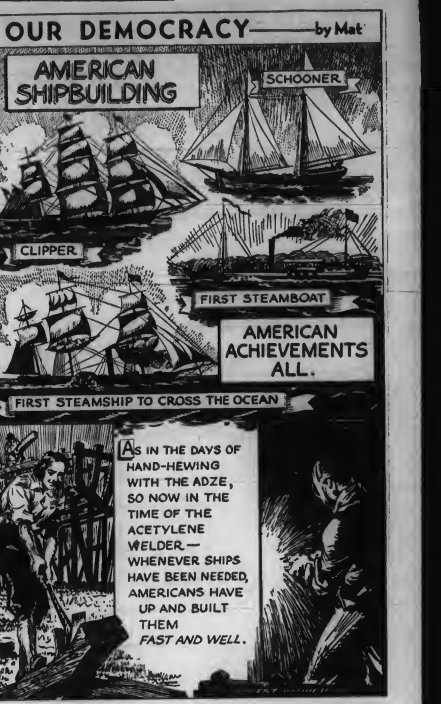
Mr. and Mrs. William Snyder and Miss Ann Sue Jones were dinner guests, last Sunday, of Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Snyder, and attended services at the Hopeful church.

The Lloyd Aylor family has moved into their new home, and Mr. Green and family have moved into the Stanley Lucas residence, vacated by the Aylors.

Claude Craven and family were recent guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Popham, and family of Sander Drive.

Mr. and Mrs. Abe Robbins and daughter Goldie entertained with a family dinner party, Sunday.

George Robbins and family have returned to their home in Richmond, Ky., after spending several days with relatives.



Mr. and Mrs. Karl Keim and family entertained on Friday evening with a six o'clock dinner, in honor of Mr. and Mrs. George Bauer of Chevoit, Ohio.

Mrs. George Miller, who has been spending a week with Mr. and Mrs. Karl Keim, has left for a visit with Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Graham.

John Connley and wife of Devon motored over to Harrison, Ind., on Sunday, to visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Baxter and family.

Mr. and Mrs. John Dolwick, jr., entertained with a family dinner party on Tuesday evening, at their lovely country home, it being Mrs. Dolwick's birthday anniversary.

A CALL IN THE NIGHT
We heard the children romping in their playroom upstairs—then suddenly, a scream!
We both rushed up and found our young son had fallen and apparently broken his arm. We immediately phoned our family physician, who verified our worst fears.
In time, the arm was carefully set, but other difficulties arose that called for an unusual prescription.
I looked at the clock—where could we get it filled at this late hour?
We spoke to the doctor, who then picked up the phone and called "that man" out of bed—again "that man" (our neighborhood druggist) did not fail us.

EARLY HISTORY OF BOONE COUNTY

By A. M. Yealey

A few days ago, a youngster asked me this question: "How did the merchants get their stock of goods when their places of business were in such isolated places?"

This question will be answered in this chapter, by giving the experience of a traveling salesman, Gideon Burton, in his book, (Reminescences of Gideon Burton). He gives, in this book, his trip to Burlington, Boone county, and the writer will give you his words.

He says when he was twenty years old his firm wanted him to take a trip West as a salesman. This was during the Fall and Winter of 1831. So he left Philadelphia November 10th by stage coach, and at the end of three days and nights he had reached Pittsburg, then Wheeling, Zanesville, Lancaster, Chillicothe, to Porthmouth, then to Cincinnati by boat where he made several sales. From Cincinnati he went to Lawrenceburg, Indiana. Here he got acquainted with Omer Tonsey and purchased a horse of Noval Sparks; he then purchased a saddle, saddle bags, buffalo overs and leggins, the last an article he had not seen before made of green baize, covering the leg from the foot to the knee. Mr. Tonsey told him he had a cousin by the name of Erastus Tonsey, located in business at Burlington, Boone county, Kentucky. He then crossed the Ohio River at Lawrenceburg through floating ice and reached Burlington on County Court Day in December, 1831. After dinner at the Hotel, he called on Mr. Tonsey, and Mr. Tonsey asked him to come around about sunset. Mr. Burton did as requested and Mr. Tonsey took him to his dwelling and introduced him to his family and to a number of lawyers and doctors whom he had invited to meet him, and all had an excellent supper. After selling Mr. Tonsey a good bill of goods, Mr. Burton retraced his steps to Lawrenceburg and continued his trip, horse back to Rushville, Indiana. This is mostly the way goods were sold before Cincinnati became a wholesale city.

From the foregoing we see that firms in the east sent their representatives or salesmen to these isolated places because the merchants generally purchased in large quantities and the shipments were arranged so as it could be reached either at Cincinnati, Petersburg, Bellview or several other landing places along Boone county river frontage. Merchants then, with their horses hitched to covered wagons, would go to the place where the goods were delivered by boat, and make a second delivery to their places of business. And remember, this mode of transportation was slow as in 1831 we did not have stone roads, but most all of them were dirt roads and the merchants saw to it that their winter shipments generally reached them in the month of August before the roads got impassible. (Readers, compare the mode of transportation 1941 to one hundred ten years ago.)

Tidbits of Kentucky Folklore

BY

Gordon Wilson, Ph.D.

WESTERN KENTUCKY TEACHERS COLLEGE

BOWLING GREEN, KY.

FOLKLORE AND ANTIQUE HUNTING

Americans have hardly begun to appreciate their heritage. Antique-hunting is often comic, but is basically sound, for it calls attention to the fact that our ancestors were people who lived and worked and suffered just like us and who even had what then and now could pass for beautiful objects. Rather oddly, not many phases of folklore study have become popular. We are so obsessed in America that each of us, in spite of our known middle-class or lowly origin, is a Cinderella or some other princess in disguise that we do not accept frankly our folk origin and attempt to find out facts rather than distorted boosts to our vanity.

Folklore as such is not a product of middle-class people. That very group hesitated a long time about accepting anything so simple, so connected with more primitive times and places. It was the work of scholars in America and elsewhere to open the vast field of folklore for study and research. Nothing has ever been much slower to develop, for middle-class vanity is hard to overcome. Not all of us, be it known abroad and shouted from the housetops, came from luxury and refinement. A very large percentage of us grew up in very ordinary circumstances and lived lives that differed very little from those of the actual humbler ones of our time and place. We wore clothes not much diffrent from those of the poorer people and ate food that differed only slightly from the food of the cabins. Why we should be forever ashamed of our folk origins is beyond me. When I read certain would-be histories of previous times, I am almost led to believe that all of our ancestors were princes in disguise or at the least generals, like the modern Mexican army in comic strips. A sane study of the history of America reveals quite the other side and shows that generals were rare, then as now.

In other countries, where there is more pride in racial backgrounds, common people and scholars alike have not been ashamed to record lovingly the folk customs and industries practiced, knowing that from such things as these have come the wealth of literature and art. Even in countries where social caste systems are ancient and rather stiff, there is a racial pride that recognizes the value of a knowledge of folk origins.

When we are sufficiently grown up, we will gladly give to every phase of folklore a careful, sympathetic scholarship that is now largely lavished on antique furniture, pottery, and glassware. These folk achievements are worthy of all the interest they attract, but social customs by the dozens need worthy interpreters who can rescue our cultural origins from oblivion quite as much as antique-hunters have rescued the solid artistry of our ancestors.

MORGANSVILLE

"The eternal God is thy refuge and underneath are the everlasting arms." Nowhere in the Book of Books is it promised that Christians shall be exempt from the trials of life. But the life of faith is the only life which enables us, when we pass through darkest and deepest trials, to look up and see brightness behind the darkness.

"Compromising with evil is perilious." "Hope does not live upon accomplished deeds." A thousand words do not make so great an impression as one deed.

Last week, Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Morgan deeply appreciated almost a crate of luscious strawberries from Mr. and Mrs. Frank Donahue, of near Independence

In the recent tragic passing of their fourteen-year-old son, Vincent, their household has been darkened by an untimely sorrow. Gloom has taken the place where joy reigned and death has cut short a very promising young life. This shocking occurrence is but another demonstration of the uncertainty of life, and it behooves us to be always ready.

"Leaves have their time to fall
and flowers to wither at the
North Wind's breath,
And stars to set, but thous has all
seasons for thine own, O,
Death."

Lovely cherries form Mr. Robert Hawkins were sincerely appreciated.

The death of Mr. Charles Ballinger marked the passing of a highly esteemed citizen.

Announcement of the recent marriage of Miss Virginia Klein, and Mr. Chester Ballinger, is of interest to a wide circle who extend warmest felicitations. The bride was graduated from Simon Kenton school, May 29.

Doings of The REDS

There is no rest for the Reds. They just completed a swing through the East, now they are battling these same teams on their home soil. They opened their home stand with a four-game series against the New York Giants, with whom they were locked in a fight for third place. Following the Giant series, the Boston Braves, always tough customers for the Reds, come to Crosley Field for a ladies' day game Tuesday and a night game Wednesday. The customary pre-game show, including fireworks, has been scheduled Wednesday.

Thursday will be an off day, and it might be classified as the lull before the storm, for on Friday, the Brooklyn Dodgers invade Crosley Field for a four-game series in three days. Single games are booked for Friday and Saturday and a doubleheader is due for Sunday, starting at 1:30.

The Brooklyns have yet to taste defeat on the Reds' home diamond, having won two games on their last appearance. On the other hand, the Reds have won four games and lost three in the Brooklyn stronghold. Three of the victories came in the last series in Flatbush, when the Reds came from behind on three successive days to knock the Dodgers out of first place.

Monday, June 23, following the Brooklyn twin bill, will be an off day, then on Tuesday, June 24, the Reds will meet the Phillies in a single game, and will close the home stand with a doubleheader against these same Phils the following afternoon. The Phils have been the Reds' toughest customers this season. The teams have met five times, and the Phils have won four games. The lone Cincinnati victory came in the game Johnny VanderMeer pitched, which should have been ruled a no-hit contest.

FOLLOW YOUR GRAPE SPRAY SCHEDULE

Have you applied your June spray for black rot and leaf hopper?

With the excessive rains and moisture we are having, it is very important that the grapes be sprayed to control black rot. According to Kentucky Extension Circular N-209, Grapes for the Home, you should use Bordeaux mixture 8-10-100.

Use of Spreader Important

A spreader should be used to help make the spray solution stick. This is doubly important in rainy periods. See the instructions in your spray circular. Get a copy from your Agricultural Extension Agent's Office.

Control of Leaf Hopper

When the leaf hopper attacks the grape leaves, this usually becomes noticable in June, the Circular recommends the use of Nicotine Sulfate, 40%, 2-3 pint to 100 gallons of water. Add two pounds of fish oil soap, or 2 pounds of cheap toilet soap. (Dissolve soap in hot water before adding to the spray solution.) For small quantities reduce the amount given to the desired number of gallons.

Your Grape Crop is Valuable

By using the recommended spray materials in time you can be sure of a crop of grapes this fall.

Small fruits, grapes and the like, are important in your FOOD PROGRAM. They are an important source of vitamin materials for health. Store up your supply for the winter needs.

Better Garden, Better Bread

Food for defense is being improved by encouragement of more and better home gardens. Now is the time to make plans and carry out your planting for late gardens in order to have plenty garden vegetables to eat and can for winter and also to store for winter needs.

Circulars Helpful

Get a copy of Kentucky Extension Circulars No.-354, Make the Farm Feed the Family; No.-343, Garden Month by Month; and No. 266, Home Storage Structures and Equipment. Make plans to have a late garden by following the recommendations in Garden Month by Month circular.

New "Enriched" Bread and Flour

Health can be improved by the use of new "enriched" bread or "enriched" flour in baking. This "enriched" flour and bread, now on sale at many stores, contains such vitamins and minerals as thiamin chloride (vitamin B-1), nicotinec acid (pellagera-preventative factor), and iron. Two other ingredients that may be in "enriched" flour are calcium and riboflavin.

"Enriched" flour cannot be distinguished from plain white flour except when milled to keep a larger part of the grain. In that case the flour will be a light creamy color.

Milk and yeast used in baking also "enrich" bread. Milk adds calcium and riboflavin, and yeast is a valuable source of vitamin B-1.

189,136 KENTUCKY FARMERS IN 1941 AAA PROGRAM

The State AAA office has announced that 189,136 Kentucky farmers have signed farm plans in the 1941 AAA Program, Geo. A. Eubanks, chairman of the Kenton County Agricultural Conservation Association said today.

This is an increase of more than 10,000 over the number of farmers in the 1940 program when 178,690 signed up. The increase in Kenton county was 40 to raise the number of the county farmers in the AAA program to 845 for this year.

Virtually all farmers growing crops like wheat, corn, tobacco, and commercial vegetables are in the program this year, Mr. Eubanks added.

Leading all other counties in the percentage of eligible farmers participating in the program is Robertson county, where 503 of 504 eligible farmers are signed up. There are 78 counties in the State with 90 per cent or more of the farms being operated in the program. The percentage of eligible farmers participating in Kenton county is 94 per cent.

All soil-building-practices in the 1941 program are to be completed by June 30, 1941, and farm supervisors will start checking on work carried out on cooperating farms about July 1, 1941.

The report from the State AAA office shows that more than 165,000 of the Kentucky farmers in the 1940 program filed applications for payment for soil-conserving, and soil building practices carried out during the year.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.

Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

First Year Results of the Kentucky Beer Industry's "Clean Up or Close Up" Campaign

One year ago our Committee was organized to cooperate with law enforcement officials in eliminating the small minority of beer retailers permitting unlawful conditions or anti-social practices in their places of business.

Continuous activity on the part of our Committee, which included investigation of more than 1,300 retail beer outlets, has resulted in definite progress toward that objective.

To date, on our Committee's recommendation to state and local authorities, 18 beer retailers have lost their licenses, 2 others have had their outlets padlocked and 6 have had their licenses suspended because they would not conduct their places of business in accord with public sentiment and with the high standards of Kentucky's $20,000,000 legalized beer industry.

As we enter our second year, we renew our pledge to the public and our offer of assistance to law-enforcement officials. We are determined that conditions in retail beer outlets shall be as wholesome as beer itself.

By restricting your patronage to reputable beer retailers, YOU can help to preserve the social and economic benefits of beer—a beverage of moderation—which provides 15,000 jobs for Kentuckians and pays State taxes totaling more than $1,000,000 a year.

4-H CLUB WINNERS AT JUNIOR WEEK

to Junion Week. Expenses of the delegates were paid by The Early & Daniel Co., of Cincinnati; Sears, Roebuck & Co., Chicago; Dearborn Mills, Aurora, Ind.; and John R. Coppin of Covington.

It is interesting to note that the first year Boone county entered the States food judging contest, the championship came to this county. Evelyn Franks will also be the first Boone county girl to receive a trip to the National Congress. Evelyn has been a 4-H club member six years and has completed foods and clothing projects. This year she has been a member of the class in baking, conducted by Mrs. Walter Ferguson. At the county contest, held May 27, Evelyn made highest score in a group of fourteen girls. There were 47 judges from as many counties in the State contest. The girls judged biscuit, whole wheat rolls, butter cakes and menues. Besides placing each class correctly, each judge was required to give, orally, her reasons for the placings. Judging is one of the methods used by 4-H club leaders to help girls raise their project standards.

Evelyn is to be congratulated upon this record. She will work to do as well at the National meeting.

"There's still another reason . . .

CANNING PROJECTS

The National defense program has been organized in such a way as to reach all true citizens. The 4-H clubs accept the challenge to cooperate and so we find many boys and girls taking projects that have a pertinent relationship to the times. Gardens and canning go hand in hand to strengthen America. More projects of each are being taken this year than before.

Letters and enrollment cards were sent to all 4-H club girls this week. The girls were invited to enroll and register any friends who were interested. In the first year girls can 10 quarts of tomatoes and 10 quarts of fruit; second year girls repeat this and in addition can 10 quarts of non-acid vegetables. The number of cards returned indicates that the project group will be larger than before.

present, making about 150 who enjoyed this evening.

The Star Points of the local Chapter, Sister Edith Stephenson, Adah; Sister Louise Rouse, Ruth; Sister Mary Stephenson, Esther; Sister Glenna Cleek, Martha; and Sister Nora Roberts Sturgeon, Electa; Associate Matron Sister Cleo Vanlandingham; Sister Lucile Hudson, Conductress; Sister Dell R. Shearer, Associate Conductress; Sister Carrie Rouse, Chaplain; Sister Pearl Bedinger, Warder; Bro. W. O. Rouse, Sentinal; Sister Georgie J. Bedinger, Marshall; Sister J. T. Stone, Secretary; Bro. George P. Nicholson, Treasurer, all exemplified their work in a very impressive manner.

The Grand Matron gave a very interesting and instructive talk to the Chapter, and several other Grand Officers made short but interesting speeches.

Sister Emma Menefee, in her usual pleasing manner, and in behalf of the local Chapter, presented the Inspecting Officer, Grand Worthy Matron Sister Maud Jones Hunter, with a beautiful vase.

Mrs. Roberts, Worthy Matron, was also remembered with a nice gift from Sister Edna Stamler, this being fittingly presented by Bro. Nicholas Welsh.

After the close of the meeting, a social hour and plate lunch were enjoyed by all.

NAPOLEON

Members of the Homemakers' Club were entertained in the home of Mrs. Raymond Spencer, Tuesday. In spite of the rainy day, there were about 50 present, and six new members were added to the list, namely, Mrs. Paul Carver, Mrs. Fonso Arrasmith, Mrs. Arch Maddox, Mrs. Leonard Noel, Mrs. Snowdie Harrison, and Mrs. Gip Perry. A glorious day was spent together and quite a bit of knitting for the Red Cross was accomplished.

Miss Lillie Mae Kinman spent Monday with Miss Willie Belle Coates.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Reffett entertained the Misses Willie Belle Coates, Lillie Bell Hon, Ruby Webster and Dorcie Miller, Messrs. Lafe Groves, Gip Rex, Glenn Webster and Melvin Collins Wednesday evening for supper, in honor of Lafe Groves, who left the following Friday, for a year's training for the Army.

Dewey Odor and a friend of LaGrange, spent the week end with Mrs. Odor.

The Homemakers' Club entertained their husbands and children Saturday night, with a Father's Day program. The affair was held in the Odd Fellows hall at Napoleon. There were over a hundred present. A very interesting program was arranged by Mrs. Clarence Wallick, and consisted of devotional, prayer, readings, music, and an old-fashioned spelling bee. A cake was given to the ugliest man—this, of course, caused much merriment. Ice cream and home-made cake were served as refreshments.

Mrs. Mamie Holly and little daughter, Patricia Ann, spent Monday afternoon with Mrs. Jennie Spaulding and daughter Ruby.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Reffett, son Joe, Mr. Ben Cox and Mrs. Jennie Spaulding visited Mrs. Atwood Beach, who is a patient in St. Elizabeth hospital, Sunday.

The W. M. U. met at the church Wednesday afternoon, with five members present.

'41 Wool Clip Nets Farmers $30,429.18

Boone county farmers received $30,429.18 for 64,822 pounds of wool delivered through the local pool June 18, 19, and 20, according to H. E. White, president of the pool. M. Sables Sons of Louisville, was the purchaser. Growers received $47.30 per hundred for clear wool and $42.30 for rejections.

This year's clip was the largest ever sold through the pool. Johnny Neimier, representing the M. Sables' Sons Company, stated that the wool was of the best quality he has ever received from Boone county. Percentage or rejections was very low. Local growers were well satisfied with the treatment offered by the company.

The clip classified by grades delivered included 60,479 pounds of clear 4,295 pounds of rejections and 48 pounds of miscellaneous. Points of delivery and pounds received at each place are as follows:

Meditation:

What can wash away my sin?
Nothing but the blood of Jesus;
What can make me whole again?
Nothing but the blood of Jesus.
Nothing can for sin atone—
Nothing but the blood of Jesus;
Naught of good that I have done—

Gordon Jennings Seeks Kenton Co. Sheriff's Post

Gordon Jennings, Kenton county business man and present Deputy Sheriff, today formally announced his candidacy for Sheriff of Kenton county, subject to the Democratic nomination in the primary, August 2nd.

Jennings' formal declaration follows:

"In announcing my candidacy for Sheriff of Kenton County, subject to the Democratic nomination in the primary, August 2, I point to my four years' experience as Deputy Sheriff of Kenton county and my sixteen years experience as a local business man.

"I have been a resident of this county all my life and have actively supported the Democratic Party since attaining my majority. I feel that the knowledge I have acquired from business experience and particularly from my service as Deputy Sheriff for the past four years, qualifies me for the office I seek. I pledge to the citizens of Kenton county an administration founded upon sound and efficient business and economic principles and promise that the office of Sheriff shall be used for the service of all the people."

Mr. Jennings is married and lives in Erlanger, Ky.

WISDOM-CARNES NUPTIALS JUNE 12

The marriage of Miss Rachel Wisdom and Mr. Earl Carnes, was quietly solemnized Thursday, June 12th, when they motored to Erlanger, where Rev. Robson officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Wisdom of Walton, Ky., where she is well known and popular. Her father is employed at the L. & N.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Doil Carnes of Piner, Ky., and has a position as shipping clerk with the K. D. Lamp Co., in Cincinnati.

Mr. and Mrs. Carnes plan to make their home in Covington, where the best wishes of joy and happiness of their many friends go with them.

PLEASURE ISLE LIFE-SAVING COURSE SET

The Kenton county chapter of the American Red Cross announced Thursday, through Mrs. Alice H. Macke, chairman of the life-saving committee, that registration for swimming instructions will be held at 1:30 p. m., Wednesday at Pleasure Isle, Madison pike, Kenton county.

The first lessons in the 10-week class will be given following the registration.

Registration for life-saving instructions will be conducted at 3 p. m., Saturday, June 28. Instructors for both swimming and life-saving courses are Mrs. Dora Galloway, Joe H. Schlosser and Harold Scholfield.

Classes are being made possible through the co-operation of Irwin Klein, manager of Pleasure Isle. The swimming lessons are open to persons of any age and will include instruction for advanced swimmers as well as beginners. The junior life-saving course will be offered to advanced swimmers, 12 to 17, and the senior course for those 18 or over.

ACCEPTS POSITION IN PENN.

Gayle McElroy, employee of the Walton Garage, and agent for the Greyhound bus line, left Wednesday for Pittsburgh, Pa., where he has accepted a nice position with an automobile finance company. Gayle is a fine young man, who will be missed by his many friends. Mrs. Stanley Vallandingham will assist her husband in the office of the garage and Greyhound bus line, in Gayle's absence.

Farmers Urged to Protect Woodlands

You may cash in on your farm woods by clear cutting now, but it will be cash out of your pocket in the long run.

That's the warning from Ward T. Darnell, Camp Superintendent of the Camp SCS-5-Ky., Walton, Kentucky, who says that the present tendency of many farmers to overcut and oversell is a menace to the national defense program. He urged all farmers to protect the farm woodlands and adopt systematic management practices.

"Too many farmers are overanxious to cash in while prices are high, even though by so doing they eliminate all possible returns for many years to come," Darnell said. "Lump sum selling, followed by slash or clear cutting, frequently leaves the owner not only with little or no growing stock on the ground, but often brings him a low price for the material cut. Furthermore, slash cutting leaves the ground susceptible to soil erosion."

A three-point program, involving protection from grazing, protection from fire, and selection cutting is recommended by the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Selection cutting, it was pointed out, has many advantages. Volume, quality, and good prices can be secured only from large logs. Small, immature trees left after a selection cut respond vigorously through stimulated growth. Also, selection cutting makes possible annual and periodic harvesting.

Do your own logging, do it on a systematic basis, and you'll reap your own reward in both cash and a sustained farm woods, was Darnell's advice.

ST. JOSEPH'S ANNUAL PICNIC TO BE HELD JULY 4

The St. Joseph's Catholic church of Warsaw will hold their annual picnic, Friday, July 4th, at the Gallatin County school grounds on Highway 42.

Besides plenty of chicken and other appetizing things to eat, there will be amusements of all sorts, and games and fun for young and old.

MASONS MEET TONIGHT

To What Shall We Give?

Due to the fact that many organizations are raising funds at the present time of national emergency, the question arises, "To what shall I give?" Several Boone countians have asked me what is the U. S. O. and how is the money used? This is an attempt to clarify the existing confusion in the minds of many.

THE GOVERNMENT—In the defense program of the government there is a new policy in regard to religious work among the soldiers. The chaplains will have full charge of the work INSIDE the camps. With this in view over 600 chapels are being erected in the camps where religious services will be conducted. In addition, morale officers will be in charge of recreation and the social life of the men.

U. S. O.—Just OUTSIDE the camps, recreation centers will be built by the government and operated by the United Service Organizations composed of the Y. M. C. A.; the Y. W. C. A.; the National Catholic Community Service; the Salvation Army; the Jewish Welfare Board and the National Travelers Aid. A drive for $11,000,000 is now in progress to finance this work. The U. S. O. will fill a vital need in our defense program not only for the men in the service, but for young women working in the defense plants and for the families of the men visiting them.

DENOMINATION EFFORTS — Several denominations feel that even these important programs cannot fully cover the situation presented, and although cooperating fully with both agencies mentioned above, the church is attempting to specialize in its chosen field, that of ministering primarily to spiritual needs. The denominations feel that this is both a challenge and a great opportunity for service in God's Kingdom.

In Kenton County Home Economics Project Fair

—Courtesy Times-Star

Five schools participated in the fair, including Simon Kenton, the hostess school; Ludlow, Lloyd, Dixie Heights and Dry Ridge.

All girls from these schools, who took home economics this school year, and who carried on a summer project, were eligible to enter their projects at the fair. Many girls carried on more than one project, and entered several articles of their work from each division to be judged. The major divisions for the entries included clothing, foods, decoration of cakes, child care, repairing of clothing, flower arrangement, and hobbies.

Competent leaders of home economics acted as judges for the project entries. They were: Miss Mary Hood Gillaspie, home demonstration agent of Boone county; Mrs. Alan Gaines, prominent homemaker; Miss Jane Lewis, home economics teacher at Bellevue High school; Mrs. Catherine Oliver, Singer Sewing Machine instructor; Mrs. Lenora Meyrose, dressmaker; Mrs. Marie New of Coppin's Department Store; Evelyn Franks, Kentucky 4-H food champion, and Miss Henry of the Kroger Food Foundation.

Besides the group shown above, other first award winners in the various divisions were Mary Lou Rider, Edna Mae Schneider, Gloria Chipman, Rose Marie Perkins, Mary Kramer, Doris Belew, Marie Buckley, Mae Oldham, Dorothy Ashcraft, Norma Klein, Gladys Terlau, Mary Taylor, Florence Moore, Ruth Walsh, Margie Houp, Jane Pettibone, Jane Law, Betty Brook, Shirley Stanfill, Betty Dorman, Lydia Sothard, Mary Jane Liedy, Margaret Prinz, Margie

Washington Snapshots
by JAMES PRESTON

A number of influential Congressmen apparently believe that the defense program isn't moving as fast as it should, so they are fumbling around trying to find someone to blame.

The truth is that defense production is progressing much faster than anyone, a year ago, believed was humanly possible. The only delay of an substantial nature has resulted from strikes.

The War Department, for example, reported recently that more men were out on strike in plants having Army orders than at any period since January 1. The Navy said that time lost by strikes on its orders would have been enough to build 8 to 10 submarines, 6 to 8 destroyers, or 2 cruisers.

Bad as that is, however, production is speeding along, and in another three months—unless strikes get worse—the output of defense goods will be astounding.

The Congressional perturbation is proof of the old theory that experience is the best teacher. A lawyer, doctor, teacher, or professional politician has no idea how long it takes to make a machine gun. A businessman usually does, but businessmen are sadly outnumbered in Congress.

So the majority of the solons don't see tanks rolling down Pennsylvania Avenue and consequently think the defense program is bogging down.

They fail to remember that a year ago when William S. Knudsen, who had just come to Washington, was asked to name the biggest bottleneck in defense production he replied: "Time."

They overlook the fact that what was then described as a "huge" defense program called for total appropriations of only $3,-300,000,000. Since then, some $40,-000,000,000—more than 10 times as much—has been available. Some of that $40,000,000,000 is not to be spent until next year. Officials have been planning to spend some $18,000,000,000 this year and $23,000,000,000 or $24,000,000,000 next year. Now they are talking about a $40,000,000,000 a year program.

These figures really tell the story. What has happened is that the original program was just a drop in the bucket, and every time something happens elsewhere in the world, the American program steps up.

For instance, American factories were told when the first contracts were placed that they would have 18 months to fill them. That time later was reduced. And a further reduction is under consideration. Meanwhile, the amount the factories are expected to turn out has been increased thirteenfold—from $3,300,000,000 to $40,000,000,000.

The truth is that the kind of war Hitler fights is new to the world. American Army and Navy specialists weren't prepared for his kind of war. They have had to design and re-design many pieces of fighting equipment, including airplanes, guns, anti-aircraft weapons, ships and tanks.

It is only now that American planes are beginning to carry enough guns for the British. Why? Because our government's original specifications didn't call for enough guns.

Heavy tanks like those with which Hitler crashed through the Lowlands, the Maginot Line, and the Balkans, aren't even being built in this country yet. Why? One reason is that the Army is still trying to get an acceptable design.

Oil and gasoline are about to be rationed. Why? Because somebody forgot the fact that airplanes could sink tankers and plans weren't made far enough in advance to build new tankers.

It may be the fault of the American people. Before they began to get scared of war dangers, they might not have stood for huge defense appropriations. And their chosen representatives, from the President down through Congress, the Army, and the Navy, wouldn't fight for what they needed before the people were anxious to give it.

America is a peace-loving nation. But, as Knudsen says, it takes "time" to build defense.

One large, four-engined bomber of the type American industry is now building for defense carries up to 11,000 gallons of gasoline when fully loaded for flight. This capacity is more than that of a standard railway tank car. And the gasoline used on a 24-hour mission is about equal to the amount an average automobile would require to make five trips around the world!

The average consumption of steel in this country equals 600 pounds a year for each American. The comparable average for textiles is 30 pounds, and for oil products, 2,500 pounds.

There are more than 400 transports in our commercial airlines. In a recent month, our domestic airlines flew more than 10 million miles—the equivalent of a trip to the moon plus four trips around the earth's circumference!

This Week In Defense

President Roosevelt, in a special message to Congress, said that Germany had tried to drive the U. S. off the high seas by the "ruthless" sinking of the U. S. merchantman Robin Moor in the South Atlantic and proclaimed this country will not yield to such "outrageous and indefensible" acts of "an international outlaw." The President said if the U. S. yielded on the issue, "we would inevitably submit to world domination."

The President froze all funds and other assets in the U. S. of Germany, Italy and all invaded or occupied European countries and the State Department directed the German Government to close all its consular establishments here not later than July 10.

The President said he froze German financial facilities here to prevent their use in ways harmful to national defense. The State Department said German consulates were ordered closed because their activities had become contrary to the welfare of this country.

The Justice Department instructed customs officials and immigration officers to prevent Germans from evading the order freezing German assets by leaving the country. The State Department ordered U. S. diplomatic officials "in certain countries in Europe" to deny American entry permits to persons likely to become agents here for foreign powers.

Sub-contracting

Donald M. Nelson, OPM Director of Purchases, speaking in Pittsburgh, said the problem of plants faced with a shutdown because of shortage of materials for civilian goods can be met by the cooperation of local business, labor, government, civic groups and banks in seeking defense work.

"No manufacturer is likely to get many defense contracts unless he is willing to display the same ingenuity, persistence and energy in going after them that he would in seeking normal business," Mr. Nelson said.

Priorities

The OPM Priorities Division announced establishment of regional offices through the country to advise businessmen on priority problems. Offices in Boston, New York, Philadelphia and Chicago were opened this week and others will be opened soon.

The rationing of rubber was announced to cut down the amount going into civilian consumption in the form of auto tires, inner tubes, boots, garden hose, shoes, and 30,-000 other consumer items. The OPM said there is a sufficient supply of rubber on hand but it wished to build a large reserve.

Prices

OPACS Administrator Henderson announced he intends to hold bread prices "to the absolute minimum reflecting cost increases" and asked bakeries to consult with his office before raising prices. Mr. Henderson also stated rumors of ceiling prices for scrap iron and steel have caused some hoarding and unless this practice stops the OPACS will take "vigorous action." The Department of Justice announced a Federal Grand Jury in Chicago indicted 69 companies and individuals on charges of fixing prices in the pea canning industry. The Department said the indictments were the first in a nation-wide investigation of food marketing and pricing.

Labor

The President, in a memorandum to OPM Directors Knudsen and Hillman, stated that "industry must take the initiative in opening the doors of employment to all loyal and qualified workers regardless of race, national origin, religion or color . . . Our Government cannot countenance continued discrimination in defense production."

The OPM Division announced a two-year agreement by the Gulf shipbuilding industry to provide wage increases, a standard base rate of $1.07 an hour for skilled mechanics; time and a half for overtime; double time on holidays; adjustment of wages at specified periods according to living costs; and no strikes and no lockouts. The OPM has also submitted a similar agreement to 55 Atlantic shipyards.

Living Costs

Labor Secretary Perkins reported average hourly earnings in manufacturing industry at a record of 70.8 cents, 7 percent more than a year ago. The Secretary also reported cost of living in large cities rose 0.7 percent between mid-April and mid-May, making an increase in living costs of moderate-income families of 2.4 percent since June, 1940, and 4.4 percent since August, 1939, with food costs more than 5 percent higher than a year ago and 9 percent higher than two years ago.

Agriculture

Agriculture Secretary Wickard issued a statement that "to date we have been able to buy only half the amount of cheese we wanted by the end of June (for lend-lease activities) and less than two-thirds of the amount of evaporated milk. The output has increased but we need more." Mr. Wickard said increased prices for milk going into cheese and evaporated milk, supported by Government purchases, should yield farmers a higher return than any other dairy product.

Speaking at Syracuse, N. Y., Mr. Wickard said the food situation in Europe is such that if the war continues for a long time the issue may finally be "who can feed the people, the democracies or the dictatorships? Therefore food reserves may be more important than munitions reserves."

Oil

President Roosevelt placed all petroleum products under export licensing control. Defense Petroleum Coordinator Ickes, working to overcome the shortage of oil on the East Coast due to shortage of transport facilities, requested oil shippers not to sell petroleum products for foreign shipment without consultation with him. He also ordered Customs officials to halt the shipment of 240,000 gallons of oil from Philadelphia to Japan in order to conserve oil in that area.

The Maritime Commission announced no American owned or controlled tankers are carrying oil to Germany, Italy or Japan. Price and Civilian Supply Administrator Henderson asked petroleum refiners not to raise prices without prior consultation with his office.

The Census Bureau reported that if the 30,000,000 American motorists would reduce their driving speed 20 percent, the annual saving in gasoline consumption would amount to 4,600,000,000 gallons.

Air

Assistant Secretary of War Lovett, in a radio address, said "within a year we shall be geared to turn out 50,000 planes a year for as long as the emergency lasts." Mr. Lovett said the Air Corps is increasing the number of pilots in training from 12,000 to 30,000 a year and the number of mechanics from 45,000 to more than 100,000. He said the Air Corps is already nearly one-fourth of the entire Army and only the Infantry is larger.

Army

The War Department announced trainees will be permitted to volunteer as parachute troops. Heretofore, only Regular Army soldiers were chosen. The Department authorized construction of field houses at 25 Army posts to provide facilities for basketball, boxing and wrestling, and other indoor sports. Each field house will accommodate between 2,750 and 3,750 spectators and cost approximately $77,000 each.

EARLY HISTORY OF BOONE COUNTY

By A. M. Yealey

Slavery in Boone County

A few chapters concerning the number of slaves in Boone county and from whence they came, would not be amiss, and the writer will attempt to give the younger generation some idea of slavery here from 1793 to 1863.

Our greatest influx of imigrants was from Virginia and consequently most of the imigrants brought their slaves with them. We well remember how they were brought to Virginia in 1619 by a Dutch man-of-war (20 Negars). This was the beginning of African Slavery in the English Colonies of America. At that time every leading nation of Western Europe traded in Negroes. No one condemned it. Even the King of England derived a large income from selling slaves in America.

This system spread and by 1776 every one of the thirteen colonies had slaves. The Northern Colonies generally used the slaves at home work, but the Southern Colonies used them chiefly in the fields. Many of the best men did not then see how tobacco, rice, and cotton could be raised without slave labor. The slave trade was abolished in 1808. See Constitution, Article 1, Section 9, Paragraph 1—"Such persons." The word "slave" does not occur in the Constitution. It was also agreed that all run-away slaves should be returned to their owners (See Constitution, Article 4, Section 2, Paragraph 3. "No person (that is slaves) held to service." This law was passed in 1793. After 1808 the growth of slavery depended on the number of children that were born to the families that were already here before 1808.

The first census of Boone county was taken in 1800, two years after it was organized, and had a white population of 1534. During the next 20 years, its population had become 6,542. From that time on, the increase was about 1500 every 10 years up to 1860.

This rapid increase was caused by a great wave of immigration from Virginia, Maryland, Pennsylvania and North Carolina.

We have no knowledge of the number of slaves in Boone county in 1800, but the total number of slaves in the State of Kentucky in 1800 was 12,430. Boone county had a slave population of 2,183 in 1840. No doubt this was the peak as from this date slavery seemed to decrease in Boone county. Next Chapter will continue with slavery.

Money Talks

By
Frederick Stamm, Economist Director of Adult Education
UNIVERSITY OF LOUISVILLE

The high standard of living in the United States is seriously threatened by our new war time economy. This is not a new situation for standards of living have gone down during past wars. Many of us can remember that during the last World War we had to do without many things which we had enjoyed before.

Today the American public is faced with the same situation. And as a result we are witnessing a buying spree on a large scale. People are buying not only to avoid higher prices, but also because they are afraid they will not be able to secure commodities to which they have long been accustomed. It isn't that we Americans are not willing to sacrifice when necessary but it is the fact that we know how hard it is to regain a high standard of living once it has gone down.

Let me illustrate my point. Automobile manufacturers are going to cut production on the 1942 models by at least 20%. As soon as this became known there was a rush to buy the 1941 models and get a new car. Consequently the manufacturers were swamped with orders and are now turning out more automobiles just before a change in models than ever before.

Another example. The rumor has leaked out that electric refrigerator manufacturers will likely be forced to cut down production in order to conserve material for defense orders. As a result, sales have set new records as 1,524,496 electric refrigerators were sold the first four months of this year compared wit h1,072,892 in the same period last year.

This illustrates clearly that we have accustomed ourselves to a high standard of living and we are anxious to maintain it. We do not want to turn back.

Three Ways To Make Fried Chicken

By Katharine Fisher

Director, Good Housekeeping Institute

The fried-chicken season is here! The supply of fryers—fresh and quick-frozen—is usually at its best at this time of the year. So get out your skillet, and treat your family to some good fried chicken. Follow any of these recipes, and you'll have the family loudly clamoring for more.

All recipes tested by Good Housekeeping Institute
Use Institute-approved measuring cups and spoons. Measure level.

KATHARINE FISHER
Director of Good Housekeeping Institute

Pan-Fried Chicken

With Flour or Corn-Meal Coating:

1. Buy fryers (1½ to 2½ lbs. each) split lengthwise, quartered, or cut up as for fricassee. Roasting chickens may be pan-fried if first simmered tender after cutting up.

2. Heat enough fat or oil in skillet or chicken fryer to make a ⅛" to ¾" layer. Use 2 skillets to save time.

3. Clean but do not dry the chicken. Coat by shaking in a paper bag with 1 c. flour (or ½ c. flour and ½ c. corn meal) mixed with 1 tbsp. salt.

4. Place a few pieces at a time in hot fat, and brown on all sides. Reduce heat; cover or not as preferred, and fry 35 to 40 min. longer, or until tender. (2 to 4 tbsp water or cream may be added to chicken after browning if desired.)

5. As the pieces are fried, keep hot in a covered double boiler, in a bowl set over hot water, or in a covered casserole or roasting pan in a warm oven.

WITH EGG AND CRUMB COATING:

1. To 1 c. sifted, dried bread crumbs or cracker crumbs, add 1 tbsp salt. Beat 1 egg with 2 tbsp. cold water.

2. Dip chicken in crumbs, then in egg, then in crumbs, and fry as above. Flour may be substituted for bread or cracker crumbs.

Oven-Fried Chicken

Here's a method that is especially convenient when several chickens are to be fried, since it cuts down on the turning and watching necessary when chicken is fried in a skillet.

1. Coat, and fry cut-up chicken in a skillet to a golden brown on all sides, as we do in Pan-Fried Chicken.

2. Then transfer the chicken to a covered casserole or roaster; cover, and complete the cooking in moderate oven of 350° F. for 1 hr., or until the chicken is deliciously tender.

3. Serve with or without Cream Gravy, as desired.

Deep-Fried Chicken

1. Dip cut-up fryers in egg and crumbs (see Pan-Fried Chicken) or in following batter: Stir 1 beaten egg and ¾ c. milk into 1 c. sifted all-purpose flour with 1½ tsp. salt and ⅛ tsp. pepper.

2. Fry a few pieces at a time in deep fat or oil heated to 375° F., or hot enough to brown a cube of day-old bread in 1 min. Keep the fat at 350° F., and fry until tender—about 20 to 30 min.

3. Or simmer cut-up chicken until just tender. Then skin; coat with eggs and crumbs (see Pan-Fried Chicken) and deep fry at 375° F. until golden brown—about 3 min.

Keep us, oh Lord, from pettiness. Let us be large in thought, in word, and deed. Let us be done with fault-finding and leave off self-seeking.

May we put away all pretense and meet each other face to face, without self pity and without prejudice.

May we never be hasty in judgement and always generous.

Teach us to put into action our better impulses, straight forward, and unafraid.

Let us take time for all things.

Make us grow calm, serene, gentle. Grant that we may realize

That it is the little things that create difference,

That in the big things of life we are one.

And may we strive to touch and know the great human heart common to us all, and oh, Lord God, let us not forget to be kind.

Selective Service Regulations

A Selective Service registrant who spends part of his time in one place and part in another will have the right to decide for himself which place he wants recorded as his residence when he registers July 1st. The place he chooses will determine the local board that will always have jurisdiction over him, National Headquarters, Selective System, announced today.

On the first registration day, October 16, 1940, such registrants were somewhat confused, National Headquarters pointed out, and some of them thereafter wanted to change the address they had given for the place of their residence after registration day. In other instances, the addresses given were incomplete or ambiguous and the cards reached the wrong local boards.

The new Selective Service Regulations, prepared for the July 1st registration, require each registrant to describe the place of his residence so that its location may be determined from its description. A registrant who lives on a R. F. D. route which goes through two states will be required to indicate the location of his residence, rather than his mailing address. Because of this fact and because some registrants may want to have their mail sent to an address other than the place of their residence, the new registration card describes the place of residence and in addition the mailing address of the registrant.

A description of the place of residence of the registrant will once and for all fix the local board that will have jurisdiction of the registrant, National Headquarters stated. The mailing address, however, can be changed when necessary and local boards will send their notices to the mailing address without regard to the place of residence.

This new procedure is expected to be a big improvement over that followed in the first registration in that the description of the place of residence fixes local board jurisdiction and is never changed, while the mailing address is subject to change whenever the registrant moves, National Headquarters said.

The right of the registrant in each case to select his residence address without intereference from registrars has been safeguarded in the new regulations, it was pointed out, and the registrars have been instructed to warn the registrant that once he decides upon a place of residence the description given by him will fix his local board once and for all.

The Regulations provide:

"The registrant shall be permitted to determine what place when he is not located in one place he desires to give as his residence all the time. The registrar shall make no effort to dictate or interfere with this choice."

There are two spaces for addresses on the registration card to be used July 1st. The first one (place of residence) will determine which local board has control, and the second address will be the mailing address of the registrant. Such addresses will probably be the same in most instances.

The new Regulations contain another important provision which makes it mandatory for all citizens who are out of the United States on July 1st, to register immediately upon their re-entry. Under the old regulations such citizens were allowed five days in which to register after their return.

COUNTY NUTRITION PRODUCTION PROGRAM

A County Nutrition Production Program has been set up in Boone county.

The present national emergency has proven a definite need for better nutrition in order to build a stronger nation.

In relation to home economics an increase in the quantity and variety of home canned foods is being urged. There is a very definite need to give the family a greater variety of fruits and vegetables which can be home grown.

With the above program in mind a county committee, consisting of the following people, has been organized: Mary Hood Gillaspie, chairman; Rev. H. M. Hauter, vice-chairman; Mrs. J. C. Layne, second vice - chairman; Evelyn Conrad, secretary; Mark Cook, treasurer; James Huey, Mrs. J. C. Aylor, Elizabeth Lowry, D. H. Norris, H. R. Forkner, Mrs. Lula Huey, Mrs. Sam Sleet, Mrs. Geo. Kottmyer, Rev. J. Russell Cross, and Russell Hall.

The above committee, which is a representative body including all county organizations, will aid in organizing the county nutrition production program.

Temporary community chairmen, have been appointed to organize each community. They are as follows: Mrs. Garnet Tolin, Burlington; Mrs. Freda Kottmyer, Constance; Mrs. Wm. Rogers, Grant; Mrs. Joe Berkshire, Florence; Mrs. John L. Jones, Hamilton; Mrs. Howard Acra, Hebron; Mrs. Ray Newman, New Haven; Miss Gladys Klopp, Petersburg; Mrs. C. C. Pruett, Walton; and Mrs. Will McCormick, Verona.

A leaders meeting will be held at Burlington on June 30, at 1:30 p. m. (E. S. T.) to make final plans for the above program. The following program has been planned: (1) Presentation of National and State Program, H. R. Forkner, Evelyn Conrad; (2) Boone County's Part, Mrs. J. C. Layne in National Defense; (3) Round Table Discussion of Community Problems; (4) Development of goals to be reached in each community.

-that man IN OUR NEIGHBORHOOD!

A CALL IN THE NIGHT

We heard the children romping in their playroom upstairs—then suddenly, a scream!

We both rushed up and found our young son had fallen and apparently broken his arm. We immediately phoned our family physician, who verified our worst fears.

In time, the arm was carefully set, but other difficulties arose that called for an unusual prescription.

I looked at the clock—where could we get it filled at this late hour?

We spoke to the doctor, who then picked up the phone and called "that man" out of bed—again "that man" (our neighborhood druggist) did not fail us.

Our neighborhood druggist never fails us! Should you, like most women, suffer discomforts during the menstrual period, just phone your druggist—he usually advises women to try Vatona Tablets—this may be just what you need!

Improved Uniform International SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D. Dean of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago. (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for June 29

Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education; used by permission.

LESSONS FROM THE EARLY CHURCH

LESSON TEXT—I Corinthians 3:1-15. GOLDEN TEXT—For other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ.—I Corinthians 3:11.

Corinth in the time of Paul was a great city, as renowned for its commerce and culture as it was notorious for its vice and licentiousness Here on his second missionary journey, Paul, with Silas and Timothy, spent 18 months winning many to Christ, in spite of the hostility of the Jews and the opposition of wicked men.

The church established in Corinth became the victim of a factional spirit which divided the loyalty of the people, hindering spiritual growth, destroying discipline, and resulting in low standards of life.

Paul found it necessary to write to the church regarding its difficulties, and we may well learn salutary lessons from his epistle.

I. A Lesson in Spirituality (vv. 1-4).

The further a man drifts from his place of spiritual power and usefulness, the more apt he is to try to keep up a "front," to take up any possible means of justification. The Corinthian church was divided into four groups, each one priding itself on being right. There was "a Pauline party, overzealous for the founder of the church; an Apollonian party, bewitched by the oratory of Apollos; a Petrine party, which, claiming Peter as authority, was bent on mixing Jewish ideas with Christianity; and a Christ party, which, in antagonizing other elements, became itself a faction" (Moore). (See I Cor. 1:11-13.) All this activity was covering up the fact that they were having

1. Milk Instead of Meat (vv. 1, 2). In other words they were spiritual babes when they should have been grown-ups Milk is a marvelous food, but there is need of stronger food for virile men and women.

How true it is that many ministers must spoon-feed or bottle-feed a lot of spiritual babes who should long since have grown up to the place where they can feed themselves and help others.

2. Strife Instead of Stability (vv. 3, 4). God does not want Christians to be like other men. When will we learn that lesson? One of the sure ways to stifle spiritual growth in a church or in an individual life is to engage in strife. Let us heed Paul's admonition and put away our bickerings, that we may become strong in the Lord.

II. A Lesson on Service (vv. 5-15).

Here is helpful instruction to the minister regarding his calling. Brethren, let us judge ourselves in the light of it lest we hinder God's work by having the wrong attitude or encourage our people to think carelessly on this important subject.

1. The Minister (vv. 5-9). There is no higher or holier calling than that to the ministry. We should not forget that, and will not, but will rather glorify the calling, when we realize that "minister" (v. 5) means "servant," "attendant," or "waiter." So Paul and Apollos, men of highest office and highest gifts, were God's waiters, to bring forth the bread of life; His servants, to plant and cultivate His field; and His builders, laboring on His building. Ministers are only instruments in God's hands, but they should be clean, well-prepared, and submissive instruments in His hands.

2. The Manner (v. 10). The servant of God must take heed how he builds. If, like Paul, he has the privilege of laying the foundation, be must be careful that it is the true foundation and is properly laid. He who builds must also be careful that every stone he lays is fitly placed and well-chosen.

3. The Materials (vv. 11, 12). How important it is that the materials of a building be right. If that be true of a physical building, it is a thousand times more important in God's building.

First of all there is only one foundation which the true minister can lay—Jesus Christ. It is the only foundation upon which anyone can build a lasting life structure for time and for eternity.

But there are other materials in the building which need to be chosen with care. It will not do for the minister to substitute the wood, hay, and stubble of his wisdom or the philosophy of men for the gold, silver, and precious stones of God's Word. Terrifying shame and loss is all that can result from such folly, for remember there is a day of judgment coming.

4. The Manifestation (vv. 13-15). Flaming fire will one day reveal how we have built. The "wood-hay-and-stubble" preacher or teacher of God's Word may himself be saved, but, oh, the tragedy of coming into God's presence after years of service like a man who has escaped from a burning building empty-handed; saved from the fire himself, but ashamed that he has so built as to suffer loss.

Flimsy Excuses!

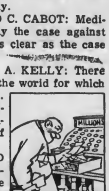
Smoothest excuse-makers for liquor are the "traffic," people who make profits out of peddling a narcotic, and the addicts, people who hurt themselves and others by drinking a narcotic.

Anyone who has had anything to do with a drunkard—or a day-after-day "social drinker"—knows that he's as full of excuses as he is of rum.

"Have Another?"

The liquor traffic is that way too, the W.C.T.U. points out. When a business means money in a man's pocket, he'll find excuses, whether it's for liquor, slot machines, or naughty pictures.

Mr. Ordinary Citizen usually decides though that excuses aren't worth much when they are stacked up against the considered verdict of experts, whose only interest is mankind's betterment and not profits.



Morgan Cloud, a captain of the medical corps of the U. S. Army, published a book in 1934 to give an objective report on liquor. He quoted eminent opinion as follows:

DR. CHARLES W. MAYO: The only legitimate use of alcohol is in the arts and sciences.

MARSHAL JOFFRE: Alcohol, by diminishing the moral and material strength of the army, is a crime against national defense in the face of the enemy.

DR. RICHARD C. CABOT: Medically and socially the case against alcohol is just as clear as the case against opium.

DR. HOWARD A. KELLY: There is no disease in the world for which alcohol is a cure. It does undeniably cause thousands of cases of disease.

HORSELY AND STURGE: Alcohol weakens the heart, lowers resistance to disease, shortens life, impairs one's judgment, reduces one's earning power, is harmful even in the smallest dose, delays and prevents digestion, is a poison, has become obsolete as a remedy, kills everything that lives, preserves everything that is dead.

SHAKESPEARE: O thou invincible spirit of wine, if thou hast no other name to be known by, let us call thee devil.

Mr. and Mrs. George Eggleston and family were dinner guests last Sunday, of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh McArthur, and family of Belleview, Ky.

Mrs. Mary Humphrey left last Sunday for Richmond, Ky., to attend summer school.

Mr. and Mrs. Eli Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Willis and son Charles Ray, Mr. and Mrs. James R. Huey and son Jim Bob, Chas. B. Beall and Miss Minnie Baxter were entertained on Saturday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Whitaker and family with a fish fry. A most enjoyable evening was spent together.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Graves entertained with a six o'clock dinner Wednesday evening, in honor of Mrs. Mary Clore of Burlington.

Mr. and Mrs. Jess Barnes and family of Idlewild neighborhood, were recent guests of Mrs. Emma Green and family.

Of interest to a wide circle, is the announcement of the recent marriage of Miss Margaret Hoffman and Robert Cave. We wish them much joy and happiness.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Whitaker and family had for their dinner guests, Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Jess Barnes and family.

Charles Beall and Miss Minnie Baxter spent Sunday afternoon with Mr. Yancy Clore and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Clore.

Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Riddle spent Saturday evening with Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Aylor.

LILACS

Poetry has been written about lilacs, and good poetry, too, but there is still much that ought to be said about them. Walt Whitman, in his elegy on Lincoln, "When Lilacs Last in the Dooryard Bloom'd," has give a fine mood that all of us feel when the very name of lilacs is mentioned. He made this homely old flower a symbol of his own homespun poem in memory of a great man. Amy Lowell, in "Lilacs," has rhapsodized about the colors and fragrance of lilacs. Both of them have presented the flower and the bush as reminders of plain country life, a passing life that all of us see through a halo.

It is this very phase of lilacs that I want to talk about today. Those of you who have grown lilacs know how long it takes to have flowers, especially of purple lilacs. The bushes are of slow growth. When you see a great bush in a country yard, you know that behind this simple old thing are years of growth, and years of care. Some poet, unrecognized, planted the small bush that is now so large and fine. This same person and those about him knew how to dream of the flowers that were still years in the future. When gaudy annuals came and went, when even slow-growers bloomed and waned, the lilac bush stood still, waiting its own time. And then, years after foresight and poetry had caused it to be, the old bush burst forth into a wealth of blossoms, with their distinctive old-time perfume.

Many a time, in my wanderings over fields and woods to study birds, I have come unexpectedly upon a lilac bush, where nothing else remained of the old farmhouse that used to be. In flowering season the bush would be covered with flowers, and the whole area around it would be perfumed. Loving hands that planted the bush had probably long returned to earth, but the bush lived and grew where it had been put, outliving, in one of the puzzles of this universe, the human forms that seemed so much more valuable to the earth. It has been my fortune, good or bad, to wander much over places that have returned to wilderness. There are reminders everywhere of people that used to be, but none of them seem quite so poetic as the old lilac bush, preserving its flowers and its sweetness through whole generations.

Lilacs represent to me settled life. Pioneers, especially the first generation of them, cared little about adorning the bleak cabin they erected in the woods. When flowers were started, that meant that people had come to stay, not merely to spend a brief time before passing on to other frontiers. The orchard and the lilac bushes appeared about the same time, symbols of man's possession of the land. Whatever else might come after these were planted, man had shown his intention of remaining, of building a home, of establishing a family, "a local habitation and a name." A lilac bush, then, ties up with hardy souls who faced the wilderness unafraid, to tame it, to plant it, to live in it, and to leave their bones in it. And that is why I have "long, long thoughts," as Longfellow would say, when spring comes round and the lilacs bloom in the dooryard and even in the newly-sprung forest where homes used to be.

NAGGING BACKACHE

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action. Don't Neglect It!

Modern life with its ceaseless hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking, exposure, contagion, whatnot, keeps doctors busy, hospitals crowded. The after effects are disturbing to the kidneys and oftentimes people suffer without knowing that disordered kidney action may cause the trouble.

After colds, fever and similar ills there is an increase of body impurities the kidneys must filter from the blood. If the kidneys are overtaxed and fail to remove excess acid and other harmful waste, there is poisoning of the whole system.

Symptoms of disturbed kidney function may be nagging backache, persistent headache, dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of strength and energy. Other signs of kidney or bladder disturbance sometimes are burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

In such cases it is better to rely on a medicine that has won world-wide approval than on something less favorably known. Use Doan's Pills. They have been winning new friends for more than forty years. Be sure to get Doan's. Sold at all drug stores.

THE REASON DOAN'S ARE FAMOUS

All over the country grateful people tell others: "Doan's have helped me; I recommend them to you." That is why we say, Ask your neighbor!

Doings of The REDS

When tough ball clubs are mentioned, the Reds must take their hats off to the Philadelphia Phillies, notwithstanding that team's position in the National League race, for the results of the five meetings between the teams this season have taught the Reds to respect the club from the city of brotherly love.

No team in the league has been as hard for the Reds to overcome as the Phillies, and that includes the Cardinals and Dodgers, who are in a tangled fight for first place at the present time. In four of the five meetings between the Reds and Phillies this season the Phils have come out on top, which is good reason for the Reds to respect the Phils, regardless of standing.

These Cincinnati - devouring Phils will be in Cincinnati for an afternoon game Tuesday and a ladies' day doubleheader Wednesday, which means there is going to be some red hot activity on these two days. There still are plenty of ladies' tickets remaining for Wednesday. Those who fail to get them in advance will be able to get them at the park.

When the Reds finish with the Phils, they'll travel to Kansas City for an exhibition game against the Blues Thursday, then will get right into the thick of it with four games in three days against the Cardinals at St. Louis. The series will start with a night game Friday, then continue with an afternoon game Saturday and a doubleheader Sunday.

Next Monday, June 30, the Chicago Cubs will stop off in Cincinnati for a night game. This will be a one-game stand. The night has been dedicated to the American Legion, inasmuch as R. O. T. C. medals will be presented to students of the University of Cincinnati by the American Legion.

In attendance will be the band of the Sailors and Soldiers Home at Xenia. The fireworks display will be of a patriotic nature, and the feature set piece will be a huge replica of the American Legion emblem.

SPRAYS FOR THE HOME FRUIT GARDEN

Prospects are good for a large peach and apple crop. This is a good time to make plans for canning,, preserving and processing fruits to have a reserve supply in case we have a short crop next year. And, too, the price may be too high to buy fruits as needed. A canned surplus will take care of this situation. Get your cans and canning equipment ready before the rush.

Protect Your Peaches and Plums

With warm sultry weather the brown rots may cause a heavy loss in peaches and plums if timely sprays are not used.

The Kentucky Extension Circular No. 353, Sprays for the Home Fruit Garden, recommends the following for Brown Rot on peaches and plums.

Three weeks before harvest, use three level tablespoons of wettable sulfur to each gallon of water.

About one week before ripening use the same materials to protect against rot.

Note: Wettable sulfur is a finely ground sulfur to which a wetting agent has been added. It is sold under various trade names and advertised as a special sulfur for spraying peaches.

Grape Spray

For grapes use schedule in Circular Grapes for the Home Garden.

Conservation Council Sponsoring 4-H Outing

Mr. W. O. Neuman, president of the Latonia Gun Club and chairman of the Kenton county Conservation Council, recently mailed a letter to the Kenton county 4-H club members inviting them and their parents to an all-day free picnic. The picnic will be held Sunday, July 27th at Peanut Charlies Grove near Independence.

The picnic is being sponsored by the Kenton county Conservation Council. This organization is composed of the Latonia Gun Club, Kenton Game and Fish Association, Covington Kiwanis Club and office of the Kenton county agricultural agents.

The purpose of the council is to coordinate the activities of the various organizations interested in conservation of wild life, fish and game, piant life, and streams.

A display of wiid life and motion pictures of the outdoor resources will be shown on the grounds. Trap shooting and other forms of entertainment will be available.

Short Speaking Program

Speakers invited to attend the outing are: Mrs. S. A. Wakefield, director of the State Division of Game and Fish, Kenton County Judge John B. Read, and J. W. Whitehouse, state leader Junior Club Work in Kentucky.

4-H Conservation Camp

The Kenton Game and Fish Association, Latonia Gun Club and the Kiwanis club will award a trip to three Kenton county 4-H Club boys to attend the State 4-H Conservation Camp in Washington county, July 14-18.

One hundred sixty-three Kenton county 4-H club members are taking part in the conservation contest.

The winners in the county contest will be awarded the trip to the State Conservation Camp.

KY. BANKS MAKE 132,000 LOANS

Sixteen per cent of the banks in Kentucky made more than 132,000 loans totaling $163,000,000 to business firms and individuals throughout the state during the second half of 1940, according to the semi-annual survey of bank lending activity made by the Research Council of the American Bankers' Association.

The A. B. A. loan survey was participated in by 65 Kentucky banks, or 16 per cent of the 409 banks in the state.

These 65 banks reported that they made between July 1 and December 31, 1940:

	Loans	Totals
New Loans	58,928	$ 76,257.010
Renewals	72,523	84,340,492
New Mortgs.	1,419	3,382,159
Totals	132,870	$163,979,661

The survey showed that business firms in the state used only half of the "confirmed open lines of credit" maintained for their use on the books of banks. A total of 10 banks in the larger centers of the state reported that they carried on their books $41,935,350 in "open lines of credit" offered to and kept available for regular borrowers for use as needed by them. Of this amount $19,497,035 or 46.5 per cent was used.

The average number of new loans made per bank during the six months period under review, loan was $1,294.

The average number of loans was 907 and the average size of renewed per bank was 1,116 and the average renewal was for $1,-163.

The average number of new mortgage loans made per bank was 22 and the average new mortgage made was for $2,383.

Better to Be Safe Than Sorry on 4th

The Fourth of July week-end will be even more hazardous than in previous years because of increased congestion on the highways and at resort and recreational centers resulting in part from National Defense activities, it was pointed out today by Mr. J. Russell Cross, chairman of the Boone county Chapter, American Red Cross.

Traffic death figures for the first three months of 1941 released by the National Safety Council, reveal that if the present rate continues, the total for this year will surpass 40,000 deaths—an all-time high. Highway fatalities last year totaled 34,000—an increase of seven per cent over the total for 1939. Deaths from drowning each year average 7,000.

The vacationist must not only see to his own safety, but must anticipate the carelessness of others, Mr. Cross warned. The mistake of one motorist may result in fatality to those who may be obeying all the rules of the road.

This year's list of accidental deaths and injuries will be largely the result of carelessness and ignorance. For a safe Fourth, Mr. Cross offers the following suggestions made by National Red Cross officers:

To motorists: Get an early start for the holiday week-end trip to get ahead of the congestion and allow plenty of time.

Make a thorough check-up of your tires, brakes, lights and steering gear, for many accidents result from faulty equipment.

Keep an eye on the "other fellow," who may cause an accident.

Be sure luggage piled in the back of the car does not obscure vision.

Sacrifice that last hour at the beach and leave for home before the crowd.

Remember that driving after dark is many times more hazardous and after-dark accidents are frequently more serious.

To swimmers: Enjoy your water sports at patrolled beaches and bear in mind that expert swimmers can be drowned from cramps caused by swimming too soon after eating.

Records are being kept on several 10-variety seed corn demonstrations in Laurel county.

VERONA COUPLE MARRIED SUNDAY

Mr. Henry Samuel Morgan and Miss Lucy Scott, both of Verona, were united in marriage Sunday, June 28, in the home of the officiating minister, Rev. J. E. Roberts, Walton. They were accompanied by a sister of the groom, and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Ellis.

Mr. Morgan is a son of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Morgan, and Mrs. Morgan is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Scott. The groom is a farmer, and they are expected to make their home at Verona.

FIRE DESTROYS STURGEON BARN

A fire of undetermined origin, completely destroyed the barn on the W. L. Sturgeon property, last Thursday morning about 8 o'clock.

The alarm was sent in by neighbors, who seeing smoke, investigated, and discovered the building in flames.

Mr. Sturgeon had just put in about 3000 pounds of hay, and this with farming tools and many other items, was destroyed.

The barn and contents were partially covered by insurance.

DEFENSE BOND QUIZ TO START NEXT WEEK

At the request of the Treasury Department we announce a new feature of interest and service to many readers who are buying or will buy Defense Savings Bonds and Stamps. This will be called the Defense Bond Quiz, and will start in next week's issue.

The questions will be chosen from among those asked by most Bond and Stamp buyers. The answers will tell what the new Defense Savings Program means to the individual and to the Nation.

Wayne county farmers last month bought several purebred bulls to place as heads of herds.

Harry Jobert Seeks Re-election As Kenton Jailer

Harry W. Jobert seeks re-election to the office of Kenton County Jailer.

"I have lived my entire life in Kenton County. Born and reared in West Covington and lived the balance of my life in Covington and Kenton County.

"I have always worked for and supported the Democratic nominee in the regular election.

"I have always been a union man, being a charter member of The Glass Workers' Union, Local No. 9, and a charter member of Covington Firemen's Union No. 38. I was also one of a very small group of firefighters to help organize the firemen's union in Covington.

"Four years ago when I made the race for Kenton County Jailer I made a few promises.

"First: I promised to appoint four turnkeys who would work eight hour shifts, three at the Covington jail, and one at Independence jail, and I promised to pay them a living wage.

"Second: I promised to see that the prisoners were treated as human beings.

"Third: I promised that I would permit any organization or group of citizens to inspect the jail at any time.

"Fourth: I promised that the prisoners would receive the proper medical attention.

"All of the above promises I made four years ago have been fulfilled.

"One announced candidate for the jailer's office has said he would save money for the taxpayers through operation of the jail. This is a misleading statement, inasmuch as the jailer does not have the power to effect such a saving, even though he might desire to do so. Fixed fees are paid the jailer for caring for prisoners. He in turn houses and feeds the prisoners. His income is stipulated by other authorities, thereby depriving him of any means of reducing the taxpayers burden.

"Every time the grand jury was in session they made an inspection and complimented me on the cleanly manner in which I was keeping this very old building.

"In asking you to re-elect me for the second term as your County Jailer, I promise to keep all the promises made four years ago. And when elected Aug. 2, I wish to announce to the voters of Kenton County, that Robert Cornelius will still be my Deputy Turnkey at Independence."

GEORGE A. BUTLER DIES SUDDENLY

George A. Butler, 74, passed away suddenly at his home on Union and Hathaway Road, Friday.

Mr. Butler was born in Owen county and was a member of the Baptist church.

Funeral services were held from the residence Monday morning at 10:00 o'clock, Rev. Roy Johnson officiating. Interment was in the Wheatley cemetery in Owen county. Chambers & Grubbs had charge of arrangements.

The deceased is survived by his widow, Mrs. Mary Butler; four sons, James, Guy, William and Roy; one daughter, Mrs. Lillian Presser; 5 grandchildren; 2 brothers and three sisters.

The Ewbanks and Sheep Raising

In the June issue of "The Sheep Breeder," there appears a length article about the Ewbanks sheep enterprize. The story starts with the very early history of this section of the country, and tells of the settling, near Lawrenceburg, Ind., of John Ewbanks. This was in 1811.

Jacob, son of John Ewbank, upon attaining manhood, married and selected the Petty Estate of 300 acres, located on the Kentucky side of the River. This was known as "The Elms."

It was at the "Elms" in March, 1865, that John W. was born, and is still actively managing this and adjoining farms, purchased several years ago. Then came W. Ryle, who followed in the path of the three previous generations, in the raising of sheep.

And so, much like out world custom, we find still another generation of Ewbanks, following in the footsteps of their ancestors. This generation consists of Mary K., Jean and Eloise.

The Ewbanks farms are located in Gallatin and Boone counties, the most recent addition being the

BUYERS RESPONSIBLE FOR WHEAT PENALTY PAYMENT ON EXCESS

The buyer who purchases wheat from a farm producer is liable for any marketing quota due on the grain unless it is identified by an officially approved marketing card or certificate showing that the wheat is free of penalty, Geo. A. Eubanks, chairman of the Kenton county Agricultural Conservation Association, said today.

While the buyer is personally liable for the penalty on excess marketing of wheat under the marketing quota law, he may deduct the amount of the penalty from the price paid for the wheat. The penalty on excess wheat is 49 cents a bushel.

Wheat marketing quotas, approved by more than four out of five growers voting in the referendum on May 31, are established for each farm subject to quota provisions. On a farm having wheat in excess of the quota all wheat produced is subject to a lien in favor of the United States for the amount of the penalty.

This means that each bushel of wheat from the farm is subject to penalty until the full amount of the penalty has been paid or until quota provisions have been met.

Wheat from farms not subject to penalty—both from those exempt from quotas and from those within their acreage allotment—will be identified by marketing cards or marketing certificates showing that the wheat is free of penalty. Wheat not identified by such "penalty free' cards or certificates should be considered as subject to penalty.

PUBLIC STREAMS TO BE STOCKED WITH BASS

Mattress Program Closed Monday

The cotton mattress program in Boone county closed Monday, June 30, as articles were completed at the Burlington Center. This program has reached 155 families through the completion of 235 mattresses and 235 comforters. The project comes to the county through the Home Demonstration Agent and Homemakers' clubs and is a part of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration program directed by the county agent. Local agencies who have contributed to the success of the program are: the County School Board and Mr. Norris, who made their buildings available; Walton-Verona school system, who allowed the use of their school at Verona; Walton Lumber Company and Erlanger Lumber Company, who aided in equipping the centers; County Fiscal Court and the Road Department, who moved equipment from center to center; L. W. Gulley, who loaned scales; and Elza Poston and Calvin Cress, who loaned carpenter horses.

The project was directed by Mrs. Mary Scott Moore, assistant home demonstration agent. The centers were supervised by Mrs. Vernon Pope and volunteer leaders from local Homemakers' clubs. Centers were opened at Burlington, Petersburg, Grant, Verona and Beaver. Volunteer leaders who assisted were: Mrs. Charles Engle, Mrs. A. B. Ligon, Mrs. Huey Aylor, Bullittsville; Mrs. S. Sam B. Sleet, New Haven; Mrs. B. Godbey, New Haven; Mrs. Raymond Witham, Miss Mary Rector, Miss Edna Berkshire and Mrs. Chas. Klopp, Petersburg; Mrs. Lorie Morith, Florence; Mrs. Christinia Kirtley, Miss Marion Rogers, and Mrs. Zora Scott, Grant; Mrs. Ethel Wilson, Mrs. Iva Mae Ryle and Mrs. Mary Wilson, Rabbit Hash; Mrs. Joe Hedges, Union; Mrs. Grace Renaker, Mrs. Maude Wilson, Mrs. Pearl Lamn, Mrs. Walter King and Mrs. Sibbia Gordon, Verona; Mrs. Parker Hollis, Mrs. Flora Tanner, Hebron; Mrs. H. R. Forkner and Mrs. Grover Jarrell, Burlington; Mrs. Alan Gaines, Walton.

In acknowledging the cooperation of persons and agencies, appreciation is expressed to all who made it possible to conduct such a worthwhile project in the county. Many homes have benefited by this program to help themselves and in doing so, to help others. There may be occasion in the future when this program or one similar will be offered. This is only one phase of the activities of the Homemakers' clubs.

Dairy Tour To Be Held July 8

Boone county will hold a dairy farm tour on this Tuesday, July 8th, according to H. R. Forkner, county agent. Three extra good dairy farms will be visited on the tour. A general field meeting and discussion meeting will be held at the last stop. The schedule of the meeting is as follows:

11:00 a. m., Eastern Time—Jesse Wilson's farm, 1¼ miles east of Verona just off State road 16 (Walton-Verona Road) on Old Stephenson Mill Pike. See the highest butter fat testing herd in the county. A good D. H. I. A. herd; a proven D. H. I. A. herd sire.

12:00—Noon.

1:00 p. m., Eastern Time—Farm of R. B. Huey and Son, 3 miles west of Burlington; ½ miles North State Road 18, on Commissary Pike. See Ada's Tormentor, Boone county's first and highest testing D. H. I. A. proven sire and good D. H. I. A. herd—Breeding Chute—real dairy farm.

2:00 p. m. Eastern Time—Farm of Robert Youell, 2 miles from Limaburg on Youell Pike. See 400 pound D. H. I. A. herd; two Association bulls; new grass silage silo; alfalfa; milk houses; good dairy farm. Attend the general field meeting here.

This tour and field meeting will interest all dairymen who want to improve their herds. Everybody is invited to attend and take part.

DORCAS CLASS HOLDS REGULAR MEETING

The Dorcas class of the Walton Baptist church met at the church for their regular monthly meeting, Thursday.

TOTAL OF 1,571 STUDENTS REGISTER FOR 1ST REGULAR U. K. SUMMER TERM

When official registration for the first term of the 1941 Summer Session at the University of Kentucky closed Monday, June 23, 1,571 students had enrolled.

Registrations for short courses during the latter half of the term is expected to increase the total enrollment. Grand total last year, including all late short courses, was 2,188, highest in the history of the University summer session.

Among those students from Boone county are: Boyd W. Mahan, Petersburg, and Alma Elizabeth Rouse, Walton.

Nutrition Leaders Set Up Program

A leaders' meeting was held Monday, June 30, at Burlington for the temporary chairman in charge of setting up a program of nutrition and production in the various communities of our county.

The purpose of the meeting was to acquaint the chairman with the national and state nutrition program and to discuss the problems of Boone county relating to nutrition.

After the presentation of the National program, a round table discussion was held, which resulted in the development of goals to be reached in each community.

The following dates were set for community meetings: Burlington, July 16; Constance, July 23; Florence, July 18; Grant, July 10; Hamilton, July (to be set); Hebron, July 14; New Haven, July 25; Petersburg, July 11; Verona, July 9; Walton, July 17.

The meeting was attended by Mrs. Garnett Tolin, Burlington; Mrs. Freda Kottmyer, Constance; Mrs. Joe Berkshire, Florence; Mrs. Wm. Rogers, Grant; Mrs. Hugh McArthur, Grant; Mrs. Howard Acra, Hebron; Miss Gladys Klopp, Petersburg; Rev. J. Russell Cross, New Haven; Mrs. C. C. Pruett, Walton; Mrs. Will McCormick, Verona; Rev. H. M. Hauter, H. R. Forkner, Mrs. J. C. Layne, Miss Mary Hood Gillaspie, James R. Huey, Mark Cook and Miss Evelyn Conrad.

Hopkins county farmers found pigs raised in sanitary quarters were healthier and made better growth than those in worm-infested pens.

ENJOY DELIGHTFUL TRIP THROUGH NORTHWEST

Dr. and Mrs. H. F. Mann, Crittenden, recently returned from a delightful 3,000 mile trip through the Northwest, crossing nine states. Places of interest visited were, The Dells of Madison, Wis., Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn. Black Hills of South Dakota, the largest gold mine in the world at Deadwood City, S. Da., known as the "Mistake," the sculpture work of the four presidents on Rushmore Mt., S. Da., Hot Springs, S. Da., Bad Lands of S. Da., and Boys Town near Omaha, Neb. "Doc" says the high-light of the trip was the visit to Boys Town, a wonderful institution. He also states that crops in the Northwest are very good.

Washington Snapshots
by JAMES PRESTON

Washington is still fumbling around in its search for means to end defense strikes—without hurting anybody.

There also are fears in some Congressional quarters that unless progress is made cautiously the nation may surrender the very things it is building defense to protect.

On the first point, the legislators are a-dither. Many of them think it unfair for the government to take over private property just because allegedly Communistic agitators persuade workers to strike. Such action, they believe, punishes an innocent bystander.

What these solons would like to do is simply forbid strikes in defense plants. But that, they fear, would be wrong because it is difficult to compel a man to work against his will. Also, saboteurs are adept at slow-downs and at destructive operations inside factories.

A lot of the legislators, too, blame themselves for the present situation. They think, for example, that things would be much better nowadays if they had amended the Wagner Act to put some responsibilities upon labor organizations; that they should have moved four years ago when sit-down strikes broke out.

But they did neither of those things. The House did pass Wagner Act amendments by a tremendous majority, but administration pressure bottled them up in the Senate.

Today, even some of the Senators who failed to exert pressure which might have unbottled the Wagner Act amendments are penitent. There is, though, a good political reason why they do nothing now. It is this:

For years the administration and many of its Congressional followers have been a "friend" of labor and labor organizations—two terms which by no means are synonymous. They have encouraged unionization and collective bargaining, the two weapons which permit unions to exert so-called "economic pressure" by striking and forcing plants to close down.

The President even went so far that when he condemned the sit-down strikes in automobile plants he also condemned plant managers.

Thus these Congressional followers of the administration have a "record" on which many of them were elected and re-elected. They feel they must stand on that "record." To admit that they made mistakes by writing one-sided laws, by granting all the privileges to labor unions and imposing no responsibilities upon them, is to admit faulty judgement. And a candidate for Congress who admits he was guilty of mistakes might not prove too popular at the ballot boxes.

Many of the serious thinkers believe that troops were necessary to protect airplane production, but they also think that if proper steps had been taken by the government to keep subversives and agitators out of labor organizations, the need for troops never would have arisen. For example, it was only two years ago that then Chairman Madden of the National Labor Relations Board said that if an employer in complete truth should describe leaders of a particular union as Communists, he would be in violation of the Wagner Act.

There are a lot of people today who regret such policies.

If news is the unusual, then Rep. Clare E. Hoffman of Michigan has made news. He delivered a speech in the House. When it appeared in the Congressional Record, the printer had put at at the end of it: "(Applause)". Hoffman obtained official permission of the House to have that "applause" deleted from the permanent copy of the Record because nobody applauded.

Members frequently insert that word, but no old-timer remembers anybody else who took it out.

Defense cost note: OPM Director Knudsen informed Rep. A. Willis Robertson of Virginia that the Federal 40-hour law has increased the cost of negotiated or fixed fee defense contracts "from 5 to 10 per cent."

Yearly average production of shoes for civilian use in the United States is estimated at more than 400,000,000 pairs.

A 45,000 ton battleship requires some 20,000 tons of steel; an aircraft carrier, about 17,000 tons; a cruiser, 5,500 tons. The figures are exclusive of the steel in the ships' guns and armor plating.

The amount of money that the United States has already spent on defense is estimated at twice the value of all the farmlands in the original 13 states.

This Week In Defense

Civilian Defense Director LaGuardia announced plans for a nation-wide Fourth of July celebration, with a radio address by President Roosevelt at (4 p. m. EST) to be followed by the singing of the national anthem simultaneously throughout the nation.

Commenting on the arrangements, the President said, "It is altogether fitting that we should rededicate ourselves to defend and perpetuate those inalienable rights which found true expression in the immortal Declaration. Those words never had a deeper or more solemn meaning for America than they have in this hour of anxiety and peril . . ."

Foreign Affairs

President Roosevelt told his press conference the U. S. would give all possible aid to Russia in its war with Germany, but that no list of Soviet needs had been submitted yet. The Treasury Department announced it had licensed Russia to use its $40,000,000 in frozen funds here. Acting Secretary of State Welles announced the Neutrality Act, which prohibits American vessels from combat areas, would not be invoked in connection with the Russian conflict.

Mr. Welles said that while the Communist dictatorship is as intolerable as the Nazi dictatorship, the immediate issue is defense against Hitlerism and the German plan for universal conquest.

The State Department ordered Italy to recall all Italian officials and cease all activities in this country except those at the Washington Embassy by July 15 because they "serve no desirable purpose."

Aid to Democracies

The President indorsed the British recruiting drive for 15,000 to 30,000 American technicians to aid in air raid detection in England. He also pointed out that American youth can join British or Chinese armed forces if they do not take an oath of allegiance to any country other than the U. S.

He told a press conference the possibility of sending rifles to Eire is being considered if the Eire government gives assurances they would be used against Germany in the event of a German attack on Ireland.

Production Progress

The President said the over-all defense production picture is not discouraging although there is a serious lag in munitions production because entire plants have to be built before quantity production begins. He said, however, production of some items is already at peak.

Army

The War Department announced total strength of the Army as 1,441,500 officers and enlisted men, including: Regular Army, 505,700; National Guard, 288,800; Selectees, 594,000; Reserve Officers, 53,000. Army Chief of Staff Marshall announced that Congress will be asked for funds to add 100,000 more men to the Regular Army to replace those sent to outlying bases. The Army also announced it has recommended to the President that steps be taken to obtain authority to continue the National Guard and Reserve Officers on active duty for more than one year.

Navy

Navy Secretary Knox announced the U. S. fleet expansion program is "setting records every day." He also announced revision of enlistment contracts for the Marine Corps Reserve to provide service for the duration of the national emergency, and asked Congress for authority to continue all naval enlistment personnel in service for the duration.

Air

The War Department announced unification of its air activities in a new unit known as the "Army Air Forces," consolidating present units in a single command under Major General Arnold, Deputy Chief of Staff for Air. Secretary of War Stimson said the air forces are now independent within the Department.

The Civil Aeronautics Authority announced a $95,000,000 program to complete work on 250 airports now under way and to construct or improve 149 additional airports.

Aluminum Collection

Civilian Defense Director LaGuardia announced July 21 as the date when governors, mayors and other officials, local defense councils and such organizations as the American Legion, Boy Scouts, women's clubs, labor, farm and religious organizations will cooperate in collecting unneeded aluminum from every home in the land. Mr. LaGuardia estimated that 20,000,000 pounds of aluminum—enough for 2,000 fighter planes—wiuld be collected.

Nurses

Medical officials of the Army, Navy and Public Health Service, stated that a shortage of nurses is beginning to be apparent and appealed for a larger number of women to seek nursing training.

Prices

Price Administrator Henderson announced he will set ceiling prices on new automobiles and, "in all probability," used cars, because certain manufacturers have refused to cooperate in avoiding inflation by keeping prices at their present level. Mr. Henderson also froze prices of tires, inner tubes and rubber at price levels of June 16 to prevent price sky-rocketing in connection with diversion to defense of approximately 25 per cent of rubber consumption.

The Price Administrator also set maximum prices on pig iron, major raw material used in steel, and asked furniture and household refrigerator manufacturers not to raise prices.

Priorities

The OPM announced priority action on crude rubber, zinc and tungsten compounds. Rubber consumption is to be reduced from 817,000 to 600,000 tons a year; 16,000 tons of metallic zinc will be reserved in an emergency pool to meet expected 1941 shortage; and priority control over tungsten has been extended two months past June 30, the originally scheduled expiration date.

U. S. Housing Authority Administrator Straus issued instructions that wood and stone will replace rubber, cork and strategic metals in the building of USHA slum-clearance homes.

Labor Supply

President Roosevelt created a Committee on Fair Employment Practice to investigate complaints of discrimination in defense employment and ordered all Federal agencies to include in defense contracts a provision obligating the contractor to avoid discrimination. The President said in some instances workers have been barred from defense jobs "solely because of race, creed, color, or national origin."

The OPM announced Atlantic shipyards had agreed to a two-year pact eliminating strikes and lockouts and providing periodic adjustment of wages according to living costs.

EARLY HISTORY OF BOONE COUNTY

By A. M. Yealey

The first transaction in reference to a slave we find, that Elisha Arnold in 1796 purchased a farm in North Bend, Boone county. He just remained here until 1797 when he sold this farm for a Negro woman and her child, then he proceeded to what is now Kenton county, and purchased another farm for a horse. This farm is near Erlanger.

The Fugative Slave law caused considerable trouble as the slaves often became restless and tried to make their escape by what is known as the Underground Railroad. This was a cordon of posts, or relays that reached from the Ohio River to Canada. Few were stolen at the beginning and if caught, seldom a jury in Ohio would give the owner any damages, and if a judgement was given for the damages, it could not be collected.

One old darky told the writer that he escaped from Boone county in a sack on top of a load of wheat. Another said he made his escape by putting pepper in his tracks so no dogs could trail him.

Several land owners kept a very good Bible record of their slaves, mentioning the cost of each with their name, if they were purchased, and the writer will now give you a Bible record of those owned by Ephriam Aylor, who once owned the Chester Tanner farm. The following is a copy of the way it was kept:

"Names and Ages of My Blacks.

"Harriett was born in the year 1814.

"Fisher was born in the year 1822.

"Edmond was born 1st day of March, 1844.

"Columbus was born 2nd day January 1846.

Elvira was born the 4th day December 1849.

"Martha was born the 16th day August 1851.

"Manda was born the 15th day April 1854.

"Jeptha was born the 2nd day May 1856.

"Deaths of My Blacks:

"Martha died December 26, 1861, age 10 yr.

Manda died March 3rd, 1862, age 8 yr.

"Elvira died April 7th, 1863, age 14 yr."

The writer, in the previous chapter, said the peak of slavery in Boone county was probably reached about 1840. From that time on there were so many abolitionists roaming through the state and caused much discord and some slave owners made their slaves free, when the Civil War broke out, there were 48 free slaves in Boone county and 2,104 slaves. Two of the abolitionists were Miss Delia Webster and Rev. Calvin Fairbanks from Vermont.

They traveled from Cincinnati over the Ridge Road through Boone county, encouragaing the slaves and providing means by which they made their escape. They were tried at Lexington for abducting slaves and conveying them to the state of Ohio. Miss Webster was convicted and sent to the penitentiary. After she had spent about two weeks in the prison. the then Gover. Owsley pardoned her, on account of her being a woman. Mr. Fairbanks plead guilty to the charge against him and received a sentence of 15 years in the penitentiary.

Money Talks

UNIVERSITY OF LOUISVILLE

The problem of meeting the tremendous cost of the national defense program has focused attention once again on the subject of savings. Too often, we think of national defense in terms of government taxes and borrowing. But we forget that because of thrift (savings) in previous years, the present manufacturing plants and equipment, railroads, trucks and communication facilities, and countless other assets are today available for the production of necessary goods. Our present industries large and small, represent the savings of hundreds of thousands of people all over this country.

At present, our government is demanding greater production of war material. This means building more factories and equipment. To do this, some one must furnish the capital. Who is furnishing this capital? It is the people; the people buying industrial stocks and bonds or putting their money in savings banks or purchasing United States bonds. These individuals are abstaining from consuming goods and putting their money into production channels. The government highly approves of this and indeed has asked us to refrain from buying essential commodities; it is encouraging saving and has created "baby bonds" and defense stamps to make saving easy for the average man and woman.

There is another side to this picture. Savings not only help the national defense but also help the saver. Prosperity based on a war economy cannot last forever, and it is a wise policy to lay something aside for the proverbial "rainy day." American workmen are making high wages and today is an opportune time to save; by doing so, they help both themselves and their government.

HOW TO BE YOUR OWN DECORATOR

What to Do About an Ugly Mantel

We don't all live in new houses, or old houses with beautiful woodwork and mantels, and it's therefore hard to do "ideal" decorating, with an ugly mantel sticking out in the room like a sore thumb. There is the heavy brick mantel that can't be changed without great expense, but many a time its massive appearance can be greatly lessened by painting it the light color of the woodwork, or of the wall. It makes it recede into the background. For instance in an average size room if the walls are a pale blue or pale straw color with the woodwork and door white, or cream, the brick mantel can be painted either white or cream.

Another case is where an over heavy or ornate mantel of the golden oak period, or no particular period, is what you wish to overcome. In this case, as the offending mantel is applied to the plaster wall it can be removed without structural changes. Various decorating ideas are then open to you. In a modern room the wall may be plastered to the facing of fire opening with new tile, marble, brass or any of the composition materials applied around it which act both as a protection and a decoration. The chimney breast is painted to follow the color scheme of the room, often a different tint of the color of the walls, and a picture or mirror hung at about the height from the floor at which a shelf would be placed—four and a half feet is usual.

Such paneling may be very simple or quite elaborate. I'm showing here, a picture where the chimney breast was encased in tongue and groove knotty pine boards of two widths. Three wide boards are used to form a center group, then alternate narrow and wide boards, completed at the edge by a pilaster with capital at top. A simple moulding is used as a cornice at the ceiling. Rough cement, or the original brick, painted dark green or black, which faces the fire opening is outlined by a heavier bolection moulding about four inches wide.

A narrow shelf, supported by a matching cornice moulding, mitered at the corners, is placed about six to eight inches above it. Any carpenter could do this paneling and any lumber yard would either have, or could order for you, stock moulding from one of the millwork manufacturers. The cost would not be very great, in the neighborhood of $23.50 for materials and $26.50 for labor.

HEBRON

A very pretty wedding took place Saturday evening at 8:00 o'clock, when Miss Betty Crigler charming daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Crigler, became the bride of Mr. Omer Dolwick, at a pretty ceremony in the Lutheran church. Rev. H. M. Hauter, pastor of that church, read the service.

Preceding the ceremony, which was witnessed by a large group of relatives and friends of this popular couple, Mrs. Gilbert Dolwick sang, "Tell Me, Do You Love Me,' and "I Love You Truly." Mrs. Woodford Crigler accompanied at the piano.

The bride was beautiful in a gown of white, with which she carried a bouquet of white roses. Her attendants, Miss Frances Siekman and Miss Dorothy Kaman were colorfully gowned in pink and blue, and carried bouquets of pink roses.

The groom was attended by Mr. Benjamin Kottmyer and Gilbert Dolwick..

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents following the ceremony. The couple received many, many useful and beautiful gifts.

May they enjoy many years of happiness together, is the wish of their host of friends.

Rev. and Mrs. Forest Taylor entertained her parents from Corinth over the week end.

Bernard Bergelt moved from the J. C. Garnett property to Mrs. Bessie Ernsts' house, Saturday.

LEARNING TO EAT

We adults often think with envy of the life an infant leads—sleeping, eating and playing all day with no work or worry to mar his simple existence. On the other hand, we must remember that a child crowds a great deal of learning into this short period known as infancy. He is developing muscular control so he can grasp things, put foods in his mouth, stand and walk. He must begin to respond to the conversation of the adults around him and be learning to eat a variety of foods.

Thus we can see that the infant has a great number of things to learn during this first year. Almost any adult faced with the same number of habits to learn would be just a little bit frightened.

Since this is a formative stage when anything that happens makes a strong impression on the child, it is important for the mother to be ever conscious of the attitudes he might be developing.

She should ask herself these questions: Is he learning to like all the vegetables and fruits the doctor recommends for him? Does he realize that mealtime is the time for eating and not for playing? Does he remain quietly in his bed when he is placed there for a nap? Is he learning to enjoy being by himself during his waking time, so that he does not constantly demand attention? These are all points a mother should keep in mind during the first year.

The eating habits the child develops during this first year are particularly important. A great help in teaching him to eat all the foods which are good for him during this period are the strained foods doctors recommend for his diet at this time. If you are careful to give him vegetables and fruits which have their delicious natural flavors, he is far less apt to develop objections to any of the foods he needs for healthy growth.

A doctor should be consulted before any new food is introduced to a child, since infants differ greatly in ability to tolerate new foods. Sometimes a baby may be started as early as his fourth month to enjoy the vitamin-rich foods that are so important to his health and happiness all through life. Other babies are six months old before the doctor starts them on strained foods. In any case, thia early experience with the delicious natural flavors of these foods is a strong influence in preventing later childhood troubles in getting Junior or Jane to eat their vegetables and cereals.

The real reason for the early introduction of these solid foods in the strained form is the discovery of the child's need for their extra minerals and vitamins as an aid to his healthy growth. It is a comparatively recent discovery, but now there are 14 different kinds of the prepared strained foods. These are made by a well known food manufacturing company according to a process developed by the Melon Institute of Industrial Research. Though in times past strained foods have been prepared in the home, the special process used in the cooking and serving of these canned foods has been found to produce better flavors and higher vitamin and mineral content.

When the strained foods are introduced into the child's diet, a new method of swallowing must be learned, and so it is best to have the first strained food diluted with a little milk or water. A small quantity such as a teaspoonful is given first, then as the child becomes used to it the added liquid may be reduced. Soon the food may be given just as it comes from the can. The uniform consistency of the strained food aids greatly in building up a liking for it, for at an early age the baby's appreciation of flavor is based on a sense of feel rather than a sense of taste.

When a baby is able to sit up and hold a spoon, he should be allowed to attempt feeding himself. If he does not show any inclination to feed himself, however, he should not be urged too strongly, as a feeling of disappointment must be avoided. At intervals of a week or so one can offer the child an opportunity to hold the spoon until he begins to try to bring it to his mouth with food in it. At first he will be awkward and the mother will, no doubt, be eager to help him, but she should let him develop skill by practice. Remember, however, that babies may differ greatly in the ability to use their hands.

A mother should carefully guard against any unpleasant circumstances being connected with mealtimes. Also, she should avoid excitement and no toys should distract the baby's attention from the business at hand. Be regular with the baby's meals, and if he seems to desire food between feeding hours, give him cool boiled water. If he is asleep at feeding time, he should be awakened and offered his food. Then, if he does not want to eat at some time, do not force him, but wait until the next regular feeding time, when he will, no doubt, be very hungry.

Trash Will Be Collected Saturday

On account of July the 4th falling on Friday, the trash will not be collected until Saturday, July 5th.

NEW COAT OF PAINT

Powers Conrad has recently improved the appearance of his building, which houses his hardware business, by giving the exterior a new "facial." The building has been given two coats of white paint, which surely improves the appearance of Main Street.

RESTAURANT REMODELED

J. A. Farris started remodeling and redecorating his restaurant this week. The front of the store has been given a fresh coat of aluminum paint.

The interior of the restaurant is being remodeled, to give more space. This is being accomplished by removing the partition between the dining room and a rear compartment, thus making the dining room more spacious and inviting, which of course, is a wonderful improvement.

KENTUCKIANS ARE URGED TO BUY KENTUCKY-GROWN FRUITS AND VEGETABLES

Kentucky's new vegetable industry will be on trial this year. The low price of tobacco, and other crops, have forced Kentucky farmers to obtain new forms of income, and Kentucky has a suitable soil and climate for the production of excellent fruits and vegetables.

Calloway county has produced early tomatoes and will market 25 car loads through the Calloway county Vegetable Growers' Cooperative Association. Rowan county Vegetable Growers Cooperative Association are marketing sweet corn, early tomatoes and green beans. Graves county must dispose of its fifty thousand bushel peach crop, and peaches grown in McCracken and Calloway counties will add thousands more to this total.

Kentucky fresh fruits and vegetables will be superior to any fruit or vegetable from any other State because they are closer to market and, therefore, the grower can permit them to ripen before harvesting. Fruits and vegetables that are shipped long distances are picked green and they do not have the natural taste and flavor of the plant ripened product.

Ask your grocer for Kentucky fruits and vegetables. "Buy Kentucky Products for Kentucky Prosperity."

Commissioner of Agriculture, William H. May states that this year Kentucky has one of the largest peach crops in history and that every housewife should take advantage of this opportunity by canning large amounts of this delicious fruit.

The Marketing Division of the Kentucky Department of Agriculture is aiding the farmers throughout the State in selling their crops, but Kentuckians must buy them if Kentucky is to be prosperous.

BIRTHDAY REMEMBRANCE

In memory of Alberta Johnson, who was born July 1, 1924, and entered eternal rest Dec. 16, 1938:

Into God's beautiful garden of light
His messenger goes each day
To gather the choicest blossoms
And bear them with him away.

Even death has a wonderful mission
Though it robs us of those we love;
It lifts our hearts from around us
To long for the meeting above.

No matter how heavy the burden
No matter how great the despair
Heaven is nearer and dearer
To know that Alberta is there.

Sweetest Memories,
HER FAMILY.

Mastering Circumstances

BUSINESS men are constantly called upon to face conditions or circumstances which must be mastered if they are to be successful. To ignore them is to invite defeat and failure. Occasionally one hears it said that religion and business do not mix. This indicates a lack of understanding of what constitutes a successful business enterprise and of what true religion consists. The first three verses of the first Psalm give a recipe for attaining true success in whatever undertaking one may be engaged. Here we read: "Blessed is the man that walketh not in the counsel of the ungodly, nor standeth in the way of sinners, nor sitteth in the seat of the scornful. But his delight is in the law of the Lord; and in his law doth he meditate day and night. And he shall be like a tree planted by the rivers of water, that bringeth forth his fruit in his season; his leaf also shall not wither; and whatsoever he doeth shall prosper."

Thus one who would attain true success must not listen to the counsel of those who ignore God's laws and are therefore unqualified to give sound advice. Neither does he seek help of the dishonest and sinful; nor is he found in the company of the boastful and worldly wise. He looks alone to the one source of true wisdom, infinite Mind, God, for guidance in the solution of every problem. Turning to the Bible, which contains the statement of God's law, he finds therein valuable counsel which he puts to practical use in his daily activities. . . .

On page 254 of Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures, Mary Baker Eddy makes a statement which, when understood in its spiritual meaning, relieves one of a false sense of responsibility, with its attendant fear and worry. She says, "When we wait patiently on God and seek Truth righteously, He directs our path." What is it to "wait patiently on God"? Patience is not simply sitting down calmly and waiting for something to turn up, nor is it putting up with evil conditions and grimly bearing them. Patience is really the persistent expectancy of good. To seek Truth righteously is to endeavor to learn God's plan and purpose for man. So, when we wait on God, persistently seeking only good, and through prayer endeavor to learn God's plan and purpose, the right human footsteps will surely be made plain to us. And it is not necessary for us to know today the human footsteps which may be necessary for us to take tomorrow.

The business man who is persistently seeking only good for his customers, for his employees, and for himself, and prays understandingly for divine guidance, may be sure that the right way will unfold to him and true success will be certain.

The one who is without remunerative employment may feel that the circumstances with which he is faced are beyond his control. While the immediate condition may have been brought about by events or circumstances which he could not foresee or prevent, the mastering of adverse circumstances is to be achieved within his own consciousness, within spiritualized thinking based on a right understanding of God. One may well begin with a clear realization that his real business is to express or reflect God in his every thought and activity. Mrs. Eddy writes (Miscellaneous Writings, p. 367), "God gives you His spiritual ideas, and in turn, they give you daily supplies." The source, then, of all true ideas or thoughts is infinite Mind, God, and as one turns with confidence to Him in fervent prayer for guidance, the right human footsteps will appear. Christ Jesus said (Matthew 6:33), "Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you." Just before Jesus gave utterance to this profound spiritual admonition he had been speaking of the ordinary human needs for food and clothing, so we may be sure that when we apply this rule intelligently in working out our human problems of employment, business, and supply, every need will be met.

Whatever the conditions or circumstances with which one may seem to be faced, if one seeks first a right understanding of God and of man's spiritual relationship to Him, he may be sure that "whatsoever he doeth shall prosper."—The Christian Science Monitor.

-that man IN OUR NEIGHBORHOOD!

A CALL IN THE NIGHT

We heard the children romping in their playroom upstairs—then suddenly, a scream!

We both rushed up and found our young son had fallen and apparently broken his arm. We immediately phoned our family physician, who verified our worst fears.

In time, the arm was carefully set, but other difficulties arose that called for an unusual prescription.

I looked at the clock—where could we get it filled at this late hour?

We spoke to the doctor, who then picked up the phone and called "that man" out of bed—again "that man" (our neighborhood druggist) did not fail us.

Our neighborhood druggist never fails us! Should you, like most women, suffer discomforts during the menstrual period, just phone your druggist—he usually advises women to try Vatona Tablets—this may be just what you need!

Improved Uniform International SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D. Dean of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for July 6

Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education; used by permission.

THE GOSPEL IS TAKEN INTO EUROPE

LESSON TEXT—Acts 16:6-15.

GOLDEN TEXT—Come over into Macedonia and help us.—Acts 16:9.

America is coming to the fore in the thinking of a confused world as the final hope of democracy and religious freedom. Europe, or at least most of Europe, represents in our thinking dictatorship, a totalitarian disregard for the personal rights of man, including his freedom to worship God according to the dictates of his own conscience.

It is therefore very appropriate that on this "Fourth of July" Sunday, when patriotism has been much in our thoughts, that we remind ourselves in the study of our Sunday school lesson that the roots of American life, both cultural and religious, reach back into the European soil on which our forefathers dwelt. Much of that which we as Christians count precious has come to us because Paul, the missionary, was responsive to the leading of the Holy Spirit and carried the gospel into the heathendom of Europe, from whence, in due time, it came to our own land.

It was a crucial point in the history of Christianity; yes, and of the world, when the gospel came to Europe.

I. By Providential Hindrance (vv. 6-8).

Not only are "the steps of a good man ordered by the Lord" (Ps. 37:-23), but his stops as well. That is not an easy lesson to learn. Let us remember that we may be as much in the will of the Lord when all our efforts are thwarted as when they prosper.

Paul had set out on a second journey to carry out a follow-up campaign in the cities where he had already preached. This was a good plan and had God's blessing (see v. 5). But soon we find that word "forbidden" (v. 6) and then "suffered not" (v. 7). The Holy Spirit began to close doors to the gospel preacher. Now what? Shall he go on in determined self-will? Or shall he become discouraged and embittered in his soul? No, let him wait, for God is guiding him by providential hindrance, which is soon to be followed

II. By Divine Guidance (vv. 9, 10).

The Spirit spoke to Paul in a vision, revealing the divine purpose that the gospel should go over into Macedonia. The Spirit leads in our day, possibly not by visions, but by impelling inward prompting complemented and checked by the teaching of Scripture and by providential circumstances, and thus a man may know what is the will of God for him.

A word of caution is needed at this point. Some earnest Christian people go astray by projecting their own desires and purposes into the place where they seem to be the will of God, and thus do themselves and others, and Christianity itself, much harm. The three things should agree—(1) the inner prompting of the Spirit, (2) the teaching of God's Word, and (3) God's hand in our outward circumstances.

If these three do not agree, the Christian does well to wait, prayerfully, expectantly, for the Lord's further guidance.

III. Through a Faithful Witness (vv. 11-14a).

The gospel came to Europe because Paul and his fellow workers were faithful to their calling. When God led, they went to Macedonia (vv. 11, 12), where they sought out those who were in the place of prayer (v. 13). Paul spoke to them about Christ (v. 14). There he met the man of Macedonia who turned out to be a woman. For some reason the men were absent from the place of prayer on that all-important Sabbath morning. They were undoubtedly the ancient counterpart of our present day men who are "brothers-in-law" to the church, these foolish men who seem to assume that a bit of "religion" second hand through the wife or children will suffice.

IV. Through a Receptive Heart (vv. 14b-15).

God sent an obedient messenger to the place where He had a prepared heart. Lydia was a woman of distinction, business ability, and high moral character. But she knew, and Paul knew, that even good people need to be saved. We do well to keep that fact before us.

Paul spoke the truth of God, who opened Lydia's heart. Observe that she not only received the Word of God into her own heart, but at once gave herself to the task of passing it on. The first thing she could do was to give aid and comfort to the messenger of the truth, and she did that at once. Be assured that from that day on she did all she could to prosper the gospel on its way through Europe and to the ends of the earth. Have we done likewise?

Friends of Mr. Fred Gross regret that he still remains ill.

Paying the Bill!

Thoughtful citizens are worried these days about getting sufficient arms for defense—and also about the size of the bill!

The nation was shown recently by the W.C.T.U. what it could buy if it would translate wasted money into guns and bread, instead of using it to buy hangovers.

Placing the nation's daily liquor bill at $9,000,000, Mrs. Ida B. Wise Smith, president of National W.C.T.U., said: "In return neither the nation nor the drinker gets anything of value. Let's see what the nation could do with that money if it could be applied to refugee relief or to paying now — instead of in the future—for defense."

"Wasted Money?"

Each day's drink bill is equivalent to the cost of doing one of the following, Mrs. Smith estimated:

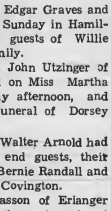
Feed one million Chinese refugee children for nine months; or feed 600,000 English children for six months.

Feed most of Europe's famine-threatened peoples.

Pay for 22 heavy bombers at $400,000 each.

Almost pay for 2 destroyers.

Pay for 3 submarines.



Build one-third of a new encampment equal to Camp Blanding, Fla.

Modernize 1,125 of our 75 mm. guns at $8,000 each.

Train completely some 600 military pilots at $15,000 each.

Manufacture 180,000 Garand rifles at $50 each.

Almost pay for 11,781 half-ton military trucks.

"Or, Refugees' Meals?"

Figuring it another way, Mrs. Smith found liquor's cost each nine days equivalent to the cost of building a battleship like the newly commissioned North Carolina.

Also computed was the estimated total that grain used by American manufacturers of distilled and fermented liquors would provide more than 10,000,000 loaves of bread a day for underfed populations at home or in the shattered countries of Europe.

Mr. and Mrs. Horney of Constance spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. William Mahorney and attended the shower given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Cave, in honor of their son, Robert Cave, and wife.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Graves and son Billy spent Sunday in Hamilton, Ohio, the guests of Willie Howell, and family.

Mr. and Mrs. John Utzinger of Indiana, called on Miss Martha Harding, Sunday afternoon, and attended the funeral of Dorsey Anderson.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Arnold had for their week end guests, their daughter, Mrs. Bernie Randall and Mr. Randall, of Covington.

Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Riddle spent Thursday evening with Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Aylor and family.

Mrs. Laura Aylor and granddaughter Ruth spent Saturday in Covington, shopping.

Mr. and Mrs. George Eubanks spent one evening, the past week, with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Graves and new granddaughter, Linda Fay.

A number from here attended the funeral of Dorsey Anderson, which was held at Hebron church Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Whitaker and family entertained Rev. and Mrs. Forest Taylor of Hebron with a fish fry, Friday evening.

Mrs. R. L. Day spent the week end with her son, Franklin Ryle, and family.

A number from here attended the Crigler-Dolwick wedding on Saturday evening, which was held at the Hebron church.

An outstanding event of the week, was the miscellaneous shower, given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Cave, for their son, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cave of Covington, which took place on Saturday evening. The honorees were the recipients of many useful and beautiful gifts. Refreshments of cake and cream were enjoyed by all the guests, who numbered about 200.

Mrs. Huffman of Verona enjoyed a visit with her daughter, Mrs. Robert Goodridge and family of Hebron, and attended the shower for her other daughter, Mrs. Robert Cave, on Saturday evening.

THE EGG GOURD

Long ago in this column I discussed the many uses of gourds in earlier times; the things that made me start thinking about gourds was seeing one at a wayside spring when I was on a camping trip. Since then I have had another experience with gourds that renews many a memory. While visiting my old home in 1939, I found and brought back with me a gourd that has been in the family since some years before the Civil War. This large old gourd now occupies a prominent place in my office, gazed at rather furtively by people whose memories do not run so far back as 1900 and is often the source of questions.

This particular gourd holds well over two gallons and was used for more than fifty years as the container of eggs. I cannot remember just how many dozens it would hold, but you can imagine that there would be several. A big square hole has been cut in the side, big enough for anybody to get his hand in or out with three or four eggs in it. This hole also furnished a natural handle, and by it the gourd has been taken dozens of times to the country store at Fidelity and its contents traded for calico, coffee, sugar, and other things needed in the farm home.

Its first romantic journey took place in 1854, when it came all the way from Rockingham County, North Carolina, in a covered wagon, as its owners made their way into the Jackson Purchase to start a new life and a new home in the wilderness. It belonged to the very old lady whom I mentioned some months back in the article on "A Lover of Flowers." In fact, it was filled with flower and garden seeds by this very woman, young then and facing the wilderness unafraid. As I said previously, the flower bulbs and seeds that she brought became for a whole neighborhood a source of joy and aesthetic life. The philosophy of most of the people of Fidelity was dead-set against beauty, but a few of us persisted in our love for flowers until some of the standpatters were converted to our point of view. And this old gourd, not so pretty to look at, had its homely share in bringing to the "last West" of Kentucky some of the aesthetic pleasures of an older civilization east of the mountains.

The longer I contemplate folkways, the more important seem the means by which culture is transmitted. We are so beset with gadgets today that we hardly see how things can mean much to people. Junk accumulates faster than the rats can chew it up or than we can lug it to the basement or the attic or sell it to the second-hand man. Every day when I burn newspapers and pasteboard cartons, I think how useful some of them would have been in our earlier days, when we treasured such things and rarely destroyed so much as a scrap of anything. Earlier still, containers were scarce, and the homely gourd, easily grown along the garden fence, became a source of help to most farm houses. From a few gourds to hold salt and soda and such things, to a modern kitchen cabinet with places for more than most of us can afford is a long way, a way that many of us have spanned in our lives, even without being now feeble or forgetful of what is or has been.

That Nagging Backache

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action

Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling—feel constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

Doings of The REDS

The Reds have only five games left on their home diamond before they embark on their third eastern trip of the season, after the all-star game, but those five games are expected to produce plenty of fan interest.

Reason for the enthusiasm is that one of the games will be played at night, Monday, against the Chicago Cubs, two of them will be played in a single afternoon, Friday, July 4, against Pittsburgh, and the other two will be played on Saturday and Sunday, July 5 and 6, against the red hot St. Louis Cardinals.

That's an appetizing dish for any baseball fan, and there is little doubt but that close to 70,000 people will turn out for these games, which is an indication that they feel the same way about it.

Monday night's contest will pit the Reds against the Cubs, who have been coming to the fore pretty well of late. Wilson has that team clicking, and his mind is now set on a first division berth. Of course, the Reds are the chief stumbling block in that quest, so that means ACTION spelled out in capital letters.

The pre-game show Monday will be one of the best of the season. The night is being designated as American Legion night, as heads of the legion will present R. O. T. C. students of the University of Cincinnati with medals. This being the occasion, the band from the Ohio Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphans' Home at Xenia will be brought down to furnish the music. The fireworks display will be of a patriotic nature, with a surprise being promised. Feature set piece will be an American Legion emblem.

There still are tickets available for all of the five big games. They are on sale at the Reds' downtown ticket office at 307 Vine Street, Cincinnati. Mail orders receive prompt attention.

MORGANSVILLE

"A friend loveth at all times." True friends enrich life for us. Like the tendrils of a vine which is heavy with foliage, they cling fast and long and friendships should be as strong in adversity as in prosperity.

"Life is sweet just because of the friends we have made
And the things which in common we share,
We want to help others because
It's giving and doing for somebody else
On that all life's splendor depends
And the joy of this world, when you've summed it all up,
Is found in the making of friends."

Everyone of us is guilty before God and under sentence of death, but since Christ has died for us a pardon will be granted to all who will accept it.

Mrs. Jasper W. Williams and lovely daughter, Miss Alice Jane of near Walton, were pleasant callers Monday morning. Even in these dark, stressful days the life of Mrs. Williams is resplendent with kindly deeds. The sun is nearing the West for each of us, and her kindness in making the path less rough to the journey's end is deeply appreciated and heartiest thanks are extended for 22 quarts and pints of canned fruit and tomato juice.

On Wednesday, Mrs. Albert Richardson of Kenton, delightfully entretained with a fried chicken dinner for little Miss Jackie Morgan, Miss Dotty Settle and Miss Thelma Procter of Covington. In the afternoon they enjoyed a tea party.

CONTROL MEASURES FOR GARDEN INSECTS

According to field reports and observations in the county, grasshoppers, Mexican Bean Beetles, Cucumber Beetles, Aphids or plant lice are becoming troublesome.

Extension Circular on Insects—

The Kentucky Extension Division, College of Agriculture, Lexington, Ky., has a Circular No.-359 on insects and how to control them. Get a copy from your Extension Agent's office.

Grasshopper Control

For large gardens and fields, use a poisoned bait made by mixing, while dry, 25 pounds of bran and 1 pound Paris green and adding enough water (2½ to 3 gallons) to make the mass moist. Apply the bait in early morning to that portion of the field under direct attack or late in evening after sunset. This bait is a poison and should not be scattered where chickens or animals can get to it.

Mexican Bean Beetle

Plants attacked: Beans. Spray with derris containing 4 percent rotenone, 1¼ pounds to 50 gallons of water or, on a smaller scale, 3 tablespoonfuls to a gallon. Start spraying as soon as beetle appears. Make a second application 7 to 10 days after the first. Use upturned nozzle and spray the under side of the leaves.

A dust made by mixing thoroly 4 pounds hydrated lime, 1 pound calcium arsenate, and 1 pound fine sulfur has been found very satisfactory when applied to the under side of the leaves, but this dust must not be used after the pods have formed. Also, derris dust containing 0.75 percent rotenone, applied in a similar way, is highly recommended. Rotenone, either as a spray or dust, can be used after pods have formed on the bean plants. Repeat dust applications at 7-day intervals as long as necessary.

Striped Cucumber Beetle

Plants attacked: Squash, melons, cucumbers, pumpkins. Get gypsum or land-plaster from a builder's supply company or wherever available. The builder's kind may contain hair, which should be removed by sieving through a window screen. Thoroly mix 9 pounds of gypsum with 1 pound of calcium arsenate. Put the mixture in a gunny sack and dust the hills as soon as cracks are seen where the plants are about to come through the ground. Repeat every 3 or 4 days until the vines are past the critical stage.

Aphids or Plant Lice

Plants attacked: Practically all garden plants. Nicotine sulfate, 1 part to 800 parts of water (3-8 pint to 50 gallons or 2 teaspoonfuls to 1 gallons of water). Add soap at the rate of 2 pounds to 50 gallons or a 1-inch cube to the gallon. Apply with pressure and direct the spray to the under side of the leaves, or wherever necessary in order to touch the insect.

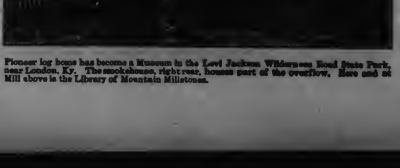
Beauty Abounds in Historic Levi Jackson State Park

"--telling Kentuckians of Kentucky"



(This is one of a series of articles sponsored by the Kentucky Press Association which in 1941 would tell Kentuckians of Kentucky as Kentucky should tell the world in 1942—Sesqui-Centennial Year.)

By Russell Dyche, The Sentinel-Echo, London, Ky.

Established "to perpetuate the memory of the pioneers whose struggles made possible the settlement and development of Kentucky and the West," the Levi Jackson Wilderness Road State Park is situated on U. S. 25, three miles south of London, northern entrance to "The Valley of Parks." Around the "Defeated Camps," the scene of the worst Indian massacre in Kentucky, were the first developments of this Park through which Boone had blazed his famous Trace and Gov. Shelby built the Wilderness Road, the first "waggon road" from infant Kentucky to Mother Virginia.

Beauty and magnificence combine with the historic to make this, as a distinguished visitor recently exclaimed, one of the most interesting spots in Kentucky. In the museum, which had been a pioneer log cabin home, and about it are gathered relics representative of early home arts and industries of the Mountains. The Wilderness Road Weavers process cloth from wool and flax, while McHargue's Water Mill on the banks of Little Laurel grind corn meal and Graham flour. One may see both in full operation most seasons of the year. Developments also include group camps, picnic grounds, marking of interesting points and miles of roads, paths and trails.

"McHargue Water Mill" regularly does custom grinding of corn meal and Graham flour, also sacked for stores and tourists.

Pioneer log home has become a Museum in the Levi Jackson Wilderness Road State Park, near London, Ky. The smokehouse, right rear, houses part of the overflow. Here and at Mill above is the Library of Mountain Milestones.

Laurel County Homecomings Bring in Thousands Each "Week End of Full Moon in August"

The Laurel County Homecoming, held each year since the Levi Jackson was officially opened in 1935, has made famous "The Week End of the Full Moon in August." This three-day event begins with a "Youth Day" on Friday and winds up on Sunday with the "Southeastern Kentucky Singing Convention" which in 1940 attracted thirty quartets from ten counties in two states, and crowds totaling more than 10,000 persons. Entertaining programs of music and dancing are held in the wonderful natural amphitheatre Friday and Saturday nights under the spell of the "Full Moon." Saturdays are given over to special events, which this year will be the "Sixtieth Anniversary Celebration of the Swiss Colony Bernstadt." The dates are Aug. 8, 9 and 10, 1941.

Jim Gaines farms. And from the original farm of 300 acres the enterprize grown tremendously through the generations, until it now consists of over 1,000 acres.

Included in the flock at the present time are 246 ewes, counting the yearlings, 97 rams and 208 lambs, totaling 551 registered Southdown sheep.

The Ewbanks sheep started on the road to prominence as early as 1923, and since that time Mary Katherine has won numerous awards at the larger fair, and State fairs, not only in Kentucky, but in other states.

While sheep raising is the main interest of the Ewbank family, they also boast a good herd of Jersey cattle.

The five Ewbanks children each take an active part in the management and care of the flock.

The hospitality at "The Elms," and "The Maples" is like that of the Old South, and those visiting there will find a most entertaining and enjoyable time.

The pastoral scene of sheep and cattle lazily grazing over beautiful rolling pastures, is a sight worth gazing upon.

Accompanying the article were a number of pictures, among which were, one of "The Maples"; one of "The Elms", overlooking the Ohio; one of sheep grazing at the "Fairview" farm in Boone county; one of Mary Katherine, with "Dictator Don II"; Louis, 4, and W. Ryle II, age 2 with the 1939 All-American Aged Ewe's pair of ram lambs; and several pastoral scenes.

The Ewbanks families have not only brought prominence to their own name, through the raising and breeding of outstanding cattle and sheep, but have called attention to our section of the country, of which we are all justly proud.

And we are certain that again this year, as in previous years, Mary Katherin will bring home many ribbons and awards from various fairs, for her outstanding and famous sheep.

Devoted Servants Keep Movie Stars Shining

BETTE Davis, Rosalind Russell, George Brent—they fit the pattern of Hollywood glamor pretty well, both off stage and on. Even in candid camera shots, rare is the occasion when the stars aren't perfectly turned out.

For making them attractive in screen appearances, the movie personalities can thank cameramen, make-up artists, and the wardrobe department, but in the privacy of their own homes, there is, according to Mary Hamman in the July issue of Good Housekeeping magazine, a secretary, maid, valet or cook who works like a beaver in anonymity and devotion to preserve the illusion that counts at the box-office.

Rosalind Russell Admits She'd Be Lost Without Hazel Washington

Adele Pheiffer is the voice that Bette Davis heeds, Miss Hamman writes. Adele is her buxom brown maid who wouldn't think of letting her mistress leave the house unless her hair was beautifully waved, unless the seams of both stockings were straight, unless she had a fresh pair of gloves and a newly scented handkerchief. Yes, Bette Davis has glamour, and in good part it is due to the handiwork of Adele Pheiffer.

As Miss Hamman points out, Rosalind Russell is a girl who dazzles everybody. She is beautiful, well-dressed, charming. She is known for her thoughtfulness, and for her extra-special parties. Her home is a showplace. But where, the author wonders, would she be without Hazel Washington, her personal maid? Hazel, a canny shopper, buys everything from hats to dining-room furniture for Rosalind, and tells the salesgirls firmly what "we" want and what "we" like. Recently when a reporter asked Hazel if Miss Russell planned to be married soon, Hazel replied indignantly "We have no such plans." Which may or may not be true, Hazel is not a girl to divulge any of "our" secrets.

In every star's household, you will find a Hazel, Miss Hamman informs her readers. The Errol Flynn's jewel is a secretary-valet-butler named Max Carmel. Max is one-part Swiss, one-part Egyptian, and all-parts determined to preserve the prestige of Errol and his wife Lily Damita. You may not hear of these glamor-builders very often, but they are there says Miss Hamman, and their talents keep the stars in the limelight.

MY GARDEN

A garden is a lovesome thing, God wot!
Rose plot,
Fringed pool.
Ferned grot—
The veriest school
Of peace; and yet the fool
Contends that God is not—
Not God! in gardens! when the eve is cool?
Nay, but I have a sign:
'Tis very sure God walks in mine.

An Open Letter To County Voters

To the Voters of the 3rd Magisterial District and Citizens of Boone County:

While I make the race for magistrate I would like to say to the voters that in the past years I have worked in past elections with some good Democrats. I am at present a member of the Young Men's Democratic Club.

I have been secretary for the Big Bone M. W. of A. Camp for the past nine years. At the present time I have a general store and trucking business located near Big Bone, Ky.

While making this race I promise if I am elected that I will at all times be looking after the interest of each taxpayer. I intend to try to give the people who are on those sideroads, a better road over which to send their livestock and products to market. After driving a truck for twenty years I feel as if I know what the farmers need in the way of good roads. If elected I expect to look over each road in my district and make a report of the condition to the other magistrates and the Judge, so that each precinct will get their share of the road tax money. I would like to have the support of each Voter on Saturday, August 2, 1941. I assure you your support will at times be appreciated.

6 Men In Call 14; 53 Register July 1

Selected men, for Selective Service call fourteen, who will be inducted into the Army on July 14, are Henry Clifford Durr, David Milton Setters, Edgar Carroll Clore, Robert Andrew Scott, Charles Samuel Rosenstiel and one other, to be named as soon as physical reports are received on same. This shortage of men, ready for induction, was brought about due to the fact that men who have attained the age of 28, on or before July 1, 1941, have been deferred for 30 days. The above named men will report to the Local Draft Board at the Courthouse, Burlington, at 9 a. m., EST, and then taken to Ft. Thomas for induction.

Fifty-three men, who have become 21 since Oct. 16, 1940, were registered by the Local Board on July 1.

C. G. Kelly, Clerk of the Local Board, informed us that the remaining Questionnaires would be mailed as soon, in the future, as time would permit.

DEFENSE BOND QUIZ

Q. What is a U. S. Defense Savings Bond?

A. This Bond is proof that you have loaned money to the United States Government for national defense. Your Bond bears interest at the rate of 2.9 percent a year, if held to maturity (ten years).

Q. Why should I buy Defense Bonds?

A. Because money talks. To dictators it speaks defiance. To friends of freedom, it says, "Here's my hand!"

NOTE—To purchase Defense Bonds and Stamps, go to the nearest post office or bank, or write for information to the Treasurer of the United States, Washington, D. C.

Will Be County Judge If Elected

I have been informed that a report is being circulated in the County to the effect that if I am elected County Judge I will resign soon after the first of the year, and have someone appointed County Judge to take my place. This report is purely political propaganda, and I wish to advise the people of Boone County, that if I am elected to the Office of County Judge, I will not resign and have anyone appointed, but will be your County Judge for the next four years.

The bus will leave Verona at 8:30 a. m., Eastern Standard Time. Anyone interested in the tour, is invited to go.

NUTRITION MEETING SCHEDULE AN'OUNC'D

Ten local committees in Boone county have selected dates for Nutrition Organization meetings. Several dates have been changed since the last issue of the paper.

Everyone interested in Nutrition and the National Defense program are invited to these meetings, according to Mary Hood Gillaspie, Home Demonstration Agent. Permanent officers, including a chairman and secretary will be elected at each meeting. The community nutrition program will be planned by the local group.

Following is the schedule of the meetings: Verona, July 9, Wednesday; Grant, Thursday, July 10; Petersburg, Friday, July 11; Hebron, Monday, July 14; Hamilton, Tuesday, July 15; Burlington, Monday, July 21; Walton, Tuesday, July 22; Constance, Wednesday, July 23; Florence, Thursday, July 24; New Haven, Friday, July 25.

Nursing Activities Committee Meets

The Nursing Activities committee of the Boone county Chapter of the American Red Cross, met at the home of Mrs. Walter Ferguson, Union, Ky., for the July monthly meeting. Final plans were made for the Tuberculosis X-ray Clinic, to be held at the Florence school, Tuesday, July 15th. The committee passed a resolution expressing its thanks to the Walton Advertiser and the Boone County Recorder, for their assistance in publicizing the work of the committee this year, especially as regards the Clinic.

Miss Lowry made her monthly report, which was accepted. She also reported that Mrs. Herbert Snyder had rendered invaluable volunteer service to her office in the matter of typing reports and general assistance. The Nursing Activities Committee expresses its appreciation to Mrs. Snyder for this work.

The next meeting of the N. A. C. will be held on Friday, August 1st. The full committee was in attendance, namely, Mrs. Kirtley Cropper, Mrs. Jane Utz, Mrs. Walter Ferguson, Mrs. Lula Huey, Miss Lucy Lee Grant, Miss Elizabeth Lowry, R. N., and Rev. J. Russell Cross.

HUBERT CONNER '41 MASTER FARMER

Hubert Conner, Hebron, has been selected by a special appointed scoring committee, as the 1941 Master Farmer of Boone County, according to H. R. Forkner, county agent. He was selected from 28 outstanding farmers nominated by agricultural leaders from all sections of the county. The Master Farmer program is sponsored in Kentucky every two years by the Kentucky Experiment Station and the Progressive Farmer Magazine.

Mr. Conner has long been rated as one of the county's most successful farmers and business men. His record scores exceptionally high in livestock, poultry, soils and fruit improvement and in leadership for better community and county rural welfare. Mr. Conner is 68 years old and his achievements in the county have been outstanding for more than forty years.

The 1941 County Master Farmer will be scored by a State Committee in the near future for a place on the 1941 State Honor Roll.

AUCTION OF MOLONEY BROS. EST., SATURDAY, JULY 19

The modern wire cut brick residence, on Erlanger Road, about one mile west of Dixie Highway, and all furniture and household equipment, will be sold at public auction, Saturday, July 19, beginning at 10:30 a. m., rain or shine. The sale is conducted by R. G. Kinman and Bessie Haley.

HAPPY TWELVE CLUB SCANS PAST TEN YEARS AT INTERESTING MEETING, RECENTLY

The Happy Twelve Club met at the home of Mrs. Walter Pennington, near Beaver, recently, for one of the most interesting meetings of the year.

The meeting was to celebrate the 10th anniversary of the club's beginning, and an invitation was extended to all former members to attend.

Mrs. Ona Fisher came from Cynthiana to spend the day with us. The history of the club, for all ten years, was read, and it amazed everyone who heard it, because of the good things this small club has done. Besides the serious we have accomplished, many a good time was spent and many happy hours of fellowship together.

After a bountiful dinner was served and enjoyed by all, the meeting was called to order by our president, Mrs. Patty Waller. The main topic was the fish fry, to be given by this club for the benefit of the Boone County Red Cross.

Those attending the lovely affair, were: Guests, Rev. J. Russell Cross, Mrs. Ona Fisher, Mrs. Audrey, Cynthiana, Ky., Mrs. K. E. Easton and daughter Norma Jean, and Nina Joyce, Mrs. Alice Chapman. Members: Mrs. Patty Waller and Billy Mac and Marion Arch, Mrs. Walter King and Mildred Catherine, Mrs. Ruth Vest, Rose

FORMER WALTON RESIDENT WEDS

A marriage, which comes as a total surprise to her friends here, was that of the former Lillian V. Sadler of Walton, to Mr. Everett Mathis of Ripley, Miss. The ceremony was performed at Carrollton, June 14, Rev. Homer L. Moore, B. D., pastor of the Methodist church, reading the service. They were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Roy Macken of Louisana.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Mathis motored to Falmouth.

Mr. Mathis was a druggist at Ripley before he accepted a position with Progressive Farmers, for whom he has been traveling in Kentucky for the past year and a half. Mr. Mathis works out of Memphis, Tenn.

Mrs. Mathis will be remembered as a former manager of the Waltonian Hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. Mathis expect to go South in the fall, to her home in Birmingham, Ala., and to Mr. Mathis' home in Ripley, Miss.

Homemakers Start Educational Tours

Educational trips to Cincinnati commercial concerns and interesting places in Kentucky and Indiana, were started this week by Boone county Homemakers. Approximately 225 homemakers and their friends have made reservations to take a trip during the summer months, according to Mary Hood Gillaspie, home demonstration agent.

Tours and trips are made by the Homemakers instead of having regular monthly meetings in July and August. Each local club decided where their members would like to take a trip. Arrangements for transportation were made by a committee in each club. Correspondence with the various commercial firms, concerning time and place, was made by the county extension office.

Following are the clubs which made plans for trips and the places to be visited: July 8th, Burlington & Florence, Lanier Home in Madison, Ind., and Clifty Falls, State Park.

July 9th—Constance, Frank Tea & Spice Co., WLW and Coca Cola Bottling Works in Cincinnati.

July 10—Hebron, Kroger Research Foundation, WLW and Coca Cola Bottling Works in Cincinnati.

July 11th—Walton, Kroger Research Foundation, French Bauer and WKRC.

July 12th and 13th—Rabbit Hash, Central Kentucky Historical points and Renfro Valley.

July 15th—Verona, Kroger Food Foundation, WLW, and Frank Tea & Spice.

July 16th—Petersburg, Frank Tea & Spice, WLW and Coca Cola Bottling Works.

August 8th—New Haven, Lanier Home in Madison and Clifton Falls.

Concord Revival Begins July 14th

Revival services will begin at Concord Baptist church on Monday, July 14th, at 7:30 p. m. (slow Time.)

This meeting is being eagerly looked forward to by the church and its friends, for we feel we have a most unusual privilege in having with us Rev. L. W. Martin, Home Board Mountain Missionary, and his wife. This is Bro. Martin's first meeting outside the mountains in 7 years. He is a wonderful spirit, a man of much experience and one especially interested in youth and soul winning. He has worked in the state young people's camps since their very beginning.

Mrs. Martin is such a lovable personality that all who meet her feel her influence for good. She sings contralto and will add much to the music of the services.

Sound, plain preaching, gospel music, and fellowship will be characteristic of these services throughout the two weeks.

Daily Vacation Bible School will begin on Wednesday at 9:00 a. m. Bro. Martin will teach adults under the big tree, Mrs. Martin will teach the young people in the church, and Mrs. Althea Craft will have charge of the children in the yard. Program will consist of the usual activities. In case of rain, all departments will meet inside the church.

On Tuesday evening of the second week, boys of the associational camp will arrive. It is hoped that all the churches will see that their boys come to this camp. What a rare opportunity for fun, fellowship, and inspiration! The camping place is beautiful, the program chock-ful of activity and good things and all under spiritual leadership of the pastors and also Bro. Martin. Boys of other associations are also invited to attend. The camp theme is "Living for Jesus."

Christian county Negro farm women have been learning to make cottage cheese sandwiches, and other varieties.

DAILY VACATION BIBLE SCHOOL AT RICHWOOD

A community Daily Vacation Bible School will be held at the Richwood Presbyterian church for one week—July 21-25. The hours will be from 9-12 each day, Monday through Friday. The teaching staff will be announced in next week's issue of the "Advertiser." It is hoped that all of the children of the Richwood, Beaver, Hughes Chapel, and Union neighborhoods will attend.

DISTRICT CONFERENCE ATTENDED BY 4-H LEADERS

Boone county adult 4-H leaders attended the Central District 4-H Leaders Conference in Lexington, last week. One hundred and eleven extension agents and leaders, representing 28 counties, spent two days on the University of Kentucky campus.

All phases of 4-H club work were discussed on the program. State 4-H leaders led the discussion groups. Group singing at each program was directed by Mr. J. M. Drake. Plans for the Conference were arranged by Mr. J. W. Whitehouse, State leader of 4-H club work in Kentucky.

Those from Boone county attending were: Mrs. Vernon Pope, community and canning leader of Burlington; Mrs. Hugh McArthur, clothing and canning leader of Grant; and Mary Hood Gillaspie, Home Demonstration Agent.

Marie and Peggy May, Mrs. James Pennington, Jean and Betty Jane, Mrs. Grace Vest, Ronald and Rodney, Mrs. Burgess Haley, Ruth and June, Mrs. Teressa Baker and Donald, Mrs. May Webster and Mildred, Mrs. Lelia Wasson, Mrs. Sibbia Gordon, Bobby Ann and Monte Kelly, Mrs. Marie Pennington and Wanda, Mrs. Harve Vest, Walter Pennington, Harve Vest, Burgess Haley.

A gift was presented to each member of the club and to all the former members present. We are sorry the others didn't attend, as they surely missed a good time.

—Secretary.

Washington Snapshots
by JAMES PRESTON

Washington is beginning to worry, but isn't doing much more, about the hundreds and perhaps thousands of small and large plants which may be forced to close down because of shortages in materials caused by the defense drain.

Such shutdowns, of course, would leave many jobless even if the workers could transfer to defense production. Transitions always lag, and in many cases employees are not trained or equipped to do the kind of work required in a defense plant.

The situation is pressing, and threatens to become more so. There is a present shortage in the case of many metals because defense production alone takes huge chunks of the metal available.

Scores of factory managers have anticipated such a situation. They have turned to substitutes for materials which were scarce. But the direction in which they can turn is being drastically limited.

A short while ago, many users of lighter metals like aluminum arranged to use plastics instead. But now, because there is a shortage of fabricators and molders in the plastics industry, plastics are becoming increasingly hard to get.

Many of the larger factories have research staffs, and well-trained industrial engineers, and other experts who can help in finding the way out of their "materials" difficulties. But the smaller plants have no such facilities, and they are unable to get the necessary help and suggestions from Washington.

Even the bigger factories have trouble. There is the case of the man from a Midwestern city who himself worked in a Washington defense agency where he became completely familiar with what is needed for defense and how it is bought.

After serving more than six months, he went back to his own business. He realized the product his company manufactured wasn't essential during the present emergency, so for the sake of his company and his employees he should produce something that was.

He had his three best salesmen contact three-score regional purchasing offices for the Army and Navy. He spent days in Washington talking with former associates in defense agencies. He ended with just exactly no defense business.

Now this man, having done all he or anybody else can think of, is afraid that his plant will have to shut down, leaving some 1,500 workers without jobs.

There are numerous cases very similar to that. And nobody in Washington apparently is making any serious plans about how to help them. In fact one official publicly said that as much as one-third of industry may be faced with the necessity of closing down before midsummer.

At the same time, government agencies aren't moving very effectively to end strikes which hamper plants that are in defense production. The action of the National Defense Mediation Board in the Bethlehem case won't help either.

In that case, the NDMB recommended that Bethlehem accept a "closed shop" contract — which means that every man who wants to work in that yard building ships to defend his country must belong to a union and pay union dues.

Strong friends of labor in government hope other unions won't take this case as a pattern. They fear, however, that they will. Some of the strongest pro-labor officials go so far as to describe the Bethlehem decision as a "boner."

This Week In Defense

President Roosevelt told his press conference he still hopes the U. S. can stay out of the world conflict. His statement was made in answer to a reporter's question if changing international situations had caused the President to alter his belief, stated in 1939, that the U. S. could and would stay out of the war.

Navy Secretary Knox told his press conference reports that Navy vessels were engaged in convoy duty were "absolutely untrue," and said reports that the Navy had lost lives, material and equipment or had been involved in any encounter with belligerent craft, were "most decidedly" not true.

OPM Director Knudsen issued a statement urging greater defense efforts and said "nothing could be further from the truth" than that Russia's entry into the war had averted danger to this country. Mr. Knudsen said "we are in somewhat better shape than we were last summer, but we need the spark of enthusiasm—yes, of patriotism—to carry the program forward faster."

Aid to Russia, France, China

Acting Secretary of State Welles announced Russian requests to buy strategic materials had been received and brought to the attention of the proper Government officials. Mr. Welles also said the U. S. has under consideration a plan to relax export restrictions on Russian commerce to permit the flow of war materials to that country. He also announced U. S. and North African French officials have arranged a plan calling for continuous movement of two ships carrying tea, sugar and other food to Africa, and two carrying strategic materials to the U. S.

President Roosevelt suspended duties on British Burma vessels reaching the U. S., to aid the flow of supplies to China over the Burma Road. Treasury Secretary Morgenthau extended China's $50,000,000 credit here for another year. Assistant Commerce Secretary Kinckley asked commercial airlines for 12 transport planes to meet "emergency defense requirements of the democracies."

Army

In his bi-annual report to the Secretary of War, Army Chief of Staff Marshall urged that Congress pass legislation permitting use of armed forces outside the Western Hemisjhere and permitting holding selectees, National Guardsmen and Reserve Officers in the service for more than one year. Gen. Marshall said that conditions have changed to such an extent that a "grave national emergency" exists of a more severe character than the public realizes.

The War Department announced it will promote its officers on the basis of merit instead of seniority and permit re-enlistment for Regular Army men only if they are qualified for promotion in order to weed out those not able to take advantage for further training.

Air

The War Department awarded contracts totalling more than $478,000,000 for planes, engines and parts. The OPM announced its aircraft specialist, Merrill Meigs, will go to England to confer on production methods.

Gen. Arnold, Chief of the Army Air Forces, lowered requirements for pilots of heavy bombers so that fliers with 750 hours military air experience could man the ships to be built at a rate of 500 a month. The Air Forces also announced experimentation with glider training for its personnel.

Selective Service

More than 750,000 men who reached 21 since Selective Service registration last October, registered for service this week throughout the nation. President Roosevelt ordered 900,000 men inducted into the Army as selectees now in service finish their year of training.

The volume of big strikes, like North American, has dropped, but strikes still going on are proving almost as destructive to defense. The War Department says, for example, that a strike of 200 iron workers is delaying construction of a new airplane factory; that a strike of 250 more workers is delaying castings for gun carriages; that a strike of another 200 is preventing construction of a plant to make much-needed high octane gasoline for airplanes.

With these delays already resulting from the activities of such a few strikers, government officials fear that the Bethlehem closed shop recommendation will stimulate other and more drastic work stoppages.

Pending final action by Congress on legislation deferring men who were 28 on July 1 or before, Selective Service Director Hershep ordered temporary deferment of this age group. He also advised local boards to defer registrants with one or more dependents to whose support they make "any substantial contribution." The only exception to this, he said, would be men who married in the hope of evading service.

Army Recreation

The War Department announced a program of stage shows at Army camps throughout the country and said civilian contributions to soldiers' welfare will be coordinated by the Citizens Committee for the Army and Navy, Inc. Outstanding theatre men have made arrangements for five road shows to visit camps, using equipment built on trucks, the Department said.

Congress passed legislation designed to prevent prostitution with a "reasonable" distance of military and naval reservations.

Defense Area Public Works

Congress voted $150,000,000 for construction of schools, water works, sewers, hospitals and other necessary public works in localities over-crowded by defense workers. Works Administrator Carmody established 11 regional offices to handle the program and select projects suggested by the communities and for which the communities will help pay.

Defense Housing

OPM announced defense housing projects will be given priority to assure availability of necessary building materials. Defense Housing Coordinator Palmer issued a pamphlet explaining how defense housing needs are met.

Materials

OPM recommended building eight new aluminum plants, in Arkansas, the Bonneville-Grand Coulee area, Upper New York State, Alabama, California and North Carolina to produce 600,000,000 additional pounds annually.

Price Administrator Henderson announced a series of conferences beginning the week of July 7 with representatives of makers of automobiles, refrigerators, washing machines, oil burners and steel furniture to get information on their needs for materials. He said allocations of essential raw materials to take care of public services essential to civilian welfare —such as transportation companies, telephone companies, farm equipment manufacturers, fire and police services, hospitals and schools—will be made as soon as amount of scarce materials needed are ascertained.

Labor Supply

The U. S. Employment Service reported serious shortages of workers in 13 shipbuilding, 16 aircraft and 26 machine shop occupations such as ship fitter, template maker, boatbuilder, aeronautical engineer, aircraft riveter, tool and die maker, and lathe operator.

Labor Training

The National Youth Administration announced allocation of $4,040,000 to finance July operations of a new program to train 368,000 out-of-school youths for defense jobs in the next year. The program is operated in cooperation with U. S. Employment Service and the U. S. Office of Education and local public educational officials.

The Office of Education reported that 1,500,000 persons were trained for defense work by existing educational facilities in the past year.

Pan-American Relations

The Assistant Coordinator of Commercial and Cultural Relations between the American Republics, speaking in Pennsylvania, said that in April Latin America sold $101,000,000 worth of goods to the U .S.—a rate of trade sufficient to absorb the wartime loss to the other Americas of the continental European markets.

Food Conservation

Agriculture Secretary Wickard, Associate Price Administrator Elliott and Paul McNutt, Coordinator of Health Activities, outlined a plan for community action to save for immediate future use, quantities of food ordinarily wasted. The officials urged community leaders to check local fruit and vegetable surpluses, plan for distribution through school lunch and play ground programs to meet nutritional needs of small-income families, and make arrangements for preserving products not used in fresh form.

MORGANSVILLE

"Fear thou not, for I am with thee."

"Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid." Jesus sometimes delays His help that He may try our faith. The boat may be covered with the waves, and He sleeps on, but He will awake before it sinks.

"There's not a grief, however light
Too light for sympathy;
There's not a care, however slight
Too slight to bring to thee.
Thou who hast trod the thorny road,
Wilt share each small distress
For He who bore the greatest load
Will not refuse the less."

"Think His thoughts, and you will do His deeds."

Life is made up of smiles and tears, of joys and sorrows, and who can attest that they were not brought nearer to God by some sorrow than by long days of prosperity?

Calvin Coolidge enjoyed the distinction of being the only President of the United States to be born on the Nation's birthday anniversary, and Thomas Jefferson and John Adams died July fourth.

Much to the gratification of many friends, Mrs. Frank Jackson has sufficiently recovered from an appendicitis operation at Christ hospital, to return home.

The recent death of Mr. J. Harry Hitch of Covington, marked the passing of an outstanding christian character. By his thoughtful, generous kindness, many pathways along life's way were brightened during his pilgrimage, and we were numbered among those to whom kindness had been shown. The glow of the setting sun as his life sank down to rest, must have thrown a mantle of gold over the path he traversed.

Within the next few weeks Americans will be paying many new taxes.

The House Ways and Means Committee tentatively approved twenty-four new or heavier excise taxes including a 7 per cent tax on automobile sales. Congress also proposed an entirely new $5.00 tax on the use of automobiles. This is the first time as far as I can remember that the Federal government has thought of levying such a tax. If this proposal goes through, we will be paying a federal as well as a state auto tax.

Some of the other new taxes contemplated are a 5 per cent levy on telephone bills; 10 per cent tax on phonographs and records; increases from 11 to 27 per cent on taxes on rental of safety deposit boxes; on automobile tires from 2½ to 5 per cent; on mechanical refrigerators from 5½ to 10 per cent. Also proposed are a 5 per cent tax on telephone bills; 10 per cent on jewelery, clocks and watches; 2 cents per 1000 on matches and 5 per cent on candy and chewing gum. We may also expect heavier taxes on movies, radios, liquor, club dues, playing cards, and railroad, bus and airplane transportation.

This is likely to be just beginning for Congress, before it took its recess July 1, established a new high record of $32,582,599,737 for a single session's appropriations. And whenever Congress appropriates over 32 billion in any one session we must begin to dig deep to pay the bills.

Price Control Administrator Leon Henderson and Purchasing Director Donald M. Nelson recently warned that the real impact of the defense program "is yet to be felt." They say that it will come when the government bears down on prices, profits and rationing to avert inflation. Besides strict rationing they also forecast government control of rents and retail prices.

"All out defense" calls for sacrifice; signs now point to drastic changes inour ways of doing business and our standards of living. Every single person in the country will feel the sacrifice in one way or another.

With another year, Elliott county farmers hope to have a 100 percent purebred stock record.

They returned late and reported a grand time and "Wink" says a "Chev" just can't be beat.

Henry Sleet of Beaver Lick called on Shermon Friend, Sunday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Friend and son Scott enjoyed the evening of the Fourth at beautiful Devou Park. The fireworks were very impressive, the final display being "God Bless America," which was very beautiful. All enjoyed the dance revue by Hiele-Tranter School of Dance pupils, as great professional talent was shown among the younger group. We suggest that all local families should visit this lovely spot more often, as it is indeed a park that all Northern Kentucky can be proud of. And Mr. Vincent Keller should be commended upon his efficient management of the whole grounds. So pack your picnic lunch, and plan to spend the day there soon, won't you, for it will help to boost a "home" spot worthy to be listed with the many other attractions which old Ken'tuck has to offer our many tourists.

—o—

A fire, thought to have been caused from combustion, destroyed a barn, garage, crib and other out-buildings, belonging to John W. Conley, Sunday, June 29.

A quantity of new hay had been stored in the barn on Saturday, and the fire started Sunday morning, as Mr. Conley was doing the morning chores.

It was feared for a time that the house would catch, but fortunately the wind shifted and eliminated that danger. The Walton fire department responded to the call for aid, but could do little, as the barn burned so rapidly.

Besides the buildings and hay, all feed, farming tools, harness, etc., were destroyed. Mr. Conley was able to get the cattle out, and to save his automobile, however.

—o—

The funeral of Roy Wilbur "Billy" Pitcher, who was killed when struck by an automobile near the Alkali Lake CCC Camp in Oregon, was held at the Christian church here last Tuesday afternoon, and was attended by a large concourse of sorrowing relatives and friends.

Six boys, who were close friends of Billy's, acted as pallbearers, and eight young girl friends carried flowers.

After a comforting message by Rev. Roy Johnson and the songs, "Safe in the Arms of Jesus," "Good Night and Good Morning," and "Sometime We'll Understand," by the choir, the body was laid to rest in the church cemetery.

Left to mourn his early death, are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Pitcher, one sister, Mrs. Fay Molique; three brothers, Eugene, Donald and Ralph Pitcher; his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Hodges and Mrs. May Pitcher; and many other relatives and a host of friends.

Chambers & Grubbs were in charge of arrangements.

Vote for B. J. "Barney" Glindmeyer for Co. Commissioner, first on the ballot. —Political Adv.

THE TRUTH SIMPLY TOLD

Today's popularity of Doan's Pills, after many years of worldwide use, surely must be accepted as evidence of satisfactory use. And favorable public opinion supports that of the able physicians who test the value of Doan's under exacting laboratory conditions.

These physicians, too, approve every word of advertising you read, the objective of which is only to recommend Doan's Pills as a good diuretic treatment for disorders of the kidney function and for relief of the pain and worry it causes.

If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove waste that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole body suffers when kidneys lag, and diuretic medication would be more often employed.

Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warn of disturbed kidney function. You may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel weak, nervous, all played out.

Use Doan's Pills. It is better to rely on a medicine that has won world-wide acclaim than to use something less favorably known. Ask your neighbor!

-that man IN OUR NEIGHBORHOOD!

A CALL IN THE NIGHT

We heard the children romping in their playroom upstairs—then suddenly, a scream!

We both rushed up and found our young son had fallen and apparently broken his arm. We immediately phoned our family physician, who verified our worst fears.

In time, the arm was carefully set, but other difficulties arose that called for an unusual prescription.

I looked at the clock—where could we get it filled at this late hour?

We spoke to the doctor, who then picked up the phone and called "that man" out of bed—again "that man" (our neighborhood druggist) did not fail us.

Our neighborhood druggist never fails us! Should you, like most women, suffer discomforts during the menstrual period, just phone your druggist—he usually advises women to try Vatona Tablets—this may be just what you need!

Lesson for July 13

CHRISTIANITY EXPANDS IN ASIA

LESSON TEXT—Acts 19:8-10, 23-32.
GOLDEN TEXT—So mightily grew the word of God and prevailed.—Acts 19:20.

War is the order of the day, and much as we may regret it the life of every one of us is affected by its feverish touch. Certainly no Christian has any pleasure in the violent hatreds of wicked men, and can only pray that somehow a righteous peace may come to this troubled world.

There is a warfare, however, which we do seek to foster and promote. We encourage it, and as Christians make a holy resolve to battle to the end. That is the warfare against Satan and his hosts. As long as he rules in the hearts of men, and sin and wickedness are here, we say, "Fight on, my soul."

Christian life and service are presented in Scripture as a fight. We do well to learn the methods and the weapons of this great spiritual conflict; not stressing a belligerent note of strife against one another, and particularly not between the divisions of God's army in the earth, but standing shoulder to shoulder in the battle against the Evil One.

I. Attack for God (vv. 8-10).

The vigorous prosecution of a strong attack on the enemy's position is good military strategy, and good spiritual warfare. The command of God is "Forward!" and His forces are not to hinder their effectiveness by weak indecision or fear. Paul sets us an example in his

1. Bold Preaching (vv. 8, 9a).

Paul had met some disciples (19:1-8) who knew only the baptism of John and did not have the Holy Spirit. Dr. Erdman rightly says that "there are many more like these twelve 'disciples' in the pews of Christian churches. They are sincere men, they hate their sins, they believe in the teachings of Jesus, they admire the Sermon on the Mount, they yearn for the highest and best things, but they lack spiritual power. Why? Because they are 'disciples of John,' they have not fixed their hearts and their hopes upon a divine, risen, glorified Christ; they do not know 'the grace of God.' When, however, they learn the full gospel and yield themselves to Christ, they are not merely baptized with water, but also the Holy Spirit."

2. Careful Teaching (vv. 9b, 10).

Three months of such preaching brought many converts, but there were also "hardened and disobedient" men whose opposition caused Paul to withdraw the disciples (learners) to the privacy of a lecture room for thorough instruction in Christian doctrine, a sort of Bible Institute of Ephesus. The church has largely failed in its teaching ministry and has thus weakened its effectiveness against the enemy. To be strong workers for the Lord, Christians must know the doctrines of the Bible.

II. Counter Attack by Satan (vv. 23-32).

The enemy of our souls is often content to let us go on in comparative peace as long as we do not bother him unduly, but once we put up the banner of a holy life and service in God's army, he begins a terrific counter attack. Paul had felt it already in the hardening of listeners' hearts (v. 8), but now it began in dead earnest.

1. By Selfish Opposition (vv. 23-27).

One way to bring a violent reaction against spiritual truth is to let it interfere with business. Demetrius and his fellow silversmiths professed to be concerned about the threatened destruction of the heathen worship of Diana (and what a fine testimony that was to the effectiveness of Paul's preaching!), but in reality they were worried about the loss of their ungodly business in charms (vv. 25-27).

Many of the enemies of the gospel in our time are fighting against God's Word because they are in a business which is condemned by it. They know that every time a new convert is won to Christ they lose a customer and it troubles them. Reader, if you are in that kind of business, get out of it quick before God's judgment falls upon you.

2. Senseless Tumult (vv. 28-32).

Knowing that their opposition was without true foundation, they inspired and agitated a wild demonstration. Is it not astonishing how many thoughtless and foolish people there are in the world who will senselessly follow the lead of someone who opposes God?

Shouting a slogan which had no real meaning, they lent their voices to the tumultuous agitation against God. Finally, one sensible man, fearing the punishment of city officials, quieted them. The Ephesians were just like many in our day who fear man more than God. But, may we ask, if you fear the judgment of men, how think you to escape the judgment of God? After all, it is God and His Word you oppose, unconverted friend. Do you think He will hold you guiltless?

A Blitzkrieg!

Alcohol's plan of assault on mankind may easily have been the primer in which Hitler learned blitzkrieg methods!

It isn't far-fetched to compare Hitler's attacks on civilization with liquor's all-out fight against the individual or the nation, in the opinion of such social welfare groups as the W.C.T.U.

The Nazis' propaganda divides the ranks of opponents, the Fifth Column weakens them and wins them over, then the shock troops move in to smash resistance — and seize another nation.

"Camouflaged Alcohol"

Wine is liquor's propaganda army. With millions to spend and cafe society as its mouthpiece it seduces with talk of moderation and enthralls with promises of "sparkling" fun. Disclaiming any connections with liquor's other armies, it uses its high alcoholic content to enslave those it contacts. Wine is high on the list of causes for the high enrollment of alcoholics in mental hospitals.

Beer is the true Fifth Column. It's a hard core of alcohol camouflaged with suds—and fools a lot of people. "Why, I'm just a soft drink," it tells the boys and girls. "Drink beer and you can have fun without paying a price." Those who live near taverns, the records of juvenile, traffic, and criminal courts all show that 3.2 beer will intoxicate but beer is so slick that even tongue-in-cheek lawmakers have ruled it officially non-intoxicating.

"No Subterfuge Here"

Wine and beer do their work. They win the addicts, students of temperance declare, then come the dive bombers, the shock troops, the heavy tanks—such as whisky, gin, and rum. There's nothing secret about this army, it just moves in and takes over.

No matter what its disguise, any liquor is just another alcoholic beverage and a division of the liquor traffic, interested solely in profits and not national well-being, the W.C.T.U. points out.

INDEPENDENCE

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Stephens and daughters Myra and Gail, left Thursday for Brokosville, Ky., where they spent the 5th of July holiday with Mrs. Stephens' parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Butler, and her sister, Miss Anna Catherine Butler.

Floyd Stephenson of Minneapolis, Minn., and Johnson Stephenson of Detroit, Mich., have returned to their home after a visit with their sister, Mrs. Frazier and other relatives. Charles Stephenson also returned to Dayton, Ohio, after a few days' visit.

Miss Helen Margaret Stephens returned home with Floyd and Johnson Stephenson for a visit.

Company Meals That Spare the Hostess

By Katharine Fisher
Director, Good Housekeeping Institute

Playing the double role of cook and hostess is less trying on nerves and disposition if you will plan menus that are easily prepared. Then there will be less hustle and bustle in the kitchen, and when you emerge to greet your guests you can be as cool, calm, and charming as you want to be. Here are some quick-and-easy meals that, for all their simplicity, meet the needs of gracious hospitality.

Sunday Buffet Breakfast

Broiled Grapefruit
Choice of Cereal Top Milk
New-Style Creamed Dried Beef
Toast
Assorted Preserves Coffee

New-Style Creamed Dried Beef

¼ lb. dried beef
6 tbsp. butter or margarine
6 tbsp. flour
¾ tsp. salt
Speck pepper
3 c. bottled milk, or 1½ c. evaporated milk and 1½ c. water
1 tsp. prepared mustard
Dash cayenne pepper
⅛ tsp. bottled thick condiment sauce
½ c. minced parsley
6 shelled, soft or hard-cooked eggs
Toast

Shred dried beef, and let stand in boiling water 2 min. Drain. Melt better in double boiler; stir in flour, salt, and pepper. Add milk, and cook, stirring, until thickened. Add all remaining ingredients except eggs and toast, and heat. Just before serving, carefully drop in the whole eggs, which have been soft (3½ min.) or hard cooked, as preferred, and then shelled. Serve right from the double boiler on toast. Serves 6.

Speedy Luncheon

Eggs Baked in Cheese Sauce
Raw Carrot, Scallion, Avocado Salad Bowl
Toasted Split Rolls
Vanilla Ice Cream in Ginger Ale
Chocolate Walnut Cookies

Eggs Baked in Cheese Sauce

6 tbsp. butter or margarine
6 tbsp. flour
¾ tsp. salt
3 c. bottled milk, or 1½ c. evaporated milk and 1½ c. water
2 tsp. prepared mustard
2 c. grated American cheese
10 eggs

Melt butter in double boiler; stir in flour and salt. Add milk, and cook, stirring, until thickened. Add mustard and cheese; stir until cheese is melted. Cover bottom of an 8" × 12½" × 1½" baking dish with ½ of sauce. Carefully break eggs into sauce; cover with remaining sance. Bake in moderate oven of 325° F. for 20 to 25 min., depending on how well done you like eggs. Serves 6.

A Skillet Dinner

Skillet Pork Chops with Vegetables
Cabbage Slaw Bread
Rhubarb-and-Strawberry Delight
Packaged Cookies Tea

Skillet Pork Chops with Vegetables

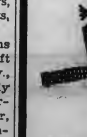
2 c. peeled, sliced onions
2 tbsp. fat or salad oil
8 lean pork chops, 1" thick
2 tbsp. flour
1½ tsp. salt
⅛ tsp. pepper
1 1¼-oz. can vegetable-juice cocktail (1½ c.)
1 tsp. granulated sugar
1 bay leaf
4 peppercorns
¾ tsp. powdered sage
1 c. celery in 1" pieces
1 No. 2 can string beans (2½ c.)
1 12-oz. can whole-grain corn

Sauté onions in fat in a covered skillet until tender, but not brown. Remove, and set aside. Dredge pork chops with flour combined with 1 tsp. salt and the pepper. Sauté pork chops in skillet until golden-brown on both sides. Add onions, remaining ¾ tsp. salt, vegetable-juice cocktail, sugar, bay leaf, peppercorns, and sage. Cover, and simmer over low heat for 45 min. Add celery, and continue to simmer, covered, for 30 min. Arrange string beans and corn, which have been combined and seasoned as desired, around inside edge of skillet. Cover, and heat until vegetables are thoroughly hot; then serve right from skillet. Serves 6.

Rhubarb-and-Strawberry Delight

1 lb. rhubarb
¾ c. water
¾ c. sugar
1 pt. strawberries

Wash rhubarb; cut in 1" pieces; add water, and simmer until almost tender—about 4 min. Then add sugar (enough to sweeten), and continue to cook until tender—about 1 min. Just before removing from heat, add strawberries, which have been washed, hulled, and halved. Chill. Serves 6.



Be Not Dismayed

By E. C. Baird

"For all things work together"
In clear and cloudy weather;
'Tis true, no matetr whether
We understand.
If no spring or summer showers,
Where then would we get our flowers?
Where the golden autumn hours,
And harvest time?
It takes the dark threads and the light
To make Life's pattern come out right;
God's love sees deeper than our sight—
Don't separate!
When our tears and laughter blend,
There's a rainbow at the end;
Doubt it not, He's still our friend—
Be not dismayed!

HOUSE-TO-HOUSE CANVASSERS

We have become so accustomed to convassers for every imaginable thing that we hardly realize that a few years ago we were not molested by many of this sort and welcomed the salesman, regardless of what he had to sell. The most common salesman, of course, was the pack peddler, with his flashy wares. We wanted to see him and enjoy his unrolled pack, wether we bought or not. Rarely did we fail to buy something, however. The clock tinker might also be regarded as a traveling salesman, who could doctor sick clocks, mend gun locks, grind knives and scissors, and do nearly any other delicate mechanical work. About once each spring some neighbor boy or girl got a notion that there must be a watch or some jewelry in the neighborhood; forthwith a youngster started out to sell gold-eyed needles or some sort of fancy bluing, or some garden seeds, to win a prize. Since the salesman was homegrown, it was a point of honor to buy something. And then came the prize, bright and shiny enough at first, but likely to tarnish rather soon. It it were a ring, it left a green band around the finger; if it were a watch, it ticked loudly enough for anything while it was new, but it soon got troubles all its own, troubles that few of our monkey wrenches and hammers could mend. We might have a pair of immense wire-pliers, but what could they do with a watch? And for a time the failure of our bag of gold at the end of the house-to-house rainbow kept others from biting too eagerly at the bait afforded in the small monthly magazines that came to most of our homes.

After every major disaster or during great national times of stress there came people selling books by subscription. It was in this way that I learned all the horrors of the Johnstown Flood, the Galveston Flood, the Spanish-American War. One book sold in our area was called "Cohquering the Dark Continent," a rather readable book on African exploration. Lurid though it may have been, it introduced us to Livingstone and Stanley. The pictures which I took to be photographs I have long since learned were mere sketches, but they gave me a sufficient thrill anyway.

Rarely there came colporteurs, traveling sellers of religious literature. In this way I got many an insight into serious books. One such subscription-sold book was called "The Beautiful Story," an excellent retelling of the stories of the Bible and profusely illustrated. Some of my generation got their introduction to the Bible through this book. For years I entertained myself by re-reading the stories in this work that I had already memorized. Colporteurs also sold smaller books of a devotional nature, most of them rather attractive but frightfully high in prices, as seen now from the vantage point of a third of a century. Some years after I left home, a traveling salesman came to our neighborhood and sold many a small book on Rosicrucian philosophy, about the weirdest things that ever got past the watchful eyes of Fidelity. In one that my parents bought I discovered that evil spirits that fell only halfway to hell when Satan was kicked out of heaven, lingered in the air and caused all the weather. Other equally mysterious things appeared in what on the surface seemed an orthodox presentation of Bible truths.

Closely akin to canvassers were (and are) people who are "saving up coupons to get one of those." Nearly everything we bought at the store had coupons. These, with a small amount of money, could bring fine silverware and hundreds of other things to our doors. We treasured these coupons and often begged them all around the community. I regret to say that most of our premiums were like those obtained by selling Bluing or some other marvelous way to lighten housework.

Doings of The REDS

The Reds feel they have discovered their batting eyes, which seemed to have strayed during the winter, and now they are prepared to stage the drive they hope will shove them right back into the thick of the battle for the 1941 National League pennant.

With Jimmy Gleeson, Lloyd Waner, and Mike McCormick uncorking offensive strength at one time, it became quite easy to enthuse about the prospects of the Reds. However, there is nothing soft in front of McKechnie's men, regardless fo their newly found batting strength, because facing them is another trip through the East.

Before going into the matter of an eastern trip, however, the Reds have something on their hands on their home diamond, as they are scheduled to meet the Pittsburgh Pirates in a July 4 doubleheader at Crosley Field, then their next move is to entertain the battling St. Louis Cardinals in single games Saturday and Sunday.

Those four games will be the last at Crosley Field until July 22, when the Brooklyn Dodgers come to town for a ladies' day game that will be followed by a night game the following evening, July 23. The trip through the East that will precede these games with the Brooklyns here, will take the Reds first to Flatbush,, then to Boston, New York, Philadelphia, then home.

The feeling among the Reds that they are ready to climb is shared by the clubs ahead of them in the race. It seems that the Reds' past achievements, plus their indications of returning to the 1940 form, has made some of the opposing players think. For instance, the Dodgers can well recall that last year the Reds gained all of their 12 game margin during the closing half of the season.

There are plenty of tickets remaining for all of the Reds' weekend games. Those who do not obtain their tickets in advance should be able to get them at the park the day of the game.

EARLY HISTORY OF BOONE COUNTY

By A. M. Yealey

Laws enacted during the slave period in Kentucky were very severe on both the owner and the slave. A great many slave owners freed their slaves before the Civil War, under the provision of an Act that was passed in 1851, by which an owner could free his slaves by (1) deed, by (2) will and Testament, (3) by Debts and liabilities of the owner. (4) Upon condition of their being removed from the State of Kentucky.

No slave could be emancipated who was over 65 years of age or if he was incapable of work, unless the owner provided the means of transportation out of the state and one year's support.

If a person, who owned slaves, died and his will freed the slaves and he failed to provide for their transportation out of Kentucky, the County Courts would take charge of the slave and hire him out from year to year until a sufficient fund was created to defray the expenses of moving the slave to some place out of the state and keep him for a year.

The County Courts of each county, would appoint trustees to see after all slaves that became free and these trustees were compelled to give heavy bonds for the faithful discharge of their duty.

If a whole family was freed, the procedure was the same, the whole family was hired out until enough revenue was saved to deport all out of the state.

Should a slave or family that became emancipated, refuse to leave the county, then the County Court would hire them out until they were willing to leave and actually did leave the state.

Any free Negro, who came to Kentucky after the eleventh day of June, 1851, with the intention of remaining here, was charged with a felony and if he was found guilty, he was sent to the penitentiary for five years.

If a free Negro from another state, and not a resident of Kentucky, came to Boone county, he would have to go to the office of the County Clerk and explain his business to the Clerk; and if the Clerk was satisfied with the answer he could issue him a certificate, stating the object of the visit and let him remain and transact his business, but not to exceed 30 days, and a free Negro was expected to pay 50c for his certificate. He was compelled to get this certificate within 24 hours after stepping his foot on Boone county soil, and at the expiration of his certificate, if caught, he would be put in jail until he could give good security to leave the state and also to pay all costs arising from the case.

If an owner of slaves died and his will made his slaves free, the slaves could not declare their freedom unless all debts were paid first, because the laws said emancipated slaves shall be equitable assets in the hands of the personal representative of the testator for the payments of debts.

Kenton Co. Farm News

FARM ACCOUNT WORK

Mr. R. E. Proctor, Field Agent in Farm Management from the College of Agriculture, Lexington, Kentucky, will return the farm business analysis reports to the 1940 farm account cooperators on Wednesday and Thursday, July 16th and 17th.

Sixteen Kenton county farmers kept farm account records during 1940. Each of these farmers will receive a summary of their farm enterprise. Mr. Proctor will point out those enterprises which are paying and those which are losing money on the farm.

Every farmer should keep records no matter how simple the records may be. The Farm Management Department at Lexington publishes a record in standard book form. Anyone desiring a copy of this record book may obtain it at the county agent's office.

FARMERS IN AAA MAY INCREASE FORAGE CROPS TO OFFSET DROUGHT EFFECTS

To offset the effect of spring drought on feed crops throughout Kentucky, the State AAA office has announced removal of Agricultural conservation program restrictions on forage crops, Geo. A. Eubanks chairman of the Kenton county Agricultural Conservation Association, said today.

AAA cooperators will be permitted to make immediate increase in plantings of such crops as Sudan grass, soybeans and sorghum without incurring payment deductions for exceeding their total-depleting allotments.

Serious damage to feed crops in general and particularly to hay and pasture in virtually all counties of the State as a result of below-normal rainfall this spring is reported by the State AAA Office. This threat to the Department of Agriculture's food-for-defense program prompted removal of the forage-crop-restrictions.

The action was taken upon recommendation of the State AAA Committee and is in line with the 1942 program changes outlined June 6, by the Secretary of Agriculture.

The 1942 Agricultural Conservation program changes, announced by the Secretary, permit farmers in designated counties to plant emergency forage crops in excess of total-soil-depleting allotments without incurring deductions.

"All counties in Kentucky have been so designated by the AAA," O. M. Farrington, State Executive officer of the AAA, has announced. "In effect," Farrington stated, "this removes general acreage allotments and total soil-depleting allotments during the current 1941 program year which ended June 30.

"It does not in any way effect special allotment crops for tobacco, and wheat," Farrington said, "and does not affect corn allotments in the 12 Kentucky commercial corn counties.

In announcing the 1942 program changes the Secretary of Agriculture pointed out that rainfall deficiencies responsible for the drought in the eastern half of the United States have been cumulative since December. Therefore, he said, effects of the drought cannot be entirely offset by recent rains in some areas and he emphasized that "unless emergency measures are taken in the east the food-for-defense program could be seriously handicapped.

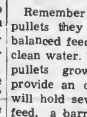
POULTRY POINTERS FOR JULY

By C. E. Harris

The price of poultry and eggs is such that we should be encouraged to give the laying flock better treatment. By using good management practices now your layers will produce more profit during the summer and a high percent of these hens will be profitable in the laying house this next winter. Culls do not pay regardless of the price of eggs. So, culling should be done systematically during the summer.

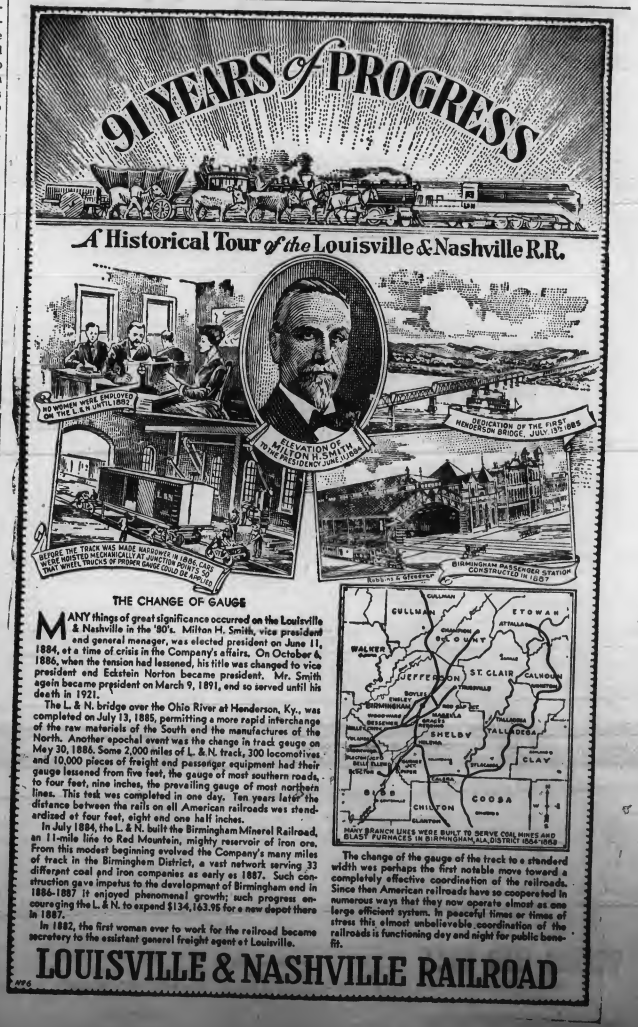
Cheaper eggs are produced by flocks that are properly fed. A good laying mash, grain, oyster shell or ground limestone should be available in separate hoppers at all times.

Lousy hens are not profitable and there is little excuse for lice on the birds. These pests can be controlled by thorough treatment of the flock, but often lice remain after treatment due to a lack of thoroughness in applying the treatment or failure to follow the first application in 8 to 10 days to get the lice that hatch from the nits that are on the feathers.



Remember that to produce good pullets they must be fed a well balanced feed and given plenty of clean water. The best way to keep pullets growing normally is to provide an outdoor feeder which will hold several days' supply of feed, a barrel for water and a range shelter which will permit the pullets to use a clean pasture range.

Pullets may be fed grain and mash in separate hoppers, and all-mash or grain and meat and bone scrap to which two pounds of salt is added to 100 pounds of the meat and bone scrap. The feeding of meat and bone scrap should be used only when a good pasture is available. The method of feeding growing pullets is not nearly as important as being sure that a well balanced feed is always available.



Excellent results have been secured in past years by vaccinating pullets for fowl pox, where pox has been present the year before. The cost is low and now is the time to do this if you have had trouble with pox in the past year or two.

Let us miss no opportunity to insure filling the laying house with good pullets this fall.

91 YEARS of PROGRESS
A Historical Tour of the Louisville & Nashville R.R.
THE CHANGE OF GAUGE
MANY things of great significance occurred on the Louisville & Nashville in the '80's. Milton H. Smith, vice president and general manager, was elected president on June 11, 1884, at a time of crisis in the Company's affairs. On October 6, 1886, when the tension had lessened, his title was changed to vice president and Edstein Norton became president. Mr. Smith again became president on March 9, 1891, and so served until his death in 1921.
The L. & N. bridge over the Ohio River at Henderson, Ky., was completed on July 13, 1885, permitting a more rapid interchange of the raw materials of the South and the manufactures of the North. Another epochal event was the change in track gauge on May 30, 1886. Some 2,000 miles of L. & N. track, 300 locomotives and 10,000 pieces of freight and passenger equipment had their gauge lessened from five feet, the gauge of most southern roads, to four feet, nine inches, the prevailing gauge of most northern lines. This task was completed in one day. Ten years later the distance between the rails on all American railroads was standardized at four feet, eight and one half inches.
In July 1884, the L. & N. built the Birmingham Mineral Railroad, an 11-mile line to Red Mountain, mighty reservoir of iron ore. From this modest beginning evolved the Company's many miles of track in the Birmingham District, a vast network serving 33 different coal and iron companies as early as 1887. Such construction gave impetus to the development of Birmingham and in 1886-1887 it enjoyed phenomenal growth; such progress encouraging the L. & N. to expend $134,163.95 for a new depot there in 1887.
In 1882, the first woman ever to work for the railroad became secretary to the assistant general freight agent at Louisville.
The change of the gauge of the track to a standard width was perhaps the first notable move toward a completely effective coordination of the railroads. Since then American railroads have so cooperated in numerous ways that they now operate almost as one large efficient system. In peaceful times or times of stress this almost unbelievable coordination of the railroads is functioning day and night for public benefit.

Every kind, loving thought
Bears a kind, loving deed;
While a thought that is selfish
Is just like a weed.

We must watch what we think,
Each minute, all day;
And pull out the weed thoughts
And throw them away;

And plant loving seed thoughts
So thick in a row
That there will not be room
For weed thoughts to grow.

Board of Trustees Provides Walton With Free Parking Lot; Use It!

Some time ago, the Board of Trustees of the Town of Walton, purchased the lot opposite the Chevrolet Garage, in order to provide parking space for the patrons of our town, as well as to keep the highway clear of congestion and accidents in the business area.

Out-of-town people are cordially invited to use this parking lot while visiting Walton—all day if necessary—as there is no charge for parking. You will find an easily accessible place to park, where your car will be off the main thoroughfare, and out of danger of accidents and damage.

The rural section is especially invited to Walton, where will be found good stores, good churches, and we believe that your dollar will buy as much here as in any other town near you. If you have something to sell, call the Walton Merchants and give them a chance to buy it, and help us to make Walton an even better town.

BOARD OF TRUSTEES OF THE TOWN OF WALTON
D. L. LUSBY, Chairman.

WALTON NUTRITION UNIT TO MEET JULY 22

Every person, who is interested in Home Defense, is invited to attend the meeting of the Nutrition Unit. All heads of Civic Organizations are particularly urged to attend.

The meeting will be held at the Walton school gym, Tuesday, July 22, at 7:45 p. m., Eastern Standard Time.

RED CROSS FISH FRY SATURDAY, JULY 19

The Happy Twelve Club will sponsor a fish fry at the Verona school house, on Saturday, July 19, starting at 5:30, and continuing until everyone is served. Come out and eat with us. There will be fish, salad, bread, pie, coffee or tea for the small amount of twenty-five cents. Then there will be ice cream and cake, home made candy and probably a country store. Come to Verona next Saturday, eat fish, meet your friends, and enjoy an evening of fellowship. Quite a few folks from out-of-town, have promised to be present and we will do our best to please you.

WILLING WORKERS CLASS ENJOYS PICNIC SUPPER

The Willing Workers class of the Christian church assembled at Ruth's Tourist Camp, Monday night, with well filled baskets, for their regular meeting.

After the delightful picnic supper, a short business session was conducted. Mrs. Lula Huey, vice-president, presided, in the absence of the president. Visiting filled the remainder of the evening.

Those who enjoyed this affair were: Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Ransler and son, Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Rouse and sons, Mrs. Julia Rouse, Miss Thelma Moore, Mrs. Olivia Wells and daughter, Miss Mary Ransler, Miss Luke Gordon, Miss Martha Wilson of Sparta, Mr. and Mrs. Powers Conrad, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Hall, Rev. and Mrs. T. H. Alderson and daughter, Mrs. Louis Schwab and children, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Doan, and daughter, Mrs. Lula Huey and Verne James.

Plans are being made for a picnic again next month, but the place is undecided.

WALTON HIGH GRADUATE HEADS DENTAL SOCIETY

In a recent issue of one of the Lexington papers, there appeared an article concerning summer activities of the Bluegrass Dental Society, as released by its president, Dr. Leon M. Childers, Lexington.

It will be recalled by many that Dr. Childers is a graduate of Walton High school, having received his diploma in the class of '20, and during his school days resided, with his parents, on a farm near Verona. His friends and acquaintances in this section will be pleased to learn of his having recently been installed as president of this Dental group. Congratulations!

A revival of interest in home canning is reported in Fulton county.

Canning Dem'nstr't'n Scheduled July 22nd

The latest methods of canning fruits and vegetables will be given in a canning demonstration next Tuesday, July 22nd. The demonstration, sponsored by the Boone county Homemakers, will be held at the New Burlington school, 1:30 p. m. (E. S. T.), according to Mary Hood Gillaspie, Home Demonstration Agent.

Everyone in the county is invited to attend the demonstration. Homemakers are making many efforts to give canning information that will enable the homemaker to be better prepared for emergencies which the National Defense situation may produce.

Miss Myron Clinard, food preservation specialist, Educational Department, Bayy Brothers Company, will give the demonstration. Miss Clinard, a former 4-H member, and Homemaker, has had much practical experience in canning in the home and in the class rooms.

The canning demonstration is part of the year's program planned by the "Live at Home" leader last spring.

PLACES FOR RUG SHOW ANNOUNCED

Boone county Homemakers will sponsor a rug and mat show this week on July 17, 18 and 19. Each Homemakers' Club in the county will show their handicraft at one of these exhibit centers.

The public is invited to visit one or all of the exhibits during the three-day show. Major project leaders, serving as hostesses, will be present at each center to answer questions concerning the rugs and mats.

The exhibits will be arranged Thursday morning. Miss Vivian Cornutt, home improvement specialist, will arrange the displays in each center. She will be assisted by Major Project leaders, Mrs. Rod Hughes, county rug chairman, and Mary Hood Gillaspie, Home Demonstration Agent.

Following are the exhibit centers: Burlington, old Recorder office; Florence, Town Hall; Walton, Walton Garage, Hardware Store, Community Public Service Electric Shop, and Mr. Percival's Department Store.

A Repeat --- Errors!

In last week's article, "To The Voters of the 3rd Magisterial District and Citizens of Boone County," by M. C. Carroll, a Magisterial candidate, we were guilty of two rather noticable ommissions. We are sorry these "slips" were allowed to pass, and trust all will read the corrected article which follows.

To the Voters of the 3rd Magisterial District and Citizens of Boone County:

While I make the race for magistrate I would like to say to the voters that in the past years I have voted the Democratic ticket and worked in last elections with some good Democrats. I am at present a member of the Young Men's Democratic Club.

I have been secretary for the Big Bone M. W. of A. Camp for the past nine years. At the present time I have a general store and trucking business located near Big Bone, Ky.

While making this race I promise if I am elected that I will at all times be looking after the interest of each taxpayer. I intend to try to give the people who are on those sideroads, a better road over which to send their livestock and products to market. After driving a truck for twenty years I feel as if I know what the farmers need in the way of good roads. If elected I expect to look over each road in my district and make a report of the condition to the other magistrates and the Judge, so that each precinct will get their share of the road tax money. I would like to have the support of each Voter on Saturday, August 2, 1941. I assure you your support will at all times be appreciated.

M. C. CARROLL.

DEFENSE BOND QUIZ

Q. What is the price of a Defense Savings Bond?

A. For the smallest Bond, you pay $18.75. The Bond will increase in value in ten years to $25. For $75, you get a Bond which will increase to $100; other Bonds are in proportion.

Q. What will the Government do with the money I pay for my Bond?

A. Your money will be put to work at once in the National Defense Program to protect the freedom and safety of the United States, and of all its people everywhere.

NOTE—To purchase Defense Bonds and Stamps, go to the nearest post office or bank, or write for information to the Treasurer of the United States, Washington, D. C.

Walton Homemakers Enjoy All-Day Tour

Eighteen members of the Walton Homemakers and six guests had a delightful time Friday on an all-day tour.

The first place of interest, was a trip through the French Bauer Co., arring at noon. Here we enjoyed our picnic lunch, after which we were treated to ice cream and milk. A guide then took us through the plant, and showed us how they make ice cream, cheese, etc.

From there we went on to radio station WKRC in time to be present for Ruth Lyon's program, "Open House." Mrs. Leo Flynn, one of the leaders of the club, said a few words over the air, telling the things the club has accomplished the past year, and of our new project for next year. Eldon Pickett was also on the baseball Quiz program, questions being asked the boys and girls in the audience by the announcer.

After leaving WKRC, our last visit was at the Kroger Food Foundation, where we were guided through their laboratories and kitchens. At the end of this tour, we were served refreshments of coffee, and cold Wescola drinks by the girls at the Foundation. Each member of the group was also given a coupon for a pound of Country Club Coffee, good at any Kroger store.

These interesting and educational trips are being sponsored instead of the regular all-day meetings, during the summer months.

Those attending were: Mrs. Ora Stone, Mrs. Hazel Pickett and son Elden, Mrs. Ada Moore and daughter Thelma, Mrs. Gardiner and daughter Elaine, Miss Colleen Vanlandingham and guest, Mrs. Edna Vest, Mrs. Ora Fry, Mrs. Gaynell Flynn, Mrs. Julia Rouse, Mrs. Elizabeth Gross, Mrs. Georgia Arnold, Miss Elicia Neumeister, Mrs. T. H. Alderson,, Mrs. Carrie Rouse, Mrs. Pearl Bedinger, Mrs. Anna Pearl Gaines, Miss Bess Conrad, Mrs. Grace Darling, Mrs. D. L. Lusby, Mrs. H. T. Mann of Crittenden.

We hope to be along on another tour next year.

45 ATTEND DAIRY FIELD MEETING

Forty-five dairymen attended the dairy field meeting and tour on last Tuesday, July 8, according to County Agent H. R. Forkner. The tour was one of the most successful held during the past ten years.

Dairymen expressed renewed interest in improved dairy equipment, breeding and management problems. Splendid dairy herds were visited on the tour.

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Wilson were hosts at the noon hour to those attending. Good sandwiches, cake and tea were served to all Dairy Herd Improvement Association records, association breeding problems, good pastures and equipment were seen at the farms of Jesse Wilson, Verona; R. B. Huey & Son, Burlington; and Robert Youell of Limsburg.

George Harris, dairy specialist, and Harold Crigler, were principal speakers on the afternoon program.

Daily Vacation Bible School at Richwood

A communiy Daily Vacation Bible School will be held at the Richwood Presbyterian church next week. Each morning, Monday through Friday, from 9-12 o'clock, boys and girls, betwten the ages of 4-18, will enjoy three hours of fun, fellowship, and Biblical training. During the handicraft period, the boys will do some modeling in plastic clay. It is hoped that all of the children of the Richwood, Beaver, Hughes Chapel and Union neighborhoods will attend.

The teaching and administrative staff is composed of Rev. J. Russell Cross, pastor of Richwood church; Rev. S. B. Godby, pastor of Hughes Chapel Methodist church; Mrs. Robert G. Robinson, Mrs. Warren Utz, Miss Jane Bristow, Mrs. J. F. Cleek, Mrs. Bradie Cox, Mrs. Hubert Baker, Mrs. John S. Taylor, Mrs. Stanley Ransom, Mrs. B. F. Bedinger, Miss Rebecca Sleet, Mr. Hubert Baker, and Mr. Jake Cleek.

Boys and girls, make your plans right now to attend every session —Monday through Friday, July 21-July 25!

MRS. TALLEY HOSTESS TO W. C. T. U., FRIDAY

Mrs. J. H. Talley opened her home to the W. C. T. U., Friday, July 11th, when they gathered for their regular meeting.

A most instructive program was rendered by Mrs. D. E. Bedinger, the principle thought being brought out by the different articles read, was " Booze and Gasoline Cannot Mix." The leading doctors and surgeons find NO PLACE for liquor.

Mrs. R. O. Hughes, our corresponding secretary wrote, on behalf of our Union to Congressman Brent Spence and Senator A. B. Chandler and A. W. Barkley, to please do all in their power to help pass the Morris Sheppard bill. Each one wrote an encouraging letter.

We ask the help and prayers of all true christians of our town and community to make our town what God would and does want it to be. We are ALIVE and come join us, won't you.

The August meeting will be the first Friday afternoon, at 2:30, with Mrs. Horace Simpson.

116 EXAMINED AT T. B. X-RAY CLINIC

According to reports from those in charge, about 116 children were examined for tuberculosis at the X-ray clinic, held at the Florence High school building Tuesday. The children, who came from all sections of Boone county, were examined by doctors from the State Board of Health.

BIG BONE W. M. S. HOLDS MONTHLY MEETING

The Big Bone W. M. S. met at the church for their July meeting, on Thursday, July 10th, with Mrs. Harrison presiding.

The devotional was brought by Mrs. Huff and Mrs. Ella Rouse offered prayer, after which the watch words were repeated.

Following the business session, Mrs. Edith Jones took charge of the program. Those taking part were, Mrs. Mary Hubbard, Mrs. Ella Rouse, Mrs. May Harrison, Mrs. K. Aylor, and Mrs. B. Huff. The meeting was dismissed with prayer by Mrs. K. Aylor.

The August meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Mary Hubbard. —Publicity Chairman.

CHIPS BONE IN WRIST

Rev. T. H. Alderson suffered a painful injury to his wrist, last Wednesday, when he attempted to push his car from the garage. According to reports, the car refused to start, due to a "dead" battery, and Rev. Alderson proceded to push it from its lodging place. It seems the car sort of "got away" from him, and in an effort to stop it, he tried to hold the car, bracing his hand against the garage. The weight was evidently too great, and as a result the bone in the wrist was chipped.

VETCH AVAILABLE AS COVER CROP

Winter hairy vetch will be available as conservation material for winter cover crop seeding in Boone county this fall, John E. Crigler, secretary of the county Agricultural Conservation Association, said today.

This seed is ordered through the county office and charged against the farm's soil building allowance for the 1942 agricultural conservation program.

The deduction rate for vetch seed will be $9.50 per 100 lbs. There will be a small charge for handling, which will be paid directly by the farmer. Several conveniently located places in the county will handle this vetch. A credit of $1.50 per acre will be given in the Agricultural Conservation Program toward earning the soil-building allowance, for the seeding of vetch seed and an additional $1.50 per acre for turning or discking it under the following spring. Vetch is seeded at the rate from 15 to 20 pounds per acre. An ideal place for seeding vetchis on land that will be plowed under and planted to a depleting crop in 1942. It may also be used for hay. It should be planted with some small grain crop, regardless wether it is planted as a green manure crop or for hay. The vetch seed should by all means be innoculated before it is planted unless the ground has been innoculated recently for vetch.

Supplies of this seed to be made available in the county, probably will be limited, and farmers interested in using it to earn part of their 1942 soil-building allowances should place orders at an early date.

Last year approximately 480,000 pounds of vetch seed was furnished as a conservation material in Kentucky counties. Although the seed was received late in the season ,he added, very favorable reports have been received from farmers who seeded this winter legume.

Revival at Florence Baptist Church

A two-weeks series of revival meetings will begin at the Baptist church, Florence, on Monday evening, July 28. Services are to be held nightly, beginning at 8 o'clock, Eastern Standard Time.

Rev. R. F. DeMoisey, pastor, announces that the guest speaker will be Rev. D. H. Willett of Erwin, Tenn. The Rev. Mr. Willett is well and favorably known in this section, he having been pastor of the local Baptist church a number of years ago. His many friends will, no doubt, be pleased to learn of this return to Kentucky, and plan to hear him speak while at Florence.

Mr. Al Fields, well known gospel singer and a member of the Florence congregation, will be in charge of the music.

The public is cordially invited to attend these worthwhile religious services.

POND BUILDING PROGRAM OFFERED

Boone county farmers will be offered the services of an experienced contracting engineer and pond builder in the near future, according to H. R. Forkner, county agent. The contractor will use modern equipment building ponds and lakes by the hour or by contract.

Approximately fifty farmers have already applied for this service and many more are expected to file application as soon as the work gets started.

Good water is one of the most important needs in profitable livestock production. There is truth in the saying "An animal can live for weeks without food, but only a few days without water." Present methods and experience in building water supplies give the farmer the lowest cost in history. Those desiring pond construction should contact the County Office.

Committee Studies Lamb Marketing

The Boone county lamb marketing committee studied the marketing of Kenton and Gallatin counties, Kentucky, and Preble county, Ohio, lambs on the Cincinnati Livestock Market last Wednesday, July 9, according to H. R. Forkner, county agent. Pool lambs were found to bring from 85c to $1.00 per hundred more than non-pooled lambs and the organization was found to be working satisfactory to cooperating farmers.

The committee plans to present the pool lambs marketing program to sheepman attending the annual meeting of the Boone county Sheep Protective Association at Burlington, Saturday, September 6th, at 1:00 p. m.

The lamb pool marketing program presents to farmers four distinct advantages:

1. Graded lambs grouped in car load lots or approximately that number gives the packer greater confidence as to uniform quality and enables him to pay a higher price.
2. Lower selling costs results through car lot selling.
3. Lambs are graded locally and those lambs that are not ready for top quality price can be left at home.
4. Co-operative organization work results in farmers producing higher quality product that demands a premium on the market.

NUTRITION MEETING HELD AT VERONA

The Verona Community Unit of the Boone County Nutrition Organization, met at the Verona school on last Wednesday. There were not as many in attendance as the chairman would have liked, but the few who were there made quite a few plans, elected officers and set goals for the coming year.

The meeting was called to order by the temporary chairman, and when the roll was called, it was found several groups and organizations were represented, as the Verona Homemakers, P.-T. A., W. M. U., A. A. A., Y. W. A., 4-H, Happy Twelve Club. After these various organizations were recognized, a very interesting talk on Defense was given. Miss Mary Hood Gillaspie told us the purpose of this organization in the United States, in Kentucky, in the county, and in the communities. There are officers governing all bodies, Paul V. McNutt being National Chairman.

The officers elected for Verona are as follows: Chairman, Mrs. Francis McCormick; sec'y, Mrs. Sarah King; treasurer, Jesse Wilson. Committees appointed were; Garden, Will B. McCormick; Home Canning, Mrs. King; School Lunch, Sibbia Gordon; Publicity, Mrs King; Nutrition in the Home, Maude Wilson; Exhibits, Gladys Stewart.

H. R. Forkner talked to us on Home Defense through the garden and crops. This talk was enjoyed by all. Discussion held, regarding the individual problems of our community. Goals set were "To get people to realize the shortage of food." (2) To teach children in school the need of proper diet. (3) To help improve the school lunches. (4) Attend County Canning Demonstration. (5) Getting families to eat the proper foods and to can and store all the fruits and

INDEPENDENCE AND COMMUNITY FIRE DEPT. TO SPONSOR ANNUAL PICNIC

The Independence and Community Fire Department have made their final plans for their fourth annual picnic. The affair, which is looked forward to each year since its beginning, will be held in the Courthouse yard at Independence, Friday and Saturday nights, July 25 and 26.

To those, who like to dance, the new concrete dance pavilion will be the paramount attraction. Music will be furnished by Kentucky Colonels.

According to all indications this is to be the biggest affair yet held. So, don't miss the fun and frolic!

Washington Snapshots by JAMES PRESTON

The important House Military Affairs Committee, headed by Representative May of Kentucky, numbers 17 Democrats and 11 Republicans in its membership. But it rose above partisanship and reached heights of real statesmanship in the majority report on defense which it made a short time ago.

The document in question is worth serious study by anyone interested in the defense situation. Unfortunately it didn't receive much initial attention, for the Committee, more serious-minded than publicity-wise, made it public on a Saturday. As a result, it appeared in the newspapers the following day, and anyone who has ever tackled a three-pound metropolitan Sunday edition knows that any single piece of news has a pretty good chance of getting lost and "buried" there.

The report is a big affair, the outcome of many weeks of careful study, and only a few of its main thoughts can be summarized here. It is most notable as a piece of statesmanship for the unflinching way in which it lays the blame for deficiencies of the defense program, such as they are, squarely on the shoulders of government. That took realism and courage.

Serious present deficiencies in defense, the committee frankly declared, were attributable largely to "absence of a responsible head with authority and power," and to too much zeal in recent years for "social reform rather than national security." It asked for greater "vision" on the part of government officials, and then lashed out with a strong indictment of the present tendency towards more and more bureaucracy as a substitute for intelligent planning:

"The Administration has been too prone when difficult problems arose to easily dispose of them by creating another board, only to add to the confusion of the assortment of agencies we now have."

Though the report is extremely critical, it is one of the most encouraging releases to come out of Washington in a long time, simply because it really tries to get at the truth of the situation, let the chips fall where they may.

One large company that is playing a big part in the defense program has been accumulating a merchant fleet of its own. And a certain so-called "liberal" publication doesn't like the idea of the company's failing to accept government assistance.

Here is the story:

Most steamship companies with merchant shipping plans apply to the government for a subsidy. When they receive the funds, the organizations concerned are compelled by law to open not only their own books, but the books of all affiliated companies, to inspection by the Maritime Commission. In other words, a considerable degree of government regulation is the price paid for the subsidy.

This particular company, however, chose to pay all its own expenses in building up its fleet. So the "liberal" publication comments sourly that "Congress never anticipated that any shipper might ignore the subsidy."

All of which is highly reminiscent of the old story about the soapbox radical who shouted, "Comes the revolution, you'll eat strawberries and cream—and like it!"

INCIDENTAL INTELLIGENCE: One of the more recent government publications is titled "Food Habits of the American Coot, with Notes on Distribution." Your reporter hasn't read this little pamphlet yet, but he can't help wondering whether this is the coot that some people are supposed to be as crazy as.

By the way, the coot classic is published by the Bureau of Biological Survey, a division of the Fish and Wildlife Service, which has now been classified as a "defense agency." That leads to a further question pondered by many observers: Can it be that the Fish and Wildlife Service, along with other non-defense agencies, was thus re-classified in order to confuse the issue at a time when the press and public were actively clamoring for non-defense economies to make up in part for our huge defense expenditures?

This Week In Defense

President Roosevelt informed Congress he had ordered a Navy force to Iceland to "forestall any pincers movement . . . by Germany against the Western Hemisphere." He said German occupation of that country would threaten the North American continent, shipping in the North Atlantic, and the flow of munitions to Britain. The President said the Navy had been ordered to take "all necessary steps" to insure safety of communications "in the approaches between Iceland and the United States, as well as on the seas between the U. S. and all other strategic outposts."

The President later told his press conference that whether Iceland lies outside the Western Hemisphere is an academic question. He said there are points outside the commonly accepted Hemisphere limits which are of importance to U. S. defense, and that in occupying Iceland he acted to forestall a hostile move which strategists considered logical or likely.

Selective Service

Selective Service Headquarters announced that 21-year-olds who registered July 1 will be given draft numbers so they will be called in proportion to previous registrants rather than ahead of or after older men. Order numbers will be determined by national lottery on July 17.

Headquarters advised local boards to defer men who have volunteered for civilian or military duty with Canadian or British forces. The House passed legislation to permit deferment of all men who were 28 on July 1.

Alien Education

The President allocated $14,000,000 of WPA funds for a program to educate 1,000,000 aliens in the duties and responsibilities of citizenship. More than 11,000 teachers on WPA rolls will conduct classes for aliends who wish to become citizens.

Registered Civilian Organizations

WPA announced that more than 200,000 national, State and local civilian organizations with 50,000,000 members will be catalogued within the next 60 days to determine the parts the organizations and individuals can play in home defense so the Office of Civilian Defense can find qualified persons for new programs. All except purely social clubs will be indexed.

Civilian Supply

OPM conservation officials announced that "our purchases, our habits, our daily lives, perhaps even our styles, will be controlled by the requirements of national defense." Some of the changes facing the public, accordi ngto OPM: No corks in bottle tops; beverages in bottles rather than cans; silk used in parachutes will make silk stockings more scarce; women will have fewer permanent waves, cosmetics, and facial creams; it will not be patriotic to buy two automobiles; farmers will choose from 300 instead of 1,400 types of plows; chrome, copper, aluminum and woods such as mahogany will probably not be available to the furniture industry, and many designs will be eliminated.

Buy Coal Now

The Federal Bituminous Coal Consumers' Counsel appealed to the nation to buy coal now so it can be moved from the mines before growing defense production burdens the country's transportation system. There is an ample supply of the coal, the Counsel said, but by September 15 shortages in some places may develop unless coal is stored for the winter before then.

Prices

Price Administrator Henderson announced that price ceilings on rubber tubes and other rubber plants will be deferred for several months to allow the industry time to work out price problems voluntarily. He announced, however, that ceiling prices will be placed within a few days on cottonseed oil and certain grades of West coast lumber used by the Government. Mr. Henderson also stated that recent action to check rises in hide prices does not mean the OPACS expects to freeze livestock or meat prices.

Army

The President asked Congress for an additional $4,700,000,000, for the Army, most of it for purchase of heavy guns, $400,000,000 for clothing and other equipment, $200,000,000 for the Air Force and $350,000,000 for the Signal Corps, and $1,000,000 for horses.

The War Department announced formation of a completely motorized, and heavily armed experimental division, strengthened with tanks, with 50 percent more fire power than a present armored division although with 14,000 instead of 15,550 men. The Department also announced that to bolster anti-tank defenses, anti-tank specialists will be assigned to every Army large unit to work out methods of defeating armored force attacks.

Air

OPM announced that during June 1,476 military planes were delivered to the Army, Navy, and Great Britain—142 more than the previous month and a new record.

The War Department announced contracts of nearly $200,000,000 for new airplane manufacturing facilities and ordered all Air Corps Reserve Officers except those in key civilian positions to active duty by August 1. The Army Air Force established its own Air Staff to form Air Force plans and decide on equipment and other matters without the approval of the General Staff as heretofore.

Navy

The President asked Congress for $1,625,000,000 in appropriations and contract authority for the Navy for additional ordnance, yard equipment, planes, and repairs, including $400,000,000 for defense installations on naval and private ships—anti-mine equipment, armor, etc., but, the President emphasized, not for guns to arm merchant ships.

Rear Admiral Robinson, Chief of the Navy's Bureau of Ships, announced the Navy shipbuilding program is proceeding so rapidly that "every single combat ship is ahead of schedule." He said the problem of labor supply has been solved and the rate of expansion chiefly by the ability to obtain materials.

Ships

The President asked Congress for $1,698,000,000 for the U. S. Maritime Commission, including $698,000,000 in cash for new ships and $1,296,000,000 in contract authorizations.

The U. S. Maritime Commission announced a saving of more than 500,000 tons of steel in the building of 705 commission-designed ships by construction methods not known in the first World War. The Commission said the greatest single weight saving measure was the introduction of welding to replace riveting so that entire ships are now built without a single rivet.

Money Talks

By Frederick Stamm, Economist Director of Adult Education UNIVERSITY OF LOUISVILLE

Talk of inflation is again heard in many financial quarters. "You can't keep prices down" seems to be the sentiment everywhere. This inflation sentiment is based on many factors.

First, we are in a war economy and we are using more of everything than we normally do. The demand for commodities is greater than the supply and this always boosts prices.

Second, governmental control of prices has not worked as smoothly as has been hoped for. The governmental price control agency has attempted to curb the price of finished goods but has paid little attention to wage levels and raw material price levels. In fact, the government has encouraged wage increases in many industries and has also permitted higher raw material prices. As we all know, these are the important manufacturing costs, and whenever manufacturing costs go up considerably, the prices of finished goods must go up. If we rally want to keep the price of consumer goods down, we must control the costs, that is, raw material prices and wages.

The government has also encouraged higher prices for agricultural commodities, and, as a result, we are seeing higher food prices. For example, flour prices are advancing because of the advancing wheat prices.

In the third place, inflation is based on reports that price fixing legislation will meet considerable opposition in Congress. This opposition will come from Congressmen whose districts are booming because prices are going up. And we must remember that Congressmen are always hesitant to vote against high wages and high agricultural and raw material prices. But unless they do control these cost factors, we cannot hope to control the price of finished goods.

Price control is now a political problem as well as an economic one. For this reason, I would not be surprised to see, at least, mild inflation.

vegetables for winter use.

A committee will be around to call on you, asking you to sign a card stating that you will, as a family, try to raise 75 per cent of the food you need. You are asked to please sign the card so it can be filed in the county office.

The next meeting will be announced and you are urged to be present as the needs of our community and the National Emergencies will be discussed.

—Mrs. Walter W. King, Sec'y.

FLORENCE HOMEMAKERS HOLD JULY MEETING

Florence Homemakers met at the Town Hall for their July meeting, with 18 members present.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Lorie Morith.

Mrs. Gladys Fullerton and Mrs. Marie Kobman gave very interesting talks on nutrition and National Defense.

Miss Mary H. Gillaspie explained the many activities that the Homemakers are looking forward to during the next month.

All members were urged to attend the rug show, canning demonstration and silver tea.

Everyone having rugs, mats, leathercraft or refinished furniture which they want to display at the rug show, which will be held at the Town Hall, bring them to the Hall on the morning of July 17th, or get in touch with Mrs. W. R. Stith. She will appreciate your cooperation.

Mrs. Morith appointed the committees for the annual picnic, which will be an event of the month of August.

Other leaders making reports were, Mrs. Virginia Goodridge, exterior beautification and Mrs. Roy Lutes, reading.

As a county-wide program the Citizenship and Exterior Beautification chairman of Boone county are planning a "Silver Tea" for July 31. The committee in charge of the program has been able to secure very outstanding talent for the program, vocal selections will be rendered by Miss Ann Yelton of Cincinnati, Ohio, while Mrs. Ann Stewart, well known for "Let the Earth Speak," and Mrs. James Lane, chairman of Kentucky State Highway Beautification, will be the speakers. This part of the affair will be held at the Florence Christian church.

The tea will be served at the Lloyd Home, all those present will appreciate the opportunity to see and visit the John Uri Lloyd Home. Homemakers and friends, everyone is invited to attend this program, come and bring your friends.

COLORED HOMEMAKERS HOLD REGULAR MEETING

The Colored Homemakers' Club met Wednesday, July 9th, at the home of Mrs. Lucy Johnson.

The meeting was called to order by the president, after which members answered to roll call. Minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. James Riddell.

Miss Gillaspie met with the club for the first time. We were very glad to have her, and hope she has more time to meet with us.

Thwarted Ambition Turned Edna Ferber to Writing

EDNA Ferber is frustrated. In spite of a brilliant career as a writer, in spite of an enviable reputation in the literary world, the well-known authoress can't submerge an ambition she's harbored since she won the state declamatory contest just before graduation from Ryan High School in Appleton, Wisconsin.

That award, writes Irving Drutman in the August issue of Cosmopolitan magazine, fired a spark to further her dramatic talents. Furious when her family imparted the news that they couldn't afford such training, she marched out in a rage and got herself a job on the Appleton Daily Crescent, and became the first female reporter in town. As a girl reporter she did a man's work, says the Drutman article, covering the courthouse, the main street, interviewing celebrities, all for the munificent sum of three dollars a week.

After five years of journalism, Miss Ferber's health broke, and bedridden, she started writing magazine fiction, selling practically everything she turned out. National recognition was her lot, says Drutman, when she wrote the famous Emma McChesney stories. Emma was a woman salesman, and her adventures were the subject of some thirty stories, always clamored for loudly by the public. The literary lights soon took notice of her when she published her third novel "The Sisters". It traced three generations of Chicago old maids, caused a tremendous success (some consider it to be her best work) and set the stage for such best sellers as "So Big", "Show Boat", "Cimmarron", "Come and Get It", and the current Cosmopolitan serial "Saratoga Trunk".

Edna Ferber

Now, in her early fifties, Edna Ferber is a short, rather handsome woman, Drutman reports, with a head of thick curled white hair, heavy-set brown eyes under a bold brow and spectacularly creamy complexion that is the envy of all her female friends. A woman of tremendous mental vitality, she puts a lifetime of comedy, farce, and tragedy into each twenty-four hours. She is cognizant of her quirks and realizes that she wouldn't be the colorful writer she is without them.

Tricked by circumstances out of a professional stage career, Miss Ferber has made up for it by acting in private life. Her novels and short stories are packed solid with meaty characters and dramatic incidents. In her spare moments away from the typewriter she is also given to dramatization. Her circle of friends which include such people as Noel Coward, Louis Bromfield, Moss Hart and William Allen White, will tell you that of all the personal problems in the world, hers are the direst. No happening is too inconsequential to be dynamited into a calamity.

After years of travel, Miss Ferber settled down on a Connecticut estate to write her biography, "A Peculiar Treasure" in 1938. The house, Drutman writes, is filled with the furniture she has collected for twenty-five years and has carpet in which you sink up to your ankles. In contrast with the luxury of the other rooms is the den in which she works. It is monastic and stark. It has a typewriter, which she uses like a shovel, and an old roll top desk.

Here she works all morning, all afternoon, interrupting her work only for short walks. She is generous with praise and with money, but not with her time. That she guards jealously and doles out at spaced intervals, Drutman confides. For with her, writing is not a profession but a necessary function.

Doings of The REDS

The Reds return to their home base Tuesday, to start a long home stand that probably will definitely determine whether the club can stage a drive that will put them back in the running for the 1941 National League pennant.

Opposing them Tuesday will be none other than the Brooklyn Dodgers, arch enemies of the Reds, who feel they are the ones to succeed the Reds atop the league's standings. There is no love lost between the two clubs, so the Reds have a dual purpose in going after these Brooklyn boys. They want revenge, and they also must defeat the team that is their toughest obstacle of the season.

The opener of the Brooklyn series will be a ladies' day, and it will be followed by a night game Wednesday against this same Flatbush Flock. The night contest will be preceded by the customary fireworks display and musical performances.

After the Dodgers will come the Phillies, who are scheduled at Crosley Field next Friday, Saturday, and Sunday, with a twin bill on the docket for Sunday. Monday, July 28, will be an off-day, whereupon the New York Giants will be in for a ladies' day game Tuesday, July 29, a night game Wednesday, July 30, and a series' closing afternoon event on Thursday, July 31.

The National League's newest mound sensation, Elmer Riddle, winner of his first ten games, is certain to see service for the Reds in the Brooklyn series. Elmer is the talk of the country today. He has what it takes, good control, fielding ability, and, above all, a good head. His ability to think has been one of his strongest aids in his sudden rush to stardom.

Beetles destroyed a large amount of peaches and other fruit in Magoffin county.

Others guests in the evening were Mr. and Mrs: Estel Frazier and three daughters of Erlanger, Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Dickey and sister, Miss Cora Dickey.

Wm. McGlasson, age 78, passed away suddenly early Wednesday morning, after a lingering illness of a heart disease.

Surviving him are his widow, Mrs. Alice McGlasson; two daughters, Mrs. Vernon Tupman and Mrs. Liston Hempgling; four grandchildren, and a sister, Mrs. Addie Ryle, besides many other relatives.

Funeral services were conducted at the Hebron Lutheran church, of which the deceased had been a faithful member since he was 23 years of age, Saturday afternoon at 2:30. Rev. H. M. Hauter officiated. Interment was in the cemetery at this place. Bullock and Catherman, funeral directors, had charge of arrangements.

Table Settings That Bear Out a Color Scheme

HELEN KOUES
Director of Good Housekeeping Studio

China and glass, whether merely attractive or really fine, give us a real sense of pleasure and pride in our everyday living or entertaining. And as it's an everyday necessity, and we must eat, why not plot your table setting to be something! Not just dishes used any old way, but sets of china used with sets of glass that have a real color scheme, distinction, motive, dignified or gay as you please.

Does it cost money? That depends. Fine china and glass do, of course, and why not, as fine bone china, even with all the casualties may last two or three generations and has in my own family. If you can afford it, buy the fine bone china of England—you know the names, Spode, Crown Darby, Royal Worcester, Royal Doulton, Wedgewood Cauldron, or our own equally fine Lenox and attractive Onondaga. I mention the names as there is "open stock" in the better china making it possible to replace old patterns to keep your service complete. Porcelain, bone china, eathern ware, pottery, are all to be found, and each have special attractions. The high priced china is high because its finer workmanship will usually give longer service. It is wise to look into the quality of the ware you are buying, but it's a big subject and this piece is to awaken your interest in what you may have, what you need, and give you a fresh idea or two perhaps of what you can combine to make attractive table settings for luncheon and dinner, irrespective of price. Many an attractive table setting costs little. So if your stock is low, now is the time to see what there is you need.

Work china into the color scheme of your dining room

Let us think of dinner first. It is not necessary that you have a matching set for all courses, but it is necessary that what is used for one course match, and that it harmonize with the general scheme of the table setting. As you sit down, your table has the service plate in place. If china, the predominating color in it can be used for the glass, which may be crystal or blue, let us say. Today there is much deep blue glass that is attractive. So stemmed goblets, wine glasses and sherry glasses of deep blue give spots of color at each place setting. The centerpiece, a deep blue covered glass dish with two blue glass fruit or flower bowls on each side, all match. Silver candlesticks may be combined with the glass dishes or they too may be of glass to match the dishes. It's very nice to be able to vary your table settings using all glass sometimes and all silver another and at others, a combination. In fact, dark blue glass service plates are effective where all blue glass is used. The soup plate could be white and gold, the fish plate match the service plate or not as you please, but if china, it must harmonize in color. When the fish plates with the service plates are removed the dinner plate is put down, so that it is necessary for it to harmonize with the blue glass. And so on—but when the finger bowls with their plates are put down last, it is effective to have them of blue glass to match the goblets, etc. All this sums up to the fact that you must have a related color scheme rather than a complete matched set. This enables you, who know what you have, to buy either glass to complete a scheme, or sets of dinner, salad or soup plates as your requirements may be.

Nowadays all sorts of delightful and novel centerpieces are used. With a formal setting a roll top silver hot water dish, may have the top rolled back, and the dish filled with fruit with grapes hanging over.

How to Get Sleep in Hot Weather

ARE you one of that hot-weather army that draggle into the office after a scorching night, puffy of eye and haggard from lack of sleep? Nothing is worse than the weary feeling that another hot day is coming up. Work must be gotten out—or a household must be run—and your energy reserve is sapped because of lack of sleep.

There are numerous steps you can take to get yourself that priceless restorative sleep in hot weather. Here are a few:

—Rest on cool, clean sheets—the under one stretched tightly.

—Wear absorbent cotton pajamas or a gown.

—Don't go to bed hungry—nothing will keep you awake more surely. A cracker or a glass of milk will allay hunger contractions without raising body temperature or overtaxing your digestion.

—Keep a bottle of good quality witch hazel in the ice-box; pat it freely all over your body. Do not dry it off, for it reduces your body temperature. You'll be surprised at how cooling this fine, old family standby is, and has so many uses, particularly in Summer!

—Lie out as straight as is comfortable, preferably on your back, though any other natural, untortured position will invite sleep.

Lie still . . . but, without holding yourself rigid. Squirming and tossing burn energy, make you hot and rumple the bedclothes into the bargain, making you hotter. Soak pads of cotton in a good quality witch hazel, lay them on your eyes to shut out all errant rays of light, cool your eyes and your head.

After twenty minutes, if you're still awake, try this physical relaxer. Flat on your back, with your arms at your sides, concentrate on one part of your anatomy at a time. Tense the muscles, tight, thinking consciously of how it feels, then relax doll-like.

If you don't relax into sleep after that, don't torture yourself. Get up, get a drink of cold, not iced water, read a little until you get sleepy, then stroll back, put fresh cool witch hazel pads on your eyes—and go off to sleep. NEVER, NEVER say grimly, "I must get my sleep—tomorrow's a busy day." Anxiety raises your temperature, tightens you up, puts sleep off even farther.

A CALL IN THE NIGHT

We heard the children romping in their playroom upstairs—then suddenly, a scream!

We both rushed up and found our young son had fallen and apparently broken his arm. We immediately phoned our family physician, who verified our worst fears.

In time, the arm was carefully set, but other difficulties arose that called for an unusual prescription.

I looked at the clock—where could we get it filled at this late hour? We spoke to the doctor, who then picked up the phone and called "that man" out of bed—again "that man" (our neighborhood druggist) did not fail us.

Our neighborhood druggist never fails us! Should you, like most women, suffer discomforts during the menstrual period, just phone your druggist—he usually advises women to try Vatona Tablets—this may be just what you need!

THE RESPONSIBILITY OF THE CHURCH REGARDING BEVERAGE ALCOHOL

LESSON TEXT—I Corinthians 5:9-13; Titus 2:1-8

GOLDEN TEXT—Ye are the salt of the earth.—Matthew 5:13.

The church has a grave responsibility regarding alcoholic beverages, but in recent years it has largely failed to meet it with intelligence and enthusiasm. Let us never forget that the first business of the Christian and of the church is to preach the gospel, winning men to Christ. It is not our calling to attempt by social or economic methods to right the wrongs of this world. Nor is ours a "social gospel" with the emphasis on "social." But have we forgotten that it is a gospel with serious social implications and responsibilities?

The man, and the church, who follows Christ should be vitally concerned about every influence in American life which is destructive to character, and right at the top of that list stands alcohol. To meet this gigantic (and growing) problem effectively the church must be

I. Separated From Sin (I Cor. 5:9, 10).

A church living in careless worldliness has no testimony against the sin round about it. In fact, its influence is definitely on the wrong side. The Christian is to be in the world, but not of it. He must live with the sinners, but he must never by word or deed, or even by his presence in the wrong place, seem to condone their sin nor fellowship with them in it.

Here we have one of the horrible weaknesses of our day. Men and women who profess to follow Christ (whether they really do, only He can judge) indulge in a social glass of wine, or sip a cocktail "for the sake of courtesy," or attend gatherings which are obviously non-Christian or anti-Christian. If there is to be effective dealing with any problem—with the liquor problem—we must have separated Christian living.

II. Cleansed of Wicked Persons (I Cor. 5:11-13).

Even a "man that is called a brother" (v. 11) may not be one at all, but may be a "wicked person" (v. 13). We are not able to judge any man's spiritual experience. His relationship to God is a matter between him and God, but if, in his life, he shows himself persistently to be on the side of wickedness, it is the duty of the church to have him "put away from among" them (v. 13).

We can only judge a man by his actions, but we are required to do that for the sake of the purity of the church and the effectiveness of its teaching. This is not to be done in self-righteousness, but in humility and with the constant effort to restore such a one (Gal. 6:1). But it should be done. We are woefully weak in the matter of church discipline, and it shows in the inability of the church to do valiant service for God and country.

III. Intelligent in Doctrine (Titus 2:1-8; esp. 1, 7, 8).

To be informed is to be wise, able to plan properly, balanced in judgment and action, useful and effective. Fundamentally every problem of life finds its solution in a proper knowledge of the doctrines of the Christian faith. It is of great importance that we have information about the liquor traffic, about the dreadful results of the use of alcohol, etc. Helpful material on such subjects is available, and the sources are known to ministers and Christian workers. However, we must hold and use this information in relation to Christian truth if it is to be fully useful. A temperance worker without Christ in his own life and in his labors against liquor is weak, lacking the real solution and the dynamics to proclaim it effectively.

IV. Consistent in Life (Titus 2: 1-8, esp. 2, 5, 7).

It is what we are that speaks so loudly that folk do not pay any attention to what we say. This passage clearly states the fact that both young and old, both men and women—yes, even the preacher (v. 7)—are to present before the world the undeniable teaching of a consistent Christian life.

Read the exhortations of these verses again with great care and apply them first to your own life, and then to your own church. What great Christian graces we have here! Note that again and again there is the admonition to temperance. No user of intoxicants can be sober, temperate, discreet, chaste, sound in faith, and so on.

The writer of these notes is convinced that the only consistent position for the Christian (individually or in the church) to take regarding alcoholic beverages is that of total abstinence for himself and the legal elimination of temptation from others.

Unhappy Brewers!

The brewers are very unhappy these days, and they have reasons to be. At least that was the expressed opinion of church and social welfare groups on the eighth anniversary of the return of beer.

Reviewing that beer was the wedge used to bring back the entire liquor traffic, the W.C.T.U. said in its study of the eight years of beer's relegalized history:

"History is a warm comfort to the temperance forces. Throughout its existence the nation has made repeated efforts to control the liquor traffic by regulation and by partial prohibition. It again will find prohibition to be the only answer.

"Hanging Bimseif"

"Repeal gave the liquor traffic enough rope, and it is hanging itself. Misled in 1933 by very clever propaganda, American citizens since have learned through first-hand observation that liquor is an ally of crime, of all the forces inimical to the American standards of moral, physical, and religious life.

"It should always be understood that 'liquor' refers to alcoholic beverages, hence includes beer. Science and medicine unite in terming alcohol a 'poison', a 'narcotic', 'dangerous to the human system'. Beer contains alcohol. In fact, beer is the door through which alcohol steps to gain addicts. First, the customers drink beer, then hard liquor, and then may become addicts.

"Eight years ago there was a limited reception for the views of temperance people. Today, the situation is entirely different. The brewers know what it means when there is a rising tide of public indignation at liquor - inspired acts which are inimical to social welfare, when church groups become active against all divisions of the liquor traffic.

"The brewers are worried, not about the fate of human bodies and souls, but for their profit dollars. They should be worried."

FOR A TWO-OCEAN NAVY

WE are now building a duplicate set of locks for the Panama Canal, and the Zone is teeming with fresh crops of young Americans. Most of them were born long after the canal was started and some actually since it was opened in 1914. Of course there is a residue of the old guard who built the Canal, and from them one gets the impression that the duplication plan is going to be second only to the original job.

Quinine made the locks possible.

There is, for instance, the question of labor and housing. Already frantic young engineers and their wives are scurrying about looking for quarters, and as yet there are not enough buildings to house the thousands of temporary laborers that have come from Jamaica and other British West Indian islands. The American preference for British negroes dates back to the old construction days.

Malaria, except at the Pacific and Atlantic terminals, is still a very serious problem, as no effort was made to sanitate the whole length of the Canal. And thousands of men must now work for five or six years in this unsanitated area. And it was proved from 1904 to 1914 that the British negro is better able to stand malaria than the natives of Panama, and far better than anyone brought down from the States.

The health authorities in the Canal Zone are making preparations for the inevitable flare-up of malaria. They have not forgotten General Gorgas who boasted that at the peak he was giving 40 thousand doses of quinine per day. A good deal has been learned about malaria since then, and the huge doses of quinine given in 1904-1914 will be replaced by 20 grains per day for 5-7 days, which is the dosage preferred by the United States Public Health Service. But men on large-scale construction jobs forget, and it will take the ever-watchful eye of the medical director to see that quinine is not only issued but used. Upon this drug, as in the early days of the Canal, the success of this lock duplication scheme will no doubt depend.

Picnic Sandwiches

Everyone likes his picnic sandwiches to have moist, flavorsome fillings. And if there is a bit of crunchiness about them, all the better. Hence the popularity of salad fillings. In the following recipe for egg salad sandwiches you'll find dill pickles provide crispness and individual flavor, while a good quality of mayonnaise and pure malt vinegar are the secret of its dashing tartness.

Egg Salad Sandwiches

Prepare—
4 hard cooked eggs.
Chop egg whites and combine with—
2 dill pickles, chopped
¼ cup diced celery
¼ teaspoon onion juice.
Mash egg yolks, then add—
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon pure malt vinegar.
Combine the two mixtures and moisten with—
3 tablespoons mayonnaise.
Mix to spreading consistency, then spread on—
Whole wheat bread.

Makes 8 large sandwiches. This filling recipe makes a good salad mixture to serve on a salad plate of assorted meats and relishes.

Light and Flavorsome

Scrambled eggs break into the news when they take on the delicious tomato-and-spice flavor of ketchup combined with the delicate flakiness of canned tuna fish. You might call this an emergency dish, because it is quick to prepare, but you'll plan ahead of time to serve it when you find how much your family enjoys it. It's particularly good for back yard campfire preparation.

Tuna Scramble

Beat together well—
6 eggs
4 tablespoons milk.
Heat skillet and add—
1 tablespoon butter.

Pour eggs into skillet and cook slowly, stirring gently.

When they begin to thicken, add—
1 7-oz. can tuna fish, shredded
1 teaspoon salt
4 tablespoons tomato ketchup.

Continue cooking until eggs are creamy. Serve immediately garnished with paprika. This mixture is good served between slices of hot buttered toast for sandwiches. Serves 4-5.

Vitamins De Luxe Style

The lowly cabbage has come up in the world since nutritionists discovered its high vitamin importance. It is "the thing" to serve coleslaw in almost any type of menu, and numerous attractive variations of this popular salad enliven mealtimes.

The following recipe has the de luxe touch of white grapes and almonds to make it particularly attractive in summer buffet service. And for the unusually delicious flavor, the mayonnaise is touched up with prepared yellow mustard and pure cider vinegar. You'll get many compliments on this new coleslaw.

Coleslaw with White Grapes and Almonds

Combine and chill—
8 cups coarsely chopped cabbage
2 cups white grapes (seeded or seedless)
1 cup blanched almonds, halved and toasted.
Mix together well—
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon sugar
2 teaspoons prepared yellow mustard
2 tablespoons pure cider vinegar
½ teaspoon fresh onion juice.

When ready to serve, pour this mixture over cabbage and toss well.

Stir in—
¾ cup mayonnaise.

Decorate with a wreath of parsley and grapes. Serves 12.

CELLULOID COLLARS AND CUFFS

Being dressed up used to be much harder on us than it is now. For one thing, it was gross bad manners for a gentleman to be without a coat, and thin summer suits were not then the rule. Besides, thin underwear had not come in, either, so that when one was bundled up in his Sunday best, he was about the most wretched of mortals. To add insult to injury, there was the very stiff and high collar, starched to the stiffness of a piece of iron, that is, until the intense heat of the sufferer wilted the collar and allowed the starch to ooze delightfully down one's back. To drive across several miles of dusty road on Sunday morning to get one's girl, then several more miles to church, sit in public view and fan the girl until one got as hot as when cutting tobacco, my! what misery. If the weather was intense, you had no time to stop fanning the girl to wipe your own streaming face and head off a river of sweat making for the freshly laundered collar. When services were through, so were you, a bedraggled thing, with a collar that looked like a poorly wrung-out dishrag. And all the rest of the day, with dinner on the ground, you had to wear that abomination, which lost more and more of its respectable appearance. By the time the wet collar had gathered the dust of the miles back home, it looked more like a scrub rag than an ordinary dishrag. But society will hear no objections to its decrees; to be dressed up, one just had to wear a collar and a coat and all the rest of the hot clothes and feel humiliation. We had one man in Fidelity that I always envied on Sunday morning; he couldn't sweat, and though it was pretty hard on him when he got hot, most of the time when the rest of us were about to swelter, he sat as cool as a cucumber and did not wince when the preacher spoke of eternal hotness elsewhere.

Some benefactor of the race, just before my time, invented celluloid and rubberized collars and cuffs, so that it was possible to sit through the longest sermon without wilting a collar. From a mail-order house we bought some of these new inventions and delighted in them, for they would not wilt and did not need laundering. It is true that they shone rather unlike ordinary laundered collars and cuffs, but the satisfaction of not feeling starch mixed with sweat flowing along under one's collar like a river of lava was something to make even the most daring of us listen to the accounts of fire and brimstone and never bat an eye.

But every Eden has its snake. Ours came when this style soon was frowned on, and we who had invested our precious funds in celluloid or rubber found ourselves caught with the goods. We were so Scotchy that we hated to give up perfectly good collars and cuffs, but we also feared Mrs. Grundy and her kind and dreaded to hear what the better-dressed ones were saying about us. Some of us, defiant and stingy, held on to our collars and cuffs until thinner summer clothing, inner and outer, came into vogue and until coats were not necessarily to be worn by all those who were above the level of the hoi polloi. Sometimes in my rambling over the state I see a left-over collar of this kind, though cuffs, so far as I know, have gone the way of toothpick shoes and linen dusters and Free Silver hats.

EARLY HISTORY OF BOONE COUNTY

—o—

By A. M. Yealey

—o—

Slavery began to wane in Boone county" beginning about the year 1855. There were a total of slaves in the whole state of 225,483, at the beginning of the Civil War, and 10,684 free slaves. Boone county, at the beginning of the Civil War, had 1,745 slaves and 48 free colored.

The state in 1860 had about 115 counties, so we can readily see that Boone county had about an average. The central part of the state or those parts where agriculture was carried on heavily had the more slaves, Fayette county had 10,015 slaves and 685 free colored in 1860. Under the laws of the state, counties especially those bounded by the Ohio River were allowed to establish Patrols in order to capture runaway slaves. (We shall now refer you to early history where Patrolers caught Kirtley's Negro man "Ben" without a pass and gave him a severe cowhiding.) The Captain of these patrols could punish the slave captured by any number of stripes not exceeding ten, or he could be taken before a Justice of the Peace and by his orders punished by 39 stripes. These patrols were paid by order of the County Court and received $1.00 for every 10 hours' duty.

For every runaway slave caught by these patrolmen in the county where the owner of the slave lived, and was put in jail so as the owner got him back, the patrol received $25.00, but if he was caught in another county he got $50.00 and the owner of the slave had it to pay. The fund established to pay these patrols was created by a poll-tax on each slave in the county, not exceeding one dollar on each black tithable, and this fund could not be expended or used by the County Court for any other purpose. The legislature in 1851 passed a great number of laws that had considerable to do with slavery and those who shall be deemed slaves and the writer will give a few.

1. No persons shall be slaves in this state, except such as are now slaves by the laws of this commonwealth or some other state or territory of the United States or such free Negroes as may hereafter be sold into slavery under the laws of this state, and the future descendents of such female slaves.

2. Every person who has one-fourth, or other larger part of Negro blood shall be deemed a Mulatto, and the word Negro, when used in any statute shall be construed to mean Mulatto as well as Negro.

When a runaway slave was captured he was put in the County Jail and the Jailer had to advertise him in a newspaper nearest to his residence, giving an accurate description of him and if his owner failed to call for him within six months the Court appointed two men to value the slave and he was then sold. Also the time and place of sale, and the smallest sum for which he would be sold. One of the severest penalties imposed was an act passed in 1798. When any Negro, Mulatto or Indian, whatsoever, shall be convicted of any offence within the benefit of Clergy, judgement of death shall not begiven against him or her upon such conviction, but he or she shall be burnt in hand, by the jailer, in open court, and suffer such other corporal punishment as the Court shall think fit to inflict.

Our mortal eyes are holden
We cannot get her view

But we can think of her as crossing the bar. Stepping on the shore and finding it Heaven. Of experiencing an invigorating thrill and finding it immortality; and of passing from life's storms and shadows into an unbroken calm of Heaven and Home."

All nature is a parable of how the losing of a life can be the way to a truer and a higher life. Every grain of wheat and every seed throughout the world, teaches us that only through death lies the path to a beautiful fruitful life, but we are comforted in the thought of a joyous reunion unbroken and where twilight breaks into eternal dawn. Since girlhood she has been a noble, christian character. She was a type of womanhood rarely met, and her life's record was one of love and gracious ministry. Ever ready to help those who were burdened, there remains the memory of a life filled with service and loving deeds, and many were the bright spots made in our drab life. On her last visit, she expressed her readiness to go. For a number of years she had been a successful teacher in the public schools, and many of the pupils attained prominence, laying their laurels at her feet. Her characteristics of devotion and loyalty remain a blessing like the lingering softness of twilight, after the sun has set.

Very beautifully was she arrayed for the tomb. Robed in softly tinted blue chiffon with a cluster of gardenias, she sweetly lay on a silver gray couch, amid white satin draperies and appeared as if in peaceful slumber.

Deepest sympathy is expressed for the bereaved husband in this hour of sadness when shadows are gathered about him, and the once happy home is lonely and dark. He was tenderly devoted to his faithful companion, and their home life was ideal. May the great Comforter soothe and sustain, as He alone can, when shadows fall.

Besides her husband, she is survived by her sister, Miss Inez Pickett of Louisville and other relatives. In the absence of the pastor, Rev. Coots assisted by Rev. Roy Johnson officiated at the last sad rites at the Allison & Rose Funeral Home. Sacred selections were softly rendered by Miss Hilda Stephens and Rev. John Hammatt sang, "Sometime We'll Understand," and "The Golden Bells." Messrs. C. Otis Morgan, Trent Pickett, Winfield Myers, Albert Lucas, Stanley Lucas, and Broadus Lucas served as pallbearers, and in the beauty of the hills under the sheltering boughs of a beautiful beech tree, she sweetly slumbers in lovely Forest Lawn Park, awaiting the dawn without a sunset.

"She has only passed from mortal sight
Beyond the silence of life's mystic bar,
To us is left the shadows and the night,
To her the radiance of the morning star."

GRASSHOPPERS---

Grasshoppers, content to feed and remain in the meadows and along the road sides as long as the grass remains green, are now leaving the tough, dry grass in many parts of the state and moving into the fields of corn, tobacco and vegetables where the plants are green and succulent. The migration is comparatively slow. The insects usually start feeding on the edge of the planting and gradually move deeper into the field, consuming the plants as they go.

It often happens during migration that there is a fence-row between the field left and the one invaded. In this instance, the grasshoppers, after feeding during the day, return to the fence-row to pass the night. Advantage of this knowledge is taken in applying control measures. Apply the bait to that part of the field where the grasshoppers are feeding and to the space between their bed and breakfast—or between the fence-row where they spend the night and the plants upon which they feed.

If the grasshoppers are now in clover, timothy, and alfalfa fields, it is suggested that these hay crops be harvested as soon as possible. In harvesting the crop, leave an uncut swath around the margins and in the middle of the field. The grasshoppers will congregate in the uncut grass where they can be poisoned. A poisoned bait should be scattered in the uncut swath and on either side of it for a distance of several feet. The bait should be spread at the time cutting starts since the purpose of this procedure is to kill the insects before they migrate to other fields.

The poisoned bait is made by mixing while dry, 100 ponnds of wheat bran and 5 pounds of Paris green or white arsenic and then adding and mixing well 2 gallons of fresh (not used) lubricating mineral oil such as is used for automobile crank cases of 20 to 30 S. A. E. rating, the latter being preferable in very hot, dry weather. This bait should be broadcast by hand at the rate of 10 to 12½ pounds dry weight to the acre. (For a small garden 50x100 feet use 1-½ ounce of poison and 1-4 pint oil. Scatter the poison in the morning between 6 and 8 a. m.

Do not look for results until about three days after applying the bait. Two or three applications may be necessary. Dead grasshoppers will be found under trash and litter—few of them die in the open spaces.

Since grasshoppers migrate readily, it is strongly advised that control measures be undertaken co-operatively on a neighborhood or community basis.

Watch Your Kidneys!
Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste
Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.
Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.
Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

Politics Important Part In Government

Politics is one of the most important parts of our system of government. It is the process of selecting and electing the officials who are to represent "We, The People" for an agreed number of years. Laws are merely a memorandum of what the people want and the legislators are no better or no worse than the individuals, that is, the voters will permit. You hear that politics is filthy and corrupt, that being so, why don't we roll up our sleeves and clean it up? In the power of suffrage, that is, the right to vote, we have the ways and means at hand. Plato said, many hundreds of years ago, that intelligent people not taking part in their government paid the penalty by being governed by meaner men than themselves.

Each Frenchman in that rich and powerful empire of France not so long ago went his own separate, selfish way, interested only in his own insignificant loves and quarrels, accepting teh favors and blandishments of the politicians and now he is in chains. If Germany, in her great need, had pulled her belt a little tighter and waited a little longer and not listened to the voice of the tempter she would not be suffering the hell that she is now and the worse one that is to come after the war. Centralization of government has been gradually taking place over a period of years. Our county officers are officials in name only. Our county tax commissioner is only the clerk of the equalization board which gets its orders from Frankfort. Our fiscal court cannot spend a cent unless it is approved in Frankfort. Why? Because he may through favoritism overspend his budget and put the county in debt. Are the heads of the State Government any less human? The difference is, the county judge has no power to tax, he cannot make up his over-expenditures while the State Government, with absolute control of the State Legislature, can make up their deficits at once by levying more taxes. Actually, at the last session, a tax was placed on the accounts on the books of the small business man.

What it is that the administration has against Paul Sidebottom? Paul is one of the last of the Mo-

OPEN LETTER TO BOONE VOTERS

To the Voters of Boone County:

During my canvass as a Candidate for County Judge, I have found that political propoganda has been circulated against me as follows, "That if elected Judge I would permit the sale of intoxicating liquors on Sunday." I brand this as literally false and challenge any who make this statement to face me and repeat the same.

Boone County has always been a good moral County and as a teacher in the County I endeavored to uphold those Morals, and if elected Judge, will continue to do the same.

134 Mats and Rugs Displayed At Show

Mats and rugs, displaying every type of rug making, were shown last week by Boone County Homemakers at six different centers. Seventy-five rugs and 59 mats made up the six displays located in Burlington, Florence and Walton.

Miss Vivian Curnutt, Home Improvement Specialist, University of Kentucky, visited each display window on Thursday and arranged the rugs and mats according to designs and color. She was accompanied on the trip in the county, by Mrs. Rod Hughes, county rug chairman; Mrs. John L. Vest, and Mary Hood Gillaspie, Home Demonstration Agent.

Many of the rugs had original designs made by the Homemaker out of paper before being traced on the material. Only four of the rugs had been made out of new material. The others were made of old cotton, silk and wool scraps and burlap sacks. In most rugs and mats the materials had been dyed, thus making for pleasing color schemes. Rugs displayed were made by the following processes: Hooking, weaving, crocheting, knitting and braiding.

B. E. McElroy Succumbs Early Tuesday

Benjamin Ellis McElroy, 51, passed away about 4 a. m., Tuesday, at his home on South Main street, from carcinoma of the liver. He had been seriously ill for more than a month.

Mr. McElroy was born at Bracht Station, Kenton county, but had resided in Walton the greater part of his life. "Mac," as he was familiarly known, was, for years, bookkeeper at the Kenton Loose Leaf Tobacco Warehouse, Covington. The past tobacco season he was located at Carrollton, on the markets, as a Government employee. He had also worked on the Southern tobacco marts.

Due to his long association with tobacco markets and growers of the weed, he was widely known in Northern Kentucky, and had hosts of friends in this section.

Funeral services, in charge of Rev. C. J. Alford, pastor of the Walton Baptist church, are to be held from the Chambers & Grubbs Funeral Home, Walton, Thursday, July 24 at 1 p. m. Burial is to be at New Liberty, Owen county.

The deceased is survived by his widow, Mrs. Hazel Vallandingham McElroy; four sons, Gayle, DeSha, Stanley Lee and Eugene; and one daughter, Emma Lou, all at home. He also leaves two brothers, John McElroy of Gettysburg, Pa., and George McElroy of Indianapolis, Ind.

B. Y. P. U. FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

The Baptist Young People's Union of the First Baptist church, extends to all a personal and cordial invitation to the services each Sunday evening at 7:00 p. m., in the hope that the hour may be one of sufficient interest and profit to create within you a desire to enter into the full work and enjoy the splendid opportunities and privileges of the same.

The work touches every side of young life—the social, the intellectual and the devotional—to develop and train in loyalty to the Master, and for faithful, efficient service.

"Come thou with us, and we will do thee good."

20 Boone Farmers Keep Account Records

Boone, Kenton, Campbell county farmers cooperating in the College of Agriculture Farm Account project work, have completed 15 years of farm account record keeping, according to Roy E. Proctor, farm management specialist, College of Agriculture. Dairying during this period has exceeded all other sources of income. The income per cow during this period, has varied from $193.00 per cow in 1928 to $57.00 per cow in 1932 to $115.00 per cow in 1940.

Twenty Boone county farmers are keeping complete farm account records in 1941. They are Wilton Stephens, Wm. H. Moore, Sterling Dickey, Sterling Rouse, G. E. Coleman, T. H. Easton, Henry Siekmay, B. C. Stephens, L. H. Congleton, L. R. Vice, Cam White, Leroy McNeeley, LeRoy Ryle, Grant Maddox, John Grimes, Albert Parker, Sam Sleet, T. B. Roberts, and Wm. Ryle, according to H. R. Forkner, county agent. Fifteen of these farmers kept complete records in 1940 and were included in the list of 44 farmers in the Northen Kentucky business analysis.

The business analysis shows the following points:

1. The most efficient farmer made $2,418.00 after 5% on investment and all farm expenses were deducted. The lowest income farmer lost $2,794.00 after interest and all expenses were deducted.

2. Net income of the dairy farmers averaged $913.00; and specialty farms, $867.00; and general farms, $617.00. Value of farm products used in the home was $486.00 per dairy farms; $559.00 by specialty farms; and $414.00 for general farms.

The summary of the farm business analysis shows the following important points for profitable farming the past year.

1. Produce the type of feed for which the land is well adapted.

2. Keep the livestock that will best use this feed and at the same time make good use of available labor.

3. Intensive farming usually offers a premium close to a large city.

4. Crops which are very perishable, or bulky and perishable livestock products should receive first consideration.

5. It is good economy to produce the bulky feeds and pastures however, expenses for some commercial feeds in this area are necessary.

Farmers interested in cooperating in the 1942 farm account project next year should contact the County Agent's office previous to next January 1st, the starting date for the project.

Candidate For Sheriff In Gallatin

The Walton Advertiser is authorized to announce that June L. Suter is a candidate for Sheriff of Gallatin county. Mr. Suter is a widely known young business man of Warsaw, having been active in State as well as local politics; and W. K. Crouch, Glencoe, has been announced as one of his deputies, if elected. Mr. Crouch, a life long resident of Gallatin county, has been very active with the farmers through his connection with the A. A. A. and the F. C. A.

Mr. Suter has expressed his appreciation and thanks to his Boone county friends who are urging their friends and relatives, who reside in Gallatin county, to support his nomination.

Mr. Suter promises an efficient and business-like management of the sheriff's office.—Political adv.

DEFENSE BOND QUIZ

Q. What happens if I suddenly need the money I put into a Defense Savings Bond?

A. You can cash your Bond at any time, after 60 days, for the full amount paid, plus any interest due you.

Q. Do many Bond owners cash their Bonds?

A. No. People want to help arm America against all attacks. In many cases, people are putting every cent they can spare into Defense Bonds and Stamps. Some are doing this by asking employers or banks to withhold part of their salaries in order to buy these Bonds or Stamps for them.

NOTE—To purchase Defense Bonds and Stamps, go to the nearest post office or bank, or write for information to the Treasurer of the United States, Washington, D. C.

TO GIVE ANNUAL "FREE" FISH FRY, SATURDAY, JULY 26

The Big Bone Baptist church has announced a Free Fish Fry for Saturday, July 26.

This is an annual affair and is anticipated with much joy. Service will start at 12:00 (noon) and will continue all day. And the public is most cordially invited.

Attention is called to the fact that only fresh fish (fresh river fish) will be served. Sounds good! Better not miss this opportunity!

A free will collection will be taken.

SURPRISED ON 85TH BIRTHDAY ANNIVERSARY

Mr. Joseph Meyer, of Richwood, Ky., was completely and delightfully surprised, Saturday evening, when a group of friends and neighbors "burst" in upon him. The occasion was Mr. Meyer's 85th birthday anniversary.

After a pleasant evening, delicious ice cream sherbet and cake were served bountifully. All left wishing Mr. Meyer many happy returns of the day.

Those attending were: Mr. and Mrs. Albert Parker, Bettie Joe, Tom and Billy, Mr. Edd Parker, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Woods an son Albert, Mr. and Mrs. James Houston and son Howard, Mr. and Mrs. George Howard, daughter Ann and son George, Mr. and Mrs. Crandill Acra and son Billie, Mrs. Scott, Mr. and Mrs. Rubel, Mr. and Mrs. Decker, Mr. and Mrs. William Abdon, Mr. and Mrs. G. TOWN COLLECTING ALUMINUM TOO

As you probably well know by now, July 21-29 has been designated as the days for collecting old aluminum for the Government. The Town of Walton wishes to do its bit for National Defense so, according to D. L. Lusby, aluminum will be received at the city building. However, if unable to bring your old pots, pans, etc., to this building, get in touch with Town Marshal R. E. Brugh, and he will call at your home for said aluminum.

WALTON GIRL TO RECEIVE CAP AT HOSPITAL CEREMONY

Among the seven Kentuckians, who are members of the first year class in St. Elizabeth Hospital School of Nursing, Covington, and who will receive their caps at the traditional "Capping Day" ceremonies, August 4 in the hospital auditorium, is Miss Mary Code of Walton.

Others in the class are: Misses Oleda Adams, Cumberland; Lora Banks and Mae Frazier, Hot Spot; Ann Boyd, Bowen, Martha Davidson, Stanford, and Hazel Reffett, Northern.

Walton Nutrition Committee Meets

The Walton unit of the National Nutrition committee held an interesting and instructive meeting at the Walton school auditorium Tuesday evening. This was their first meeting.

Mrs. C. Pruett, acting as temporary chairman, presided over the session, and Mrs. Lula Huey acted in the capacity of temporary secretary.

Mrs. Pruett presented the problems of the county, as given at the County Unit meeting, held at Burlington early in July.

Short talks were given by Mrs. Nora Layne, who talked on, "Our Patriotic Duty of Eating Nutritious Foods"; Mr. Forkner, on "Production of Food For General and Home Use"; Miss Gillapsie, who explained the purpose of National Nutrition Program; and Mr. Cooke, county chairman of A. A. A.

Miss Gillaspie also gave a discussion on "Whole Grain Cereals."

We found that some of our problems for Home Defense Nutrition were:

1. Home canning of all surplus commodities.

2. Helping people to have well balanced meals at home.

3. Having nutritious school lunches.

4. Educating parents to their responsibilities of a properly balanced diet.

An election of permanent officers was held, and resulted as follows: President, Mrs. Leo Flynn; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Clifford Pruett. The following chairmen of committees were appointed: Garden: Mr. Jim Pennington; home canning, Louise Rouse; school lunches, Mrs. Stone; nutrition in the home, Mrs. John Vest; publicity, Mrs. John Stephenson; exhibits, Mrs. Gardiner.

The following community organizations were represented at the meeting: The Woman's Club, Homemakers' Club, Welfare Association, Christian church Ladies' Aid and Missionary Society, Y. W. C. A., P.-T. A., Methodist Missionary Society.

2000 Pieces Aluminum Goal for Boone County

Boone county has been called upon to assist in relieving the shortage of aluminum, an important metal needed for airplane construction in the National Defense Program, according to Alan Darby, chairman of the county committee, and Commander of American Legion Post No. 4 of Boone county. A goal of 2,000 pieces of old aluminum pots, pans, etc., has been set. Every citizen in the county is urged to cooperate.

Help build a plane for National Defense. Leave your contributions of discarded aluminum at one of the following places, which will provide containers for storing until donations are collected on July 30th:

Burlington—Court House.
Belleview—Hensley's Store.
Waterloo—Geo. Walton's Store.
Rabbit Hash—Ryle's Store.
Hamilton—Tom Huff's Store.
Landing—Carroll's Store.
Big Bone—Post Office.
Beaver—Sleet's Store.
Mud Lick—Duck Head Inn.
Verona—Renaker's Garage.
Walton—Post Office.
Florence—Post Office or Fire Department.
Union—Bank.
Limaburg—Brother's Store.
Hebron—Post Office.
Constance—Kottmyer's Store.
Taylorsport—Hempfling's Store.
Idlewild—Scothorn's Store.
Bullittsville—Engle's Store.
Petersburg—Post Office.

All 4-H club members, Boy Scouts, Homemakers' Clubs, Parent-Teachers Organizations, American Legion members and other organizations are urged to cooperate as a patriotic duty in this National emergency. The County Agricultural and Home Economics Extension Service will collect the aluminum on the 30th. A special Honor Roll of each boy or girl who collects 15 or more pieces and each organization that collects 100 or more pieces will be published. Register at the place of delivery.

Your country needs your donations. Don't wait to be called upon—come forward.

BEAUTY SHOP OFFERS NEW WAVE

Mrs. Edna Stamler, owner of the Powderpuff Beauty Parlor, announces the installation of a new wave at her beauty shoppe on South Main Street.

It is Carter's Wireless Wave, which works on an absolutely new principle, and is the latest method of permanent waving. This method takes half as long, leaves the hair soft and flexible after waves, and eliminates the discomfort of permanent waving. It gives a lasting permanent without the use of machine or chemical heat. Every wave is guaranteed.

Mr. Jack Carter of Cincinnati, Ohio, general sales manager, was here last week, and demonstrated this new wave at the Powder Puff Beauty Shoppe.

GARDEN TOUR ON JULY 29TH

Boone County Homemaker Club members and all others interested in the garden "Live at Home" program will cooperate in an all-day tour on next Tuesday, July 29th, according to Mary Hood Gillaspie, Home Demonstration Agent.

Four meetings will be held in connection with four garden stops. Demonstration gardens will be visited on the stops. John S. Gardner, garden specialist, College of Agriculture, and "Live at Home" garden cooperators will speak at each meeting.

The schedule of the meetings may be secured from the Homemakers' Club presidents, garden chairman or the County Office. Everybody is invited to attend.

Washington Snapshots
by JAMES PRESTON

The House Military Affairs Committee, as is natural in times of stress such as the present, has been extremely active recently, and has probed the defense situation from a number of angles. Some of the findings of this important group, however, have received little attention outside of Washington, due perhaps to the explosive nature of international events.

But in Washington itself some ears have been burning, and others have pricked up, at the comments made by this Congressional body, which has the welfare of a part of the defense program entrusted to its care.

Most important action of the committee, of course, was its recent issuance of a majority report on the defense program, part of which was discussed in this column last week. The report is fairly packed with valuable findings, however, and a few more words concernong it are in order here.

The document in question deals primarily with the subject of "stock piles" of strategic raw materials, and the reasons why these were in some cases not accumulated in time. The committee carefully identifies the source of such failures, and its listing is important because some of the points have a more general application than merely to the "stock piles" issue.

Here, then, as the Committee sees it, are the reasons for difficulties in this particular field:

1. Failure on the part of Congress, the Administration and the public to initiate a stock pile program at an earlier date.

2. Failure to entrust to a responsible head the full authority to carry out the will of Congress in the legislation enacted.

3. Failure of a sense of urgency on the part of officials of purchasing organizations.

4. The delay in establishing conservation methods and the use of substitutes for fear of causing unemployment.

5. Unwarranted delays in building plants and facilities for the conversion of raw materials into finished products.

It is easy to see that the Committee has government itself in mind for the chief responsibility in these instances, for only government could set in motion the forces to clear up these various inadequacies of the defense program.

That the same Committee has a high regard for industry's defense endeavers is shown by another report which it issued in connection with pending legislation. In that report, the following passage occurs:

"From the evidence, it is apparent to your committee that private industry has, without exception, cooperated to the fullest degree with both the War and Navy Departments and all other agencies of the Government engaged in the program of rearmament now under way by this Government; but unfortunately, certain minor groups or elements of employees in many of the factories and industrial plants of the country have sought for one reason or another to stop production and in many instances have largely succeeded in so doing."

Washington Sidelights: The government printing office committed a typographical error in the published report of the hearings on tax revision that contained more truth than poetry. Here's the sentence with the "bull" in it:

"Corporations are subject to State and local taxation equal on the average to more than a third of the net profits before Federal axes apply"

Whoever made that error was probably thinking of the old adage, "It's the taxpayer who always gets it in the neck!"

This Week In Defense

The War Department asked Congress for legislation to retain the National Guard, Reserves and Selectees for the duration of the Emergency. President Roosevelt told his press conference that unless Congress acts the Army faces serious disintegration.

The President said no violation of contract or faith would be entailed in such extension of service, because the Selective Service Act had provided for such extension of service by Congress in the event of a national emergency.

The War Department announced initial deliveries of the A-24, a new dive bomber that can outperform those used by other nations. The Department said rifles and sub-machine guns are now being produced at a daily rate of 1,500, compared with 289 one year ago. Under Secretary Patterson issued a statement of Army progress showing expenditures increased six-fold in the pat fiscal year.

Lend-Lease Aid

President Roosevelt sent Lease-Lend Administrator Hopkins to London for a new survey of British needs, and assigned two Army generals to speed the flow of munitions and food to Britain. The Surplus Marketing Administration purchased 30,000,000 pounds of tobacco, 2,544,000 bushels of corn and 75,000 bales of cotton for shipment abroad under the Lend-Lease program.

Civilian Supply

The OPACS announced a program to give preference over other civilian needs to repair and maintenance parts for privately-owned automobiles, trucks, trailers, tractors, household refrigerators, stoves, ranges and water heaters, plumbing fixtures, and furnaces, hospital equipment, surgical instruments and eye-glass frames and parts.

Ships

The Maritime Commission said expansion of the merchant shipbuilding program requested from the Congress would provide 566 new ships by the end of 1943. Although only one of the 312 emergency cargo ships was scheduled for delivery this year, at least 10 will be in operation by December 31, the Commission said. The fastest ship construction during the last war was seven months and 24 days, the Commission said, but it now hopes to reduce the time to 4½ to 5 months, with two ships completed in every day in 1943.

The Maritime Commission took title to 16 more Danish vessels and to four Italian vessels under provisions of the Ship Requisitioning Act and the Coast Guard seized 15 other Italian ships and one German ship to be put into service as soon as sabotage damage is repaired.

President Roosevelt signed legislation giving him power to grant defense materials priority in merchant shipping space and loading facilities.

Aluminum Collection

OPM Conservation Chief McConnell announced housewives' donations of used aluminum ware during the collection campaign July 21-29 should permit construction of more than 2,000 additional fighting planes. He said tests indicated a minimum of 15,000,000 net pounds usable in defense manufacture will be collected in the national campaign. Civilian Defense Director LaGuardia said State Procurement offices of the Treasury Department will direct shipment of collected material from concentration points in each State to the nearest selected smelter.

Price Administrator Henderson said additional supplies of waste paper and cardboard are needed for packing articles produced by defense industries and urged that waste paper be saved by the householder for collection by waste paper dealers.

Prices

Labor Secretary Perkins announced retail food prices increased 1.7 percent during the last two weeks of June, in addition to 1.6 percent in the first two weeks of the month. Principal rises were the price of eggs, lard, butter, pork chops and canned tomatoes, she said.

President Roosevelt told his press conference he is considering placing a ceiling on rents and on commodities and asking Congress to put "teeth" in price-fixing measures.

Price Administrator Henderson, speaking at Atlantic City, said costs and prices have risen at the wholesale level and will soon hit the nation's pocketbooks. Before long, he said, "there will be more purchasing power running around hunting something to buy than there are goods available."

WPA and Defense

WPA Commissioner Hunter said total average WPA employment during the 1942 fiscal year will be maintained at 1,000,000 instead of 1,700,000 as in the past year. He said almost 30 percent of all WPA workers were employed on national defense projects in June and cuts will be made more slowly from these projects than others.

Increased Wages

The Labor Department announced weekly earnings of wage earners in manufacturing industries in May rose to a new high of $30.69, a rise of 5 percent since this April and 21 percent over May, 1940. Hourly rates moved up to an average of 72.6 cents, a gain of 2.5 percent over April and 9.1 percent over the same month last year. The Department of Agriculture reported the general level of farm wages rose to the highest level in 11 years on July 1, 60 percent above the 1910-14 average.

Power for Defense

President Roosevelt asked Congress for authority to establish regional or nation-wide daylight saving time for all or such parts of the year as deemed practical. The Federal Power Commission reported that rainfall lessened the power shortage in the Southeast, although much more rain is needed before full usage of energy can be permitted small consumers.

Money Talks

By
Frederick Stamm, Economist Director of Adult Education
UNIVERSITY OF LOUISVILLE

Last week I stated that there were excellent prospects for mild infaltion, for, in other words, general all-round higher prices. How can people with small and medium savings best protect themselves against the dangers that face them as a result of this inflation?

Some economists think that common stocks are a good investment. This is based on the belief that if we have high prices, we will also have high profits and high dividends. But this may not be the case; taxes are taking a larger and larger share of profits each year and less and less is left for the stockholder.

Other experts lean toward town and city property, especially multiple-family dwellings and apartment houses. The belief here is that if we have inflation rents will go up.

Another group, and this is a large one, feels that self-sustaining or semi self-sustaining farm land is the best possible investment. But this group fails to realize that the present price of farm land is based upon a form of inflation. The price of farm land is dependent upon the price of farm products, and at present all those prices are unnatural and based upon government subsidies. If these subsidies should be reduced or discontinued, the value of farm land would decline rapidly.

I am of the opinion that there are only two ways of protecting ourselves against inflation. The first way is to buy gold; but the Government will not permit us to do this. The second way is to adopt government policies which will counteract the inflationary forces now at work. As to this, the individual has little choice, and the Government, while professing a concern over inflation and a determination to avoid it, does very little that is genuinely helpful.

So I can offer only a rather gloomy conclusion. There is really very little the average person can do to safeguard his capital in a period of inflation.

SELECTIVE SERVICE MEN MAY ENLIST IN NAVY

Announcement was made today that the Navy Department has opened the U. S. Naval Reserve to general enlistment and men registered under the Selective Service Law may volunteer and serve during the duration of the present emergency. Lt. Comdr. J. C. Cawthon, officer in charge of recruiting in the Kentucky area, and Lt. Comdr. T. H. Escott, Naval Liaison Officer at Kentucky Selective Service Headquarters made the announcement.

Heretofore Selective Service registrants who desired to volunteer for Naval service have been limited to six year enlistments in the regular Navy.

Volunteers for service with the Naval Reserve are enrolled for a four year period, but provision is made by law whereby they are released from active duty when the emergency is over.

Men wishing to volunteer for Naval service may enroll in any branch of the service in which they can qualify. Civilian experience in certain special lines may qualify the enlistee for Naval Reserve specialist's school.

These schools include such branches as radio, yeoman or stenographic work, storekeepers, aviation machinists, metal smiths, quartermasters, signal men and many others

College graduates, between the ages of 20-28 may volunteer for the Naval Reserve Officers' Training Course, known as V-7, and receive ensigns' commissions upon graduation from the school.

Men in the same age bracket but with a minimum of two years college may volunteer for training for a commission as a Naval aviator, a course known as V-5.

Lt. Comdr. Escott has announced that all local Selective Boards of the Kentucky area have been advised to refer men who desire to volunteer for Naval service to the nearest Navy Recruiting office. The Navy recruiting officials have been instructed that they are not to accept selectees who have received definite orders from their Local Board to report for induction except in an unusual case where the Local Board is willing to release the man.

The Navy Recruiting Station for Kentucky is at 437 Federal Building, Louisville. Substations are located in Ashland, Danville, Bowling Green, Frankfort, Lexington, Hopkinsville, Middlesboro, Paducah, Owensboro and Somerset. Stations in adjacent states include Indianapolis, St. Louis and Cincinnati.

FOOD FOR DEFENSE— LATE HOME GARDEN

The Kentucky Extension circular No. 343, Garden Month by Month recommends that late planting of sugar corn be made near the 15th, and Stringless Greenpod or Refugee beans be planted for late beans. Double the size of the plantings for canning surpluses. Seed summer lettuce: Cos, Trianon. Beets for storing. Still time to set late cabbage. Late tomato plants should be planted by this time.

INSECTS. The insects should be kept under control by spraying. Early bean vines are a source of feeding grounds for bean beetles. Destroy them after beans are harvested to kill adult beetles. Towards the end of July it is time to make plans for seeding a few turnips, Siberian Kale, Southern Curled Mustard or Bloomsdale Savoy spinach for late greens. Winter onion sets should be planted late July and early August for winter green-onions. Get a copy of Garden circular from your Extension Agents. You can have a good late garden if you desire and it will help you increase your food supply for home use and defense.

DEFENSE AND THE AAA

The following excerpts were taken from the report of the committee on the Defense Program and the AAA to the National AAA Conference:

The defense effort must succeed. The interests of any economic group must be subservient to it. Our national point of view must be animated and inspired by a willingness to give rather than a desire to take. Sacrifices are going to be necessary to insure the security of our democratic existence.

Production of abundant food and fiber for our own nation and for other democracies resisting aggression is a duty that farmers accept willingly and with patriotism.

Farm families, should, as far as possible, reduce debts to a minimum and accumulate reserves of cash and commodities. They should endeavor to grow as much as possible of what they consume.

We recommend that greater emphasis be given to proper nutrition. Official records reveal that about one-third of our people are below the safety line in health due largely to inadequate and improper diet. This appaling deficiency must be corrected. The strength of the Nation lies in the strength of the individual families that comprise it. The security of the individual family depends upon the security of the Nation.

In this period of uncertainty, it is recognized that food and fiber needs of our country and others we are seeking to aid cannot always be exactly gauged, and that at times we may be asked upon short notice to provide additional food or fiber.

We pledge ourselves to marshalling the agricultural resources of this country so as to best meet the needs of defense.

NUTRITION BRIEFS

"The minerals which people need come from plants and animals which get their food from the soil. Through soil conservation we can grow better food and more of it."—Dr. Thomas Parran, Surgeon General of the United States.

"Nutrition begins with the soil and climaxes in the food of human beings." Dr. E. L. Bishop, Medical Director of the TVA.

"The people in every nation today are living under great physical and nervous strain. We, in the United States, to keep our nerves healthy under such conditions, need the right kinds of food as well as the right attitude. . . Whether it be children, whether it be workers, whether it be soldiers, the first step toward a happy, confident attiutude is an abundant supply of the right kind of food. On a foundation of good food we can build almost anything. Without it we can build nothing."—Henry A. Wallace, Vice President of the United States.

"America must be strong, but she cannot be strong when one-half of her sons are substandard physically. America needs whole men, not half men. She must develop vigorous and healthy youths; she must rehabilitate those whose defects are slight; she must rehabilitate those examined and found deficient. The task before us, like all tasks in a democracy, is the duty and responsibility of each and every citizen."—Brig. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, Deputy Director, National Headquarters Selective Service System.

DONATE YOUR SCRAP ALUMINUM FOR DEFENSE PROGRAM

July 21-29 has been designated as the week for donating aluminum scrap metal as a part of the defense program. According to Mr. Jos. W. Dotchengall, chairman for Kenton county various organizations in the county are cooperating in the program to collect scrap aluminum for the Defense program.

In most communities where fire department units are operating in the county they will serve as central collecting points for scrap aluminum. The Independence and Community fire department will serve as collecting point for the central part of the county.

Collect'n Points for So. of County

In the southern part of the county where the Fire Department units do not operate, the scrap aluminum may be donated to the Defense Program at the following places:

Bracht community, T. T. Elliott Grocery Store, near Bracht Sta.

Piner community, Beagle Bros. Grocery Store.

Fiskburg community, W. W. Hanker Grocery Store.

Morning View community, Schadler & Son.

Kenton community, C. D. Baker, store.

Visalia community, John Belew Grocery Store.

All persons having scrap aluminum which they desire to donate to the defense program, can deliver it to the nearest collecting place. Every litlte bit helps. You can do your part in donating scrap aluminum and cooperating with the different organizations that are helping in the campaign, during the week of JULY 21 to 29 inclusive. You can help by telling your neighbors about this Defense Program.

MORNING VIEW

The members of St. Mary's church were sorry to lose their pastor, Rev. Wm. Gockel, but welcome Rev. Francis Donnelly, who has taken his place.

PRESS WOMEN HOLD ANNUAL CONVENTION

The fifth annual convention of the National Federation of Press Women, Inc., held in Milwaukee June 26, 27 and 28, is now past and time alone will prove the importance of the occasion—and the importance will be proved, for the sincerity and seriousness of the speakers and the earnestness of those attending as they discussed the press woman's part in this great historic era made an impress which will be carried into the four corners of these United States and, echoing in many state groups, will be a tremendous influence on the reading public.

But don't get the idea that the convention was stodgy — a great deal of fun was had by each state's delegation—and the Kentucky group of four tremendously enjoyed the trip. For instance—there was the wedding reception at the hotel which many of the press women were invited to get in on and which the Mayor of Milwaukee also attended. The Mayor (who is a very capable, personable young man) sang "My Old Kentucky Home" as a compliment to the Kentuckians—Mary Elizabeth and Jane Hutton of the Harrodsburg Herald, Mildred Babage of the Breckenridge News (Cloverport), and Janet S. Shutts, of the Danville Advocate-Messenger.

Lincoln county farmers have ordered 40,000 pounds of vetch seed, to use in the conservation program.

$5,300,000 Taxes Paid by Railroads in Kentucky in 1940

Railroads operating in Kentucky paid a total of more than $5,300,000 in taxes to the State, counties, cities and towns last year. Of this amount, at least $2,645,000 went into School Funds; approximately $960,000 went to build and maintain county roads and city streets, and the remaining $1,695,000 went into General Funds.

IN THIS COUNTY ALONE IN 1940 RAILROAD TAXES* TOTALED $22,281.22

Thus the railroads paid a generous share of all the money required to conduct State, county and local business. This includes public education, streets and highways, public health work, police and fire protection, mental and tuberculosis hospitals, penal institutions, public charity, administration, and all the other services that you and other citizens require of your State and local governments.

You can readily see by these figures that every section of our Commonwealth shares in the prosperity and earnings of Kentucky railroads. So it is to your interest, as a progressive citizen and taxpayer—

1. TO OPPOSE unfair national or state subsidies to competing forms of transportation.

2. TO SUPPORT fair and reasonable measures to put all other carriers for hire under regulations similar to those prescribed for railroads—which bear so large a part of the general tax burden and carry over their own roadways the bulk of the transportation load in peace and in war.

* The railroads also paid to the STATE taxes on all their property located in this county. A large part of these State taxes is spent in the counties for schools and other State services.

Doings of The REDS

The Reds may make their hay while the sun shine on their own ball yard. They're scheduled for 22 games at Crosley Field for their longest home stand of the season, and this should provide them an opportunity to determine definitely if they can get back in the middle of the fight for the National League pennant.

On their stay at home, continuous except for two days at Chicago, August 9 and 10, the Reds have three Sunday twin bills, and were booked for three night games, the first of which was played in Cincinnati Wednesday night against Brooklyn. The first of the doubleheaders is listed Sunday, when the Phillies oppose the Reds, while next Sunday the Boston Braves will be the bargain bill opponent. A third twin event is scheduled at Crosley Field Sunday, August 17, when the Reds meet the Chicago Cubs.

Next Wednesday the New York Giants will meet the Reds in a night game that will be preceded by the regular pre-game festivities. Featured band will be the Celina High school group, from Celina, Ohio. This outfit is recognized as one of the best in this part of the country. A mammoth fireworks display also is on the schedule. This night game against the Giants will be the sixth of the season at Crosley Field. The seventh is scheduled for Wednesday, August 13, when the fierce fighting St. Louis Cardinals enter the Reds' baillwick.

It's going to be hard for the Reds to climb back into the center of the pennant fight, but a few breaks will help them do it. They played the best ball in the circuit in June. A bit of acceleration on that record will be just what the doctor ordered for them.

Tickets for all of the Reds' games for the remainder of the season are now on sale at the Reds' downtown ticket office, at 307 Vine Street. Mail orders receive prompt attention.

KENTUCKY STATE FAIR TO BE HELD SEPT. 6-13

One'll get you three, if you'll listen to Robert B. Jewell, manager of the Kentucky State Fair, now busily engaged in readying plans for the fortieth annual and what he confidently expects to be the greatest exposition of Kentucky's varied products. Dates for this year's Fair are September 6 to September 13, inclusive.

While it may sound like the jargon of the Midway barker, Mr. Jewell really means every word of it and it's dollars, not doughnuts, he's talking about. It's not a trick and he uses no mirrors; he hasn't any cards up his sleeve. One good American dollar actually will get you what otherwise would cost you three.

Bargain budget books of special tickets will go on sale July 28, throughout the State at Farm Bureau President's offices, various groceries, drugstores, hotels, cigar stands, banks, retail business establishments and department stores. Each book contains six tickets with a total value of $3.00, at a cost of $1.00. A limit of 50,000 has been set so, when the supply is exhausted, there juts won't be any more. Good on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, September 8, 9 and 10, each ticket may be used for admission at the outer gate or to the grandstand or to the Horse Show.

BURLEY COOPERTIVE GROUP TO SEEK EXTENSION OF ITS CHARTER

The campaign of the Burley Tobacco Growers Cooperative Association to obtain a 20-year-extension of its charter, will be headed by R. H. Gilbert of Shelbyville, it was announced Saturday by the Operating Committee of the Association at Lexington.

Assisting Mr. Gilbert will be Headley Shouse of Fayette county, and W. C. Clay, Sr., of Montgomery county. Their work will be done under the supervision of the Board of Directors of the Association and the Operating Committee, which is composed of President Dawson Chambers, Vice-President John W. Jones, and the Secretary-Treasurer, Frank C. Taylor.

All members of the Association, which includes those who delivered tobacco to the Association last year and during the years from 1921 through 1926, have been mailed cards on which they may vote for the extension. There is also a ballot in this issue of the Advertiser.

All tobacco received by the Association must be graded by the Government graders. It is understood that plans are being made to government grade all burley markets for the coming season.

A charter for 20 years was granted the Association in 1922 when it was incorporated. This charter expires January 11, 1942. If the price stabilization operations of the Association are to continue for the protection of the 1941 crop as well as crops for future years, it is necessary to get a renewal of the charter.

New Ideas for Outdoor Meals

When you're planning the menu for a campfire picnic, the choice of a meat is a simple matter, usually steak, wieners, hamburgers or fresh-caught fish. But when it comes to the rest of the menu a little more thought is necessary. Though it is easy to decide on fried potatoes and a salad topped off with fruit and let it go at that, variety in picnic meals is a simple matter if you make use of the different prepared foods on your grocer's shelves.

For example, everyone would enjoy prepared spaghetti in tomato sauce instead of the usual fried potatoes. The racy tomato-and-cheese flavor of the sauce combines delightfully with the lightly smoky flavors of camp-fire-cooked meats.

When you have a good fish catch to serve, the cooked macaroni in cream sauce with cheese which comes prepared in cans has just the right nippiness to set off the fish's fresh-caught taste.

Prepared oven-baked beans—all four kinds of them—are another good reason you don't want to forget the can opener when you go on an outing.

The following menus give you clever ideas for different things to do with campfire meals:

Broiled Steak Dinners
Broiled Cube Steaks
Cooked Spaghetti in Tomato Sauce
Fresh Cucumber Pickle
Celery Sticks
Toasted Rolls
Fresh Peaches
Toasted Marshmallow and Graham Cracker Dessert
(Roast marshmallows and eat between graham crackers)

Beans 'n Wieners Dinner
Wieners Broiled on a Stick
Oven-Baked Beans, Any Style
Buttered Hard Rolls
Cabbage and Green Pepper Salad
Peach Tart

Campfire Fish Dinner
Fried Fresh-Caught Fish
Cooked Macaroni in Cream Sauce with Cheese
Cross-Cut Sweet Pickles
Tomato Slices
Whole Wheat Sandwiches
Fresh Cherries and Blueberries
Cookies Coffee

Proud Pudding

If you are one who holds your breath every time you make corn pudding, or doesn't make it just because you're afraid it might fall, you will be glad for this new recipe that doesn't allow any calamities. The crisp, golden-brown breakfast cereals known as rice flakes are the ingredient that prevents such goings-on.

Corn Pudding

Combine—
1 No. 2 can cream-style corn
2 eggs, slightly beaten.
Toss—
1 cup rice flakes
in—
3 tablespoons butter, melted.
Stir into corn mixture with—
½ teaspoon salt.

Pour into a well-greased baking dish and bake in a moderate oven (350° F.) 40 minutes. Serves 5.

-that man IN OUR NEIGHBORHOOD!

A CALL IN THE NIGHT

We heard the children romping in their playroom upstairs—then suddenly, a scream!

We both rushed up and found our young son had fallen and apparently broken his arm. We immediately phoned our family physician, who verified our worst fears.

In time, the arm was carefully set, but other difficulties arose that called for an unusual prescription.

I looked at the clock—where could we get it filled at this late hour?

We spoke to the doctor, who then picked up the phone and called "that man" out of bed—again "that man" (our neighborhood druggist) did not fail us.

Our neighborhood druggist never fails us! Should you, like most women, suffer discomforts during the menstrual period, just phone your druggist—he usually advises women to try Vatona Tablets—this may be just what you need!

Improved Uniform International SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D.
Dean of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for July 27

Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education; used by permission.

THE HOLY SPIRIT INSPIRES NEW TESTAMENT LETTERS

LESSON TEXT—Galatians 1:11, 12; I Thessalonians 2:13; II Timothy 3:14-17; II Peter 3:14-16; Jude 3.

GOLDEN TEXT—All scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness.—II Timothy 3:16.

Letters are usually interesting, frequently very important, and always revealing as to the character and interests of the writer. That is generally true of ordinary daily mail, but how very true it is of the letters of Scripture, the epistles of Peter, Paul, Jude, and John. For in them "holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost" (II Pet. 1:21).

I. The Gospel (Gal. 1:11, 12; I Thess. 2:13).

The good news (for that is the meaning of "gospel") of salvation by grace through faith in Jesus Christ as Saviour has from the very beginning of its proclamation been subject to attack. Men are not content to receive God's way of salvation, but want to add something to it, adjust its requirements to meet new situations, to tinker and twist.

1. A Divine Revelation (Gal. 1: 11, 12).

Paul was not presenting something which he or some other man had "worked up," but a message that he had "prayed down." Paul was only delivering that which he had received from God (see I Cor. 15:1-4. He was careful that it should not be confused with or by the teachings of men, so he "conferred not with flesh and blood" (see Gal. 1:15, 16).

We too are privileged to proclaim a divine revelation which has come to us in the inspired Word of God. How delightfully sweet and tremendously powerful is the message which we may thus bring forth. It has no human frailty and weakness, no human error, and no misleading philosophies. It does not need to be revised every year or two. It is God's eternal message of redemption.

2. A Message of Salvation (I Thess. 2:13).

It works in those who believe. Yes, it does—blessed be the name of God! God's Book says so, and the experience of hundreds of thousands of men and women over a period of almost 2,000 years agrees.

Note, however, that to work, the message must not only be "received," but also "accepted" as the Word of God. The message of the Bible may be received as a matter of fact, but for salvation it must be accepted and believed as a matter of faith.

II. The Bible (II Tim. 3:14-17; II Pet. 3:14-16).

Near the end of a life given in utter sacrifice to God's cause, Paul is ready to be used of the Holy Spirit to speak concerning the written Word.

1. It Is God-Inspired (II Tim. 3: 14-17).

Be sure to read this passage in the Authorized Version. The Revised has taken liberties with this verse which the finest scholarship does not countenance. It properly reads, "All scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine (teaching), for reproof, for correction, for instruction," etc. Other books may claim some kind or measure of human inspiration—this Book is inspired of God. If there were space, proof of the truth of that statement could easily be given. It is available for all who want to believe it.

2. It Is Not to Be Wrested (II Pet. 3:14-16).

If permitted to do so, God's Word will bring peace of heart, make a man spotless and blameless (v. 14). But its salvation (v. 15) is not for those who ignorantly, or because of their ignorance, or because they are not steadfast in their lives, wrest its truth. Let us receive the Word with gladness, not twist it or distort its meaning to our own destruction.

III. The Faith (Jude 3).

1. It Was "Delivered Once for All."

It is a final revelation from God. There is no other gospel, and there never will be another. What assurance that gives us both in believing it and proclaiming it! But the world hates this gospel, and attacks on it are to be expected. Therefore

2. It Is to Be Earnestly Contended For.

No matter how peaceable we may be, how loving and tenderhearted, if and when attack is made upon the Lordship of Christ, when men make light of sin, and so seem to minimize the vital importance of holiness of life—then, however unpleasant contention and controversy may be to us, it is time we cast our self-regard aside and contend earnestly for the faith once for all delivered to the saints." (J. D. Jones).
